PRIMITIVE PHYSIC.

John Wesley as a Physician and Some of His Remedies.

It is not generally known that John Wesley in one of his brief intervals of leisure published a sort of medical vade mecum called not inappropriately "Primitive Physic." It was first published in 1747, and it ran into at least twenty-four editions. The author was greatly surprised there was so swift and large a demand for it. In the later editions he was able to add the word "Tried" to certain remedies the virtues of which he had meanwhile found opportunities of testing. After five years' careful trial and notwithstanding the objections of the learned he recommends for the ague "to go into the cold bath just before the cold fit," but omits to say how to time the coming of the fit. To prevent apoplexy use the cold bath and drink only water. If this proves useless and a fit should declare itself you have only to "put a handful of salt with a pint of cold water and if possible pour it down the throat of the patient." To cure asthma "take a pint of cold water every morning, washing the head therein immediately after." Wesley gives four ways of curing old age—"take tar water morning and evening" or "a decoction of nettles" or "be electrified daily" or "chew cinnamon daily and swallow your saliva." The two great panaceas in the Wesleyan doctrine are the use of cold water and the use of electricity, and at the end of the book are columns of every sort of disease which may be overcome by these simple expedients.—St. James' Gazette.

WANTED A JOB.

Therefore He Did His Best to Please the Manager.

A certain playwright relates how a manager was much annoyed by the persistent applications for a "job" made by a peculiarly seedy individual. Time and again the manager had referred this person to his stage manager. "See Blank," he would say, interrupting the man's attempts to set forth his qualifications.

At last the applicant did succeed in gaining audience of Blank, the stage manager, who was in the theater for the time "sizing up" candidates for the chorus.

There were, of course, a number ahead of him, but this fact did not prevent the seedy man from interrupting the stage manager between songs with requests for a job.

Exasperated, the stage manager at length turned to the pianist and ordered him to play an accompaniment for the stranger. With considerable hesitation the seedy person raised what voice he had in song. The result was bad as bad could be.

The manager suddenly commanded him to desist.

"What do you mean by this tomfoolery?" he demanded, disgusted. "You certainly have confounded impudence to ask me for a job!"

"Look here!" said the stranger, angry in turn. "I don't claim to be able to sing. In fact, I don't want to sing. I'm a stage carpenter. I only sang to please you because you insisted on it!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Robert Meighen says a fine theatre will be erected in Montreal, and a Ritz-Carlton hotel is also likely.

Lee Ryan, a prisoner in the Woodstock, N. B. jail, set fire to his bed and received burns which will prove fatal.

LAID UP FIVE YEARS

Until Half a Bottle of Father Morrisey's Liniment Cured His Shoulder.

Mr. Jos. J. Roy, a prominent tinsmith of Bathurst, N.B., july 16, 1909:

"I cannot let this opportunity pass without letting you know what benefit I received from your Liniment. For five years I had a sore shoulder, which prevented me from working or from sleeping at night. I had tried everything possible and still could find no relief, until I was advised to try a bottle of your liniment, which I purchased without delay. I only used one half of the bottle when I was completely cured, and now I feel as if I never had a sore shoulder. I would advise anyone suffering from Rheumatic pains to give your liniment a trial, for I cannot praise it too highly."

A liniment that will do that is the liniment you want. It is equally good for sore throat or chest, backache, toothache, ear ache, sprains, sore muscles, cuts, bruises, burns, frost-bites, chapped hands or chilblains. Rub it in, and the pain comes out. 25c per bottle at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co. Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 64

A MEDIAEVAL STRUGGLE

That Took Place In the Twentieth Century.

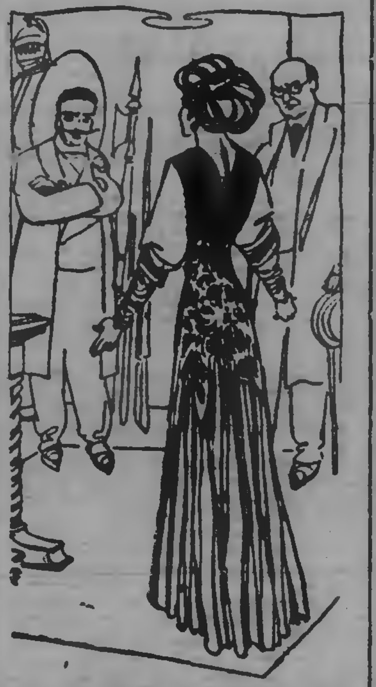
By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The Loutons of St. Louis during the winter of 19—, after a summer spent in Switzerland, took a palace in Florence. That they could thus suddenly pick up a palace, that they could afford to hire a palace, is not so startling as might at first appear. Time was when all fine houses in Europe were called palaces. Nevertheless the palace occupied by the Loutons had been during the middle ages the abode of one of those princes among whom Italy was then divided. It stands on one of the many vias, or streets, of Florence, not far from the cathedral called the Duomo. In Florence are various collections of mediaeval weapons, and on the ground floor of the Palazzio V. occupied by the Loutons is a room full of blunderbusses, swords, crossbows, pikes, shields, battleaxes and parts of armor.

The Loutons being wealthy and Jeannette Louton being but twenty years old and pretty, there sprang up at once among certain Italian gentlemen with a great deal of rank and a correspondingly small amount of money a spirited contest for her hand. Among these were Princes Visconti and Strozzi, whose families had struggled with each other several centuries ago. Visconti was forty, tall, thin, bald and wore glasses, being very nearsighted. Strozzi was thirty-two, short, fat, high shouldered and wore his hair pompadour and his mustaches turned up at their waxed points a la Mephistopheles.

The two princes vied with each other in recounting to her the glorious deeds of their respective ancestors. True, they made no mention of the various instances in which they had resorted to hired assassination. But what they failed to give Jeannette rend in history and learned of the cowardly as well as brave deeds of those warlike people. Gradually she came under the influence of mediaeval times. She wished she might hear the bell clang in the campanile, calling the citizens of Florence into the Piazza Senora for one of those free fights that in bygone days had strewn the pavement with corpses. If she saw a crowd gathered about a fallen horse her fancy pictured a Visconti and a Strozzi had met and fought.



"CAN YOU BLAME ME FOR NOT BEING ABLE TO CHOOSE?"

Months passed without either of the two suitors gaining any advantage over the other. Meanwhile each had made inquiries through his bankers of the financial standing in America of John Louton, and the report came back A1. When the meaning of this was explained to them their love waxed exceedingly strong. Consequently their rivalry grew hot and their hatred of each other even hotter.

There are people who do queer things, whose motive is unintelligible to any one else, and often they are ignorant of it themselves. On the one hand, Jeannette Louton had come under the influence of fourteenth century Florentine life; on the other, she was American through and through. There was a bit of spice in her makeup. Her Italian suitors were so wrapped up in the importance of that past from which they derived their own importance that when some ludicrous thought concerning it came to them from Jeannette they did not dream that it could be interpreted save with profound respect for the Viscontis or the Strozzis of old.

In Jeannette there must have been a mingling of currents, on the one hand the mediaeval stream, on the other that up to date American stream so unintelligible to Europeans. At any rate, she went back into mediaevalism in a remarkable fashion and returned to the twentieth century very much alarmed. The feuds of the Guelphs and the Ghebelines were renewed in the two princes. When they met on the banks of the Arno or in the Boboli gardens they would glare at each other and give a hereditary twitch of the right arm that came from those who, thus meeting centuries before, seized the hilts of their swords.

One morning each received a note from Jeannette Louton inviting him to call at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of a certain day. At the appointed hour Visconti appeared, and Strozzi was admitted a few minutes later. They were received in the cabinet of arms. Each started as he saw the other, glared and awaited developments.

"Your highness," said Jeannette, "you have both done me the honor to propose for my hand. From both I have listened to accounts of the prowess of your ancestors. You have transported me to those romantic times and kept me there till I almost feel that I am a part of them. As I understand it, the families you represent took an equally important part in Italian history. You are both fine representatives of a splendid race. Few women have been honored by a choice between two such offers. Can you blame me for not being able to choose between the two? I must ask you to decide which shall defer to the other. I will leave you in this room and ask you, when you have decided, to let me know."

She went out of the cabinet and shut the door.

For a few minutes there were low voices, gradually rising till they rang out in trumpet tones.

Meanwhile Ned Sackett, a young St. Louisan, who had been courting Jeannette Louton for several years, fearing that among the princes and dukes abroad she might slip away from him, had decided to follow her, arriving in Florence on the very day the young lady had suggested to the two princes to settle between themselves which should give way to the other.

The same afternoon he sauntered up to the Palazzio V. He was admitted to a surprise. The door to the cabinet of arms was open, and two men were fighting with swords as long as the antagonists themselves, while Jeannette was making frantic efforts to induce them to desist. The two princes had come from words to blows, and each had caught up a weapon. Prince Visconti, having been hurt in the head, seized a helmet and put it on. Prince Strozzi, seeing a piece of armor of the thirteenth century, in order to get even with his enemy caught it up and got it partly on his thorax. Visconti picked up a shield used in the crusades, Strozzi defending himself with an andiron 700 years old, but as Sackett entered he dropped it and replaced it with an immense iron punch bowl that had belonged to a Visconti.

To add to the terror of the scene, Visconti's face was bloody and Strozzi limped from a wound in the leg. Visconti holding the longer sword, his enemy dropped his own and grabbed a pike. This gave him such an advantage that it enabled him to drive his enemy into a corner. But near Visconti in a rack was a gun with a barrel nearly as long as the pike. Seizing it and deriving an advantage owing to his own superior length, he began to poke his adversary with it on something like equal terms. In this way the cornered man gradually forced his adversary to the middle of the room.

These changes in the situation required but very little time. It required more time by far for Sackett to recover from his astonishment at this mediaeval struggle in the opening of the twentieth century. He didn't know whether to be the more amused or astonished. The scene may have been absurd, but there was no time for laughter. Jeannette gave Sackett an imploring look. Seizing a battleax, he ran up to the combatants and began to beat down their weapons. He was not so furious as they, and this absence of anger gave him a decided advantage. Finally he secured a position between the two.

"Gentlemen," he said, "what means this unseemly row in the home of a lady?"

"They don't understand English," said Jeannette. In a word she explained the situation.

Sackett understood no Italian, but he was capital at pantomime. Putting his left arm about Jeannette, he waved his right in the air, while a sublime look rested on his face, as much as to say: "I am the victor in this case. The lady falls to me."

Jeannette, fearful that if she denied his right to her the two princes would renew the fray and kill each other, denied nothing. Indeed, she clung to the party of the third part as her only refuge.

"Senorina," said Visconti, "do we understand that this gentleman is your betrothed?"

This being in Italian, Sackett did not understand a word of it, and the lady was free to say what she liked.

"I have loved him since I was a little girl," she declared.

"Then, senorina," interposed Strozzi, "may I ask what is the use of this combat?"

"No use whatever, I assure you."

Both men had words of reproach on their lips; but, to do them justice, they were too gallant to speak them. They threw down their weapons, threw off their accouterments and, making a bow to the lady, in which they nearly bumped their heads against the floor, turned and marched out with all the precision, stiffness and seriousness one sees in the portraits of their ancestors in the Petti gallery.

Ned Sackett asked Jeannette what had passed between her and her suitors after he had separated them. She said she had told them that Ned was her brother and would kill both of them unless they kept the peace.

Sackett took her back with him as his wife all the same.

BREAKFAST CAKES.

You'll Like Them Some Cold Morning This Winter.

All breakfast cakes should be served piping hot on heated plates. They are best if made after the family is at table, for the least standing produces the leathery quality which makes them so indigestible. A hot cake, lightly made and deftly cooked, is as digestible as any breakfast food to the average stomach.

When cooked a thick iron griddle must be used, and a good way to grease this is to smear it with a rag lightly touched with fresh butter. If grease of any sort is lavishly used the cakes will be fried, of tough consistency and without the delicate taste required. Maple sirup, strained honey and brown sugar are proper sweeteners for any cake, but these must be put on only after the delicacy has been buttered. Never turn the cake over until one side has browned. One turn is enough.

Sour Milk Griddlecakes.—Take two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, two cups of sour milk and one and one-quarter teaspoons of soda. Mix and sift flour, soda and salt together, add one egg well beaten and the sour milk. Drop by tablespoonfuls on the smoking griddle and, when puffed up and cooked at the edges, turn. Maple sirup goes especially well with these cakes.

Stale Bread Cakes.—Take one and one-half cups of fine stale breadcrumbs, one and one-half cups of scalded sweet milk, two tablespoons of butter, two eggs, one-half cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, three and one-half teaspoons of baking powder. Put the milk and butter with the crumbs and soak until these are soft; add the eggs well beaten, then flour, salt and baking powder, these all mixed together and sifted. Cook as directed above. Eat with brown sugar or molasses.

Buckwheat Cakes.—Take one-half cup of fine breadcrumbs, two cups of scalded milk, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-quarter yeast cake, one-half cup of lukewarm water, one and three-quarter cups of buckwheat flour and one tablespoon of molasses. Pour milk over the crumbs and soak half an hour. Add salt, yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm water and then buckwheat sufficient to make a thin batter. Let this rise overnight. In the morning stir well and put in molasses and one-quarter teaspoon of soda dissolved in the quantity of lukewarm water given and cook as griddlecakes. Eat with maple sirup.

Southern Waffles.—Take one and three-quarter cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, one cup of milk, the yolk of two eggs, the whites of two eggs and one tablespoon of melted butter. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, gradually add the milk, yolk of eggs well beaten, butter and whites of eggs whipped stiff; then cook in a round or square waffle iron. Strained honey is delicious with these.

Made Over Rugs.

As a guide to housekeepers who have old carpets to be woven into rugs it will take four pounds of brussels carpet or three running yards to make a doormat size rug measuring 1.6 by 2.6 feet and cost $1 for reweaving.

A hearth rug 2.6 by 5 feet will take twelve pounds of brussels or ten pounds of ingrain carpet.

A smaller rug for placing before the bureau takes eight pounds of carpet or six running yards.

A rug measuring 6 by 9 feet will require forty-eight yards of brussels or forty-two of ingrain, averaging about thirty-six yards.

It's With Us, the Hobble Petticoat.

Have you a hobble petticoat built expressly for wear beneath the skirt of your new tailored fall suit? If not your ordinary petticoat, with its three yard width and frou-frou fullness at the bottom, will do all sorts of awkward things to the straight, narrow hobble skirt above it. The hobble petticoats measure not more than two yards around the bottom, some of them not more than a yard and a half. Several dainty hobble petticoats are pictured here. One is a taffeta model, made in the ordinary way, but only two yards around the bottom. Another is a lingerie hobble petticoat with a flounce of eyelet embroidery; also a satin petticoat banded in at the ankle in true hobble style with a strip of Dresden ribbon. Of course all these petticoats are exquisitely fitted over the hips and are fastened smoothly with snap buttons at the back or at one side of the front.

THE BASKET CRAZE

A Fad For Them In Every Form and Size.

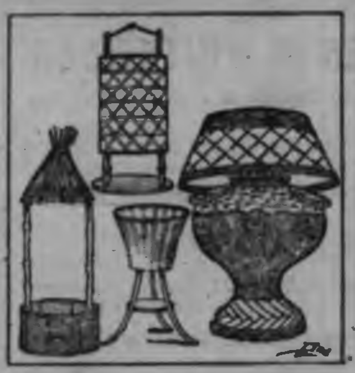
ATTRACTIVE LAMP SHADES.

The Popular Basket of the Hour Is Japanese Split Bamboo—Indian, Malay and Mexican Effects Second Favorites.

Dainty little twigs all the way from the Black forest and made to reproduce old German wells are the little ferneries being shown just now. The color is a rich glossy brown. The twigs are put together much as the ladybird builds her nest.

Seemingly there is no end to the craze for baskets and no end to the uses to which they are put. The split bamboo just at present is the special vogue. Not that it is new by any means, but there is every little while some charming new shape evolved which is irresistible.

Those used for lamps are constantly changing and improving. The one illustrated is particularly handsome and may be surmounted by a shade of the same material woven with very open spaces which show the light through the silk lining.



ORNAMENTAL USES FOR THE BASKET.

A new candle shade effect is picturesque. It is the basket type with lining of yellow silk. An incandescent dropped inside makes it a soft, pretty light, and it is decorative for a table in a living room.

Every nation seems at some time or other to have expressed itself in a basket of distinctive pattern. People of semibarbaric history seem to excel in the art.

Indian baskets made of the sweet grass in a variety of shapes and sizes are much sought and difficult to get in certain forms. There are those of the tiniest dimensions, just the size to hold a thimble and in the shape of an acorn, and again this same basket is big enough to hold a piece of pick up fancy work.

Possibly the most unique of the baskets shown are those of Malay make. They are very intricate in design, too much so to show the detail in a drawing.

All of them are a deep cream or tan. The largest size is called a rhombong. This is a sort of carryall with square corners like a telescope. The women pack all their belongings about with them in this case.

Mexican baskets with their brilliant yellows, reds and greens are very gay and extremely durable.

The grass is twisted very tightly and closely, and the fiber is too tough to break easily. It is really the most ornamental and taking of all the baskets one finds now and makes the most attractive of receptacles for sweets or gifts of any kind.

Salt as a Cleanser.

Every housewife should realize the possibilities of salt as a cleanser. Indeed, salt and kerosene should be in the cleansing outfit of every household, for together they form a combination which eradicates almost any dirt.

For polishing mirrors nothing can exceed the merit of salt. When applying it the glass must be wet with clear water, then the salt rubbed on with a damp newspaper. The final rubbing may be done with dry newspapers or with a chamois skin.

A tablespoonful of coarse salt, a teaspoonful of ammonia and a pint of hot water mixed and kept for rinsing decanters and carafes will make them as bright as new.

Silver discolored either by egg or other use will respond at once to a vigorous rubbing of damp salt.

Salt and vinegar combined will usually restore polish to brass and copper, and salt is a wonderful renovator of polished wood surfaces that have been dulled with hot dishes. To brighten such spots cover the gray portions with salt, which is then wet with olive oil, all of the latter being poured on that the salt will absorb. This should stand for twenty-four hours, when it should be removed and the surface rubbed with a soft cloth. If all grayness has not disappeared repeat the salt and oil bath.

For removing discolorations of fruit from teeth or hands salt is excellent.

To Avoid Blisters.

No blister will form if white of egg and olive oil are mixed quickly in equal portions and applied to a burn. The place should be covered with a piece of soft linen. Bicarbonate of soda is more quickly obtained and is quite as good. It should be used dry, covered with a cloth and kept wet with cold water. A bad blister was covered with a piece of linen wet in a 1 per cent solution of carbolic acid, kept wet for a day or two, and no scar resulted, and there was little pain.

A boiler in the Collegiate Institute at St. Catharines blew out, badly searing the pupils.

SUPPLEMENTARY MEETINGS OF FARMERS' INSTITUTE

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session commenced about 8 o'clock. There was considerable improvement in the attendance, the ladies also showing their interest by being present.

HIGH IDEALS IN FARM LIFE

Mr. H. C. Garbutt, as chairman, introduced the first speaker, Mr. R. Smith, whose subject was "High Ideals in Farm Life." He was pleased to have the ladies present, and paid them a glowing tribute. The speaker was thoroughly of the opinion that we should indeed have high ideals of farm life. By paying attention to little details we can increase the efficiency of our farms. There is always a great deal to do on any farm. Never sit down satisfied. There must be some high ideals in even farm life. You can be a leading fruit grower or dairyman.

ENCOURAGE THE BOYS

The boys, the younger generation, should be encouraged to excel. Encourage the boys, stimulate their ideas and allow him to do his own thinking. Too often the case is the reverse. Try and instil into that boy that there is an object to which he should attain, and let him try to reach it. Every boy and girl can now receive a fairly good education. It is within the reach of all. There is not the slightest reason why they should not be able to obtain a fairly good groundwork. This is all leading up to making your farms grow on the ideal plan. We have our agricultural colleges purposely built for instilling a sound, practical education along agricultural lines.

Many years ago farmers did not seem to think that education was necessary. There was a seeming contentment among them, with no desire to obtain new ideas. Never be satisfied until your farm is on a higher ideal than your neighbor's. Some men endowed with but little knowledge, have made great success in farming. How was it? Simply because they had brains and were practical. Many professional men have been compelled to forsake their profession and settle on the farm. They made good. Why? Because they had the sense to see that there must be an ideal.

You have but to grasp the words 'knowledge is power' and you have grasped the basis for putting your farm on a high ideal of cultivation.

If the farmer devotes himself to one line and wins success at it, he is nearer the high ideal than than the farmer who does not strive.

And even higher than this, higher than anything, is the high ideal entertained for the woman in the house. For her convenience we should put in as many things as we can for her use in the house. Put in as many modern improvements as is possible even if it has to be done gradually. Use the idle moments in tidying up around the house. These little things that make the farm look neater and show that the farmer is trying to improve his environment and belongings. The lawn-mower and the paint brush could be used to good advantage on many farms.

In closing, the speaker urged his audience to cultivate and carry out higher ideals in all lines of farm work. He concluded his address amid hearty applause.

A vocal duet by the Misses Graham made a very pleasing variation.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Mr. Ellis of "Farm and Dairy" was called upon to deliver an impromptu address. He spoke for a brief space on "Protective Tariff for the Farmers," and of the aim of the recent deputation of farmers to Ottawa. He sought to show where the farmers of Canada suffered through protective tariff. Everything imported from the States costs, on an average of 25 per cent more. We can manufacture goods as cheaply in Canada as in the States. Why should we, then, be compelled to pay this tariff? It also creates a powerful monopoly. As is well known, the object of protective tariff is to protect infant industries. But often it is the opposite. The cotton magnates get together and figure out what profits the manufacturer would make in a certain number of years. They then offer him what they would make in those years to get out of the business. Certainly the protective tariff does not help the farmer. Combines are fatal to the small manufacturer.

What would freer trade mean to us?

Mr. Ellis quoted several cases, emphasizing the result. It would certainly be to very great advantage.

THE ONE-HORSE FARMER.

The next speaker on the program was Mr. C. G. McKillican, who was to speak on "The Farmer's Horse." For his own purposes, however, he would call it the One Horse Farm. There are three classes of farmers. Those who make money at it, secondly, those who break even, and lastly, those who are going behind. Many people find themselves in wrong positions. What is the reason why some men who farm cannot retire as many do. Is it because of his land? No. The speaker held that it was not the reason. While their farms are not specially fitted for farmers, still you can adapt yourself to it. Neither is it because farmers do not work hard enough. No, that is not the reason. Some of the most successful farmers do not work hard now, nor their hired men.

The one-horse farmer is the man who belives in running his affairs just as close to the cheap margin as possible. He is the man who if he is a dairyman does not feed his cows more than enough to keep them alive. We can tell this one-horse farmer in the way he tills his land. He might be called land poor. He tries to devote his attention to all his land, whereas if he devoted his time to just half of it, more results would be obtained.

Another point is the educational advantages that we can make use of in our farm life. We may be carrying on our farms in a cheap way. If you be educated along farming principles you will be more that re-

The next number was a vocal solo by Miss Graham, contributed in a highly pleasing manner.

POULTRY.

The concluding address was from Mr. Clark. His subject "Poultry," reviewed from all standpoints, was one most interesting to all present.

"Poultry keeping a few years ago," said he, "was thought to be only a thing for invalids and women and girls. In his travels he saw poultry being neglected and this did not contribute to any ideal. A great many farmers have the idea that to get eggs in the winter time hens must be kept very warm. Much better results are obtained if hens get plenty of fresh air and not kept housed too much. There should be much importance attached to raising a proper type of utility fowl. When speaking of a utility fowl he had reference to a good all-round fowl, one that will both lay eggs and make a good market fowl. When you have a good market fowl you can place it on the market and get a good price. All the dealers are paying high prices for them now. Such prices cannot be obtained for any other produce. In large cities they are importing eggs from foreign countries. It is up to the farmers of Ontario to produce more eggs. He claimed that the farmers are the only men who can successfully raise chickens, and to better advantage than anyone else. It is very important that you select the best type of fowl in the first place. We should have a bird with a good, broad breast, and broad back. The breast of the bird is the most important part of the bird. We want to guard against a high breast bone. Also one that is pleasing to the eye as it greatly increases its fitness in the eye of a buyer. It is only a matter of selecting, and is not usually associated with a short leg.

Constitution is also very important. To find out this we look at its head. If he has a short, well curved beak and a good back, you can count on having a bird of good constitution. We might have all these, but more important still is good housing for them. The horses should be moderately cheap with plenty of fresh air. Put the roost in the rear part and have the other part open to fresh air. The best results in eggs are obtained under such conditions, having been proved by actual test. An individual pullet has been bred to lay as high as 60 eggs practically in the open air. It only had ordinary food in addition. He would advise farmers of this section to secure poultry of that strain. If they would take advantage of it they could be benefited very materially. The average farmer cannot take the trouble of breeding up this breeding strain. But the Government can bear the expense and the farmers should secure it from them. No doubt the houses you already have appear sufficient for you, but allow them to have access to plenty of fresh air. Fowls require a large amount of fresh air to be healthy, and we can educate our fowl to fresh air conditions. Some hens which roosted out at 40 below zero, laid next day as well as ever. It has been proved by experiment that hens will lay better under cold conditions than in housed up conditions. Go in at night and feed your hens. It may seem strange, but as soon as daylight appears, they get up and dig for it. Rolled oats is also good for them and poultry delight in it. Crushed oats is even more pleasant for them. Rolled oats however are often a cause of indigestion among hens. Margols can also be fed them. The above combination will produce eggs in the winter time, butter milk, crushed oats, corn and wheat form an excellent combination to obtain the best results.

Corn should be fed whole. The early-hatched pullet, as is well known is the one that is going to lay soonest. Every time also that you change the feed or quarters of a fowl it gives him a setback. Buckwheat can be fed them but it takes some time to get them accustomed to it. We must also have grit to supply them, and if we supply them with plenty of it, much indigestion among them will be prevented. Usually when hens start eating eggs, it is because they want some animal food. Often they will pick the feathers of each other. Buttermilk should be given them at this time. You also want to see that hens are free from vermin. Many he had seen had not been cleaned out for long periods. When filth accumulates, they will assuredly breed fast. Coal oil should be used to exterminate them. Give them a good whitewashing, or disolve soap and coal oil and spray the house thoroughly. This effectually kills them.

Raising chickens is the greatest problem the farmer has. Incubators while in much demand are not nearly so satisfactory as the hen, which is more reliable. One thing about the hen is that they are not so liable to lice. The great trouble with the majority of incubator chickens is that they do not produce normal chickens which are often liable to diarrhoea. This trouble is not encountered to any extent when hatched by a hen.

If you want to break off a hen from broodiness do not allow her to set for a week. Get her off immediately.

After chickens are hatched out, some care must be exercised. A brooder house is very successful.

In feeding young chickens, if they can get out and get lots of fresh air, they will eat almost anything. You must of course exercise a little care in giving grain feed. Just as soon as they are large enough they can be fed with a hopper. This may be more expensive, but it is better. If you want to force them give them a soft mash. Chickens will also grow a great deal quicker on cultivated soil than on other ground. For hopper feeding, good mixed grain is satisfactory, also beef scrap. Also butter milk cannot be excelled for poultry.

Mr. Clark's address was given a very intent hearing, and he was heartily applauded.

The chairman closed the meeting with a few complimentary remarks.

A hearty vote of thanks was also moved to the various speakers.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

The third day of the series of Farmers' Institute supplementary meetings was held on Saturday, the afternoon meeting taking place in the City Council Chambers.

The afternoon session was fairly well attended. The first speaker was Mr. Clark, who took as his subject, "The Growing of Small Fruits." He was of the opinion that every farmer should try and grow small fruits to some extent at least. In tance there are strawberries for instance there are several varieties, which may be easily cultivated and made to give good results. In growing strawberries, to be successful it requires experience like everything else. Plenty of manure is a necessity. Shrubs should be planted early in the season. Rows four feet apart have been found to be most satisfactory and also to give more room for the pickers.

A good strong plant is better than half a dozen small plants every time. In planting it always depends however on your varieties, some of which do not run as fast as others. A good plan is always to start cultivating as soon as you have planted. Never let the sun get at the roots and dry them off as it is often fatal to the plants. It is very important also to keep the weeds down close to the plant. It is difficult to exterminate the weed root after it has attained of much growth. The secret of growing strawberries, is manuring and cultivating.

Mr. J. Graham Weir of Otonabee at this juncture, cited some of his own experience in raising raspberries. He urged the farmers present to have some consideration for their wives and children and not allow them to scramble through briar and thorns grubbing for wild berries, but let the farmers plant good bushes, and her own garden and pick all she desires. Raspberries can be grown just as easily or even more so than strawberries. Any farmer is making a great mistake by not having a few raspberries, because they are more easily tended than strawberries.

The secret of successful raspberry growing is giving them plenty of manure. It is also a very profitable growth being easy to pick and there is a large yield. Do not plant too much, not any more than you can readily take care of, as nothing discourages a farmer more than to see berries on the bushes and be unable to pick them. Plant them in rows six feet apart. Keep the weeds down.

Currants also will yield satisfactory profits. Farmers should grow some of the fruits described if possible.

The next speaker was Mr. R. Smith. His address "The Care and Feeding of Horses" was similar to that of the previous day and was full of interest.

The concluding speaker was Mr. C. G. McKillican. His subject was the same as the day previous at Smith, "The Farmer's Horse."

The evening meeting was held in the Town Hall, North Monaghan, where the same speakers made addresses.

Altogether the supplementary meetings were equal to the regular December meetings, and were full of instruction and valuable information for the farmers. Mr. Collins, the energetic secretary of the Institution is to be commended for his activity and enthusiasm interests in the Institute.

TO GRADE LICENSES

Instructions have gone out from the office of the Provincial Secretary, of Ontario to the License Inspectors of the Province in cities, towns, villages and townships, to ascertain from the holders of hotel licenses, as accurately as possible, their average daily bar receipts during the last year, giving approximately the maximum returns for one day during the year and the lowest returns for one day during the year.

The local license inspector is obtaining this information from the hotels of the city. It is understood the move on the part of the government has to do with a proposed change in the system of license, by which the fees will be graded.

MUST KEEP TARIFF UP; TIME NOT COME YET TO OPEN GATE, SAYS SIFTON

In Speech at Canadian Club Luncheon in Montreal Chairman of the Conservation Commission Says Canada Will Become Increasingly Dependent Upon the States If Reciprocity Is Now Entered Upon.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—That the present is not the time to let down the bars of trade and turn Canada's natural resources over to the United States, was the opinion expressed at the weekly luncheon of the Canadian Club yesterday by the Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Dominion Conservation Commission, and a former member of the Laurier Government. His audience was composed of the leading bankers and business men of Montreal, as well as Senators and members of Parliament, and they cheered the sentiment to the echo. Mr. Sifton was careful to state that his views on reciprocity were simply his own, quite apart from political affiliations, and possibly out of harmony with the views of many of both great parties.

"If it's true," he said, "that it is essential in the interests of this Dominion of Canada, that we should conserve our resources; and work out carefully, painfully and slowly the best method of making them available, in order that we may have a strong, virile and well nourished population, it must be clear that this is not the time to take down the bars and turn these resources over to the United States. It would be altogether apart from my duty to discuss the political or national aspects of this question, but perhaps you will pardon me if I express my own convictions.

"It is this: If we enter upon trade relations of an extensive character with the United States, and if the same favorable anticipations which can be entertained turn out to be well founded, and our friends south of the line use us well and give us nearly everything we ask for, what is the inevitable conclusion? Must not our trade and business and very life become mixed with theirs, so that we shall become increasingly dependent upon them with the usual ultimate end of political union? And if these favorable anticipations are not realized, and they will not treat us well, and want to grab and quibble on the interpretation of any reciprocity treaty, what will that mean? It will simply means that ten or fifteen years from now we shall have to begin all over again, just where we are now, and start once again to put ourselves right.

"I do not hold with those who say that those who are opposed to a trade treaty between Canada and the United States are opposed to good relations between the two countries. On the contrary, my view is that the best way of continuing good relations between Canada and the United States is that each should do its own business independently, and have no entanglements—nothing in the world to quarrel about."

Borden Claims Misrepresentation.

Ottawa, Jan 10.—The attention of Mr. R. L. Borden was drawn to a despatch from Toronto which has been sent broadcast over Canada, and which represents Mr. Borden as having declared while in Toronto that the future of the Liberal party in Canada depended to a great extent, if not completely, upon the success or failure of the reciprocity negotiations at Washington.

Mr. Borden replied: "This is not an accurate report of my remarks. I said that a commercial treaty must necessarily be subject to Parliament for ratification; that the fate of such a treaty involves the fate of the Government which has negotiated it; that for this reason supporters of the Ministry are apt to vote for it, even if they did not approve it. I said that, for this reason, the Government ought to submit to Parliament a clear statement of the priciples upon which they propose to negotiate, and the basis upon which they intend to act, so that the country and Parliament may have an opportunity of expressing their opinion before it is too late."

Religious Liberty Restored.

New Orleans, Jan. 10.—Religious reform, for ten years denied the people of Nicaragua, has been restored by an edict issued by President Juan Jose Estrada.

The Moravian Mission Schools of the German Protestant denominations along the east coast have been permitted to re-open. These schools were order closed by Gen. Jose Santos Seelaya almost a decade ago, on the charge that they were discriminating ideas contrary to those of the Government and of a revolutionary character.

On Ten Per Cent. Basis.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—Official announcement was made by the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. yesterday that, in view of the position of the land account and other assets of the company, the distribution from these sources, beginning with the next quarterly dividend, will be at the rate of three per cent. per annum, instead of one per cent., as heretofore. This will place the stock practically on a ten per cent. basis.

Parkhill Hotel Burned.

Parkhill, Jan. 10.—About two o'clock yesterday morning the fire alarm was given when the interior of the Hastings Hotel was a mass of smoke, with fire breaking through from the cellar. The inmates had much difficulty to make their escape from the building.

The loss is estimated at about $15,000, practically covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have originated from the furnace.

OPERATION PERFORMED ON BOARD

Halifax, Jan. 10.—Eleven days from Rotterdam, the steamer Uranium, Capt. Agassie, arrived yesterday morning. One day out from Rotterdam, an operation for appendicitis was successfully performed on Gertra Geberich, 30 years of age, of New York, by the ship's physician, Dr. J. B. Connolly. The operation was performed under great difficulties, as the physician was not equipped with the proper appliances. So successfully was the operation performed that the patient will not need to be treated at the hospital here, but will be able to proceed on the steamer to New York.

This is perhaps the first time that an operation for appendicitis has been performed on the Atlantic without the ship being stopped.

Poison In the Lunch.

Pittsburg, Jan. 10.—Mrs. G. M. Strobaker, wife of a grain elevator's superintendent, who was poisoned with strychnine under peculiar circumstances on Saturday, is a patient in the same hospital, and, according to physicians, is suffering from the same poison.

Strobaker had for his lunch Saturday some jelly spread between slices of bread, and after he had taken a bite he laid the bread aside to talk with someone.

This action probably saved his life, as he took but one swallow of the bread and then grew sick, and a few minutes later was in convulsions. The lunch was taken to a chemist, who found strychnine in quantities sufficient to kill 25 men.

No Need to Cuss Now.

New York, Jan. 10.—Believing it almost impossible for a man troubled with bad teeth to lead a consistent life, the Salvation Army has opened a department of dentistry at No. 206 West 13th street, under Dr. Craighton. "Many a man has fallen from grace when attacked with a bad toothache and unable to pay the high prices of the average dentist," an officer of the army said. "In such a condition more than one man has given vent to his feelings in a flow of profanity or tried to 'drown' the pain with whiskey, and of course such acts would end his 'Christian experience.' For those, however, who can afford to pay, the exact cost of the work done will be charged, without profit of any kind."

Surveyed Last Section.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—A party of Canadian Northern Railway surveyors arrived here yesterday from Caffey's Locks, after having completed the survey of the last stretch of the line from Toronto to Ottawa, via Smith's Falls. From here they proceed to Quebec City, to be engaged the next five months on the proposed 500-mile main line east of the ancient capital.

Commission Meets In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—The Technical Commission will meet in Ottawa today. The commission will sit here and in Hull till Friday, at Toronto on the 20th, and Sault Ste. Marie on the 23rd. A final sitting will be held in Montreal on Feb. 11.

A Political Family.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Davis Elkins was sworn in yesterday as Senator of the United States from Virginia. The eldest son of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins is the third generation of the family to represent his state in the upper branch of Congress.

Transferred to Vancouver.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—F. H. Cunningham of the Department of Marine and Fisheries here, is to be transferred to Vancouver, where he will become chief inspector of fisheries for British Columbia, with supervision over all local inspectors.

FIRST SESSION OF FISHERIES CONFERENCE LASTS TWO HOURS

Washington, Jan. 10.—The first fisheries conference lasted about two hours, and was only sufficient to open up for detailed consideration the complex subjects covered by the Newfoundland regulations. As Chandler Anderson, counsellor for the State Department, who heads the American delegation in the fisheries conference, is also one of the United States commissioners in the pending reciprocity negotiations, it has been found necessary to alternate the hours of meeting, and consequently a second session of the fishery was held in the State Department at a late hour yesterday.

It is apparent that a number of sessions will be required to reach an agreement on the issues presented. The fact that the people of Newfoundland are reluctant to permit the special board of experts, created under The Hague award in the fisheries cases, to pass upon the legality of the acts of the Newfoundland Legislature, is, howver, basis for the expectation that they are prepared to recognize a very liberal construction of the existing laws concerning American fishing rights in Canadian waters.

One question to be settled at the outset is the application of the Foreign Fishing Vessels Act of 1906, which imposes on American fishing vessels certain restrictions in addition to those that were imposed by the old act of 1905. There is also a question of the right of the Newfoundlanders to board American vessels and bring them into port under certain conditions.

The Newfoundland law prohibits the shipment of Newfoundlanders as members of the crews of American fishing vessels plying their vocation in Newfoundland waters. It also prohibits Sunday fishing and the use of purse seines. All of these prohibitions are obnoxious to the Gloucester fishermen, with the possible exception of the Sunday law, and, indeed, they are not now in effect, that operation having been suspended by the modus vivendi, which was reached last year between the British Foreign Office and Ambassador Reid, as a preliminary to adjustment of the fisheries dispute by The Hague tribunal. But, as the decision of that tribunal has now been rendered, the modus vivendi has served its purpose, and the old fishing regulations would apply in full force, unless something is done by this conference to reach a better understanding.

Refused Concession.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 10.—The Newfoundland Colonial Government last night refused American fishing interests the first concession asked of it since the recent award of The Hague tribunal.

The poor results of the season's fisheries on the west coast left the American dealers at a loss to supply contracted orders of frozen herring, and a large Gloucester concern yesterday petitioned the Colonial Government for permission to purchase several cargoes of herring from Newfoundland natives in Placentia Bay, on the southeast coast. Under the recent Hague award, the American fishermen were given no right to fish in Placentia Bay, and are forbidden also from entering its waters.

The application yesterday of the agent for the Gloucester company was placed before the Colonial Cabinet at a meeting held here last night. Their decision was that it was not advisable to grant the Americans rights beyond those accorded them under the provisions of the recent award, and the Cabinet declined to consider the request. There is no appeal from this decision.

TO GIVE THEIR STORY

Manufacturers Will Send a Deputation to Ottawa to Counterbalance Farmers' Delegation.

Winnipeg, Jan. 10.—To counterbalance the impression left at the capital by the great delegation of farmers who presented their views on free trade and protection to the Dominion Government recently, there will leave Winnipeg within two days eight representatives of western industry, who will state the other side of the case. Included in the deputation will be Mayor Evans, who goes, not as an advocate of any policy, but simply to state what Winnipeg is doing to encourage manufactures, letting the auditors determine what effect the change in the tariff will be. Within less than a week this motion has been decided on by western manufacturers, and W. J. Bullman, secretary of the organization, stated that eight representatives would go east to present the other side of the story.

"We think it only right," said Mr. Bullman, "that the Government should hear both sides. Naturally our story will be slightly different from that of the farmers. We have an appointment with Sir Wilfrid Laurier at ten o'clock next Friday morning. We have been asked to hold our numbers down, as it will be believed that a few could present the case just as well as a great number."

A New Printing Bureau.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—It is semi-officially announced that plans will be made at an early date to demolish the present Printing Bureau and to erect a more modern and less unsightly structure in another part of the capital. The present site, which is near Nepean Point, will be converted into a park by the Improvement Commission.

Supt. Boardman of the Printing Bureau, who, with a party of officials, has returned from a trip to Washington and New York to study American methods of running similar establishments, said yesterday that the trip was taken largely with a view of getting new ideas for buildings and machinery suitable to the requirements of the Dominion Government printing establishment.

Expect Row Over Report.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—A lively row is anticipated when Parliament reassembles because of the fact that in the official resume of the general election and the bye-elections since 1908, which has just been published, the record of the Drummond-Arthabaska bye-election is as follows: Liberal votes, 3,244; Conservative votes, 3,451. Majority for Conservatives, 207.

It is pointed out by the Conservative members in the city that Mr. Gilbert, who won the bye-election, ran as a Liberal-Nationalist and had no affiliation with the Conservatives.

Lindsay's Oldest Citizen Dead.

Lindsay, Jan. 10.—Lindsay's oldest citizen, Thomas Cuff, died on Saturday from injuries received from an enraged cow on Wednesday. Mr. Cuff, who was over 86 years old, had resided in this vicinity all his life, coming from Ireland to Canada in 1831, and was one of Lindsay's most respected and honored citizens. Two of his daughters reside in Toronto, Mrs. Herlihy and Mrs. D. Fitzgerald.

CHARTER BEFORE CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 10.—The Montreal Board of Trade and a host of other Canadian business institutions, were arrayed against the Long Sault Development Co., a New York corporation, subsidiary to the Aluminum Co. of America, at a hearing to-day before the House committee on rivers and harbors on the Malby bill to authorize damage, locks, canals, etc., in the St. Lawrence River. The Canadian interests were represented by former Representative Littlefield of Maine, and Representative Malby of New York spoke for the corporation, whose structures are intended to be built near Sault Island, New York.

Mr. Malby contended that the Sault company is already the absolute possessor of the water power rights there under a New York perpetual charter, while Mr. Littlefield argues that the act of the New York Legislature was contingent upon the approval of Congress and the Canadian Government. Mr. Malby added that it was the first time in the history of New York that a manufacturing corporation had been compelled to pay the state a single penny for the development of water power, that there was not a single water power that has been developed in New York State that has paid its promoters, and that, in its unprecedented taxation of his company, the state made a better bargain than other states in the Union for similar purposes.

Mr. Littlefield argued that the proposed constructions were a vital obstruction to navigation on the St. Lawrence River.

Minimum Weight of Carload.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—A cereal company of London, Ont., has put a case before the Railway Commission of some interest. It seems that the minimum weight of a carload is to be reduced. The company asks to pay by weight as its product takes up a whole car, but in no way comes up to the weight prescribed as a minimum.

Blaze at Markdale.

Markdale, Jan. 10.—This town was visited Sunday night by what might have been a disastrous fire had it not been for the new waterworks system. Sargeant's block, on the main street, was damaged to the extent of about two thousand dollars, covered by insurance.

A Munificient Gift.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—The board of governors of the Brockville General Hospital have accepted the offer of Charles W. McLean, who recently inherited some of the millions of the late Senator Fulford, to bear the entire cost of raising and equipping the southern wing of the building, and converting it into a maternity ward, as a memorial to his wife, who died just one year ago yesterday.

Held Up Saloon.

New York, Jan. 10.—Five masked men held up the saloon of Charles Napoli, Williamsburg, yesterday in an attempt to get $5,000 which was deposited there. One of the bandits, later identified as Harry Smith, was shot in the back and seriously wounded by Francesco Cucgrese, the saloon porter, after he and Bartender Schmidt had beaten off the invaders. The four men escaped.

Want More Police.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—According to the annual report of Chief of Police Burke, presented at last night's meeting of the Town Council, 411 cases were brought into court the past year, and over $1,000 collected in fines. A plea was made for an increase in the permanent force.

MAY BE PAID IN FULL; FARMERS' BANK ASSETS DEPENDS ON KEELEY MINE

If That Property Is Worth $1,156,000, the Depositors In Suspended Concern May Get Their Money—Curator Clarkson Presents a Clear-Cut Statement of the Case — Branches All Being Closed.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—The first authorized statement of the Farmers' Bank, since suspension, was handed out by G. T. Clarkson, curator and interim liquidator, yesterday. On the face of it the statement is much better than was expected. Below is an analysis of the figures.

The chief item of interest is, of course, the loan to the Keeley mine. The books are not clear as to the details of this transaction. As a current loan $321,100.14 was advanced, and an additional sum of $300,000 is charged as "call loans." Against this amount of $621,100.14 the bonds of the mine to the extent of $1,000,000 are pledged. There is, however, a further sum of $535,000 on the books of the bank as "stocks and bonds account," which appears to represent an investment covering that amount. On this point no positive information is obtainable, and it is not known, whether the $535,000 represents (as in the case of the $611,100.14) actual cash advanced, or is merely a clearing account maintained for the purpose of manipulation.

It will be observed that the curator is firm and decisive in his remarks, is seized with the responsibility of his undertaking, and will take every step to investigate to the limit in the interest of the public when the banks' officers are under examination.

The statement is as follows:

In presenting the interim statement of affairs of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, I desire to say that it is based upon the best information which I have been able to obtain up to the present time, particularly with relation to the value of its assets. The investments in the Keeley mine and real estate, together with office furniture and fixtures, are shown at the amounts charged upon the books of the bank, and being of indeterminate value cannot be valued.

It has been a physical impossibilty to present this statement of affairs sooner by reason of the necessity for valuation of many assets including, as it did, consideration of the conditions surrounding them.

The branches of the bank are being closed with the approval of the board of directors to stop expenses.

In order that shareholders and creditors may not be under any misapprehension, I desire to say that they will be taken into confidence to the fullest extent, but they must realize that it takes time to ascertain the condition of affairs in a situation such as exists.

The appointment of myself as curator was made by the Canadian Bankers' Association, under the authority of a statutory right, which presented the only means available for protecting the assets of the bank for its shareholders and creditors during suspension.

The insolvency of the bank and its consequent inability to resume business having been admitted in the court by the representative of the general manager, and, subsequently confirmed by the board of directors, after certain facts had been placed before it, upon application of creditors an order, was issued by the Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell for the calling of meetings of creditors and shareholders to consider the condition of the affairs of the bank and to appoint a liquidator to wind it up.

At the present time I occupy the position of curator and interim liquidator, and as the latter I shall seek the advice of the court upon any matters of moment that may arise.

With the appointing of the liquidator the assets and affairs of the bank will, by the terms of the Winding Up Act, pass under the direct supervision of the High Court of Justice to which the liquidator will be subject, as an officer of court, for the purpose of the winding up.

The Winding Up Act contains full provisions for examination and investigation into all matters connected with the affairs of insolvent corporations, and creditors and shareholders are, therefore, not compelled to seek other methods of procuring information, but can, as they will appreciate, rely upon the court to see that a proper and full investigation of the affairs of the bank is made, particularly as it is absolutely essential that such be undertaken in the winding up, no matter whether there are other investigations or not.

Destructive Avalanches.

Turin, Italy, Jan. 10.—Avalanches from the Alps of extraordinary extent are reported, particularly in the Province of Cuneo. Between the Villages of Limone and Vernante two snowslides estimated at 500,000 cubic feet have obstructed the railway. In certain districts near Maddelene Hill many homes have been isolated. In one valley the only thing appearing above the snow are chimney tops; and the upper ends of telegraph poles.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—Engineers and firemen on the Intercolonial Railway are to get a raise in wages of 7 1-2 per cent. Mr. Campbell, chairman, has returned from a meeting of the board of management at Moncton, where this was decided upon. The increase will amount to $50,000 a year. At the next meeting an answer will be given to similar requests made by the conductors, trainmen and other employes.

The board of conciliation in regard to the wages of despatchers and telegraphers on the Intercolonial Railway consists of Judge Barron, Stratford, president; J. G. O'Donoghue, Toronto, for the men; J. H. Gilmour, Brockville, for the board of management.

TWO CIVIC QUESTIONS

In his opening address yesterday to the city council, Mayor Morrow referred to the matter of permanent pavements, saying that as Peterborough had 63 or 64 miles of streets, he was strongly of the opinion that the council should adopt some plan for permanent paving.

The paving of George street in the business section particularly is a matter for urgent attention The obstacles must be overcome, because the business appearance of Peterborough's main thoroughfare is important. In every city of any pretensions to prosperity and progress, permanent paving is regarded as one of the first essentials. Brantford, which is slightly larger than Peterborough, and which has been progressing well of late, has adopted asphalt for its two main streets, Market and Colborne. Kingston is strongly agitating the matter, and this year will probably take some action.

Shall Peterborough lack this indication of a modern, progressive city?

In his address at the Mayor's dinner, Judge Huycke referred to the street sign question, saying he did not believe the city should be disfigured by them! While, of course, the sign business may be worked to an extreme, we believe that plenty of signs indicate a live business city. The American cities, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, and even Toronto and Montreal are, one might say, "plastered" with signs, and what a lively, go-ahead air they give these cities. Yonge street in Toronto, familiar to most Peterborough people, looks busy. It is a narrow street, yet the multitude of signs is no inconvenience. The more numerous the signs the more metropolitan a street appears, and the writer for one, would like to see all sign restrictions, compatible with safety to the public, removed. The action of last year's council in extending the sign limit to six feet, six inches was a move in the right direction, but it did not go far enough. With a proper inspection to insure safety, let there be no handicap on attractive street advertising! A stranger recently arriving in Peterborough recently remarked on the scarcity of nice signs on George street, which to him, looked like a lane with bare walls bordering the sidewalks. Up with the signs, advertise generously in newspaper space—the best of all advertising mediums—make a brave front for your business, and look like a hustling city. It is all in the spirit that's abroad, in the disposition of the people. And fine big signs are a strong, though unconscious help toward this "busy-bee" feeling.

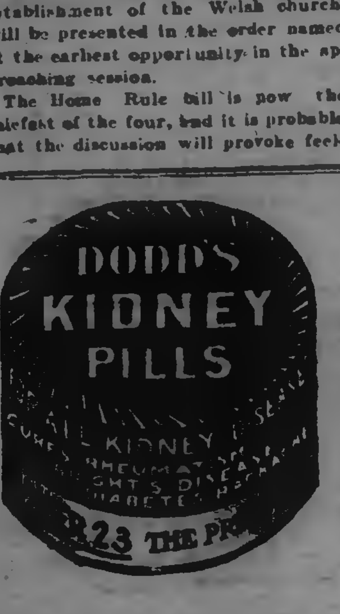
THE ASQUITH PROGRAM

The Asquith ministry has decided on a bold, sensational program, according to late cable dispatches. It is said that the Asquith ministry will throw the four big contentious bills into the arena at once, and then wade in. It is claimed that the four bills, House of Lord's veto, Irish Home Rule, abolition of plural voting, and disestablishment of the Welsh church, will be presented in the order named at the earliest opportunity in the approaching session.

The Home Rule bill is now the chiefest of the four, and it is probable that the discussion will provoke feeling and rancor unheard of in ordinary measures. The Nonconformists and other Liberal opposition to the measure will create a great deal of trouble, inasmuch as no one who has the ultimate welfare of Ireland at heart can sympathize with the measure. Home Rule will never bring peace to faction-warring Ireland, and it will probably mean the maintenance of an armed force to prevent violence and blood-shed.

One must certainly sympathize with the effort of British Liberalism to abolish plural voting, but an easier way in which to reduce the difficulty to a minimum is to establish the principle of holding a general election simultaneously. This would prevent much of the plural voting, inasmuch as spreading elections over a period of three weeks gives the plural voter every chance to move from constituency to constituency. The removal of plural voting would probably cost the Unionists many seats, but the principle behind it is not in accord with justice and the prevalent idea of popular government.

Mr. Balfour has declared that the Veto Bill is a mere dodge to smuggle through Home Rule in a form which will destroy the ancient fabric of the United Kingdom. This indicates that a bitter fight will follow the introduction of the promised Home Rule measure by the Asquith ministry. The boldest course course is often the safest, however, and the very audacity of the presentation of the four great measures, flung down as a gauntlet, may help the Asquith Cabinet through with its difficult program.



CHEAP PAPER NEEDED

One of the features of the present reciprocity clamor by sections of American interests, is the demand for free pulpwood and cheaper paper by American publishers—both Republican and Democratic—the one object being cheaper paper. On Saturday "Uncle Joe" Cannon in speaking at Washington of the negotiations said:

> "We are asking you Canadians to give us a chance at your supply of pulp in order to satisfy the necessities of our paper mills. Do you know, sir, do you quite realize, sir, that seven-tenths of the newspapers could be spared from off the face of the earth? That's what they could. At the rate of paper consumption to print this seven-tenths of wasted words, it is not hard to see that this country will not only strip its own forests but the supplies of Canada as well in a short time."

If the import duty on pulp and paper is lowered at the behest of the newspaper publishers of the United States, what will follow? Naturally, an increased exportation of pulp from Canada, insofar as the provinces will stand for it. Ten new mills in Canada will mean so many more wood choppers, and the only way in which to preserve Canadian forests, to keep Canadian resources for Canadians, is to put an Export Duty on Paper and Pulp.

The Canadian publisher is, or should be concerned. The Canadian publisher wants his paper as cheaply as possible. Why should not he, and the people of Canada get the benefits of nature's gifts to Canada?

This is important to Canadian publishers, yet they have taken no active steps to press home their reasonable claims. Some of these days there will be a great fight for the possession of raw materials for paper-making—a grab by all interests. Shall not the Canadian publisher be entitled to a fair deal in a low cost for his paper—a heavy item of expense?

To give United States devastaters the right to ravage Canadian forests is poor conservation, poor policy for Canada in any event!

MILITIA APPOINTMENTS

Senator Ross, who was Minister of Militia in the Mackenzie Government, has no high opinion of Sir Frederick Borden. In writing to a Halifax paper, Senator Ross tells of how political appointments are made in the militia, not regarding military efficiency in the least. When a new Blue nose regiment was being formed, Senator Ross recommended the appointment of Major Barnhill, of the of the 78th to a senior position. Sir Frederick was approached, but perish the thought! the valiant major was a Tory! Impossible! In Major Barnhill's place was chosen a man who had no military training whatever. Senator Ross says—"This gross violation of all military conduct can be solely attributed to the Minister of Militia. He is by far the least valuable member of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government, and his friends would breathe more freely were they rid of him."

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Edmonton has been regarded as one of the leading examples of municipal ownership, owning and operating four great utilities. Some of these do not pay, but Edmonton seems satisfied. This is the way in which the Edmonton Bulletin philosophizes on the situation:

"The street railway system was installed years before a company would have been willing to put money into such an enterprise. The end sought was not to make money, but to accommodate the people, and as the desire to attain that end we incurred some risk of having for a few years to run the venture at a loss. Against the fact that the system [illegible] able to pay its way must be put the fact that it has served and is serving the main end of its existence. If it is not paying in money, it is in service, and it was service and not money we wanted to get out of it. So far nothing has come out of the pockets of the ratepayer to make good the loss, the deficit of last year being carried forward as a charge upon the system for the present year. Presumably the adverse balance of this year will be treated the same way, and the course followed so long as the financial integrity of the enterprise is not imperiled. It is worth noting that were we obliged to make up at once the deficit for the current year this could be done without taking money from the general funds by appropriating the surpluses from the other three enterprises owned by the city. There may be objection to taking money from one enterprise to help out another, but it is theoretical rather than of practical consequence. It certainly is much less objectionable than appropriating the earnings of a public service system to defray current expenses which should be met by the revenue from the taxes. So long, as at present, the loss on one of our enterprises is counterbalanced by gains on the others the whole group, taken as a group, will be self-sustaining. That is to say, the aggregate capital put into these concerns is earning the interest payable on itself, meeting the sinking funds necessary for its payment and the costs of operating the systems. And by its employment in this way we have good telephone, electric light and water services, and a fairly extensive street railway service; all of them at reasonable charges and free from the unsatisfactory features frequently found in such services when privately owned, and we are holding as public property four franchises, each growing in value every year, and each bound to be worth a large amount of money in a few years. Municipal ownership as a civic policy is fully justified by its results in Edmonton.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Kingston boasts of having twenty-five ex-mayors alive in the city. Let us rise to remark that the speed of Kingston life never hustles a man off prematurely.

Premier Laurier a few months ago, said, "The missions to Washington have come to an end. Not again will we go there seeking reciprocity." In view of this, what can those six Cabinet Ministers really be doing in Washington? Studying the color of the White House?

The London Lancet the medical authority, admits that tobacco aids digestion. On top of this comes the announcement that smokers in a certain English regiment resisted an attack of cerebro spinal meningitis much better than non-smokers. This is no pipe dream!

A bill will be presented to the Ontario Legislature providing for license and supervision of barbers, who must pass an examination after a prescribed apprenticeship. If the new bill will save us from the hacking that some barbers imagine is good barbering, it will be a welcome relief.

What if New York were visited by a fire such as overtook San Francisco? Harold Herrick, president of the Niagara Fire Insurance Company says a general conflagration would put every insurance company in the world out of business. If this is true, New York should assuredly make its provisions for protection the most adequate possible, and regulate all construction to ensure safety from such a danger!

DOING THINGS HERE

Belleville Ontario

The Board of Trade is busy on an active campaign to attract new industries to the city. It has over a dozen on the string now. But what is urgently needed is funds to assist in the work of publicity and active campaigning. If this additional two hundred business men come on it will supply just the stimulus that is required.

In Peterborough the Board of Trade took up a popular subscription and obtained $3,000. The City Council contributed $2,000 more, every dollar of which is to be expended on publicity within the next two years. They are doing things in Peterborough.

Tried Himself.

Orillia recently had the unusual spectacle of a magistrate trying a case against himself. Moreover, after hearing the evidence, the police magistrate dismissed the charge.

When court opened on Friday morning, the first case called was that against "George H. Clark, for allowing his dog to be at liberty without a muzzle." The charge was laid by Constable George Reeve, who was acting as day constable in the absence of Chief Reid, on his holidays. The police magistrate, who evidently had an easy conscience, pleaded not guilty. Three witnesses, Messrs. J. D. Knox, A. Clark and C. E. Hewett, were called by Constable Reeve in support of his charge, but all three disavowed any knowledge as to whether or not Mr. Clarke's dog had been wearing a muzzle on the day mentioned in the charge. His Worship thereupon dismissed the case, remarking that he had done his best to comply with the regulations as to muzzling, and if his dog had ever got abroad unmuzzled, it was through accident. Messrs. Knox and Hewett jocularly asked "What about witness fees," but the police magistrate retorted that he certainly was not going to pay them. And so ended a case unique in the annals of Orillia court records.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"See here! Is life one long succession of surprise parties with you?"

"Why, I've figgered on this right along."

"But the ship is jammed now. There is no room."

"Oh, I fixed that up long ago. I am going to bunk with the steward."

"Well, why in the world didn't you let us know you were coming?"

"Say, don't kid yourself. You know I couldn't stay behind." Fraser blew a cloud of smoke airily. "I never start anything I can't finish, I keep telling you, and I'm going to put this deal through now that I've got it started." With a half embarrassed laugh and a complete change of manner, he laid his hand upon Boyd's shoulder, saying: "Pal, I ain't much good to myself or anybody else, but I like you and I want to stick around. Maybe I'll come in useful yet—you can't tell."

Emerson had never glimpsed this side of the man's nature, and it rather surprised him.

"Of course you can come along, old man," he responded heartily. "We're glad to have you."

The decks of the big, low lying tramp steamer were piled high with gear of every description. Ready now to sail, Boyd went out to the dock office to wire Mildred of his success.

"Fingerless" Fraser soon ran in upon him. "They've come to grab you for killing that striker!" he began breathlessly. "There's a couple of 'square toes' on the dock now. Better take it on the 'lam'—quick!"

"God!" So Marsh had withheld this stroke until the last moment.

"You'd better 'beat' it, quick!"

"How? I couldn't get through that crowd. They know me. Listen!" Outside the street broke into a roar at some taunt of the fishermen high up in the rigging. "I can't run away, and if those detectives get me I'm ruined."

Boyd clinched his hands in desperation. "I guess they've got me," he said bitterly. "There's no way out."

"From what they said I don't think they know you," Fraser continued. "Anyhow, they wanted Peasley to point you out. When they come off maybe you can slip 'em."

Boyd seized eagerly upon the suggestion. "The wharf is empty—see! I'll have to cross it in plain sight."

Through the rear door of the office that opened upon the dock proper they beheld the great floor almost entirely clear. Save for a few tons of freight at which Big George's men were working it was as unobstructed as a lawn, and, although it was nearly the size of a city block, it afforded no more means of concealment than did the little office itself, with its glass doors, its counter and its long desk, at the farther end of which a bill clerk was poring over his task.

They saw at the foot of the gangplank two men talking with Big George. They saw Balt point the strangers carelessly to the office, whence he had seen Boyd disappearing a few moments before, and turn back to his stevedores. Then they saw the plain clothes men approaching.

"Here! Gimme your coat and hat, quick!" cried Fraser in a low voice, his eyes blazing at a sudden thought. He stripped his own garments from his back with feverish haste. "Put mine on. There! I'll stall for you. When they grab me, take it on the run. Understand!"

"That won't do. Everybody knows me." Boyd cast an apprehensive glance at the arched back of the bill clerk, but Fraser, quick of resource in such a situation, forced him swiftly to make the change, saying:

"Nix. It's your only 'out.' Stand here, see!" He indicated a position beside the rear door. "I'll step out the other way where they can see me," he continued, pointing to the wagon way at the right. "Savvy? When they grab me you beat it and don't wait for nothing."

"But you"—

Already they could hear the footsteps of the officers.

"I'll take a chance. Goodby."

There was no time even for a handshake. Fraser stepped swiftly to the door, then strolled quietly out into the view of the two men, who an instant later accosted him.

"Are you Mr. Boyd Emerson?"

The adventurer answered brusquely, "Yes, but I can't talk to you now."

"You are under arrest, Mr. Emerson."

Boyd waited to hear no more. The glass door swung open noiselessly under his hand, and he stepped out just as the bill clerk looked up from his work, staring out through the other entrance.

"Fingerless" Fraser's voice was louder now, as if for a signal. "Arrest me? What do you mean? Get out of my way."

"You'd better come peaceably."

Boyd heard a sharp exclamation—"Get him, Bill!"—and then the sound of men struggling. He ran, followed by a roar from the strikers, in whose full view Fraser's encounter with the plain clothes men was taking place. A backward glance showed him that Fraser had drawn his pursuers to the street.

Scarcely had Boyd reached Big George when a wing of the besieging army swept in through the unguarded entrance and down the dock like an avalanche, leaving behind them the battling officers and the hungry pack clamoring for the prisoner.

"Drop that freight and get aboard the best way you can!" Boyd yelled at the fishermen, and, with a bound, was out into the open, crying to Captain Peasley on the bridge:

"Here they come! Cast off, for God's sake!"

The dozen men who had been slinging freight on the dock hastened up the gangplank or climbed the fenders, while the signalman clung to the lifting tackle and, at the piping cry of his whistle, was swung aloft out of the very arms of the rioters.

Above, on the flying bridge, Captain Peasley was bellowing orders. At last the Bedford Castle was under way.

* * * * * * *

Even after they were miles down the sound Boyd remained at his post, sweeping the waters astern in an anxious search for some swift harbor craft, the appearance of which would signal that his escape had been discovered.

"I won't feel safe until we are past Port Townsend," he confessed to Cherry, who maintained a position at his side. "The police can wire on from Seattle to stop us and take me off at that point."

"If they find out their mistake."

"They must have found it out long ago. That's why I've got Peasley forcing this old tub. She's doing 10 knots, and that's a breakneck speed for her. Once we're through the straits I'll be satisfied."

"What will happen to Fraser?" she queried.

"Nothing serious, I am sure. You see, they wanted me and nobody else. Once they find they have the wrong man I rather believe they will free him in disgust."

A moment later he went on: "Just the same, it makes me feel depressed and guilty to leave him. I—I wouldn't desert a comrade for anything if the choice lay with me."

"You did quite right," Cherry warmly assured him.

"You see, I am not working for myself. I am doing this for another."

It was the girl's turn to sigh softly, while the eyes she turned toward the west were strangely sad and dreamy.

"Two hours more," he told her as the ship's bell sounded, "then I can eat and sleep—and sing."

Captain Peasley was pacing the bridge when later they breasted the glare of Port Townsend and saw in the distance the flashing searchlights of the forts that guard the straits. They saw him stop suddenly and raise his night glasses. Boyd laid his hand on Cherry's arm. Presently the captain crossed to them and said:

"Yonder seems to be a launch making out. See! I wonder what's up. By Jove! They're signaling."

The two boats were drawing together rapidly, and soon those on the bridge heard the faint but increasing patter of a gasoline exhaust. Carrying the same speed as the Bedford Castle, the launch shortly came within hailing distance. The cyclopean eye of the ship's searchlight blazed up, and the next instant out from the gloom leaped a little craft, on the deck of which a man stood waving a lantern. She held steadfastly to her course, and a voice floated up to them:

"Ahoy! What ship?"

"The Bedford Castle, cannery tender, for Bristol bay," Peasley shouted back.

The man on the launch relinquished his lantern and, using both palms for a funnel, cried more clearly now:

"Heave to! We want to come aboard."

With an exclamation of impatience, the commanding officer stepped to the telegraph, but Emerson forestalled him.

"Wait. They're after me, captain; it's the Port Townsend police, and if you let them aboard they'll take me off."

Turning, the skipper bellowed:

"Who are you?"

"Police!

"What did I tell you?" cried Emerson.

"What do you want?"

"One of your passengers—Emerson. Heave to. You're passing us."

"That's bloody hard luck, Mr. Emerson; I can't help myself," the captain declared. But again Boyd blocked him as he started for the telegraph.

"I won't stand it, sir. It's a conspiracy to ruin me."

"But, my dear young man"—

"Don't touch that instrument!"

From the launch came cries of growing vehemence, and a startled murmur of voices rose from somewhere in the darkness of the deck beneath.

"Stand aside!" Peasley ordered gruffly. But the other held his ground, saying quietly:

"I warn you. I am desperate."

"Shall I stop her, sir?" the quartermaster asked from the shadows of the wheelhouse.

"No!" Emerson commanded sharply, and in the glow from the binnacle light they saw he had drawn his revolver, while on the instant up from the void beneath heaved the massive figure of Big George Balt, a behemoth, more colossal and threatening than ever in the dim light. He wrenched open the door and with one sweep of his hairy paw flung the helmsman from his post, panting.

"Keep her going, cap, or I'll run them down!"

The launch was abreast of them now and skimming along so close that one might have tossed a biscuit aboard of her. The sputter of the craft alongside was now punctuated by a volley of curses.

The police launch sheered off, and the sound of her exhaust grew rapidly fainter and fainter. But not until it had wholly ceased did Big George give over his post at the wheel. Even then he went down the ladder reluctantly and without a word of thanks, of explanation or of apology. With him this had been but a part of the day's work. He saw neither sentiment nor humor in the episode.

* * * * * * *

From the crow's nest of the Bedford Castle a week later the lookout stared down upon a white expanse that stretched beyond the horizon. At dawn they began their careful search, feeling their way eastward through the open lanes and tortuous passages that separated the floes, now laying to for the northward set of the fields to clear a path before them, now stealing through some narrow lead that opened into freer waters.

Captain Peasley did all the navigating in person, but eventually they were hemmed in so closely that for a day and a night they could do nothing but drift with the pack. In time, however, the winds opened a crevice through which they retreated to follow the outer limits farther eastward until they were balked again.

Late one evening they discerned smoke on the horizon, and the next morning's light showed a three masted steamship fast in the ice a few miles to the westward.

"That's the Juliet," Big George informed his companions, "one of the North American Packers' association tenders."

"She was loading when we left Seattle," Boyd remarked.

"It is Willis Marsh's ship, so he must be aboard," supplemented Cherry. "She's a wooden ship and built for this business. If we don't look out he'll beat us in after all."

"What good will that do him?" Clyde questioned. "The fish don't bite—I mean run—for sixty days yet."

Emerson and Balt merely shrugged.

To Cherry Malotte this had been a voyage of dreams, for once away from land Boyd had become his real self again—that genial, irrepressible self she had seen but rarely—and his manner had lost the restraint and coolness which recently had disturbed their relations. Of necessity their cramped environment had thrown them much together, and their companionship had been most pleasant.

Two days after sighting the Juliet they raised another ship, one of the sailing fleet which they knew to be hovering in the offing, and then on the 5th of the month the capricious current opened a way for them. Slowly at first they pushed on between the floes into a vast area of slush ice, thence to a stretch as open and placid as a country mill pond. The lookout pointed a path out of this, into which they steamed, coming at length to clear water, with the low shores of the mainland twenty miles away.

At sundown they anchored in the wide estuary of the Kalvik river, the noisy rumble of their chains breaking the silence that for months had lain like a smother upon the port.

CHAPTER XIII.

NEVER did men have more willing hands to do their bidding than did Boyd and George, and when a week later the Juliet, with Willis Marsh on board, came to anchor the bunk houses were up and peopled, while the new site had become a beehive of activity.

The mouth of the Kalvik river is several miles wide, yet it contains but a small anchorage suitable for deep draft ships, the rest of the harbor being underlaid with mud bars and tide flats over which none but small boats may pass, and as the canneries are distributed up and down the stream for a considerable distance it is necessary to transport all supplies to and from the ships by means of tugs and lighters. Owing to the narrowness of the channel the Juliet came to her moorings not far from the Bedford Castle.

To Marsh, already furious at the trick the ice had played him, this forced proximity to his rival brought home with added irony the fact that he had been forestalled, while it emphasized his knowledge that henceforth the conflict would be carried on at closer quarters. It would be a contest between two men, both determined to win by fair means or foul.

It was on the afternoon following his arrival that Marsh after a tour of inspection landed from his launch and strolled up to where Boyd Emerson was at work. He was greeted courteously, if a bit coolly, and found, as on their last meeting, that his own bearing was reflected exactly in that of Boyd.

"I see you have a number of my old fishermen," Marsh observed.

"Yes; we were fortunate."

"You are very lucky."

"Indeed! How?"

"Well, don't you think you were lucky to beat that strike?"

SCORED HEAVILY IN "FOURTH ESTATE"

And in Recognition Was Given Important Role in "Judith Zaraine"

All Canada is eagerly waiting the coming of that famous newspaper play which finds its name in the memorable expression of Edmund Burke, "The Fourth Estate." But if it should delay because of its success in the United States, Peterborough is at least to have the satisfaction of seeing the brilliant young actor, whose fine ability in the leading role aided so materially in its triumph. Charles Waldron was its star during all its two-year, two-city run in New York and Chicago, and has but now been drafted from it to assist Lena Ashwell in "Judith Zaraine," at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night, Jan. 11th. Of all the younger leading men in America, he was selected for this enviable position, and it will give an added zest and pleasure to the visit of the illustrious English actress to find her so splendidly surrounded. Mr. Waldron has already travelled high in his profession, but more is expected of him. He is young, handsome and magnetic, and brings to his art inherited talent upon which he ahs builded rare personal accomplishment.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY TO-DAY

Was Stopped by Passerby in a Very Neat Manner

A rather exciting runaway occurred this morning. A horse with a cutter attached was standing outside a residence on Aylmer street, and in some manner took fright and started up Aylmer. It turned at the corner of Hunter and came up off that street at a good clip. Just at the crossing in front of the Review a passer-by rushed out and the animal slackened pace slightly, enabling the man to grasp the reins as it came up. He hung on and the horse slid and fell to the ground. The stop was neatly done and the unknown man came in for several praiseworthy remaks for courageous act. The owner did not turn up to claim the cutter for some time.

SOCIAL VENEER NOT FOR HIM—"A ROTTEN TIME"

This Youth Was Quite Honest and Truthful—What He Said to His Hostess

It happened at the toboggan slide at Jackson Park the other evening and those who heard the remark were much amused. A young hostess of about fourteen years of age had invited a number of her boy and girl friends that evening to be her guests at the slide and afterwards at her home. Amongst the number was a small man, who although he was a proud possessor of a fine toboggan, was not just as popular with the young lady guests as some of the others of his kind, and consequently he did not get quite as much fun out of the affair as his hostesses hoped. When the time for leaving came and the members of the party were being collected this young man said, "I'm going home and I've had a perfectly rotten time." And home he went. Needless to say his hostess was rather embarrassed by this frank, truthful remark, but she soon recovered.

When that young man grows old enough to attend pink teas, bridge parties and like social functions, he will have learnt to smile with the crowd and assure his host or hostess, that he had had "a really delightful evening, thank you."

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE, WHAT MUST HE THINK ?

In making some inquiries about a family in the city to ascertain whether they were entitled to charitable aid a remark was made that shows, that even the best doctors will disagree about even the simplest and most common ills that flesh is heir to. The father of the family had not been well for some time and had consulted a couple of local physicians. He told the lady who was making enquiries as to his ailment that "one doctor said I had nervous prostration, the other said I had sunstroke, but my private opinion is that I've a tape worm."

Whatever it was that ailed him it was certain that he was not strong enough to do much work, so it has been arranged that he get help from one of the local societies.

AN APPRECIATION OF WORK OF MISS BARBARA TENNANT

It is not often a City has the benefit, of a great performance given by one of its own people, but in Barbara Tennant, (Mrs. Harold Wadely,) Peterborough is to shortly have such a treat, as this lady, who is giving a series of dramatic recitals in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, and New York, has been induced by the King's Daughters to help them in their good work, by giving a dramatic recital in the Grand Opera House

This talented artist, of whom Peterborough is proud, before coming to Canada had attained a gret position in the English dramatic world, particularly in Shakespearian repertoire, in such leading parts as Juliet, Oberon Miranda, Puck, Hermia, etc, and Marguerette in Faust, and Lady Teazle in The School for Scandal, one of the critics speaking of her as the new Ellen Terry.

Barbara Tennant, who is certain one of the most versatile actresses on the stage to-day, have her first public performance at the early age of five and by the time she had reached her seventeenth birthday, (she is but twenty-three) she was playing the name part of the old play "Gallathea" which was first performed in 1592, before Queen Elizabeth. To attain this and her later triumphs Miss Tennant worked hard and long under the hardest of masters until "her's was the art that concealed art."

But all the training in the world will not make the real actress without the natural gifts, and in this Nature was abundantly kind to our townswoman, and no one listening to her as she goes through the whole range of human feeling, from passion to pathos, from laughter to tears, can help but be impressed by her wonderful voice and acting. She not only entertains, she elevates the sweetness of Mrs. Wilcox's "My Ships" etc., the grim humor of the "Hindoo's Paradise," the humaness of Kipling's "Gungapinn," the magnificence of Service's "The Call of the Yukon," the beautiful airyness of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Nights Dream," and the depth of passion in the potion speech from "Romeo and Juliet," are all brought out with a worthy of only herself.

One critic in a recent recital wrote of Barbara Tennant, "How one woman with little or no stage surroundings could portray character after character from Shakespeare to Kipling, from the highest and noblest passion to low comedy, without a leading up to, depending alone on a genious to grip at once, is beyond me. No one but Barbara Tennant could do it.'

This gifted lady is no mere elocutionist, she is a great artist.

CIVIC BOARDS WERE GUESTS OF MAYOR AT BANQUET

Able Addresses by Local Speakers at Inaugural Dinner for 1911—A Wide Range of Topics Was Covered and Some Very Valuable Suggestions Offered Concerning Development and Beautification of Peterborough

Mayor Morrow gave his annual banquet to the City Council and other civic committees last night at Hooper's palm parlours. The affair was very pleasant and successful. Interesting and timely addresses were given by Judge Huycke, K. C., W. H. Moore, Police Magistrate Dumble, Industrial Commissioner Duggan, Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., the mayor, Jas. Kendrey, ex-M.P., and the latter responding to the toast to his honor proposed by Ald. Bradburn, vice-chairman.

Those present were Mayor Morrow, chairman; Ald. Bradburn, vice-chairman; Judge Huycke, James Kendrey, ex-M.P., E. H. D. Hall, city solicitor; Police Magistrate Dumble, Industrial Commissioner Duggan, City Clerk Armstrong, Chief of Police Thompson, Fire Chief Howard, City Engineer Hay, Tax Collector Green, V. Eastwood, from the Board of Education, and Ald. Metheral, Edgar, Buller, Kerneghan, Graham, Duncan, Brown and Anderson and W. J. Bray, of Warren, Pa., and representatives of the local press.

After the toast to "The King" had been honored, Mayor Morrow called on Judge Huycke, the first speaker.

Judge Huycke thanked the Mayor for his invitation to the inaugural banquet to the City Council. He said he had been told by the mayor to speak about what he liked. That was the hardest thing he could do. Not that there weren't many things he didn't like, but to use a ministerial expression he preferred to speak from a text.

His honor thanked the representative gentlemen of Peterborough for the kindly welcome they had accorded him during the year and a half he had been a citizen.

He congratulated the members of the civic boards on their election. They were honored in being chosen but there was something higher than honor and that was duty. Judge Huycke referred to the distinction Mr. Kendrey had attained in his service on the council board for sixteen years.

The speaker had municipal experience himself. He had been on the Cobourg Council ten years, during which time he was a mayor of that beautiful lakeside town for four years. He was proud that he had been able to render some small service to his town.

The judge dwelt on the responsibility of the municipal bodies in the development of Peterborough. Peterborough had the reputation of being an industrial centre and he was sure that Industrial Commissioner Duggan would be given their assistance and co-operation.

The speaker suggested that the council proceedings be carried on in a dignified and parliamentary way.

Coming to Peterborough as a stranger and comparing it with other cities, there were many things in which Peterborough excelled, but there was one thing in which the city did not excel. He did not think the council had done what they could in beautifying the city. Peterborough should have public recreation grounds for the boys and the young people to enjoy themselves. Ottawa was cited as example of civic beautification. It had been transformed from sawdust piles and sand heaps to a lovely city. The judge believed in merchants having signs, but didn't believe that the city should be disfigured by them.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSOIN

Mr. W. H. Moore, of the city trust and water commission, spoke exhaustively on municipal government by commission. He was giving an address that he had delivered three times before local municipal boards, he said.

It was perfectly plain that no form of government of itself would give good returns and prove a success. There had to be the right men behind it. We unfortunately in Ontario, had not a solitary instance of government by commission.

In this democratic age when the government was of the people and by the people and for the people the people would not permit anyone but themselves to appoint commissions to govern them. The wide scope of the commission and the splendid results they produced were shown by the excellent work of the commission in Washington, D. C.

Government by commission as now proposed simply means that the names of aldermen would be dropped and the names commissioners would be used instead. The speaker's convictions had been for many years that the council had been too large and unwieldy. By a smaller body the affairs of the city could be administered more effectually and judiciously. Of the $180,000 taxes in Peterborough this year there were not over $30,000 under control of the city council. The terms it was contended, were too short. Two years was better than one, then four or five would be better still.

Two of the main points of the provision of the law in Iowa regarding commissions, were that a mayor and two others should be elected and paid in a city the size of Peterborough. Mr. Moore thought it was absurd that a city of 17,000 should not pay its representatives.

The address, which was reported in detail in a previous issue, was an interesting and lucid exposition.

CIVIC AESTHETICS.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, speaking on "Civic Aesthetics," said he agreed with many things Judge Huycke said. Twenty years ago he had besought the town council with all his eloquence when the land was cheap, to buy playgrounds for the children, but they had sold the land and the children had no place to play.

When Mr. Dumble first came here the people of Peterborough were the happiest people he had ever seen. Everybody had plenty of dwelling room, but now the houses were only ten feet apart in some quarters. He didn't approve of houses being so close together that one could see into his neighbor's bed-room and dining-room. There was monotony also in the architecture of the dwellings.

Peterborough, as Judge Huycke had said, was blessed by Nature. There were possibilities for a beautiful city. Like old Rome, Peterborough was surrounded by seven hills. Owing to lack of prudence, the railways had been allowed to run in from all directions, and to-day one couldn't go out for a drive without crossing railway crossings. He thought there were fifty railway crossings in the city.

Mr. Dumble was of the opinion that a commission or committee should be appointed to plan out a drive through the city that Peterborough might be seen to advantage. He outlined what to his mind was the ideal drive for people wishing to view the city. He suggested the improving of roads not crossed by railway tracks and the planting of trees along the roads. Judge Huycke, Peter Campbell, Frank Wise and the mayor as an ex-officio member were named by Mr. Dumble as a committee that would take up the work and beautify the city.

GROWTH MUST HAVE SOUND FOUNDATION.

Industrial Commissioner Duggan said it had been suggested that he should speak about the way to boom a city. He thought nothing more injurious could be done than to boom a city in the general interpretation of the word boom. There was sure to be a reaction, and he gave examples of the application of his reasoning. A city had to be built up on certain underlying economic principles.

A town had to be a good distributing centre from a manufacturer's point of view. Geographically, Peterborough was excellently situated. We had facilities, but they could be improved upon.

The C.N.R. were going to run their line thirty miles from Peterborough. An effort should be made, said the commissioner, to get that line to run through here. Peterborough had the greatest tonnage of any town its size in Canada. The trolley line that will run from Oshawa to Toronto should be secured to pass through Peterborough if possible. There was no stronger inducement that could be offered to the manufacturing concerns than good facilities for import and distribution.

Mr. Duggan approved of government by commission, as suggested by Mr. Moore. The beautification of a city also had a more direct and greater bearing on the question of labor than was generally appreciated.

The third great element in the industrial upbuilding of a city was power. The speaker thought the city council should see if power couldn't be obtained for less than twenty dollars a horse power. That price was too high for the many manufacturers who might otherwise locate here.

In determining where an industry should be located it was not a bit and miss proposition. When the manufacturies proposed locating in a town it was a question of dollars and cents. They fully investigated the resources and facilities offered by a place before they decided upon a location. Mr. Duggan explained the advantages of Peterborough as a manufacturing centre, and said he and his committee were trying to build on firm grounds by getting such industries to locate here as were logically suitable for the city, and was sure tangible fruit of the efforts would be seen soon.

SANITARY REQUIREMENTS.

Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., spoke on "Sanitary Requirements." He elaborated on the monetary value of good sanitary conditions. The decreased death rate in Panama was referred to as evidence of this. The Ontario Government had appointed a commission on milk inspection, and their report was also worthy of the council's consideration.

The main duties of the health department were to supply proper food and drink to the city. He was glad to see that the city of Peterborough had a pure water supply. During the past year the city had been practically free from typhoid.

The wells of the city should be examined closely. Such things as bread, meats, fruits, ice cream, etc., should be looked after. He believed that the various ice cream places and fruit stores and all other places where food is sold should be examined.

Milk was an important food. It was used by children and adults. The boiling of milk, which was often done to purify it, detracted from its nutritive value. It should be inspected in the first place.

The stables where milking was carried on were dirty, the cows were dirty and the milkers had dirty hands. It was no wonder that milk was such a good breeding grounds for disease. It was impossible to tell how many cases of tuberculosis developed from impure milk.

Without a doubt there should be

PETERBORO' TIED UP GAME AND MADE WINNING FINISH

Cobourg Scored First Three Counters—Half Ended 5-4 Against Locals—Kelly Tied at 7-7 in Second Period and With Dobson Contributed Last Two Tallies—A Great Game, Marked by Stiff Checking.

There were pretty maidens hanging 'long the fence on either side, there were bells and horns a-plenty—just before the score was tied. There was yelling, singing, hooting, and the noise was sure helped some, by these maidens 'long the railing, as they chewed their wads of gum. But the way the game was evened, by the youth of curly locks, sent the LONELY SIX a-rooting, filled the Lakeshore bunch with shocks. This was when the game was captured, then poor Cobourg lost their nerve, and two more shots struck the netting, these were called an indrop curve. Kel and Dob had shot them over, delivery it was of real class, both had speed to use as candles, and Kid Paton let them pass. Tiny "Ken" behind the goal posts, took the job with spunk galore, yet the motions he was chased through made him vow to "ump" no more. Short delays there often happened, once the pesky lights went out, this gave Heff a chance to wander up and down the railing route. All alone, and smiling sweetly, "Scotty" Breen was there on deck, thinking deeply if of lemons he would buy by case or peck.

Believe us, and the 'Big Seven that went to Cobourg yesterday intent on upholding the honor of the old blue and white, that game last night was a corker.

That 5—4 score at half time with Georgie Scott's old war horses on the big end, was earned only after thirty minutes of real hockey, fast and furious, and the final count 9—7, with Cobourg taking the small end, tells of another half hour featured by some more of the same kind of winter sport.

The great finish of the Peterborough septette in the last twenty minutes of the game, after it had been tied in two sevens, on a terrific last rush by "Bod" Kelly, was expected by the players themselves right up to this period. Not a dismal note was heard during the half time breathing spell. It was all—the game is ours, and it was.

The summary shows a see-saw scene, and such was the contest.

Cobourg got off to a good lead right off the handle, taking the first three goals. They checked the visitors to a standstill, and rarely did a player get away for any distance. For nearly twenty minutes Paton, in goal, wasn't called upon to handle a shot. Then Denison put one over at him, which he blocked. The next, however, by the same player went right on through. This was followed in two minutes by another by Dobson, and then the unlooked for happened. Derocher, who was stopping every old kind and in every old way, went down after a low one. Referee McCord chased him to the timekeeper, for one minute, on a decision that Laj went down on his knees. He didn't, though, but while he reviewd the battle two scores went in, giving the enemy a healthy 5—2 count. Right here, however, the locals didn't fall down even a little bit. They kept pegging away, and "Denny" took another, and Hefferman made it 5—4.

Denison tied the score one minute after resuming play, and Doheny sent his bunch ahead again. "Dobbie" got it back, and Cobourg took the lead again on a score by Lavis, but the team were now being chased to cover. The combination of the locals, which in the earlier stages of the game was lacking, came to the front and with the fading of the opposing line they had the game cinched.

The contest was truly a great one for the spectators, who were kept on edge for every minute of the hour's play, but it wasn't a healthy one for the players, particularly those of the visiting team. With the exception of Derocher every man was marked up. Cobourg's chief inclination was to unload a bunch of kicks, at which each was proficient, and in the slight-of-hand order. They got away with most of them, too, and yet for the smallest offence the Peterborough team suffered. It looked just a little like a case of rubbing it in, but such is the game.

Derocher certainly deserves a hand for his work last night. He was at his best. In front of him "Bond," despite an injured thumb, played a strong game, getting in the line of a number of shots, turning well meant and combined plays into the corner, and also taking an occasional rush. Hefferman started off at rover, but in the second half went back to cover, Denison taking the position. These two players were certainly great, although there was a tendency on their part to roam and leave Bond alone. With the fierce checking of the Cobourg line, this was rather disastrous. Each, however, rushed and handled himself in a way that would bring a yell from any of the crowd outside of one from Cobourg.

Dobson never played a better game in centre ice. For his effective work at his position much credit is due. He had a hard man in Payne to work against, but he never let up for a minute, and his back checking was classy throughout. Sorel and Kelly were watched by pairs in the first half, but in the second period had it on their checks, and once the team got going each showed his class. Kelly's shooting in the closing spasms went all to the good.

For Cobourg Paton, in goal, picked off a lot of hard ones, and Hand, at Point, was always in the game, tearing away for a number of long rushes. Payne and Lane at centre and rover, were the two to watch, and their work throughout was always in evidence. Of the two wings Doheny was the strongest man.

The teams were:

COBOURG.
Paton,
Hand,
Nicholson,
Lavis,
Doheny. Payne. Crowther.
Kelly, Dobson, Sorel
Hefferman,
Denison,
Bond,
Derocher.
PETERBOROUGH.

It was 8.47 when the referee started the teams away, Bond and Kelly started off with rushes but there was nothing doing but excitement. Denison took the first shot of the game, but the rubber went wild. Payne drew first penalty for getting Hefferman as he rushed the boards and he was joined by Sorel after play was resumed. Kelly was doing a lot of work for Peterborough, but his check was watching him closely, in fact the checking of Cobourg was of the best. Bond started into and blocked a three-man rush, chasing the play into the corner. Lavis became unruly and took the boards. Derocher stuck out his chest against a couple of hard ones and appeared to be right on. Hand tried a loner from his position, but was sidetracked by Bond and in working against the return the former drew a penalty for slashing. Very little combination was being worked as a result of the close checking in which the home team were starring. So far Denison was the only man to put one over at Paton in the nets. "Denny" stopped Crowthers and went off. Paton made a pretty stop of Dobson's choice one and finally Payne got away, taking the puck to Peterborough goal, where Crowther scored in a scrimmage.

Kelly went to the penalty men for tripping and Denison and Dobson combined in vain the play going to the end with the Cobourg defence men beaten. Derocher was kept busy but it was up to Payne from another scrimmage and the score stood:—

Cobourg—2. Peterborough—0.

After the faceoff Denison and Hefferman were banished, but Cobourg couldn't score. The game was very fast and Referee McCord had a busy session Peterborough were shy on combination and their opponents had the better of the shooting. Dobson missed a chance and Hand securing tore off a lone rush and the nets bulged. Cobourg—3. Peterborough—0.

Doheny had a great chance to add another, but fell down in front of the goal. Derocher pulled off a clap-winning stop and to keep up the excitement. Denison started the play and scored the first goal for the Petes. He passed to Hefferman, who returned and the disc connected with the netting.

Payne took a penalty for handling Hefferman too roughly. Sorel's shot went wide. Denison, Dobson and Kelly figured in the next score, Dobson, who was working at his position as never before, finding the net.

The locals kept on pressing and turned the assault on the Cobourg goal. The team was working together better. Bond stopped one with his nose and Derocher used his pads on the next and Dobson and Sorel combined in a pretty play, but Nicholson and Hand were in the road. Another shot, which Derocher went down after and he was sent to the box by the referee for one minute. During his absence Lavis put two counters and the score stood Cobourg—5, Peterborough—2.

With Derocher back in goal, Denison, who was playing a star game, sent the brace of counters into a triple tally. Hefferman, Kelly and Sorel tore away, but the former missed the nets. Hand went to the box after pulling off one of the many tricks of the large assortment, in the possession of the Lakeside crew. "Denny" tried it alone and in losing, behaved wisely, but not well. He was followed by Crowther. Sorel made a pretty board rush, and shot dead on Paton who blocked neatly. Payne was chased for acting too strenuously and Hefferman, who had now gone back to cover, shot from the side and his team was only one behind.

Heff. tried another but Doheny got him and was penalized. Paton was called upon to act lively on two shots from Sorel and Kelly and he made good. Peterborough tried hard to even up but half-time was called with the play in Cobourg territory.

SECOND HALF.

Both teams started in again at a fast clip, and in one minute from a hot scrimmage in front of Paton, Denison tied the score and there was joy in the hearts of the faithful few. Lavis had a great chance to put his team ahead again but the puck missed the nets in his shot by inches. The pace was a hard one and the attendance was being treated to an exciting exhibition of the winter game. Combination work was becoming more in evidence, but the nifty work of Denison and Hefferman and the defence of Cobourg, placed tallies at a premium. Both goaltenders too, were working in good trim and it had to be a good clean shot to beat either. Referee McCord had warned the players during the half-time period that he intended shutting down on lenient penalties for infractions, and the teams were behaving better, although Cobourg put over a whole lot of fancy work that doesnt' figure in the rule books. Doheny sent his team to the front again with a shot into the corner of the nets.

This made the locals all the more aggressive and an assault was made on the opposing nets: Dobson got nicely away but there was nothing doing. Sorel took a rest for a minor offence. Lavis returned the puck and shot wild. The rubber was worked up again and Dobson was right in front and on the job, during a lively scrimmage, batting in the puck and the score was tied again.

The locals were slowly but surely winning the day, despite another tally by Lavis on a neat rush. They looked the team to win. Denison was keeping up his good work, with Hefferman also doing his prettiest. Kelly was pegging away at his wing, not in the least bothered by the terrific going. He secured and what looked like a score, went to the bad, when Denison missed the pass in front of the nets. On the return Crowthers missed with his scoop, and Kelly took the puck from in front of Derocher, and tearing up the boards let drive one of these hot ones which went a little high. Lavis went off for tripping. Payne missed a nice chance and then Kelly took possession went up the ice again alone, and shook the netting with a wicked one. Again the score was tied for the last time.

Sorel, Hefferman and Kelly were in the next counter, which Kelly secured and number nine went to Dobson. The teams kept at it hard right up to the finish, but the play was in favor of Peterborough till the bell rang.

PUCKLAND

The Pillpounders and the Machine Shop seven of the C.G.E. battled to a tie at Brock street rink last night in a Mercantile League game. The score was 1—1. Very little hockey was played. The Machine Shop secured their tally in the first half, after a few minutes' play, while the poison-mixers managed to tie the score a few minutes before the final bell. Ira Moore refereed and handed out penalties with a free hand.

An important meeting of the Peterboro Hockey Club executive will be held to-night at 8.30, at the Examiner office, to pick the team for the Trenton game, Friday night.

The team selected will practice tomorrow night. The Juniors work-out this evening.

What Followed a Scratch.

Mrs. Brown 7 Calumet Ave., Montreal, says:—"While busy in the kitchen one day the oven door fell off, striking my right leg and inflicting a nasty scratch. While this was painful, I never thought it would become a serious wound, but to my surprise it became very much inflamed and very painful. I found that the dye from my stocking had got into it and poisoned it. The pain and inflammation got worse and the wound discharged freely. At this stage someone advised me to try Zam-Buk and I obtained a supply. This balm seemed to draw out the soreness at once, reduced the inflammation and soothed the wound. I naturally persevered with Zam-Buk and within a few weeks the wound was quite healed."

Eczema Banished.

To be covered with sores which sometimes itch and burn and then, when rubbed, cause acute agony—sores which look repulsive as well as cause pain—sores which have defied all remedies that have been applied to them—what could be worse? Use as a Household Balm.

Mrs. W. Blair, 91 St. Catharine St., Hamilton, speaks of the value of Zam-Buk as a household balm. She says:—"I one day slipped and fell against a Morris rocker, knocking my knee very badly. The knee turned black and blue and was very painful. I rubbed Zam-Buk well into the injured member and it was indeed surprising how quickly I found relief. The swelling was soon reduced and pain and discoloration banished. By perseverance with Zam-Buk my injured knee was well again in a couple of days.

"I have since proved it to be the handiest and best balm for household purposes. A few applications of Zam-Buk gave me ease from rheumatism also!"

some oversight. Before dairymen are given a license they should be made prescribe to conditions that would insure sanitary surroundings where the milking is done. A rigid inspection should be made of the premises and the milk.

To carry out this plan a sanitary inspector should be appointed. He would also have to examine premises and out-houses of the city, and report to the medical health officer.

Dr. McPherson thought that the health by-laws should be printed and the people would then be able to read them and understand their provisions.

THOUGHT POWER RATES REASONABLE.

Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P., was present as a former member of the council, and was pleased to be back among members of that respected body. Mr. Kendry spoke at length on the power question, and thought even at $20 a h.p. it was a reasonable rate. That $20 a h.p. meant power for twenty-four hours.

"THE MAYOR."

The health of the mayor was proposed by Ald. Bradburn. Everybody heartily drank his Worship's health, and the gathering sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

There were a great many things that the council would like to accomplish, Mayor Morrow stated, but the limitations of expenditure had always to be considered. The rate in the last three or four years had been raised from 18 to 22 1-2 mills. This was largely due to the expenditure on school buildings. Sidewalks and sewers were also to be considered. The council were expending from $30,000 to $36,000 a year on public utilities.

The speaker thought the time had been reached when some action should be taken with regard to the city hall, as suggested in his address to the city council.

His Worship touched briefly on the power question and other matters of municipal and local interest.

HELD ON TWO CHARGES OF COAT STEALING

Michael Malone—no home—no work—no money—one month in jail.

Henry Hall, fur coat, prisoner, remanded for one week.

The session of the police court this morning was summed up as above.

Malone has been in jail for a couple of weeks. He was brought before His Worship a week ago, and remanded pending an engagement in the woods, which he said he could make. He didn't make good on the deal, and the Magistrate thought the "hilltop boarding house" the best place for him.

Hill stole a fur coat valued at $85 from Barries Ltd., but was not smooth enough to get away from the police.

He pleaded guilty to the charge and was remanded to jail as the Chief has another case against him, alleging that he stole another coat from the Nixon House.

The prisoner comes from London, Ont., so he says and has been working in the shanties.

The Chief has yet to find an owner for the second coat.

AN EXPENSIVE PLACE TO LIVE

An article which appeared recently in the Toronto "Star" stated that Toronto is the most expensive place the world to live, and a few days after the Mayor of Toronto quoted the statement to prove, a point, showing conclusively that he was in accord with the writer of the article. This may or may not be an exaggeration but one fact is evident to any person who has had any experience in living in Toronto or any other large town the cost of living is materially greater than in the smaller places. The Toronto people are trying to invade the results of the city's growth by taking homes as far away from the centre of the city as possible, enduring the hardships incident to long car rides and poor service, rather than submit to the exactions of the city landlord, the city butcher, the city grocer — in fact all the hundred and one disavantages and additional expenses of city life. In these suburbs you will find prosperous stores springing up. The people who move away from the city patronise these stores, because the keepers of them are not compelled to charge city prices on account of taxes, rents, water and light rates being excessive. The merchant's burdens are less and his prices are accordingly more moderate.

The peculiar part of the situation is that people who live a little farther from Toronto — that most expensive town — do not appreciate their blessings, but actually believe they can shop to better advantage in Toronto than they can in their home towns. When the citizen of Toronto hears this, he naturally smiles, but there are folks right here in our own town who do not see the humor of the situation, and continually send their money to the large city stores, in other words, do considerable of their shopping by mail.

If you have no idea of what it costs to run a city store, it would do you good to hear the experiences of some of have conducted business under those conditions. We appreciate, of course, that the City Council has to find revenue for street cleaning, sewers, and pavements and also to meet the interest on the enormous bonded debt of the municipality; and also that the Electric Light Company and the Gas Company must pay dividends; but what we want to ask you to consider seriously is "Why should the residents of this city help to meet those expenses." We have to pay our own little taxes here — they are not very high, but still we have done our duty when we have paid them, without assisting the citizens of Toronto to pay theirs.

Do you not think we are doing enough for the large cities by keeping up good roads for their automobiles, without helping them to pay for the automobiles too? A great many people in the country districts object very strongly to these "devil wagons," and try to legislate against them. We wonder if they realize realise how many of them they pay for by their shopping by mail habits.

Give the matter a little consideration, and you will find that you are losing the advantages of life in Peterborough if you do not do your shopping here.

Tardy Recognition.

London, Eng., Jan. 4.—The statue to Gen. Wolfe at Westerham—described by The Standard as a very tardy acknowledgement to the worth of a great soldier—was unveiled Monday by Lord Roberts. Among those present at the ceremony were Lord Strathcona and Sir Charles Tupper. Laurel wreaths were sent by Canadian residents in Britain.

In his address Lord Roberts said that to Wolfe Britain was indebted for the greatest of her dominions. He described how Wolfe, by a daring plan, led his troops to victory at Quebec.

"It is one of the brightest pages in the history of the Empire," he said, "and never loses its thrilling interest for the nation."

The course adopted was only justified by Wolfe's firm belief in the courage and discipline of his troops, and by the fact that the same grand feeling was reciprocated towards the commander.

No wonder, when mortally wounded, he was able to murmur, "I die content."

Six persons are dead at Telferner, Texas, as the result of eating bread made from flour containing arsenic.

A Helpful Suggestion.

The young man had married the rich man's daughter and wasn't killing himself with work to support her. One day the father called him up to talk to him.

"Look here," he said emphatically, "why don't you go to work?"

"I don't have to," the son-in-law replied, with brazen effrontery.

"Well, you will have to."

"Why will I?"

"Because, sir, I can't live always to support you."

"But you will leave us something?"

"Not much, I won't. There won't be anything to leave."

The son-in-law was alarmed.

"Great Jupiter!" he exclaimed. "You don't mean to tell me that you have nothing?"

"That's about it."

The son-in-law devoted himself to profound thought for several seconds.

"I have a suggestion to offer," he said in a businesslike manner.

"What is it?" asked the old gent.

"Well, I suggest that you take out, say, a £20,000 life insurance on yourself to save wear and tear on my mind."—London Answers.

GROTESQUE NAMES.

Burdens That Innocent English Children Had to Bear.

In England, as in other countries, thousands of people go through life cherishing a grudge against their parents for giving them absurd or incongruous names. It was most natural that a demure and pretty girl in a north suburb should feel resentful when she had to answer to the name of Busybody, given in honor of the winner of a race fifteen years before. Among the names registered at Somerset House are Airs and Graces and Nun Nicer, which were innocently borne by two little girls who found them most embarrassing in after years.

The appalling name of Wellington Wolseley Roberts was borne by a young man who, in disposition and appearance, was anything but militant, and as little likely to win fame on the battlefield as his predecessors Arthur Wellesley Wellington Waterloo Cox and Napoleon the Great Eagar.

However, even these names, inappropriate as they may be, are to be preferred to Roger the Ass, Anna (sic) Domini Davies and Boadicea Basher.

To parents of large families the advent of another child is not always welcome, but it is scarcely kind to make the unexpected child bear a token of disapproval. It must be rather terrible to go through life, for example, as Not Wanted James, What Another, Only Fancy William Brown, or even as Last of 'Em Harper, or Still Another Hewitt. And yet these are all names which the foolish caprice of British parents has imposed on innocent children.—Chicago Record-Herald.

FAMOUS STAR GROUP.

The Constellation Orion in Legend and Literature.

The constellation Orion is mentioned in the literature of all ages. In Egypt it represented Horus, the young or rising sun, in a boat surmounted by stars, closely followed by Sirius, which was shown as a cow. It has also been found sculptured on the walls of Thebes 5,000 years ago. And on the men of that early time it shone down from the same position and with the same brightness as it does on us today, a striking example of the unchangeableness of the heavens.

From the days of the early Hindus to the present the constellation has for some reason borne always a stormy character. Allusions to its direful influence are found everywhere among the classic writers. Thus Milton wrote:

> When with fierce winds Orion arrived
> Hath vexed the Red sea coast.

The loss of the Roman squadron in the first Punic war was ascribed to the fleets having sailed just after the rising of Orion. The group has also been employed as a calendar sign, its morning rising indicating the beginning of summer, its midnight rising the season of grape gathering and its early evening rising the arrival of winter, with its attendant storms. In recent times the group has always represented a great hunter or warrior. Its present title came into Greek astronomy from the Euphrates and originally signified the light of heaven.

BABY TURTLES.

They Know Just What to Do and Do It Without Guidance.

Just so soon as a baby turtle emerges from the egg off he scuttles down to the sea. He has no one to teach him, no one to guide him. In his curious little brain there is implanted a streak of caution based upon the fact that until a certain period in his life his armor is soft and no defense against hungry fish, and he at once seeks the shelter in the tropical profusion of the gulf weed, which holds within its branching fronds an astonishing abundance of marine life. Here the young turtle feeds unmolested while his armor undergoes the hardening process.

Whatever the young sea turtle eats and wherever he eats it—facts not generally ascertained—one thing is certain, it agrees with him immensely. He leads a pleasant sort of life, basking in the tropical sun and cruising leisurely in the cool depths.

Once he has attained the weight of twenty-five pounds, which usually occurs within the first year, the turtle is free from all danger. After that no fish or mammal, however ravenous, however well armed with teeth, interferes with the turtle.

When once he has withdrawn his head from its position of outlook into the folds of his neck between the two shells intending devourers may struggle in vain to make an impression upon him.—Harper's Weekly.

The Roar of China's Ducks.

Tourists in China are always surprised by the number of ducks they see. There are more ducks in China than in all the rest of the world. Their voices are a familiar sound in every town and country spot of the seacoast and the interior of the vast empire. Even in the large cities ducks abound. They dodge between the coolies' legs. They flit squawking out of the way of the horses. Their indignant quack will not unseldom drown the roar of urban commerce. Children herd ducks on every road, on every pond, on every farm, on every lake, on every river. There is no back yard without its duck house. There is no boat, little or great, without its duck quarters. All over the land there are great duck hatching establishments, many of them of a capacity huge enough to produce 50,000 young ducks every year. Duck among the Chinese is a staple delicacy. It is salted and smoked like ham or beef.—New York World.

ARE YOU READY FOR WINTER?

Able to Stand the Cold?

"Fruit-a-tives" Will Build Up the Whole System.

The reason why some people cannot stand our Canadian climate is because their bodily health is not good. Heavy clothing cannot take the place of animal heat, generated by the normal body. To be comfortable in winter, we must have sound digestion, and pure, rich blood. The time to get ready for winter is NOW, and the thing to take is "Fruit-a-tives."

These wonderful fruit juice tablets do more than regulate the bowels and kidneys. They keep the whole system at its best—make every vital organ do its proper work—and thus give health, strength and vitality. Those, subject to chronic Rheumatism and Sciatica, stubborn Constipation and Bilious Attacks, Pain in the Back, Headaches and Neuralgia, should make it a point to take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure themselves completely before the severe cold spells come on.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. or will be sent to any address on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

An Ancient Steam Man.

There are a host of authorities on hydraulics and mechanics that could be quoted to support the assertion that the steam engine is not a modern invention. Carpini in the account of his travels, A. D. 1286, describes a species of aeophile, or steam, engine made in the form of a man. This contrivance was filled with "inflammable liquid" (probably petroleum) and made to do terrible work in the battles between the Mongols and the troops of Prester John.

Remarkable.

"He takes a cold bath every morning—a very remarkable man!"

"Plenty of men do that."

"But I knew him for five years before he ever mentioned the fact."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Easier Way.

"Do foreigners buy many of our stocks?"

"Some. Usually, though, they prefer to acquire them by marriage."—Pittsburg Post.

THE CITY WILL ENTER APPEAL

The City Council last night decided to appeal the decision of Judge Huycke in the case of Hutton vs. Peterborough, in which the complainant was awarded $450 damages, owing to loss sustained by his horse running away on Concession Street, as a result of the animal taking fright at piles of sand cement, etc., left on the road by the city.

Port Arthur Customs collections last year totalled $485,113, an increase of $52,000.

CITY WILL OPPOSE CLOSING FOUR STREETS IN CONNECTION WITH GRAIN LINE SUBWAY

Want Company to Stick to Understanding That Only Chamberlain Street Will be Closed—What the Council Did Last Night at First Business Session

The C.P.R. apparently want to deviate from their original understanding with the city regarding the building of the subway in Peterborough for the new grain line. The company has been in communication with the board of railway commissioners, who wrote the city, stating that the company wished to close four streets, Rink, Stewart, Park and Chamberlain, and build a subway on Park and divert Townsend street. On the original understanding Chamberlain street was to be the city street closed for the subway.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Graham, the city solicitor and the Mayor were instructed to oppose the latest draft of the C.P.R.'s proposal and they will go to Ottawa to take up the matter with the Railway Commission.

Dr. Young and Robert Neill were appointed members of the Board of Health.

Ald. W. H. Bradburn was again chosen as the city's representative on the committee to distribute charitable funds of the estate of Elmyra Grover Foley.

E. H. D. Hall was appointed to the Public Library Board for four years.

The usual grant of $75 was made to the Peterborough Poultry Association.

On motion of Ald. Graham and Morgan the Property Committee was empowered to appoint a janitor for the Isolation Hospital and procure any necessary equipment for the hospital.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Brown the Property Committee was also authorized to purchase fittings for the Public Library.

Ald. Duncan suggested that it would be a good idea to effect a "clean up" at the council chamber. This has nothing to do with the city's finances. The room hasn't been massaged for fifteen years.

"Continued dropping of water wears away stone," but the relentless splashing of the Little Lake would have a smaller chance on a concrete walk than on the present wooden will at Crescent street, Ald. Buller thinks. The Board of Works will look into the matter.

TO GET HOME MARKET FOR THEIR PULPWOOD

Ontario Pulp Concessions Will Be Disposed Of.

On Condition That the Purchases Will Erect Paper Mills and Insure an Output of 100 Tons Per Day, the Ontario Government Will Sell Huge Areas of Lands in Rainy River and Abitibi.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—With a view to supplying the settlers in an extensive area of Northern Ontario with what they have most desired since the country was opened up—a convenient market for their pulpwood — the Provincial Government has decided to offer for sale two important pulpwood concessions, one in the Abitibi, and the other in the Rainy River District. Orders in-Council were passed by the Government yesterday authorizing the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines to ask for tenders. A bonus in addition to the regular dues will be asked for the tenders.

The right to cut pulpwood over the area of 2,360 square miles contained in the Abitibi and Rainy River concessions carries with it an obligation to erect pulp and paper mills capable of handling the output of spruce, not only from the concessions, but from the surrounding country as well.

When Hon. Frank Cochrane visited the north country in September last he was requested by the settlers to try to secure for them a better market for their pulpwood. The land in the districts named is heavily wooded with spruce, which goes to the settler when he completes his settlement duties.

In the Temiskaming district farther south, and within reasonable distance of a market, the pulpwood upon a settler's section is an important factor in maintaining him and his family until he gets his land cleared and under cultivation. Further north in the district around Cochrane settlers are going in upon the land, but the long haul necessitated and the consequent heavy freight charges make the pulpwood of little immediate value to them and the district has been seriously handicapped for that reason. Hon. Mr. Cochrane promised the settlers that their request would be considered, and the present action is an endeavor to meet their wishes.

The Abitibi Lake concession, which is the largest, contains an approximate area of 1,560 square miles, and when the pulp and paper mill is established and in operation an excellent home market will be afforded for the pulp products of the settlers along the line of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific in the neighborhood of the junction at Cochrane.

La GRIPPE SEIGE

New York, Jan. 10.—New York city is having an epidemic of the grippe second only to that of 1889, when it marked such ravages over the whole country.

Figures of the Board of Health, made public to-day, show the number of deaths from influenza, which is practically la grippe, has increased 400 per cent over the number for the corresponding week of last year, and is due, it is stated, to the cold and moist weather. The Board of Health reports fifty deaths last week, as against ten of a year ago.

BOY REFUSED ADMISSION

London, Jan. 11.—Much astonishment and indignation were expressed by members of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange yesterday at the fact that the American immigration officers had refused to allow Charles Heape, the thirteen-year-old son of Frederick Heape, a prominent cotton broker and member of the Exchange, to land in America with his uncle, H. J. Munro. A cablegram from New York states that in spite of Mr. Munro's energetic protests, the lad was sent to Ellis Island to be dealt with by the Immigration Board. The Cunard Company, by whose line Mr. Munro and his nephew crossed the Atlantic, and Mr. Willmer, mayor of Birkenhead, who is Mr. Heape's partner in the firm of Wilmer, Stephens & Heape, have cabled a message of protest to the American Secretary of State.

Keeping Out Anarchists.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Anarchists driven from England will find difficulty in landing at Canadian ports from now on. Special instructions were issued yesterday to immigration officials at Halifax and St. John to keep a sharp watch for suspicious characters, and refuse them entry to the country.

Ask License Reduction.

Blenheim, Jan. 11.—At the inaugural meeting of the Town Council a strong deputation from the W.C.T.U., headed by Rev. A. J. Bowen and Rev. Mr. McAllister, asked for a reduction of licenses from three to two. They were asked to secure signatures to a petition.

Threaten General Strike.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—Another big strike in spring is freely talked among labor men. This will not be merely a strike among carpenters or masons, but will be a general one among all classes of labor.

REARRANGING MINING LAWS

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—There will be a federal codification of the mining laws of Canada. The work will begin at once. The Minister of Mines has placed in the hands of J. M. Clark, K.C., Toronto, the work of preparing the statute, which is to be drawn up on the basis that the disposition of mining lands will be vested in the Department of Mines.

This is the result of the agitation of the Canadian Mining Institute and particularly of the action of the special committee of the institute of which G. G. S. Lindsey was chairman.

The selection of J. M. Clark, K.C., to prepare a federal mining law to deal with all mining rights is a tribute to his capacity, and a recognition of his identification with notable mining litigation for the past decade.

In quite a number of constitutional cases reaching through the Canadian courts to the Privy Council, Mr. Clark has figured and invariably with success. The same is true regarding large mining cases in which a long and extended experience has given him such mastery as few of his compeers possess.

Quite recently the Ophir mining case, which he brought to a successful conclusion through a tedious and tortuous course of litigation, ending in the Privy Council, has excited the attention of the legal profession and of the public, both because it decided the question of the Indian title so far as Ontario is concerned, and because a similar situation is becoming acute in British Columbia.

Chief of Police Dead.

Sarnia, Jan. 11.—Jack Crawford, chief of police of Sarnia, died yesterday of pneumonia, after a few day's illness. Crawford was 15 years ago prominent in pugilistic circles and was in line for a battle with Kid McCoy for the middleweight championship. Previously to this he was on the London football team when it won the intermediate championship of Canada. Dr. Walter Crawford and Rev. Edward Crawford, both missionaries to Africa, are brothers.

The Deadly Hat-Pin.

New York, Jan. 11.—Long hat-pins, a subject which has agitated other city councils, were discussed at a meeting of New York's board of aldermen yesterday. An ordinance providing a fine of not more than $50 for any woman whose hatpin, unless suitably guarded, protrudes more than half an inch from the crown or other portion of the hat, was referred to the committee on law and legislation.

Linking Up the Hydro.

London, Jan. 11.—Hon. Adam Beck said last night that it was probable that the St. Mary's station would be sufficiently advanced to-day to permit of the connection of the loop from London with that from Berlin and the east. This will do away with the breaks in the service occurring here and at Berlin.

Fear Another Ice Jam.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 11.—There are prospects of another big ice jam in the lower Niagara River. Word from Lewiston yesterday was to the effect that a force of ice at that point had caused the river to rise two feet, and that it was still climbing up the bank. Below the falls there is a big jam of ice, but as yet no apprehension is felt.

On April 9, 1909, the ice jam in the lower river reached its greatest height, the power house of the Ontario Power Co. below the falls was flooded out and the water and ice reached the verandahs of the hotels at Lewiston and Youngstown. The water and ice must raise some 60 or 70 feet to repeat that condition.

Against Reciprocity.

Victoria, Jan. 11.—The Central Farmers' Institute, in annual convention here yesterday, with 40 delegates from all parts of British Columbia, unanimously passed a resolution viewing with alarm the movement of the grain growers of the prairies for reciprocity in natural products with the United States, and asking, on the contrary, that the duties on fruit entering Canada be raised so as to make them equal to the duties now levied on fruit entering the United States.

THEY OBJECT TO MORMONS

Liverpool, Jan. 10.—The recent activity here of elders of the Mormon Church has led the Bishop of Liverpool and other prominent churchmen to inaugurate a campaign "to safeguard the English home against the proselyting efforts of the church which practices and teaches polygamy." Two big meetings have already been held, at which resolutions were adopted, calling the attention of the home secretary to the Mormon activity and requesting that the government take steps to check it. It is pointed out that such steps have been taken in Germany. In a speech to-day Archdeacon Madden said that if the aliens who kill the police are to be excluded from the country, the equally dangerous aliens who are sowing the seeds of an extraordinary imposture ought to be barred from a moral, Christian country.

FIREMEN ARE MISSING; MAY HAVE LOST LIVES IN FIRE IN CINCINNATI

Million-Dollar Conflagration Breaks Out In Chamber of Commerce Building and a Dozen Firemen Are Injured In Collapse of Roof — Second Bad Blaze Within Three Weeks—Crowds In Mad Rush.

Cincinnati, Jan. 11.—Entailing a loss of more than one million dollars, this city suffered it's second great fire within three weeks, when the Chamber of Commerce Building at Fourth and Vine streets was destroyed last night, adjacent property damaged, a dozen firemen injured, and possibly lives lost.

While several firemen still are unaccounted for up to a late hour, reports of fatalities among firemen and spectators who were caught in the wreckage of the collapsed roof have not been confirmed. It is known that there were a large number of employes at work when the fire started.

The Cincinnati Stock Exchange and the Louisville & Nashville Railway offices, both of which contained records almost invaluable, were consumed in the conflagration.

Only the bare walls of what was Cincinnati's most magnificent architectural building remain. The building had a valuation of $1,000,000, while the fixtures in the various offices were valued at $50,000.

The stocks of several business houses in the block were damaged, but the fire was confined to the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Full 5,000 persons were crowded directly outside the fire lines when the roof collapsed. Smoke and flying sparks filled the streets for two squares, and a panic followed. Men and women fought to escape, and many were trampled in the rush. Many sustained bruises and cuts, but no one was reported seriously injured.

Owing to the density of the smoke, the police were powerless to cope with the situation for fully ten minutes, and nearby office buildings were turned into hospitals for the injured and shelter places for the panic stricken.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The Kaiser's speech at the opening of the Diet offended the Democrats and Liberals.

The presbyteries of Montreal, Ottawa and Orangeville voted in favor of church union.

Hon. Sydney Fisher and Mr. C. C. James addressed the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union meeting at Guelph.

A bull dog kept a dozen London policemen at bay when they tried to enter the room in which its master had committed suicide.

The question of church union was decided by the Ottawa presbytery at a meeting yesterday. The vote showed 36 in favor and 5 against union.

Restitution to the amount of $1,300,000 was made yesterday by men who were indicted in connection with the Pennsylvania state capitol frauds.

It is announced King George will open Parliament on Feb. 6. He will be accompanied by the Queen, and there will be a full state ceremony.

The lumber barge Isabella Sands disappeared from the dock at Owen Sound with her crew on board and it is supposed she was blown out into the bay.

Dr. Trembley of the Quebec Board of Health, left for Alluemette Island, on the Ottawa River, where some two dozen cases of smallpox are giving a great deal of trouble to the local authorities.

According to a report the Ontario Powder Co. has gone into a merger, with head office at Montreal. C. A. MacPherson, interviewed in regard to the matter, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Ticket of Leave System.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The Department of Justice has decided to put a stricter application on the ticket of leave system of criminals. Heretofore many criminals have left the country and gone over to the United States on being released on ticket of leave. This, the Department has decided, is not to be allowed to pass unpunished wherever possible in future. To that end, they are in communication with several cities on the American side where the Canadian ticket-of-leave men are known to reside, and will have them arrested and extradited to Canada, when they will be sent back to prison to complete their sentences.

Sell Timber by Auction.

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—The Dominion Government Land Department has seized, and will sell by auction the timber cut along the right of way of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway, on which 80 per cent. of the timber dues for permits are unpaid.

Workman Scalded.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—William Waggoner, an employe of A. McLean's packing establishment, was working about the boiler when he was badly scalded about his left arm and face.

Caused Business Depression.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—At Sharbot Lake the Farmers' Bank failure has caused depression in business, and many depositors and shareholders are wondering what the outcome will be.

COMMISSIONER CALLED TO WASHINGTON

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Mr. John McDougald, commissioner of customs, the Government's leading authority of tariff matters, left Monday for Washington, having been summoned presumably to render expert assistance to the Canadian Ministers in the reciprocity negotiations.

Hon. James McMullen, in the days when he was not a Senator, but a member of Parliament and a militant member of the Liberal Opposition, believed firmly in reciprocity with the United States as a panacea for Canada's trade infirmities. His opinions, like those of many of his old-time colleagues, have undergone a change. Senator McMullen, who has returned to Ottawa to resume his sessional duties, speaking of the negotiations now in progress at Washington, expressed the hope that no treaty of reciprocity would result. He quite endorses the stand taken by Hon. Clifford Sifton in his address on Conservation, namely, that this is no time to take down the bars.

Engine Falls Into Water.

Vancouver, Jan. 11.—While engaged in shunting in the Great Northern trestle over False Creek, in the heart of Vancouver, an engine dropped through an open draw span at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning and plunged into twenty feet of water. Engineer Baker remained in the cab and was cut on the head. Fireman Varrell jumped into the water. Both men were rescued from their chilly bath.

The wreckage has cut off the approach to the Great Northern station, and passenger service is being conducted at a sub-station on the main line, south of the scene of the accident. The bridge span was opened to allow the passage of a tug. Engineer Baker failed to see the open span until too late to pull up his train of freight cars.

New President for U. S. Steel.

New York, Jan. 11.—James A. Farrell of Brooklyn, is the choice of the finance committee of the U. S. Steel Corporation to succeed Wm. Ellis Corey as president of the corporation. Wm. Farrell has been the president of the United States Products Co. ever since its organization in 1903, and has been connected with the manufacturing and commercial departments of iron and steel industry for more than twenty-five years.

It is understood that when elected to the presidency of the corporation on Jan. 24 he will confine his activities to the practical and technical sides of the vast organization.

A Land of Liberty.

Quebec, Jan. 11.—The Quebec Legislature opened yesterday afternoon. In the absence of Sir Alphonse Pelletier, Lieutenant-Governor, who is ill at Old Point Comfort, Va., Sir L. A. Jette, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, presided. The speech from the throne makes mention of the striking success of the International Eucharistic Congress held in Montreal. It says:

"This success affords you another proof that the Province of Quebec is not only a land of faith, but preeminently also the land of liberty. On that occasion the Protestant population of the metropolis displayed admirable kindness, for which we cannot too heartily thank them."

WOMAN PHYSICIAN COLLAPSES IN CELL

New York, Jan. 11.—Dr. Louise E. Robinovitch, sister of Jos. G. Robin, the sky rocket financier, collapsed in her cell in the Tombs yesterday after sending a frantic appeal to her other brother, Edward L. Robin, to get bail for her.

The woman physician passed a sleepless night. The shock of having to go to jail was too much for her. She had expected, it is understood, that she would be paroled until the time of her trial on a charge of perjury, or that friends would come to her aid by furnishing the necessary bonds.

She is in cell No. 7, which has housed many famous women prisoners, among them being Hannah Elias and Nan Patterson.

Fear for Safety of Barge.

Owen Sound, Jan. 11.—Fears are entertained for the safety of the captain and crew of the barge Isabella Sands, which came into the Carney Lumber Co.'s dock late Sunday evening with a load of lumber taken from the steamer Alaska, which was burned at Tobermory some time ago. The Sands tied up safely, but when morning broke she had disappeared, and has not since been seen or heard. It is thought that stress of weather caused the captain to seek to run across the bay to a less exposed position and that the wind forced him out into the bay.

Six-Year-Old Child Burned.

Lindsay, Jan. 11.—Arastus Anderson, the six-year-old son of J. J. Anderson of Harvey, six miles north of Bobcaygeon, was burned to death in his cot Monday night at nine o'clock. He was in bed with his little sister, whose life was saved by W. Laird, who noticed the fire. The flames were too fierce to allow him to return for the boy. The cause of the fire is unknown.

$20,000 for Church.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—A bequest of $20,000 from the late Mrs. John H. R. Molson, was the announcement made at the 69th annual meeting of the Church of the Messiah Monday night. Mr. John W. Loud was elected president of the church, and Messrs. Dakers, Cameron and E. G. O'Connor as secretary and treasurer respectively.

Will Command "A" Battery.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—Major D. I. V. Eaton will take command of A Battery R.C.H.A., in place of Major H. A. Panet, who goes to England, to be attached to the Royal Horse Battery at Aldershot, for a course. Capt. E. Panet of the R.C.H.A. will go to the staff college in England.

Re-elected Socialist President.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The Chamber of Deputies organized yesterday with the re-election of President Henri Brisson, Radical Socialist, who received 270 votes, against 197 for Paul Deschanel, Republican, and 50 for Jules Guesde, United Socialist.

Pays Landlord's Grocery Bill.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—In the absence from Divisional Court yesterday of Edward E. McIntosh, who is badly wanted on a charge of stealing $25,000 in unsigned Traders' Bank notes, the man who is renting McIntosh's Galley avenue house, paid $26 of his rent to the court to cover bills for groceries for which C. A. Creedin and W. F. Blackburn were suing.

Storms Bother Trains.

Toronto, Jan. 11.—The recent storms in the Northwest have affected the passenger service between Winnipeg and Toronto, and C.P.R. train No. 94, from Winnipeg, due here at 3.30 yesterday afternoon, did not arrive at the Union Station until 10 o'clock last night. The same train was over four hours late on Monday.

Will Pay Off Church Debt.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—St. James' Church was left $5,000 by the late Miss Fowler, a former member of the congregation, who recently died in England. The amount is to be applied to any purposes necessary for the church, and is about sufficient to clear the debt off the church.

The Shah's Domain Says It Only Wants Fair Play.

Appeals to the Powers to Be Protected Against England and Russia—Manifesto Claims That Great Britain Is Standing by and Allowing Russia to Pour In Soldiers—Cannot Pay Debt.

New York, Jan. 11.—Out of the tangled web of diplomacy, plot and counter plot that has wrapped it about for centuries, the Persian Government has raised its voice in appeal to the whole world, an appeal for which it styles justice against England and Russia. The first cry reached this country yesterday with a document of sixteen thousand words, bearing the seal of the empire and the full signature of Mostofe-El-Manalik, president of the council. It is addressed to the American people, through H. H. Topakyan, consul-general at New York.

In brief, the Persian Government states that, through a loan made to it by the Russian Government some years ago, and which it has found itself unable to repay, because England and Russia have thrown every obstacle in the way of repayment, it is almost helpless and unable to maintain order in certain provinces, where Russian troops have been quartered to enforce collection. England, it is charged, expressly agreed that no other than civil means would be used for collection, yet now stands idly by while Russia pours regiments over the borders.

The presence of these foreign troops has aroused Persians to fury. Three provinces have been thrown into revolt. Russia and England have demanded that the disorders be repressed, yet the Persian Government declares itself helpless while Russian troops are within its borders. The appeal declares that Persia stands ready to shed her blood to defend British subjects, and would defend them if allowed to act without the Russian troops.

All last year Persia was the storm centre of European international politics. In October it was reported from London that the British Government had addressed an ultimatum to the Persian Government, demanding that order be restored in the southern provinces within the British sphere of influence. Three months' grace was allowed, after which time Britain held herself at liberty to assume the work herself by occupation. Persian revenues, it was said, would be used to pay the cost, and Russia, it was added, contemplated similar measures. The declaration followed months of unrest in Teheran, and repeated outbreaks of hostilities between the insurgents and the Government troops. Turkey also threatened invasion, apparently jealous of the Russian and British movements, and Persia was threatened, and for that matter is still threatened, on three sides.

FIRST OF SEASON

Winnipeg, Jan. 10.—The immigration season of 1911 was formally opened yesterday. A long train filled with immigrants pulled into the Canadian Pacific depot at an early hour. The party arriving this morning was almost wholly British, who appeared to belong to the prosperous middle classes, the amount of baggage and number of children being remarkable. The party numbered about 250.

May Sue For Breach of Trust.

Fingal, Ont., Jan. 11.—Yeomen of this neighborhood, who had $50,000 on deposit in the Farmers' Bank, will meet this week, to decide upon some plan to protect their interests. A deputation of shareholders will wait on the Attorney-General to ask for intervention, in case any move is made to sacrifice the substance of the bank, or undue haste to realize the assets. Civil action against the directors and officials for breach of trust is talked of.

Want to Get on "the Force."

St. Catharines, Jan. 11.—Chief Green has submitted his annual report to the police commission, showing $1,860 in fees and fines, being $587 more than in the previous twelve months; 126 doors of stores and banks were found unlocked at night. For two vacant positions on the force between forty and fifty applications were received. One man, Morris Hedden of Campden, was taken on. Last year three constables were discharged.

May Desert Queen's.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—Although the medical faculty of Queen's have no intimation with regard to the resignation of Dr. Fred. Etherington, senior professor of anatomy, it is persistently rumored about the college that the professor will quit Queen's at the conclusion of the present session. It is understood he intends to practice surgery in one of the large American cities.

A Storm Centre.

Woodstock, Jan. 11.—The G.T.R. Hotel, one of three places where licenses have been cut off within the past three years, is again a storm centre. Largely signed petitions will be presented to the commissioners both for and against the granting of a license.

CONGENIAL VIEWS

Hon. Clifford Sifton at Montreal Monday night: "It must be clear that this is not the time to take down the bars, and hand our resources over to the United States."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1893: A protective tariff is robbery, a delusion and a snare.

What congenial room-mates would Hon. Cliff. Sif. and Sir Wilf. would be, if each honestly adhered to his private opinions!

SOME POWER THOUGHTS

The Toronto Telegram and other advocates of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission are busy knocking the Electric Power Co., Ltd., as a private corporation opposed to the Beck system. The arguments of the Toronto papers may be all right applied as broad principles, but in the case of the individual municipalities along the Trent canal, it is hard to figure out how a connection with the hydro-commission would help materially. Figured from a business standpoint it could not pay Peterborough to take up the question of a municipal power plant, as Winnipeg has done. In connection with this, there are few municipalities of any size in close range of this city, with which to share the cost of construction of a dam, and the power available at any one point is scarcely enough to warrant such an attempt.

The utilization by a strong company of most of the water powers of the district will hasten by years the securing of a cheap supply of power, and will aid the small municipalities of Eastern Ontario considerably. Peterborough has not much need to kick at the price of $30 per h.p. over a 24 hour period, although to get the cost to rock bottom is very desirable. One of the subsidiary companies of the Electric Power Company, has offered Kingston power at $25 per h.p. In this connection it is interesting to note that Mayor Hopewell, of Ottawa, is advocating the purchase of a power site by the capital at a cost of $150,000 or $200,000, simply to hold for possible future use. Ottawa is securing power at $15 per h.p. through the hydro-electric commission, and fancies that the possession of another municipal site might conduce toward still a closer price.

In the consumption of power in Peterborough a dozen small users are preferable to one big user of the same quantity. Peculiarities of local situation, and transportation problems means that this city in getting its share of industries must play for those requiring ordinarily good shipping facilities, but whose prosperity does not depend entirely on a thorough command of all highways or traffic.

THE FARMERS RIGHTS

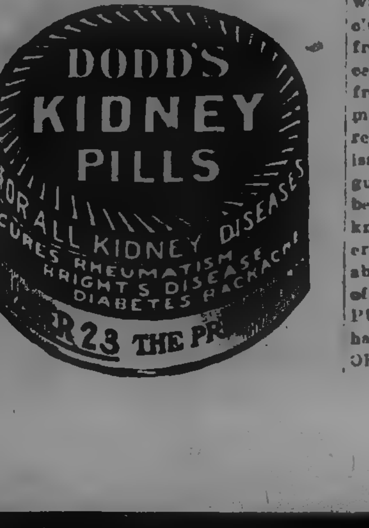
The following letter has been received from a Bobcaygeon district farmer, a subscriber to the Weekly Review;

Gentlemen,—In the Review of Jan. 6th, you seem inclined to turn us farmers down for asking for our honest rights. We want direct taxation that will make everybody stand on their own legs. The farmers of Canada have got tired of carrying the manufacturers on their backs, the farmers of this country do not regard the protectionist press or J. A. Russell. A fair deal we ask for and a fair deal we will have. Please wipe my name off your sub-list. Be sure and read Cotton's Weekly.

RICHARD PAYNE.

While of course, every man is entitled to his views as to the benefits of protection or the necessity of free trade, let us examine the arguments of worthy friend Payne. Assume that even here in Ontario, the manufacturing province of the Dominion, the farmers' interests are so important as to merit fullest consideration,—which is a fact. Will Mr. Payne deny that the home Ontario market takes 75 per cent. of the farm production—that the home market is his great commercial field, and will continue to be so? Suppose the farmers did get tired of "carrying the manufacturers" and free trade was established, putting those manufacturers very largely out of business. As the people who buy Mr. Farmer's products are people who earn their living from the manufacturer, or through industry, does it not follow that to put the manufacturer out of business would kill the farmers' big market very largely? The farmers are no worse off with regad to cost of living than any other class of Canadians. Ask the housewife who pays 40 or 50 cents a dozen for eggs, 35 cents a pound for butter, etc. She will tell you that a farmer is getting much better prices than ever before, and she can afford to pay this only because of the prosperous industrial conditions, which aid the family income.

It is easy to figure out that protection is not fair to the farmer, but it is the means whereby the farmer gets his good prices. To introduce free trade might cheapen the cost of living somewhat, but it would destroy the prosperity of the country on which the farmer depends for his prosperity. The removal of protection would force the commercial union of Canada and the United States in a short time. Do you want that?



EDITORIAL NOTES

Ald. Duncan thinks it is time to have the city council chamber brightened up, as it has not been touched for fifteen years. Is this a sign of the coming of spring?

If the importation of automobiles is a barometer of prosperity, then Canada is prosperous. During 1910, 2,121 motor cars, valued at $2,474,000, were imported. British competition was a negligible quantity.

A blizzard is sweeping the west, and the weather is from 20 to 40 below zero. Policemen never need to use "Move on" signs on western streets in this sort of weather.

Eight western manufacturers will visit Sir Wilfrid Laurier to offset the eight hundred farmers' visit. Isn't their social call rather belated? The time was ripe before the excursion rates to Washington were announced.

Kingston city council is alarmed at the amount of exemptions existent, over $3,000,000 on a total assessment of $9,000,000. Such a proposition is ridiculous, and Kingston may well well wake up and examine such a condition!

Power Rates.

Toronto Telegram.

Canada's confidence in the Railway Commission, apart from Hon. J. P. Mabee, is greatly exaggerated.

Canada's confidence in the power of the Dominion Railway Commission, Hon. J. P. Mabee included, to regulate either freight rates or electric light and power rates downward is absolutely nil.

The merger which Hon. G. P. Graham is creating with his puny policy of keeping the Hydro-Electric Commission out of eastern Ontario will not be "in business for its health" and its rights and franchises will carry a heavy burden of over-capitalization.

The capitalization of the eastern Ontario merger will regulate the rates charged for light and power in eastern Ontario. The capitalization of the express companies would have regulated the rates charged for express service if the express company capitalization had been represented by stock in the hands of innocent third parties.

The pity is that Canada's Minister of Railways should talk like a noisy child in his promulgation of the theory that the authority of the Railway Commission will prevent the eastern Ontario merger from charging excessive rates for light and power.

The authority of the Dominion Railway Commission, Hon. J. P. Mabee included, does not prevent the G.T.R., the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. from charging excessive rates for freight service.

The authority of the Dominion Railway Commission, Hon. J. P. Mabee, included, has not prevented the railways from recently doubling the rates on certain classes of merchandise shipped from Toronto to Winnipeg. A Commission that has no legal power to regulate capitalization before stock is issued has no effective power to regulate freight rates after stock has been issued. Hon. G. P. Graham knows this, or should know it. Eastern Ontario asks Mr. Graham to enable the Hydro-Electric Commission to offer eastern Ontario the BREAD OF PUBLIC OWNERSHIP and Mr. Graham offers that district the STONE OF SHAM REGULATION.

Shot by Litigant.

Caney, Kans., Jan. 9.—J. D. S. Neeley, president of the Wichita Pipe Line Co., president of the Lima (Ohio) Trust Co., and head of several large oil companies, was shot and killed in the Palace Hotel here yesterday morning by Al. O. Truskett, a prominent business man of Caney.

The shooting was the result of litigation over an oil lease. Truskett surrendered immediately.

Truskett was taken by automobile to the county jail at Independence, Kansas.

The shooting occurred in the rear of the hotel. Mr. Neeley had been sitting in the lobby reading a letter. Truskett, sitting opposite, had been watching him closely. When Mr. Neeley got up and walked toward the rear of the hotel, Trusket hurried around to the sample room. As Neeley passed the door of this room, Truskett fired at him twice. One bullet passed through Neeley's heart and the other through his left arm. When employes of the hotel reached the prostrate man he was dead.

Express Car on Fire.

The car was run back to Poplar Point, but the fire gained such headway that it was impossible to subdue the flames. It is stated that the contents of the cars were completely destroyed.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"It wasn't altogether luck. However, I do consider myself fortunate in escaping at the last moment." Boyd laughed easily. "By the way, what happened to the man they mistook for me?"

"Let him go, I believe. I didn't pay much attention to the matter. I rather think you will have a lot to explain one of these days," he said, with deliberate menace.

"With 50,000 cases of salmon aboard the Bedford Castle I will explain anything. Meanwhile the police may go to the devil!"

"You got away from Seattle, but there is a commissioner at Dutch Harbor, also a deputy marshal, who may have better success with a warrant than those policemen had." The trust's manager could not keep down the angry tremor in his voice, and the other, perceiving it, replied in a manner designed to inflame him still more:

"Yes, I have heard of those officers. I understand they are both in your employ."

"What!"

"I hear you have bought them."

"Do you mean to insinuate"—

"I don't mean to insinuate anything. Listen! We are where we can talk plainly, Marsh, and I am tired of all this subterfuge. You did what you could to stop me, you even tried to have me killed"—

"You dare to"—

"But I guess it never occurred to you that I may be just as desperate as you are. I broke through in spite of you, and I'm on the job. If you want to cry quits, I'm willing, but I won't be balked, and if any of your hired marshals try to take me before I put up my catch I'll put you away. Understand?"

Willis Marsh recoiled involuntarily.

"You are insane!" he cried.

"Am I?" Emerson laughed harshly. "Well, I'm just crazy enough to do what I say. Don't come back here until I send for you. Something might fall on you."

"Then it is to be war, eh?"

"Suit yourself." Boyd pointed to the shore.

As Marsh made his way to the water's edge he stumbled like a blind man; his lips were bleeding where his small, sharp teeth had bitten them, and he panted like an hysterical woman.

During the next fortnight the sailing ships began to assemble, standing in under a great spread of canvas to berth close alongside the two steamships.

On the morning after the arrival of the last ship Emerson and his companions were treated to a genuine surprise. Cherry had come down to the site as usual—she could not let a day go by without visiting the place—and Clyde after a tardy breakfast had just come ashore. They were watching Big George direct the launching of a scow when all of a sudden they heard a familiar voice behind them cry cheerfully:

"Hello, white folks! Here we are all together again."

They turned to behold a villainous looking man beaming benignly upon them. He was dirty, his clothes were in rags, and through a riotous bristle of beard that hid his thin features a mangy patch showed on either cheek. It was undeniably "Fingerless" Fraser, but how changed, how altered, from that radiant flower of indolence they had known! He was pallid, emaciated and bedraggled.

"Fraser!" they cried in chorus, then fell upon him noisily.

Fraser drew himself up with injured dignity, then spoke in dramatic accents. "I worked my way!"

"How? Where?"

"On that bloody wind jammer."

"But the police?" queried Boyd.

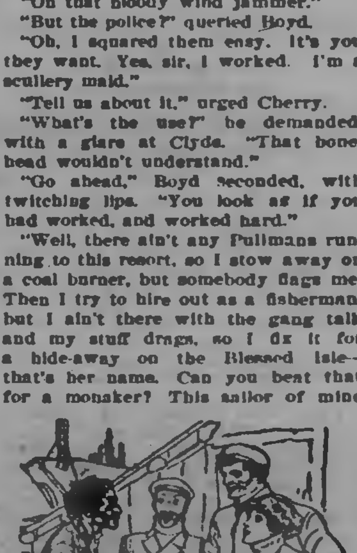
"Oh, I squared them easy. It's you they want. Yes, sir, I worked. I'm a scullery maid."

"Tell us about it," urged Cherry.

"What's the use?" he demanded, with a glare at Clyde. "That bonehead wouldn't understand."

"Go ahead," Boyd seconded, with twitching lips. "You look as if you had worked, and worked hard."

"Well, there ain't any Pullmans running to this resort, so I stow away on a coal burner, but somebody flags me. Then I try to hire out as a fisherman, but I ain't there with the gang talk and my stuff drags, so I fix it for a hide-away on the Blessed Isle—that's her name. Can you beat that for a monaker? This sailor of mine goes good to grub me, but he never shows for forty-eight hours—or years, I forget which. Anyhow, I stand it as long as I can, then I dig my way up to a hatch and mew like a house cat. It seems they were hep from the start, and battened me down on purpose, then made book on how long I'd stay hid. Oh, it's a funny joke, and they all get a stomach laugh when I show. When I offer to pay my way they're insulted. Nix! that ain't their graft. They wouldn't take money from a stranger. Oh, no! They permit me to work my way. The scullion has quit, see? So they promote me to his job."



"FRASER!" THEY CRIED IN CHORUS.

"You deserted this morning, eh?"

"I did. I want a bath and some clean clothes and a whole lot of sleep."

He was granted his desires.

The Bedford Castle having discharged her cargo steamed away to return in August.

The middle of June brought the first king salmon, scouts sent on ahead of the "sockeyes;" but Boyd made no effort to take advantage of this run, laboring manfully to prepare for the advance of the main army, that terrific horde that was soon to come from the mysterious depths either to make or ruin him. Once the run proper started there would be no more opportunity for building or for setting up machinery. He must be ready and waiting by the first of July.

For some time his tin machines had been busy night and day turning out great heaps of gleaming cans, while the carpenters and machinists completed their tasks. The gill netters were overhauling their gear, the beach was lined with fishing boats. On their dock great piles of seines and drift nets were being inspected. Three miles below Big George with a picked crew and a piledriver was building the fishtrap. It consisted of half mile "leads," or rows of piling, capped with stringers upon which netting was hung and terminated in "hearts," "corrals" and "spillers," the intricate arrangements of webbing and timbers out of which the fish were to be taken.

As for Boyd the fever in his veins mounted daily as he saw his dream assuming concrete form. Always he found Cherry at his shoulder, unobtrusive and silent for the most part, yet intensely observant and keenly alive to every action. She seemed to have the faculty of divination, knowing when to be silent and when to join her mood with his, and she gave him valuable help, for she possessed a practical mind. One day when their preparations were nearly completed a foreman came to Boyd and said excitedly:

"Boss, I'd like you to look at the iron Chinks right away."

"What's up?"

"I don't know, but something is wrong." A hurried examination showed the machines to be cunningly crippled; certain parts were entirely missing while others were broken.

The iron Chink, or mechanical cleaner, is perhaps the most ingenious of the many labor saving devices used in the salmon fisheries. It is an awkward looking, yet very effective contrivance of revolving knives and conveyors which seizes the fish whole and delivers it cleaned, clipped, cut and ready to be washed. With superhuman dexterity it does the work of twenty lightning like butchers. Without the aid of these iron Chinks Boyd knew that his fish would spoil before they could be handled. He hastened straightway to George Balt. A half hour's run down the bay and he clambered from his launch to the pile driver, where, amid the confusion and noise, he made known his tidings. The big fellow's calmness amazed him.

"What are you going to do now?"

"Butcher by hand," said the fisherman.

"But how? That takes skilled labor—lots of it."

George grinned. "I'm too old a bird to be caught like this. I figured on accidents from the start, and when I hired my Chinamen I included a crew of cutters. Willis Marsh will have to try again."

CHAPTER XIV.

WHILE they were talking a tugboat towing a pile driver came into view. Boyd asked the meaning of its presence in this part of the river.

"I don't know," answered Big George, staring intently. "Yonder looks like another one behind it, with a raft of piles."

"I thought all the company traps were up stream."

"So they are. I can't tell what they're up to."

A half hour later, when the new flotilla had come to anchor a short distance below, Emerson's companion began to swear.

"I might have known it."

"What?"

"Marsh aims to 'cork' us."

"What is that?"

"He's going to build a trap on each side of this one and cut off our fish."

"Good Lord! Can he do that?"

"Sure! Why not? The law gives us 600 yards both ways. As long as he stays outside of that limit he can do anything he wants to."

"Then of what use is our trap? The salmon follow definite courses close to the shore, and if he intercepts them before they reach us—why, then we'll get only what he lets through."

"That's his plan," said Big George sourly. "It's an old game, but it don't always work. You can't tell what salmon will do till they do it. I've studied this point of land for five years, and I know more about it than anybody else except the Creator. If the fish hug the shore, then we're up against it, but I think they strike in about here; that's why I chose this site. We can't tell, though, till the run starts. All we can do now is see that them people keep their distance."

The "lead" of a salmon trap consists of a row of web hung piling that runs out from the shore for many hundred feet, forming a high, stout fence that turns the schools of fish and leads them into cunningly contrived inclosures, or "pounds," at the outer extremity, from which they are "brailed" as needed. These corrals are so built that once the fish are inside they cannot escape. The entire structure is devised upon the principle that the salmon will not make a short turn, but will swim as nearly as possible in a straight line. It looked to Boyd as if Marsh, by blocking the line of progress above and below, had virtually destroyed the efficiency of the new trap, rendering the cost of its construction a total loss.

That evening when he had seen the night shift started Emerson decided to walk up to Cherry's house, for he was worried over the day's developments and felt that an hour of the girl's society might serve to clear his thoughts.

Cherry's house was situated a short distance above the cannery which served as Willis Marsh's headquarters, and Boyd's path necessarily took him past his enemy's very stronghold. Finding the tide too high to permit of passing beneath the dock, he turned up among the buildings, where, to his surprise, he encountered his own day foreman talking earnestly with a stranger.

The fisherman started guiltily.

"What are you doing here, Larsen?" asked Boyd.

"I just walked up after supper to have a talk with an old mate."

"Who is he?"

"He's Mr. Marsh's foreman."

Emerson spoke out bluntly: "See here. I don't like this. These people have caused me a lot of trouble already, and I don't want my men hanging around here."

"Oh, that's all right," said Larsen carelessly. "Him and me used to fish together." And as if this were a sufficient explanation he turned back to his conversation, leaving Emerson to proceed on his way.

He found Cherry at home and, flinging himself into one of her easy chairs, relieved his mind of the day's occurrences.

"Marsh is building those traps purely out of spite," she declared indignantly when he had finished. "He doesn't need any more fish—he has plenty of traps farther up the river."

"To be sure! It looks as if we might have to depend upon the gill netters."

"We will know before long. If the fish strike in where George expects Marsh will be out a pretty penny."

"And if they don't strike in where George expects we will be out all the expense of building that trap."

"Exactly! It's a fascinating business, isn't it? It's a business in which the unexpected is forever happening. But the stakes are high, and—I know you will succeed. By the way," she continued, "have you heard the historic story about the pink salmon?"

He shook his head.

"Well, there was a certain shrewd old cannery man in Washington state whose catch consisted almost wholly of pink fish. As you know, that variety does not bring as high a price as red salmon, like these. Well, finding that he could not sell his catch, owing to the popular prejudice about color, this man printed a lot of striking can labels, which read, 'Best Grade Pink Salmon. Warranted Not to Turn Red in the Can.' They tell me it worked like a charm."

"No wonder!" Boyd laughed.

"I wish I were a man," she went on. "I'd like to engage in a business of this sort, something that would require ingenuity and daring. I'd like to handle big affairs."

"There is your copper mine. You surely handled that very cleverly."

Cherry's expression altered, and she shot a quick glance at him as he went on.

"How is it coming along, by the way? I haven't heard you mention it lately."

"Very well, I believe. The men were down the other day and told me it was a big thing."

"I'm delighted. How does it seem to be rich?"

"I—I hardly know. Rich! That has always been my dream, and yet"—

"The wonderful feature about dreams," he took advantage of her pause to say, "is that they come true."

"Not all of them—not the real, wonderful dreams," she returned.

"Oh, yes! My dream is coming true, and so is yours."

"I have given up hoping for that," she said, without turning.

"But you shouldn't give up. Remember that all the great things ever accomplished were only dreams at first, and the greater the accomplishments the more impossible they seemed to begin with."

THE FRIEND OF MAN IS PARISIAN SAGE

No man likes to look older than he is. Every woman on earth absolutely abhors such a condition. You may be 30 in age, but if you are bald-headed or gray, people will surely take you to be many years older and you will be helpless to prevent.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage, America's greatest hair restorer, will keep you looking young and attractive.

PROTESTANT RATEPAYERS STATE THEIR OBJECTIONS

To the Teaching of Religion in S. S. No. 8 Otonabee and the Methods of Transacting School Business--Lt.-Governor of Province Has Been Petitioned.

An appointment has been made with the Inspector of County Public Schools, as provided by the statute, for Saturday, Jan. 14th, at 2 p.m., by the Protestant ratepayers of P.S. S. No. 8, Otonabee, for the hearing of complaints against the system of conducting the business of the school ratepayers in that section.

A petition against the teaching of religion in the Public schools, where there are both Protestant and Catholic pupils has been forwarded to Lt.-Governor Gibson. It is signed by all the Protestant ratepayers of the section.

SAY VOTING IS IRREGULAR.

The object of the Protestant ratepayers of Public S.S. No. 8, Otonabee, is, as stated by them:

1.—By petition to the Legislature to show the desirability of having the teaching of religion wholly done away with in mixed (Public) rural schools. This petition has been dispatched, signed by all the resident Protestant ratepayers of the section and supported by affidavits, to the Lieut.-Governor of the Province.

2.—To call the Inspector's attention to the wholly unsatisfactory manner of conducting the elections for trustees in the said section.

At the meeting of ratepayers held for that purpose a poll not being held, it is proposed to show that it was possible for those in attendance to vote whether ratepayers or not, and to hold up two hands instead of one —in a word, there was no guarantee that the ratepayers were allowed to manage their own affairs, and it is believed and asserted that the election was irregular as a consequence. Those in attendance should not be allowed to vote unless on the list.

3.—That no record was kept of those who voted and no proper count made.

4.—That the Board of Trustees was not called together during the year

INSPECTOR'S REPORT WASN'T READ.

5.—That the complainants are willing that the same trustees (two R. C. and one Protestant with an R.C secretary) should be re-elected, and they propose to move to that effect if a new election is granted, but they are desirous of replacing the present system the one used elsewhere.

6.—That no agreement has been signed by the Board with the teacher as required by the Board.

7.—That the minutes of the annual ratepayers' meeting (if any) were not signed by secretary as required.

8.—That the Inspector's report to the Board on condition of school was never made known or read to Board or ratepayers as required.

NO PERSONAL ILL-FEELING.

9.—There is no personal ill-feeling on the part of the complainants whatever towards the other ratepayers, but the loose way of conduction of the ratepayers' school business is eminently prejudicial and unsatisfactory, and in conjunction with the opportunity afforded by the Act for the teaching of religious dogmas and customs is producing a condition of affairs that can easily be remedied and should not be allowed to continue.

10.—That the teacher, Miss Ward, a Roman Catholic, is considered painstaking and satisfactory.

MEAT PRICES ARE SOARING

Beef Will Soon be Twenty Cents a Pound Says Local Butcher — Farmers Not Raising Enough Cattle to Supply the Demand is the Reason.

"Meat is high now," said a local butcher to the Review, "but it's going to go higher. It's not because the butchers are trying to boost the prices because it would be better from their standpoint if it was lower. There would then be a ready sale.

"The farmers are not raising cattle enough to supply the demand," he continued. "They want six and seven dollars a hundred live weight now. On the block they would want twice that amount and then the meat merchant has to have his profit too.

"Twenty cents a pound is what beef will be shortly. The prices are bound to soar."

The Review's informant said a buyer scoured the countryside yesterday on a buying tour and couldn't get "a hoof."

WIFE OF LOCAL MAN WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Port Hope Guide.

Mrs. Mary Nash, who lived with her sister, Miss Hughes at the corner of Bramley and Sherbourne streets, was found dead in bed on Monday morning. Miss Hughes had been ill for some time and the doctor was in attendance. Mrs. Nash was about as usual on Sunday, and did not complain of being ill. Not rising at her usual time on Monday morning, her sister called her, but received no reply. After some time she managed to reach the room and was almost overcome when she learned the sad tidings.

The late Mrs. Nash was 60 years of age, and had resided with her sister here for many years. Her husband lives in Peterboro, where he is employed with the George Matthews Company. Coroner Aldrich was called, but decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The funeral takes place from Mr. Alf. George's undertaking parlors to-morrow morning.

Miss Hughes has been very ill for some weeks, and this, with the shock of her sister's death, renders her condition very serious.

Mr and Mrs. Argent left on the 9.05 G.T.R. train for Belleville, where they will visit the groom's brother, Mr Wm. Argent, south George street, and other friends. On their return they will spend a month at the bride's home, prior to their departure for their home in the west. The newly wedded couple will be followed by the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Argent were the recipients of a number of useful presents.

SISSON—JOHNSTON.

A very pretty house wedding occurred about three o'clock this afternoon, at 308 Pearl Avenue, when Miss Annie Sisson and Mr. Geo. Johnston, were quietly married by Rev. H. R. Trumpour.

The contracting parties were unattended. The bride wore a very becoming suit of cream San Toy.

The wedding march of "Lohengrin" was played by Miss Beatrice Stark.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests partook of a dainty wedding luncheon, before leaving on the 4.38 C.P.R. for an extended honeymoon trip. The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue with hat to match.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside in the vicinity of the city. An elegant mahogany table was presented to the bride by the members of All Saints' choir, of which she was organist.

DEVELOPMENT OF CANADA

Interesting Lecture by F. D. Kerr Before St. John's A.Y.P.A.

The St. John's A. Y. P. A., which met on Monday night, had the pleasure of listening to a most interesting and instructive address by F. D. Kerr, entitling his subject, "A Canadian evening." Mr. Kerr reviewed the past history of Canada, with special reference to reforms brought about by leading politicians and lawyers and pointed out some items of absorbing interest.

In a skilful and scholarly way, the lecturer showed that the present system of legislation was the outcome of a real desire to see the country flourish, and to obtain this result, private prejudice had been overcome, and men of different political opinions had stood together, especially during the period preceding confederation. The outcome of this public spirited action was an internal unity, of which we, of to-day reap the benefits.

He also reviewed some of the laws on the Statute Book, and contrasted the uniformity of the criminal law of Canada to the different interpretations of the same law in various American States.

Finally, the learned lecturer reminded his hearers that a noble heritage must be maintained intact, so that posterity profiting by the past, may be able to advance all along the line, looking for the truest progress in the strength of Canada's manhood. An extract from Emerson, to the effect that the nation wants "broad men rather than broad acres" brought a most enjoyable and instructive lecture to a close.

The thanks of the Association was tendered to Mr. Kerr and the hope expressed that he would continue his remarks on another occasion. A large number will certainly look forward with pleasure to his lecture, judging by the comments heard after the meeting.

EMPLOYEES OF PROGRESSIVE CONCERN ARE BANQUETED

Most Enjoyable Affair at Hooper's Grill Room—Many Employees Extend Best Wishes For a Prosperous Future for the Company—Toasts and Musical Selections

It was a jolly crowd that assembled in Hooper's grill room last evening, at the second annual dinner given by G. Walter Green, proprietor of the G. Walter Green Company, to his employees. The spirit of sociability and friendly feelings existing between employer and employee was easily perceived to be present, and the evening's enjoyment will not soon be forgotten by those fortunate enough to have been in attendance.

PROGRAM HIGHLY ENJOYED.

Every part of the program was of the highest order from the quality and quantity of the fare, down to the popular buck and wing dancing of Sam and "Teddy" Andrews.

Promptly at 8.30 all present were seated at the tables with G. Walter Green at the head of the table with the foremen.

An opening toast to the King proposed by Mr. Green, was heartily received. Also a toast to the employees of the plant.

RESPONDED TO TOAST TO EMPLOYEES.

Mr. Hardill was next called on for a speech. He was glad that he was one of the employees of the progressive firm and it was his opinion that if it continued growing as it has, it would be necessary for them to secure the Armouries to hold their next banquet. This remark was received with loud cheers. While it takes brains and industry to work up a business to any size, he stated that neither were lacking as far as he knew and he hoped it would have many years in which yet to expand.

SONG BY J. PEACE.

Numerous musical selections were introduced throughout the evening. Mr. Jack Peace showed his splendid voice to excellent advantage. His first number "Where the River Shannon Flows" won great applause and in the chorus of the song all joined in.

Mr. James Maude and Thomas Donaldson were called on for short addresses. The latter "was greatly pleased" he said to be present and to have the opportunity of thanking them all for their generous remembrance of him at the time of his (bereavement) meaning his recent marriage. He was also pleased to see the harmony and respect existing between Mr. Green and the employees and hoped that the pleasant relations would continue. His speech was heartily applauded.

TOAST TO G. WALTER GREEN.

One of the most important and popular of the toasts was that proposed to the G. Walter Green Company, responded to by Mr. Green himself. He again was pleased to welcome them to the festive board, and if they were all as happy as he felt, then he was indeed glad. Speaking of the concern and the works in general he was glad to note that the number of employees had increased and trusted they might increase in the future also.

One pleasant feature was the fact of so many faces present last year were there again. He paid a very sincere tribute to the sterling worth, both in character and business ability of the late John Kennedy a moulder employed in the plant previous to his death.

A violin selection by Mr. James Condon was a very pleasing number.

Mr. "Teddy" Andrews performed on the mouth-organ in a thoroughly enjoyable and masterly way and his efforts received deserved applause.

Sam Hoolihan in the step dance and Mr. Andrews also brought forth enthusiastic applause and they were each repeatedly cheered.

AN EX-EMPLOYEE.

Mr. John Neild, now an ex-employee of the company, was called on by Mr Green. Mr. Neild was the first man to do a piece of work for Mr. Green, and his being present at the gathering more as a guest was indeed pleasant. Mr. Neild stated that he was glad to be able to say a few words in response to Mr. Green's invitation. If the factory continues growing it will soon outdo the C.G.E. Company. Outbursts of applause followed this sally.

Mr. Stewart sang "When Highland Mary did the Highland Fling" in genuine Scotch brogue.

Other speakers of the evening were Mr. Silk, Charles Pogue, Sidney Crowe, Mr. Baker, John Condon, James Hetherington and several more. Each and all, however, were harmonious in their wishes for a most successful future for the G. Walter Green Company, and the many expressions of good will expressed towards the proprietor last evening, leave no room to doubt, but that the plant will prosper and grow as it has in the past.

The happy gathering broke up about 10.30 with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

THE CONSERVATION OF CANADA'S RESOURCES

Honorable Clifford Sifton Dealt With Vital Question at Canadian Club Dinner—Was Heard by Large Representative Gathering.

It was a large and representative attendance that was present at the dinner of the Peterborough Canadian Club last night in the Hotel National.

The speaker of the evening, Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Commission on Conservation, had a thoroughly interesting and timely subject in "The Conservation of Our National Resources," and he made the most of it.

After explaining clearly the position of Canada to-day as to her resources, he pointed out the fates of countries now depleted of their resources, giving particular attention to Egypt the records of which showed that while once that country was the pinnacle of greatness, as to her resources, these had been depleted, and now nothing remained for the people.

It was for Canada to profit by the experience of others. One point brought out was that the entire supply of timber in Canada would only last United States seven years at her present consumption. Nothing should be done by which that country could get at Canada's timber.

THE ADDRESS.

The speaker gave expression to the pleasure the occasion was to him. He explained that his remarks of the evening would be his own opinions, and he hoped that he might show to his hearers that there was something important in the subject in which he was interested and that it was well worthy of careful consideration.

"We have passed through several different stages in connection with the discussion of the conservation of our natural resources," said he. "When I was a little boy I used to attend lectures upon Canada and its natural resources. Then it used to be the forte of all the speakers to descant upon the illimitable nature of the resources we possessed. Later on, and within the last few years, we have been accustomed to hearing a somewhat different kind of discussion. We have quite frequently heard people say that the natural resources of Canada were nearly all gone—that they were seriously depleted, and that there was very little left.

"Now neither of these two views is correct. Our natural resources are not illimitable. No matter how large the natural resources of any country may be, when a large and active population sets itself to work and develop those natural resources it very soon becomes evident that they are far from being illimitable.

"Neither is it true, on the other hand, that our natural resources are now seriously depleted. We have in our timber wealth in Canada sufficient for ourselves, so long as it is properly handled and properly conserved. Our fisheries are depleted in some respects, but may yet, by thorough and scientific methods of culture be restored to their former prolific condition. Our mines we know, are as yet, hardly touched. And the fertility of our farming lands has not as yet been seriously affected.

"In that respect we differ very materially and very fortunately from other countries which unfortunately for them are depleted because their lands which were formerly fertile have become useless for cultivation purposes. Our resources are not in such a parlous state that we have any fear or need of despair of their continuing to be sufficient, with care, for any population Canada is likely to have.

SOMEWHAT UNDERESTIMATED.

"In fact, we have underestimated our resources in some respects. Of our great north lands very little is known but we know that there are very fertile expanses as yet untouched. Far-off Canada contains very great natural resources. That territory known as the mythical clay-belt of Northern Ontario, north of the height of land, alone contains from fifteen to twenty millions of acres of fertile lands. The lands along the Hudson's Bay Railway, containing a tract almost as large in area as the whole of the cultivated area of Belgium, which sustains in comfort a population of over five and a half millions, is immensely fertile.

"There are some considerations which I should think should appeal to the business men of Canada in connection with the great trust reposed in them as administrators of this magnificent heritage. If we look to the south of the boundary line, we shall see perhaps the only people who had a similar endowment to ourselves, so far as modern history is concerned.

"Much as I admire them for their progressiveness, their energy, their ingenuity, and the magnificent method with which they have developed in the arts, in sciences, and in civilization, yet it seems, after a careful consideration of the social condition of the United States at the present time, the enormous rapidity with which its population is developing, and with which its natural resources are being used up,—it would seem that unless some radical change takes place, within fifty years' time, when the population of the United States will probably be some 150,000,000, there is no possible future for its people—for the great mass of their vast population, save grinding poverty of the most wearisome and miserable description.

"I used to think some years ago that the two things Canada most needed to develop were transportation and immigration. We have dealt pretty well with transportation in the past ten or twelve years. We have met, and we are still meeting, the reasonable requirements of the country—and so far as immigration is concerned, that is a question which is being solved.

WATER POWER.

"Years ago," said the speaker, "this question was not considered as one of great importance. Now it was different. These private ownerships should only get a limited franchise and the Government should control the rates to be charged.

Cases of recent date showing a necessity for a firm hand on the part of the Government were cited. The Waterway Treaty between Canada and the United States, he held, meant a good position for Canada, and a settlement meant excellent provisions for this country.

FOREST FIRES.

"Ten times more timber has been destroyed by fire in the last ten years than by the axe.

"Last fall when it became perfectly evident that the previous season had been the worst in some years in respect of fires, I sent out to find what were the causes of the fires. Our men found it very difficult to get definite information. But this was the result. There were last year, outside of Quebec, for which we could not get returns, in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, 2,000 forest fires which did an appreciable amount of damage. Of those, 24 per cent. are known to have been set from the locomotives of railways. The fires have spread from sparks and 24 per cent. of the fires were directly caused by railways. As to about 500, we have been unable to ascertain the cause."

"The railways should be made to give protection by supplying fire-fighting appliances. It has been found to be practicable and that the railways could do this work.

"In the export of timber there is a charge for Canada. Figures show the position of the United States as to her timber resources were given by the speaker. Their supply, he held, is just good for thirty years. If they come after our timber how long will it last? Just about seven years. Statistics, the best obtainable, give the supply of timber in the Dominion to be 500,000,000,000 feet.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

"This was a matter, he explained, on which he had been asked to speak by the president. The commission was not interested in this question so much, only doing such work which the present organization did not do. The Commission was not swallowing up the many organizations at work. He referred to the Health Conference at Ottawa, at which was recommended that the Medical Government establish a national laboratory for the procuring and testing of expensive substances. This laboratory could secure this costly substances which were in demand to-day and cheaper than was the case at the present time. The Conference forthwith recommended that the Government assisted the associations fighting tuberculosis. This fight can be made successful, and in one place where the work is going on the death rate has been cut down by 25 per cent."

In conclusion he stated that the Commission was non-partisan, and was honestly and faithfully endeavoring to fulfil the trust put upon it.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. R. R. Hall and Judge Huycke was extended to Hon. Clifford Sifton by the president, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Defeated Longboat in Fifteen Mile Event—Winner Ran Wonderfully Fast Race

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—Shrubb, the famous English runner, to-night simply ran Longboat, the Canadian Indian, off his feet in the 15-mile race at Duquesne Garden. Longboat at that ran a race which would have beaten almost any other man in the world, as he was only a trifle over two laps behind Shrubb at the end, and Shrubb finished the 15th mile in the wonderfully fast time of one hour, twenty minutes and two-fifths second.

NEWSBOY PROFITS.

A Good London "Pitch" Brings Its Owner Big Returns.

The smart street newspaper-seller usually earns more money than the average clerk or mechanic. This surprising statement was made recently by the head of the publishing department of a well-known London newspaper, who furnished some remarkable figures concerning the profits made by street newsboys, and incidentally revealed a curious feature of the newspaper-selling business.

While there are hundreds of youths who obtain copies of the morning and evening papers direct from the offices and secure the full profits, there are hundreds of others who are supplied by middlemen. That is to say, one man will go down to the office, buy enough papers to supply, say, a dozen youths, jump on his bicycle, and take them to the particular locality in which he has taken a stand or worked up a connection.

A short distance from a certain railway station every morning will be seen a man with piles of the various London newspapers busily engaged in supplying over a dozen boys who stand outside the station to sell the papers. These boys are actually employed by the news vendor, who pays them salaries ranging from $2.50 to $5 a week; and after all expenses are paid he makes a profit of over $15 a week for himself.

"Is it surprising," the publisher remarked, "that youths avoid shop and factory life when, by working from 5 a.m. until 9 p.m., and again, say, from 4 or 5 p.m. until 8 or 9 p.m., they can earn between $10 and $15 a week. I am referring now more particularly to the boys who are lucky enough to get pitches outside stations. Of course, there are hundreds of other boys who do not make anything like that amount, but even the youngest reckons on making $2.50 to $3 a week.

"Pitches outside stations are exceedingly valuable, and it is no uncommon thing for a man to pay anything from $100 to $500 for the privilege of selling his papers there. Many of these middlemen scarcely do any work at all. They secure a good pitch, employ an assistant for about $6 a week, and leave the running of the concern to him, and a very profitable business it is, too."

trative for the active and [illegible] branch, whose chiefs are the leaders of our battle fleets, full admirals, vice-admirals, and rear-admirals—the general officers, lieutenant-generals, and major-generals of naval war. Superior to these are the admirals of the fleet—the field-marshals of the navy—who are generally officers on the retired list. To the hands of our admirals is committed the safety of the realm. Thus the admiral commanding at the Nore guards the mouth of the Thames, the east coast, and coasts of Scotland. The admiral holding the Portsmouth command keeps watch and ward in the Channel from beyond Dover to Torbay; whence the safety of our shores round Land's End and up the west coast is ensured by the admiral in command at Plymouth. These commands are the plums of the service. A fourth admiral is entrusted with the care of the Irish coast.

Vice-admirals take supreme command of a fleet and of an important foreign naval station. The rear-admiral acts as second in command of a sea-going fleet, or may be first in command on a foreign station of lesser importance.

The success of an admiral in any operation of war will entirely depend upon the efficiency of the captains commanding the various fighting units of his fleet. More than ever in these days of mammoth battleships crammed with gigantic engines of destruction will "the captains courageous" of our navy exercise a determining influence upon the issue of battles.

A captain's authority, power, and responsibility, especially when in command of a big ship, altogether transcend those of a colonel in the army. In a vessel carrying, say, 800 men, all confined within a small space, adamantine discipline is indispensable. The captain afloat, therefore, maintains the state of an almost sacred autocrat—a sort of Dalai Lama of the sea—living and messing alone apart from all his subordinates. Acting through his first lieutenant or commander he is responsible that the King's regulations and Admiralty instructions are observed throughout his ship. His further promotion to admiral is determined by seniority, but he may remain a captain from fifteen to sixteen years.

"Every rank in the navy has to sustain a heavy weight of responsibility, and probably the commander is more burdened than any. His post is no sinecure, and he has few moments of leisure. He seems, indeed, to be a portion of the machinery which is always in most active operation. Not a detail of the interior life of the ship escapes him.

There are three grades of lieutenants—the sub, the junior, and the senior lieutenant.

HIS GOOD FORTUNE.

When He Had to Work He Started a Dainty Rolling Mill.

I was just entering upon my thirty-fourth year when, owing to the failure of my wife's father, I found myself obliged to make a living.

I had often wondered where all the steel rails came from, and now I determined to go into the business of supplying them to railroad companies. Having learned through careful inquiry that nearly all of them were made in rolling mills, I persuaded the owner of a bankrupt iron foundry to convert it into a rolling mill. Then I went to a good reliable machinery man on the next block and told him to send me some of the very best rolling mill machinery that he had in his store.

Meanwhile my noble wife had not been idle, and by the time I was ready to begin operations she had induced several of the most brilliant women in society to agree to buy all their steel rails of us. Touched by her unselfish devotion, I clasped her in my arms, while the tears coursed down my cheeks.

Then I called on a railroad president, told him that I desired to become self supporting and asked him to buy some of my rails. He told me to deliver a basketful to his place of business every Saturday night.

Greatly elated over my prospects, I called together a number of workingmen whom I found idle on the streets and directed them to make some nice steel rails without delay and take them around to the kind railroad president.

Rejoicing at the prospect of steady employment, the workingmen hastened to obey, and the rails that they made under my direction proved so durable that in a very short time I had all the orders that I could fill.

I attribute much of my success to the fact that each rail is delivered to the customer tastefully wrapped in tissue paper fastened with pink ribbon.—Delineator.

DINNER GUESTS.

Bad Enough to Be Late, but to Be Too Early Is Unforgivable.

It is an accepted aphorism that one should never be late at a duel or a dinner. Tardiness is unpardonable, but the converse is also true. If it is an offense to be late it is unforgivable to be too early. This refers solely to the dinner, since duels are affairs of the past.

Overhaste may be flattering, but it is also inconsiderate. If the dinner is important enough to be called a "function" and the house in which it is given is sufficiently large to be rated as a mansion the early guest may find a hostess still in her maid's hands. If instead a cottage and a simpler repast await one the housewife may herself be putting the last necessary touches to the salad. In either case the hostess feels a warm personal approval and an ability for self praise if the coming guest is a little tardy. Should the soup be cold or the roast dry it is not her fault; she was on time.

Can anything be more harassing than the "you-don't-mind-me-dear" type of woman who always comes half an hour early and always wants to "help?" Can anybody worship one's household gods, turn away the nicks, display the gleaming side in the profaning presence of a comparative stranger? A despairing hostess said recently:

"When I have just men coming I spend my soul on the cooking; when it's women I put my extra efforts into burnishing the house; when it's both I almost kill myself, and when they come too early I want to lie down and die."

"The quality of mercy is not strained." It applies even to giving one's prospective hostess ample leeway for preparation. Failing this, invitations may soon be written, "At 7, and please be late!"—Youth's Companion.

Residents Eaten by Wolves.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 11.—Several residents of the west coast of Prince of Wales Island, southeastern Alaska, have been killed and eaten by wolves during the last year, according to Charles A. Sulzer, a brother of Congressman Sulzer of New York, who has just returned from the north.

Mr. Sulzer says that the wolves having killed off all the deer, have become desperate with hunger, and now come up to the doors of the miners' cabins.

BETHANY

Bethany, Jan. 10. — Mr. L. Hartley intends locating his sawmill in Bigelow's swamp for the season of 1911. We congratulate Mr. Hartley on securing such a central position as Bigelow's swamp, and no doubt such a large patronage.

The very inclement weather of late is the cause of much sickness in the village and also out in the country. Among those affected we are sorry to see Mrs. Flack, who has for a considerable length of time been under the care of Dr. Hamilton, but is now well on the road to good health.

Mr. Ross Staples, having secured the contract of supplying the C. N. R., situated near Lindsay, intends moving his whole mill equipment to within easy reach of the railroad.

Mr. Chas. Reynolds was in Millbrook on Tuesday.

The Manvers Sunday School Association holds its Annual Convention in the Janetville Methodist Church, Wednesday, Jan. 18th. Opening services will be conducted by the Janetville pastor, commencing at 2 p.m. Papers will be given by Revs. Wilson, D. Williams, J. Poston, and Messrs. [illegible] Jamieson, Preston, J. J. Clark and others.

starts the new year a new man

Franklin Centre, Que., Jan. 11. (Special).—The only way to start the New Year right is to get the health right and Mr. William Gamble, a well known farmer living near here, is telling his neighbors how he got his health right.

"I am a farmer sixty-seven years of age," Mr. Gamble says. "And I suffered with a weak back and stoppage of water off and on for ten years. I used several boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they made a new man of me. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever taken."

Dodd's Kidney Pills will make a new man of you, because they make the Kidneys strong and healthy and able to do their work of straining all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means new life. It means good circulation and renewed strength and energy all over the body.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all forms of Kidney Disease from Backache to Bright's Disease, and they are also doing a great work by giving renewed health and energy to thousands of Canadians who are run down, tired and generally feeling no good for anything. Start the new year by toning up the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills. It will pay you.

The marriage of Miss Vivian Gould, daughter of Mr. George Gould, to Lord Decies, will take place in New York on February 7.

NATURE WILL CURE YOU

Of Kidney Disease, Aided by Father Morriscy's No. 7.

Kidney trouble is one of the most distressing ailments of mankind, and leads to backache and rheumatism. This is because of the importance of the work done by the kidneys,—work which must proceed normally to insure good health.

A very large proportion of civilized people have some form of kidney trouble, sometimes without knowing that their malady is of that nature. Many obscure pains can often be traced to diseased kidneys.

These organs are the filters of the body. Their function is to strain out of the blood and eliminate through the bladder the worn out tissue and other impurities gathered by the blood in its course.

When the kidneys become congested and sluggish, these impurities, including the irritating and poisonous uric acid, are not entirely removed from the blood. The result is that the uric acid is deposited in the joints and tissues, causing the agonies of rheumatism and frequently affecting the liver and other organs.

Father Morriscy, the famous priest-physician of Bartibogue, N.B., after much research compounded a remedy which worked hand in hand with Nature. His doctrine, justified by thousands of cures, was that the need is not a patchwork relief, but a treatment that will enable the forces of Nature, working through the kidneys, to accomplish their intended work.

His famous prescription, No. 7, assists the kidneys to work vigorously and eliminate the harmful uric acid from the whole system. In the form of tablets, No. 7 is easy to take, and will effect cures where other remedies have failed. Do not trifle with kidney disease, but take No. 7 Tablets, the treatment that has proved so successful with other sufferers.

A FINE SHOW AT THE MARKET

Those Attending are Greatly Pleased With the Exhibits and Demonstrations

The Poultry Show is being largely patronized, and those attending yesterday afternoon and evening were highly pleased with the large number of birds and their merits. The entry list is two hundred over that of last year, and the judge, Mr Jos Bennett, of Toronto, has a big proposition on his hands.

Many enquiries have been made about the medal winning black orpingtons. These beauties are well worth seeing. The officials in charge are most obliging, and information is cheerfully given.

Miss Yeates' demonstrations are highly educative and much interest is displayed during her work.

Both Want C.N.R.

Brockville, Jan. 11.—Brockville was invaded yesterday by deputations from Newboro, Westport and North Crosby, en route to Ottawa, for the purpose of interviewing the Minister of Railways and Canals in reference to the location of the proposed route of the Canadian Northern Railway, which will touch that section of the country on the line that is being constructed from Toronto to Ottawa via Smith's Falls. There is great rivalry between Westport and Newboro for the station that will connect with the B., W. & N.W.R. The line, as at present surveyed, goes via Chaffey's Locks, crossing the B., W. & N.W.R. tracks between Crosby and Forfar, and does not touch either place. North Crosby is supporting Westport's claims.

FLEETWOOD

Special to the Review.

Fleetwood, Jan 9.—Now that the municipal elections are all over for another year, we hope to see great improvements in our townships. All swamps where the underbrush is almost meeting across the public roadway should be cut back some, so as to let the sun shine in and dry up the roads more quickly. Small stones on the highway should be removed, all foul weeds should be got rid of especially, thistles, burrs, burdocks, etc. Gravel should be put on all swamps so that the average person will not be literally shaken to pieces crossing old heaved logs, and proper railings put on small culverts over small creeks as they are very dangerous without them.

Mr. and Mrs. White, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson are here from the West on a visit. They will remain a couple of months among friends before going back to their western home.

Mrs. Arthur Flack, who was under the doctor's care is around again.

Mr. William Kells son of Mr. and Mrs. Kells, of the Western Provinces, is visiting relatives in this part, looking as though the western country agrees with him.

Mr Guy Tripp and men are busy taking out a large assortment of logs for next season's cut, but owing to very little frost in the ground, it will be hard to get them drawn out.

Milady's Mirror

"Now we're busy teaching women to be hobble headed," said a woman who takes care of the hair. "With the hobble skirts the old style of hairdressing looks funny. It gives a woman a top heavy look to have her hair dressed high with a pompadour and puffs while her skirt is drawn in around her feet in hobble fashion. So we devised the hobble headed hairdressing.

"To dress your hair hobble style you take it and part it in the middle. Then you drape it back from the face in some soft way, and finally you bunch it at the back in a big mass, around which you twist a coil of hair or a band of ribbon or anything else that may strike your fancy. This makes the hobble.

"While a hobble may sound awkward for the head, it is really the most becoming coiffure we have had in years, for it does away with the top heavy chorus girl pompadour and makes a woman's head look more nearly ideal. Her head keeps its shape, and the knot at the back suggests to the uninitiated that it is merely a method of twisting up her own hair."

For Oily Skins.

When one's skin is oily do not try to conceal it by excessive use of powder. It makes the face pasty and clogs the pores.

There are various drying lotions that are excellent for this condition. Wiping off the face with pure alcohol has a drying effect on the skin. Various good lotions are sold for this purpose, but a teaspoonful of borax in a basin of water is excellent.

If you fear pure borax try this lotion: One tablespoonful of powdered borax, two tablespoonfuls of glycerin and a quart of camphor water. Dip a soft linen cloth in this and mop the face several times a day.

Do not make the mistake of using spirits of camphor, which is diluted in alcohol and much stronger. Camphor water is made by letting two ounces of gum camphor stand in water for twenty-four hours. The lump can be used repeatedly, as its size is little decreased.

What Are Your Eyebrows Like?

Straight and level eyebrows denote mentality. Musicians often have these. Brows that meet over the nose usually prove the love of authority and mark a capable person.

Beautifully arched brows usually adorn a rather empty forehead and indicate an opposite degree of intelligence to that shown by the long, straight brow.

When the arch is but slight the forehead may be strong, full of individuality and with a fine central spread. When like this, however, there is usually a lack either of time, tune or locality.

Very fine, distinctly outlined brows indicate an artistic nature.

Much elevated eyebrows show artistic perception of color and shape, good taste, organization and mathematical powers.

A Toilet Economy.

The particular hostess now uses individual pieces of soap in her guest room and gives to each new guest a fresh piece. Where much entertaining is done this means numerous odds and ends of fine soap.

One woman has hit upon the plan of using this for the children in a wire soap shaker, such as is found for dishwashing. The tiniest pieces can be thus utilized. A basin is filled with warm water and the shaker agitated until a thick lather is formed.

Another way to use up small pieces of fine soap is to put them into small cheesecloth bags and use as one would a bran or almond meal bag.

Low Shoe Peril.

The constant wearing of low shoes and slippers will spoil the shape of the ankles, especially if one must be much on the feet. An exercise which gives shapeliness to the lower limbs consists in standing straight, hands on hips, heels together, then rising slowly on the tips of the toes while drawing in the breath; then while exhaling it slowly return to the first position, feet flat on floor. Do this every morning and evening for ten minutes; also as much as you can wear high laced boots, drawing the laces as snugly as comfort will permit. Draw them in by degrees, not all at once.

Perfuming the Hair.

The perfumed hair cap has met with favor with women who are fond of dainty conceits, and one may be easily made at home. After the shampoo and at night these caps should be worn, and the fragrance is lasting. Fashion them after the style of the Dutch bonnet. Between two layers of silk put a sheet of cotton batting with plenty of sachet powder, using always the same perfume. Many women prefer the Florentine orris, but when you find a perfume to your liking use it all the time, as it bespeaks more refinement than having all sorts of essences about your garments.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE SEA.

Origin of Most of Them Is Wrapped In Deep Mystery.

While most sailormen will stoutly deny that they hold superstitions and that the occult has no stronger hold on them than on land men, the popular belief is to the contrary. It is likely that the seaman's isolation from outside influences and the weeks and months spent afloat with only his mates for company served to foster superstitious notions in the days of sailing vessels, while the general spread of knowledge works but slowly in these occult matters, concerning which Jack is peculiarly unreasoning.

"The Finn is the most superstitious of all sailors," according to a writer in The London Globe. "There are many of this race who still believe in the ominous portent of the phantom ship, the folly of starting a voyage on a Friday (a notion by no means confined to seafaring men), the low burning blue lights which are ghost spirits hovering near to give warning of approaching disaster, and many other things, all of which,

"Fill the sailor's mind with murmurings,
And speak to him of wrecks.

"A story is told of a brigantine which numbered several extremely superstitious men among her crew. One night when there was no moon and a slight ground swell was running, the watch, who happened to be the most superstitious of them all, heard an unearthly wailing coming apparently from the very surface of the sea. The mate and the helmsman also heard it, but the former lacked imagination and although he was certainly interested, he nearly blew the watch's head off when he ventured to suggests mermaids. The helmsman did not feel quite happy, but he had to stick to the wheel. The watch was pale with terror, but he kept silence owing to the mate's complimentary references to his courage and abilities. Slowly the sound began to move along the ship's side, becoming more and more agonized as it approached. This annoyed the mate, and going to the side of the vessel he waited until he had located the sound and then emptied a bucket of water over the rail. There was a gasp, and then dead silence, and nothing more was heard that night.

"When the watch went off duty he, of course, gave a detailed and lurid account of the incident to his shipmates, who listened, as he thought in awed silence, and then called on one of the audience for his version of the matter. This man, a Tynesider, who dearly loved a joke and had no respect at all for hoary superstitions, had conspired with his fellows to play a trick on the watch. On the night in question he had crept over the bows without a sound, carrying with him the ship's cat, secured in a bag. Crouching under the stays, the joker let the cat's head out of the bag, which he tied round the animal's neck so that it could not escape. He then applied his teeth to the unfortunate animal's tail! Everybody knows the fearsome sounds an angry cat is capable of producing, and those to which a cat whose tail is being bitten gives vent are among the most hair-raising. The sound was more or less regulated by squeezing the luckless beast's body. The mate's bucket of water was an unwelcome as unexpected, and caused the Tynesider to beat a hurried retreat.

"Not only is the origin of many sea superstitions 'wrapt in mystery,' but also any logical explanation of cause and effect. It would puzzle any one to say why it should be unlucky for the ship's boy to whistle on the weather bow, except that it is generally unpleasant from a music lover's point of view for a boy to whistle on any bow at all. Nor would it be easy to explain why a sneeze to starboard pressages disaster, and why should the squeaking of a pig at night be considered an evil omen? At the mere sight of an overturned hatch many a seaman will declare that another ship has just gone to the bottom, and he 'will say the same should the salt box or the cracker barge' (anglice) biscuit box be upset."

Germany's Dreadnoughts.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—Germany will establish a record in 1911 by launching six Dreadnoughts. The announcement is made in last night's Deutsche Tages Zeitung, which points out that the new year will not only witness an unprecedented expenditure on the German fleet (112,500,000 marks), but the floating of the greatest number of new vessels which has ever taken the water during a single twelvemonth.

Movement Against Mormons.

Liverpool, Jan. 11.—A strong movement, supported by the Bishop of Liverpool and prominent churchmen, has been started against Mormon activity here. At a meeting which was attended by many influential people, resolutions were adopted asking the Home Secretary, Winston Spencer Churchill, to take action against Mormon proselytising as already has been done in Germany.

Censured Sims.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—President Taft yesterday decided that Commander W. W. Sims, the U. S. naval officer, who at a recent dinner given in London by the mayor of that city, declared that if Great Britain ever were seriously threatened, she could depend on "every man, every dollar, every drop of blood" in this country, should be publicly reprimanded.

Australian Sheep Output.

A Government report recently issued at Sydney shows that Australia leads the world in sheep farming. The estimated value of the Australian flocks is $220,000,000 and their annual gross output is estimated at 75 per cent. of the value. The number of sheep in the countries leading in the sheep industry are given in Mr. Baker's report as follows: Australia, 87,043,266; Argentina, 77,581,100; Russia 58,510,523; United States, 54,631,000, and United Kingdom, 30,011,833.

Vancouver will start a fund to augment the fund established by firemen for pension purposes.

THIS ACT WILL GET YOUR GOAT

Herb Kendrey's Quartette of Trick Can Eaters Do Some Surprising Stunts

Herb Kendrey's trick goats under the direction of the Highland Kids, Little Prince and Gertrude Wayne, would be a big feature on any bill. The goats are four in number and they perform a wide range of clever and very interesting tricks.

The most hazardous and thrilling stunt that the goats do is probably the one that concludes the act and that is when they walk a plank which is so narrow that it amounts to little more than a tight rope When one of the goats walks the plank backwards and repeats this on the return trip the climax is reached and the applause leaves no doubt of the audience's appreciation of the skilful work of the little animals.

The act opens nicely with Gertrude Wayne seated on a swing suspended by what represents ropes of flowers and the shepherd boy (Little Prince) and the goats are behind a low fence at the back of the stage. Prince says his goats can do what the circus goats did and the performance begins. The act never lags from the commencement and has the merit of real novelty.

ABOUT VISIT OF MISS BLODGETT

A Most Careful and Acceptable Bible Class Teacher

Miss McCalla of the Y. W. C. A., has received the following letter from the principal of Wycliffe College, regarding Miss Blodgett, who comes to this city on January 15th, to conduct a series of Bible class studies.

Miss McCalla, Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., Peterboro.

January 5th, 11.

My Dear Madam:—I have been requested by Miss Little, secretary of the Dominion Council of the Y. W. C. A., to state to you, that Miss Blodgett, who is to visit Peterborough and hold meetings, for women in your city, is personally and most favorably known to me. I met her frequently during the latter part of June and the early days of July last summer while she was conducting a Bible class for young ladies at the Elgin House, Lake Joseph, Muskoka, where I was myself doing similar work, during the summer convention of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Blodgett is a most careful and acceptable Bible class teacher. I am sure that all who help forward her work in Peterboro, when they know her personally and see the results of her work, will be glad that such a privilege was afforded them. Miss Blodgett has been a guest in my house, and I can speak most favorably of her and her message, in every way possible.

Trusting that her visit to Peterboro may accomplish much good,

Believe me,
Faithfully yours,
T. N. O'MEARA.

FOWLER'S CORNERS

Fowlers Corners, Jan. 10. — A very pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson, 4th line of Smith, on Thursday, 5th inst. The event was under the auspices of the Lakevale Presbyterian Church, and for the purpose of acknowledging in a substantial manner, the services rendered to the church by Miss Clara Stinson, in the capacity of organist. After the company had assembled, the pastor, Rev. D. H. Currie, announced the purpose in thus assembling under the hospitable roof of their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Stinson. Mr. Fred. Fowler was called upon and read a suitable address during which Miss Stinson, was presented by Miss Eva Archer with a handsome chatelaine hand satchel, a sunburst of pearls, and a purse containing a handsome sum of money. Luncheon was then served by the ladies, and the evening spent in song and speech with other amusements. All went to their homes feeling that a pleasant duty had been performed, and with best wishes for the future happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Stinson and family, and the hope that many such occasions will offer to enjoy an evening in their home. The address is as follows:—

Dear Miss Stinson,

We, your friends of Lakevale Church, are gathered in your home this evening for a two-fold purpose. The first of these, is that we may spend an evening together in a social way, as members and adherents of the church. We believe that genuine sociability and Christian friendship form an important part in every well regulated life, and should be encouraged and cultivated in every community. By such a social gathering as this, we are brought in closer touch with each other and thus bind more closely together the different forces of action contained in each individual personality. Friendship begets unity and as according to the old maxim "In Unity Alone There is Strength" so our church should present that unity and aggressiveness so essential in every agency that has for its object the elevating of human life.

The other object of our gathering, is one that centres about yourself. As representing the congregation, we would honor the willing response to the call for the fulfillment of a special duty. We would also endeavor to show that respect which real worth is sure to command. It will be at once agreed to by all, that in bestowing that honor upon you, it is not misplaced. That you have been faithful in discharging the onerous duties of organist in our church, is only a mild statement of fact. You may at times have felt discouraged and that others could have done better, but we wish to assure you that if such thoughts entered your mind, they were only imaginary on your part. As you took your place with the other members of the choir, each returning Sabbath, the waiting congregation were reminded of the constancy of purpose which made your regular attendance so noticeable. While time speeds quickly on, and the sabbath days follow on in quick succession, we feel sure the day did not seem to be a burden, but was ever looked upon as a glorious opportunity for all to use God given gifts of music and song, in the worship of sanctuary.

As a slight recognition of these services, so cheerfully given, we ask you to accept at our hands, this Sunburst, chateline, and purse of money. By these, our gifts, we would in some measure seek to assure you that your time and talents given for our benefit were not ungratefully received. Our hope is that so long as you remain in our midst, we may be able to speak of you as "our organist". And our prayer is that the blessing of the Divine Father, may continually abide with you, and that in helping others, your own life will be made richer, abounding more and more in every good work.

Signed on behalf of the members and adherents of Lakevale Presbyterian Church, this fifth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and eleven years.

TOM FINTON FIGHTS FOR LIFE IN GALLOWS' SHADOW

Saltfleet Farmer Faces Charge of Killing Father.

No Outward Quarrel Occurred Between Father and Son, Say Witnesses In Hearing at Hamilton — Lawyers Blackstock and Staunton Engage In Hot Exchange of Words—Tom Finton Moody That Day.

Hamilton, Jan. 12.—The trial of Thomas Finton, charged with the murder of his father, Elijah S. Finton, a Saltfleet farmer, on April 26, 1910, came up before Justice Teetzel in the Court House here yesterday morning, the hour at which the hearing was to begin, the court room was jammed. During the day the crowd inside grew so great that a number of people who were standing were pushed through the glass doors. The counsel in the case are George Tate Blackstock, K.C., and S. F. Washington, K.C., for the crown, and George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., and S. D. Biggar, K.C., for the prisoner.

In the course of a lengthy address to the jury yesterday morning, Mr. Blackstock gave an outline of the tragedy and the crown's suspicions and allegations, and said that a foul and bloody murder had been committed. The most interesting part was his announcement that there is no evidence to prove that the spots found upon Finton's overalls were of blood, though suspicion would lead to that belief, and his statement that Elijah S. Finton drew $100 from the Traders' Bank a few days before his death, and that $60 was found on the floor near a couch where Tom Finton had been lying on the afternoon after the murder. The crown had evidence that Tom had spent $40 in Hamilton on April 26. Mr. Blackstock also repeated the prisoner's acknowledgement that it looked as if the man who wore the overalls killed his father.

The first witness was George Finton, brother of the deceased farmer, who testified to finding his brother's body out by the barn about 12 o'clock on April 26 of last year. He said that on the morning Tom left the breakfast table about 6.45 to go outside, and his father followed him. Some time later he saw Tom drive off to Hamilton, though he did not see his brother alive again after he left the breakfast table.

To Mr. Staunton, witness said that the father and son seemed on good terms, and Mr. Blackstock's challenge of this statement precipitated a tilt between the two counsel. "It's outrageous to open up the question in [illegible]-examination," said Mr. Staunton.

Mr. Blackstock turned from the witness and glared at Mr. Staunton for a moment. He then said: "I think it is entirely outrageous and discourteous for you to make such an accusation. Such a remark is quite characteristic of a habit of yours, which I had hoped you would have done your best to restrain at this trial."

"I repeat, it's outrageous." "That is a piece of grateous impertinence," said Mr. Blackstock.

Finally Mr. Blackstock got the witness to say that, as far as he saw, there was no outward quarrel between father and son, though his brother had said something to him about the money that he had willed Tom.

Witness said that prisoner's wife left her father-in-law's house because she did not like the language of Mrs. St. John, a friend of the old man's. To Mr. Blackstock, after Mr. Staunton had raised a vain protest to the question, George Finton said that he himself had never seen anything objectionable about Mrs. St. John's language.

In the afternoon Mrs. Kerr, Elijah Finton's housekeeper, was on the stand for several hours. She said that she noticed that on the morning of the murder Tom was moody, while his father was inclined to be talkative, Tom left the house first, and his father followed. About an hour's afterwards Tom came in again, and she observed that his rubbers were wet, though at that time there had not been any rain. She saw his hitch up, and noticed that he put something that at the time she thought was a broken instrument or a bar, upon the rig. She did not see the deceased around the yard while Tom was hitching up.

Mr. Staunton compared the witness' statement with former statements she had made, and alleged that she materially added to her evidence after she heard that Tom had accused her of putting blood on his overalls. This Mrs. Kerr denied.

"That the Government of Canada be respectfully but most strongly urged in the negotiations now pending between Canada and the U.S., to provide for complete reciprocal free trade in all lines of dairy produce."

A COLD RECEPTION

Fire Forces Twenty Winnipeg People Into 35 Below Zero Weather in Night Clothes.

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—With the thermometer 35 below zero Tuesday midnight, some twenty or thirty persons occupying apartments in the Parrish block, corner Gertie and Notre Dame streets, were forced to choose between jumping down the burning stairs or climbing down the outside fire escapes, few of them being clad in more than their night clothes. Several small children were in the block, and a number of persons were badly frostbitten or burned, but no lives were lost.

Church Union.

Kingston, Jan. 12.—Rev. W. T. Wilkins, clerk of the Kingston presbytery, speaking regarding the objection to the meeting re church union, holds that the presbytery has a right to discuss the question at the January session. The opinion of some of the local members of the presbytery is that if the protest against the January meeting is pressed, while they might discuss church union if the majority were willing, they could not legally take a vote on union.

MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT ASK QUESTIONS ON FARMERS' BANK INVESTIGATION

Sir Wilfrid Taken to Task About "Pilgrimages to Washington" and Says Canadians Were Invited—W. F. Maclean's Proposal.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—After a three weeks' recess over the Christmas holidays, the House of Commons was regalvanized into life yesterday afternoon. It was private members' day, and a number of matters of more or less public importance were discussed.

An aftermath of the Farmers' Bank failure, was a notice of motion given by W. F. Maclean (South York), that when the revision of the Bank Act came up, he would propose a clause providing for the public inspection of banks, for an issue of national bank notes, properly secured, to take the place of the present bank note issue, and for the repeal of the double liability clause.

R. S. Lake (Qu'Appelle) gave notice that on Thursday he would make reference to what he thought was a particularly offensive article on immigration to Canada, which recently appeared in an English paper, John Bull.

C. L. Owen (E. Northumberland), called the attention of the Minister of Railways and Canals to the pollution of the Trent River and the consequent destruction of game fish. Mr. Graham promised attention.

W. D. Staples (Macdonald, Man.) took exception to an article in the Grain Growers' Guide, under the caption, "The Need for Decided Action," which stated that the farmers elected men to Parliament who simply laughed at them after election day was over. Mr. Borden had outlined the very policy on terminal elevators which the farmers' delegation had advanced, and had divided the House upon it. He himself had moved a resolution asking that the vacancy on the Railway Commission be given to a practical farmer.

R. L. Borden made an allusion to the reciprocity negotiations now in progress at Washington, and asked if the Government could give the House any further information on what basis the negotiations were being conducted, and why Sir Wilfrid changed his mind "not to go to Washington again."

The Prime Minister replied that Mr. Borden was in possession of as much information as he had about the negotiations. The Government would be judged by their action, and any policy adopted would have to be submitted for the approval of the House. "We never went to Washington," declared Sir Wilfrid. "But we are always ready to receive an invitation and to act upon it; we are always ready to improve our trade relations with our neighbors."

In reply to Richard Blain (Cons., Peel) Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King said that Judge Barron, Stratford, had been appointed to investigate the matter of the re-appointment of G.T.R. striker whose reinstatement had been deferred.

Major Sharpe (N. Ontario) asked if the attention of the Government had been called to the failure of the Farmers' Bank, and the irregularities alleged to have been connected with the securing of the charter. He asked if it was the intention to appoint a royal commission to investigate, in the public interest.

"In the absence of the Finance Minister, I would not like to give an answer one way or the other," replied Sir Wilfrid.

"Has there been any petition for a royal commission?" pressed Major Sharpe.

"Not to my knowledge," said the Prime Minister.

The Verville eight-hour-day bill occupied the attention of the House for some time in committee, a few clauses and amendments being passed.

A supplementary return, tabled in the Commons yesterday at the request of Hon. Geo. E. Foster, gives the details of the resolutions adverse to reciprocity with the United States, passed by Boards of Trade and other public bodies throughout the Dominion; also letters of protest which have been addressed to the Minister of Finance on the subject.

The latter include a number of letters from companies objecting to the idea of reciprocity in coal. These are from the Dominion Coal Co., the Acadia Coal Co., the Intercolonial Coal Mining Co., and the Nova Scotia Steel Co. Seventeen P.W.A. lodges of the Maritime Provinces likewise object to reciprocity in coal. Other bodies which have sent in their protest to the Government include Toronto, Stratford, Welland, Deseronto, Hamilton, Kingston and Victoria, B.C., Boards of Trade, the Sydney, C.B., Trades and Labor Council, and the citizens of Stellarton, N.S.

A return, tabled at the request of A. B. Ames, shows that the total cost of the enquiry into the Lumsden charges as to over-classification on the N.T.R., which was conducted last session, was $11,103. Of this amount $9,869 was paid for legal services and reporting, the remaining sum being paid to witnesses as fees. Smith, Markey & Skinner of Montreal received $3,800; F. C. Moss of Toronto, $2,817, and F. H. Chrysler, who was public counsel, $2,500.

A return was presented to Parliament by Hon. Mackenzie King, detailing correspondence which has taken place in connection with the settlement of the Grand Trunk strike. One of the features of the return is a letter signed by Sir Richard Cartwright, in his capacity as acting Premier, to Mr. Hays, pointing out the effect the strike was having on business, throughout Ontario, and urging that, if a settlement could not be effected through conference between the parties, the matter should be left to arbitration.

Cornwall, Jan. 12.—The winter assizes closed here last evening, after a two-days' sitting before Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, chief justice. There were two civil and one criminal case on the docket. In the case of Joshua G. Fetterly of Matilda, charged with stealing about 60 bags of oats from a neighbor, the prisoner pleaded guilty after the grand jury had returned a true bill against him. He was sentenced to two and a half years in Kingston Penitentiary.

QUEBEC HAS $125,000 BLAZE

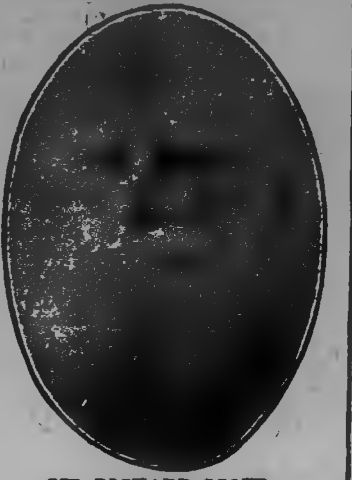
Quebec, Jan. 12.—A disastrous fire destroyed the large dry goods stores of Glover, Fry & Co., Fabrique street, yesterday morning, causing a loss valued at about $125,000.

The fire started at 3 o'clock in the cellar, supposedly due to a defect in the furnace. The four-storey building was completely gutted, as well as the large stock of dry goods. The adjoining buildings, occupied by the Chinic hardware stores and by Geo. Patry, importer of wines, were greatly damaged by fire, smoke and water. The upper flats of these two buildings were occupied by families, Wilson and Patry, who suffered damage by smoke.

P.A.Y.E. In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—For an hour and a half Tuesday night during the rush between 5 and 6.30 o'clock, Messrs. A. B. Ingram, vice-chairman of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, F. H. Wise, chief engineer of the board, R. McRae, master mechanic of the Toronto Street Railway Co., and McCullough, Cousens, and Campbell, Toronto experts, stood at the corners of the main intersections, their watches in their hands, watching Ottawa's working population hurry home via Ottawa Electric Railway Co. cars. All the cars that passed this corner, which is the busiest in the city, are equipped with the pay-as-you-enter system, and despite the thousands of passengers boarding the cars there the average time taken by each one to enter the car, pay his or her fare, and take a seat, was only from one and one-quarter to two seconds.

TARIFF CONFEREES HOLD A SESSION OF THREE HOURS



SIR RICHARD SCOTT.
This is one of the fathers of the Senate, and still active and vigorous.

This and the Fact That Canada's Experts Have Been Called Into the Negotiations Seem to Indicate That Details Are Being Discussed—Rumor Says Advances of United States Were Extensive.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The outlook for a successful termination to the Canadian-American trade negotiations now pending is considerably brighter to-day. Hon. Mr. Fielding and Hon. Mr. Paterson conferred with Secretary Knox for almost three hours yesterday afternoon, and when they separated there was a much more optimistic tone in the little circle of diplomats. For the first time since the conference started the Canadian Ministers called to the meeting their two departmental assistants—namely, Mr. John McDougall, Deputy Minister of Customs, who was summoned from Ottawa, and Mr. James A. Russell, the tariff expert of the Finance Department. The presence of these men indicates that the negotiations have passed the initial stages, and are on a basis more likely to lead to something definite.

It is stated in Washington circles that the American proposals were found by the Canadians to be unexpectedly broad and comprehensive, giving substance to President Taft's seriousness in opening up the whole subject. In harmony with this the President has told recent callers at the White House that for the present the Americans are not worrying over what the personal or sectional opposition may be to their proposals.

Expressions of opinion at the capitol yesterday was rather more favorable to the principle of freer trade with Canada. Inasmuch as legislation affecting national revenues has to be passed upon by the House of Representatives the attitude of the leaders of that body on this question is of importance. Champ Clark of Missouri is billed for the Speakership of the next House, and as such will be House leader. At present he is the minority leader, and speaks with authority for the Democratic party.

"I am, and always have been, in favor of reciprocity with all the nations of the world, especially with Canada and Central and South America," declared Mr. Clark. "They are our neighbors, and we ought to have the bulk of their foreign trade. One of the most foolish things that ever happened was the abrogation of the treaty between Canada and the United States in 1866.

"I am in favor of anything in reason," said Mr. Clark, "that will make closer relations between Canada and the United States. We are the same sort of people, the same breed."

Died at Ninety.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The death occurred Tuesday night in L'Original, at his old home, of ex-Judge Peter O'Brian, of the united counties of Prescott and Russell. The late judge was 90 years of age, and retired from the bench several years ago going into private life in L'Original. While suffering from the effects of weakness due to old age the deceased had always been up and about the old homestead and his death was very peaceful.

Y.M.C.A. for Pekin.

New York, Jan. 12.—John Wanamaker has just promised to erect his sixth Y.M.C.A. building in the Far East. It was announced yesterday at the international headquarters here that he had pledged $60,000 to provide a Y.M.C.A. building for Pekin, China. It was also announced that, of the $2,000,000 fund recently started to erect fifty or sixty association buildings in stragetic centres in foreign lands, $1,800,000 has been pledged.

Killed by Snowslide.

Nelson, B.C., Jan. 12.—Fred E. Bartlett, a resident in the Slocan district for 17 years, was killed Tuesday at Silverton by a snowslide from the roof of one of the buildings at the Galena Farm Mines. He was an ordained Congregational minister, but deafness had compelled him to leave the ministry, and for eight years he has been caretaker of the Galena Farm mines.

Morgan an Equitable Director.

New York, Jan. 12.—Geo. W. Perkins, former member of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., has been chosen by Mr. Morgan, it was reported yesterday, as one of the three trustees for the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Should Mr. Perkins become a trustee, he will fill the position held by the late Grover Cleveland.

Senator Hughes Dead.

Denver, Col., Jan. 12.—U. S. Senator Charles J. Hughes, junior Senator from Colorado, died in his home here yesterday after a long illness. Death was due to a general breakdown.

Transferred to Ottawa.

Brantford, Jan. 12.—H. H. Rowley, manager of the Bank of British North America here, has accepted a position as manager of the Union Bank at Ottawa.

WANT TO SEE OUR BIG NAVY

Washington, Jan. 12.—Canada's new navy, with all ships, officers and men and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if he can come, will be present at the famous Mardi Gras festivities to be held next month at New Orleans if the invitation of M. B. Trezevant, manager of the New Orleans Progressive Union, supervising the Mardi Gras carnival, is accepted. Mr. Trezevant despatched the invitations to the Governor-General and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries yesterday, and they will doubtless be received to-day. Canada's cruiser Rainbow has been given a special invitation.

Increases the Schedule.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—There is talk in the capital of asking reciprocity with the United States on a point where none now exists.

All shipments of goods from Canada to the United States of value of $100 or over must have attached to them a document from the U. S. consulate. To obtain that document it is necessary to pay $2.50, which to all intents is an increase in the regular schedule of duties. There are no Canadian consuls in the United States, so there could not be any corresponding arrangement.

Reviewing the Testimony.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education, which is now in Ottawa, is holding sessions to review the testimony received at 90 places in Canada, and preparing a provisional summary of the chief points of information, and opinion presented by ome 1,300 witnesses.

The commission's itinerary is: Ottawa, Jan. 10 to 18; Toronto, 20 to 21; Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 23 to 24; Montreal (including Lachine, Maisonneuve and Valleyfield), Jan. 26 to Feb. 4; Three Rivers, Feb. 6; Grand Mere and Shawinigan Falls, Feb. 7; Quebec City, Feb. 8 to 9; Joliette, Feb. 10; Sorel, Feb. 11; St. Hyacinthe, Feb. 13; Victoriaville and Arthabaskaville, Feb. 14; Sherbrooke, Feb. 15; Ottawa and Hull, Feb. 20 to 22. Then leaves for European tour.

Cattle Killed by Gas.

Chatham, Jan. 12.—In the Division Court at Wallaceburg Tuesday, an action was brought by David Eberts of Dover Township, against the Fuel Supply Co. of Sarnia to recover damages for live stock killed by the fumes of natural gas from the mains of the defendant company, which pass through Ebert's fields. Judgment was awarded the plaintiff, $60 damages being allowed.

The plaintiff put up the claim that a peculiar and deadly effect of this gas is that the animals do not become sensitive to it, and suddenly are overcome and die. They are not repulsed by the odor, and consequently do not avoid the vicinity of the leaking pipes.

Collision at Welland.

Welland, Jan. 12.—A small wreck occurred at the Grand Trunk Depot here about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when a Wabash engine with caboose, southbound, smashed into a freight train standing at the depot, partly wrecking the Grand Trunk caboose and crushing the front of a freight car. The locomotive was badly damaged, the front trucks being torn off the tracks.

The engineer was slightly injured, the rest of the trainmen being unhurt. A bad curve in the road here badly obstructs the view. It is claimed that the semaphore was partly down.

CHILDREN AND NICKLEODEONS

Toronto, Jan. 12.—It is probable that the Provincial Government will pass a law to prohibit children under sixteen years of age, from attending moving picture theatres. In view of the fact that several cases have come to their attention of the young boys attending these shows and then going out to imitate the deeds done by the figures shown on the canvas, it has been thought advisable not to allow young children to attend the shows at all. A circular is now being sent out by the Government to all children's aid and other societies in the province, asking if they think it advisable that young children be not allowed to attend the moving picture shows. Mr J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of Neglected Children, is gathering the information, and will make recommendation to the Government.

A CONGRESSMAN'S IDEA

"I would be willing to take nickel free of duty and wood pulp as well, if Canada would take free of duty our stoves or our cotton goods or any of our other manufactures of which she does not produce a sufficient quantity herself."

Congressman Fordney, of Michigan, a member of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, is responsible for the above statement to a Canadian newspaper man.

This is a sample, and a rich one, of the reciprocity Uncle Sam wants. Uncle Sam wants Canada's raw material for its own manufactures, especially in these two classes, the United States having to import them. If some Canadians had their way, they would let the United States manufacturers of stoves, and cotton goods send in their wares, despite the fact that Canadians are supplying the home market very largely, in exchange for the "privilege" of sending in to the United States free our natural resources, and building up the United States at the expense of Canada.

A CLEAR COURSE

Speaking in Montreal a few nights ago Hon Clifford Sifton, in expressing a view of trade negotiations with the United States, said that he thought the fewer possible entanglements Canada had commercially with the United States the better. The best way to preserve peace, harmony and good-will was to have as few treaties as possible, over which there might be wrangling or a disposition to disagree.

Mr. Sifton's views in a matter such as this are worthy of great consideration. It is undoubtedly true—and Canadian visitors to the United States cannot help noticing it—that in matters relating to small and unimportant Canada, Americans frequently assume a masterful, dominating air as if they were the only occupants of the continent. This spirit in minor degree has asserted itself in the present reciprocity dickering, the American legislators evidently thinking themselves rather magnanimous in offering to take what Canada cannot afford to give. This spirit has lessened greatly of late years, and as Canada grows in commercial importance, the tinge of condescension sometimes noticeable, will disappear entirely.

Yet, Clifford Sifton is right, and we believe that in his knowledge of international relations he has spoken a timely word, one which the ordinary thinking Canadian Imperialist will approve. Situated as we in Canada are, eight million people living beside one hundred million, and overshadowed by the huge financial bulk of United States institutions, it follows that we, in any bargaining with so powerful a neighbor, must be careful lest we get only the small man's portion of advantages. Nature has blessed Canada with natural resources that will soon give Canada the whip-hand, the power to dictate terms along certain lines, even though in other things this country may be immeasureably inferior in resources.

It has been proven that the country which has the natural resources—the source of all native power and the ground of wealth—will, in the end, be the dictator of the commercial world, since all manufacturing comes from raw material, and raw material is largely synonymous with natural resources as now valued.

We, on this side of the border, want to maintain agreeable and pleasant relations with our American cousins, to interchange products as far as is mutually advantageous. But it is undeniable that the fewer our ironclad agreements are with the United States, the fewer the chances are for a collision. Canadian policy must always be to build up Canada first, without reference to what outsiders want. Let Canada look to the interest of Canadians first, last and always, with due appreciation of the fact that it is a big part of the Empire, and that as such a factor in Empire development, it should give whatever preferences are possible—considering the interests of its own people—to its sister dominions.

In our relations with the United States, increasing always as they must, through our own growth and expansion Canadians will best serve the cause of amity and harmony by working out her destiny as a separate and distinct entity, by refusing to sacrifice our valuable heritage from Nature, even for a trifling gain in foreign markets. Such a course will gain Canada respect and consideration in all quarters, and will conduce to a stronger national feeling, a greater national pride, than "has been."

MR. BORDEN'S STAND

The stand which R. L. Borden has assumed on the question of the reference of any trade agreement with the United States to Parliament for consideration is an eminently wise and safe one. Mr Borden says:

"That is not an accurate report of my remarks. I said that a commercial treaty must necessarily be subject to Parliament for ratification; that the fate of such a treaty involves the fate of the Government which has negotiated it, and that for this reason supporters of the Ministry are apt to vote for it, even if they did not approve it.

"I find that, for this reason, the government ought to submit to Parliament a clear statement of the principles upon which they proposed to negotiate, and of the basis upon which they intend to act, so that the country and Parliament may have an opportunity of expressing their opinion before it is too late."

The reference of any agreement, or trade treaty which might be concluded at Washington to parliament for ratification will come too late for any effective expression of opinion by members who wish to voice the thought and wish of their constituencies. It is recognized, of course, that the general terms of any such trade proposals could not be discussed in advance, but a statement of the broad principle of action would not interfere with the responsibility resting on the Government to make a deal that will be satisfactory to Canadian interests.

Of course, under the present system of procedure by Hon. Mr. Fielding and Hon. Wm. Paterson, if the Canadian envoys "put their foot in it," they are the ones to be reckoned with, and are solely responsible.

A PREACHER PRESS

Rev. Dr. Manley Benson, of St. Catharines, seems to be hankering for notoriety, or else has a little grouch. He complains because his sermons aren't fully reported, that the reporters ask him for a discouraging "little bit." He adds:

"I am getting tired of reading the daily papers. About all I can learn by them is that somebody's house has been broken into, somebody's boy has run away, somebody's girl has gone astray, and a lot of such things that do nobody any good, and I pray for the time when our daily press will devote more attention to the cause of Christianity."

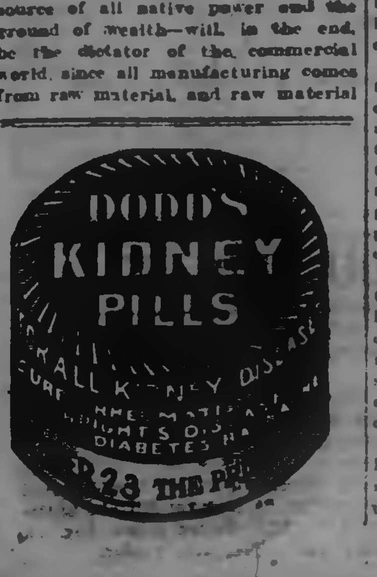
What does Rev. Dr. Benson want? Is not a daily paper a record of events, local and outside, a history of the happenings of a busy day in a busy world? Is not a daily paper a record of the thoughts, actions and doings of the people, whatever affects the common weal, or is out of the ordinary routine?

This worthy pulpiteer imagines that the press is constituted really to do good by printing long sermons, that its energies are sadly misdirected in dealing with the live, human interest problems of the day. The pulpit is a great force, because it is part of the human, throbbing machinery of actual life. To stand aloft, and preach Christianity in the academic, high-brow fashion so popular in certain church circles, is not becoming the duty and mission of the press. It would speedily cease to be a power if it did.

Newspapers are a secular institution, and while in the common cause of humanity, they are willing to assist in the good work of the ministry—and do devote more space and time to the promotion of this work than it is worth from a news standpoint—to fill a place as educators primarily would destroy much of their effectiveness.

If the people want to know particularly what the Rev. Dr. Benson has to say, they can go to hear him expound his views at leisure, but the numbers who might not avail themselves of that great opportunity have considerable to do with a newspaper's circulation.

Rev. Dr. Benson should give the St. Kitts papers a bonus or pay for his sermons at advertising rates, since the newspapers need advertising to enable them to publish, and circulation draws advertising, and giving readers WHAT THEY ARE INTERESTED IN MAKES CIRCULATION.



EDITORIAL NOTES

The Toronto newspaper reporters who are doing the revival "stuff" will surely be good now.

The Toronto Street Car Company has been indicted for maintaining a common nuisance. These nuisances are sometimes very necessary evils.

The O.A.C. students at Guelph are petitioning Hon. James Duff for permission to dance. The students say they will be hopping mad if their request is not granted.

One of the dismissed employes of the printing bureau at Ottawa, who was persistently late, pleaded that he attended sixty-one funerals in one year. The man must have been intended by nature for an undertaker.

It is reported that King Manual will be given a yearly stipend of $50,000 by the Portuguese republic. If that is true, Manual will do well to take it, and keep his fingers out of Portugal's political pie. It would save a lot of useless trouble for everyone concerned.

Another fine sample of how the Laurier "graft" or "patronage" system works is revealed in the report of the secretary of state in the printing bureau scandals. One hundred thousand copies of a pamphlet were ordered at the Gananoque Reporter office, because the King's Printer understood that Britton, the publisher, had been a Liberal candidate. He was another Britton, however, and turned the job over to the Ottawa Free Press at a profit to himself. The fact was not reported to the King's Printer, since it was not desirable to offend the Ottawa Liberal organ. This is a solitary minor instance of how the patronage system is worked by his Majesty's loyal government!

A MODERN MIRACLE

He Had Eczema 25 Years and Doctors Said "No Cure"

Yet Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharged spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. Just think of this state of affairs continuing for twenty-five years.

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless in the end. Naturally Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night, so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of — a complete cure. And the cure was no temporary cure, it was permanent. He was cured nearly three years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured, to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return. Having suffered for twenty-five years, I had naturally concluded that my case was incurable and I regard my cure as a modern miracle."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy. 50c box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts were 500 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 825 hogs and 100 calves.

A feature of the trade was the continued strong undertone to the market for cattle and prices scored a further advance of a quarter cent per lb. for all grades. This is attributed to the small supplies coming forward and the good demand for stock for local consumption, as buyers generally were well cleaned out of supplies. At the higher range of prices the trade was active and everything was cleaned up long before noon.

Choice steers sold at 6½c to 6¾c; good, at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good, at 5½c to 5¾c; fair, at 5c to 5¼c, and the lower grades at 4c to 4½c per lb. There was also a good demand for cows and bulls and sales were made freely at prices ranging from 4c to 6c per lb., as to quality.

Another feature of the trade is the very strong feeling in the market for hogs and prices since Monday have made a further advance of 20c to 30c per cwt., which is due to the scarcity of stock and the keen competition between buyers for supplies. The demand was active and a brisk trade was done with sales of selected lots at $8.25 to $8.60 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

The market for sheep was also stronger and prices show an advance of ¼c per lb. Supplies coming forward are small, for which the demand is good and sales were made at 4½c to 4¾c per lb. Lambs were firm under a good demand, at 6¼c to 6½c per lb. A fairly good trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $3 to $12 each as to quality.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Something in the girl's attitude and in her silence made him feel that his words rang hollow and commonplace. While they had talked an unaccustomed excitement had been mounting in his brain, and it held him now in a kind of delicious embarrassment. It was as if both had been suddenly enfolded in a new and mysterious understanding without the need of speech. He did not tell himself that Cherry loved him, but he roused to a fresh perception of her beauty and felt himself privileged in her nearness.

It may have been the unusual ardor of his gaze that warmed her cheeks and brought her eyes back from the world outside. At any rate, she turned, flashing him a startled glance that caused his pulse to leap anew. Rising silently, she went past him to the piano. Never before had she surprised that look in his eyes and at the realization a wave of confusion surged over her. She strove to calm herself through her music, which shielded while it gave expression to her mood, and neither spoke as the evening shadows crept in upon them. But the girl's exaltation was short lived; the thought came that Boyd's feeling was but transitory; he was not the sort to burn lasting incense before more than one shrine. Nevertheless, at this moment he was hers, and in the joy of that certainty she let the moments slip.

They heard a child crying somewhere in the rear of the house and Chakawana's voice soothing; then in a moment the Indian girl appeared in the doorway, saying something about going out with Constantine. Cherry acquiesced half consciously, impatient of the intrusion. Boyd finally rose and, going to the door, saw that the sky was deeply overcast, rendering the night as dark as in a far lower latitude.

"I've overstayed my welcome," he ventured and smiled at her answering laugh.

With a trace of solicitude she said:

"Wait! I'll get you a raincoat." But he reached out a detaining hand. In the darkness it encountered the bare flesh of her arm.

"Please don't! You'd have to strike a light to find it, and I don't want a light now."

"It has been a pleasant evening," she said inanely.

"I saw you for the first time tonight, Cherry. I think I have begun to know you."

Again she felt her heart leap. Reaching out to say goodby, his hand slipped down over her arm like a caress until her palm lay in his.

With trembling, gentle hands she pushed him from her.

When the black bulk of Marsh's cannery loomed ahead of Emerson he left the gravel beach and turned up among the buildings, seeking to retrace his former course. As he turned the corner of the first building he nearly ran against a man who was standing motionless against the wall. The fellow, with a sharp exclamation, vanished into the gloom. Boyd lost no time in gaining the plank runway that led to the dock and, finding an angle in the building, backed into it and waited.

From his momentary glimpse of the man as he made off he knew that he was tall and active—just the sort of person to prove dangerous in an encounter. But if his suspicions were correct there must be others close by, and Boyd wondered why he had heard no signal. After a breathless wait of a moment or two he stole cautiously out, and, selecting the darkest shadows, slipped from one to another till he was caught by the sound of voices issuing from the yawning entrance of the main building on his right. The next moment his tension relaxed; one of the speakers was a woman. Evidently his alarm had been needless, for these people, whoever they were, made no effort to conceal their presence. On the contrary, the woman had raised her tone to a louder pitch, although her words were still undistinguishable.

Greatly relieved, Boyd was about to go on, when a sharp cry, like a signal, came in the woman's voice, a cry which turned to a genuine wail of distress. The listener heard a man's voice cursing in answer, and then the sound of a scuffle, followed at length by a choking cry, that brought him bounding into the building. He ran forward recklessly, but before he had covered half the distance her collided violently with a piece of machinery and went sprawling to the floor. A glance upward revealed the dim outlines of a "topper," and showed him farther down the building, silhouetted briefly against the lesser darkness of the windows, two struggling figures. As he regained his footing, something rushed past him—man or animal he could not tell which, for its feet made no more sound upon the floor than those of a wolf dog. Then, as he bolted forward he heard a man cry out, and found himself in the midst of turmoil. His hands encountered a human body, and he seized it, only to be hurled aside as if with a giant's strength. Again he clinched with a man's form, and bore it to the floor, cursing at the darkness and reaching for its throat. His antagonist raised his voice in wild clamor, while Boyd braced himself for another assault from those huge hands he had met a moment before. But it did not come. Instead he heard a cry from the woman, an answer in a deeper voice and then swift, pattering footsteps growing fainter. Meanwhile the man with whom he was locked was fighting desperately, with hands and feet and teeth, shouting hoarsely. Other footsteps sounded now, this time approaching, then at the door a lantern flared. A watchman came running down between the lines of machinery, followed by other figures half revealed.

Boyd had pinned his antagonist against the cold sides of a retort at last and with fingers clutched about his throat was beating his head violently against the iron when by the lantern's gleam he caught one glimpse of the fat, purple face in front of him and loosed his hold with a startled exclamation. Released from the grip that had nearly made an end of him, Willis Marsh staggered to his feet.

The man was wounded, badly wounded, as he saw by the red stream which gushed down over his breast. Marsh leveled a trembling finger at Boyd and cried hysterically:

"There he is, men. He tried to murder me. I—I'm hurt. I'll have him arrested."

The seriousness of the accusation struck the young man on the instant. He turned upon the group.

"I didn't do that. I heard a fight going on and ran in here"—

"He's a liar," the wounded man interrupted shrilly. "He's stabbed me! See?" He tried to strip the shirt from his wounds, then fell to chattering and shaking. "O God, I'm hurt!" He staggered to a packing case and sank upon it, weakly fumbling at his sodden shoulder.

"I didn't do that," repeated Boyd. "I don't know who stabbed him. I didn't."

"Then who did?" some one demanded.

"What are you doing in here? You'd a killed him in a minute," said the man with the lantern.

"We'll fix you for this," a third voice threatened.

"Listen," Boyd said in a tone to make them pause. "There has been a mistake here. I was passing the building when I heard a woman scream, and I rushed in to prevent Marsh from choking her to death."

"A woman!" chorused the group.

"That's what I said."

"Where is she now?"

"I don't know. I didn't see her at all. I grappled with the first person I ran into. She must have gone out as you came in." Boyd indicated the side door, which was still ajar.

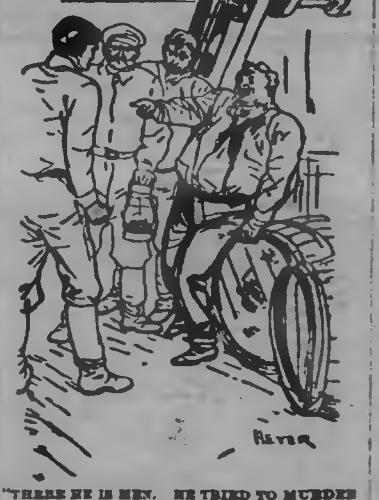
"It's a lie," screamed Marsh.

"It's the truth," stoutly maintained Emerson, "and there was a man with her too. Who was she, Marsh? Who was the man?"

"She—she—I don't know."

"Don't lie."

"I'm hurt," reiterated the stricken man feebly. Then, seeing the bewilderment in the faces about him, he burst out anew: "Don't stand there like a lot of fools. Why don't you get him?"



"THERE HE IS MEN. HE TRIED TO MURDER ME."

"If I stabbed him I must have had a knife," Emerson said, again checking the forward movement. "You may search me if you like. See?" He opened his coat and displayed his belt.

"He's got a six shooter," some one said.

"Yes, and I may use it," said Emerson quietly.

"If he hasn't a knife then he must have had a friend with him."

"Then tell your men what we were doing in here and how you came to be alone with us in the dark." Emerson stared at his accuser curiously, but the trust's manager seemed at a loss. "See here, Marsh, if you will tell us whom you were choking maybe we can get at the truth of this affair."

Without answering Marsh rose and, leaning upon the watchman's arm, said:

"Help me up to the house. I'm hurt. Send the launch to the upper plant for John. He knows something about medicine." With no further word he made his way out of the building, followed by the mystified fishermen.

No one undertook to detain Emerson, and he went his way, wondering what lay back of the night's adventure. He racked his brain for a hint as to the identity of the woman and the reason of her presence alone with Marsh in such a place.

CHAPTER XV.

The main body of salmon struck into the Kalvik river on the first day of July. For a week past the run had been slowly growing while the canneries tested themselves, but on the opening day of the new month the horde issued boldly forth from the depths of the sea, and the battle began in earnest.

At times they swam with cleaving fins exposed. Again they churned the placid waters until swift combers raced across the shallow bars like tidal waves, while the deeper channels were shot through with shadowy forms or pierced by the lightning glint of silvered bellies. They streamed in with the flood tide to retreat again with the ebb, but there was neither haste nor caution in their progress. They had come in answer to the breeding call of the sea, and its exultation was upon them, driving them relentlessly onward. They had no voice against its overmastering spell.

The time had come for man to take his toll.

At Emerson's cannery there fell a sudden panic, for fifty fishermen quit. Returning from the banks on the night before the run started, they stacked their gear and notified Boyd Emerson of their determination. Then, despite his utmost efforts to dissuade them, they took their packs upon their shoulders and marched up the beach to Willis Marsh's plant. Larsen, the day foreman, acted as their spokesman, and Boyd recognized too late the result of that conversation he had interrupted on the night of his visit to Cherry.

This defection diminished his boat crew by more than half, and, while the shoremen stoutly maintained their loyalty, the chance of putting up a pack seemed lost. Boyd swallowed his pride and went straightway to his enemy. He found Marsh well recovered from his flesh wound of a week or more before, yet extremely cautious for his safety, as he evidenced by conducting the interview before witnesses.

"We are short handed, and I gave instructions to secure every available man," he announced at the conclusion of Emerson's story. "It is not my fault if your men prefer to work for me."

"Then you force me to retaliate," said Boyd. "I shall hire your men out from under you."

Marsh laughed provokingly.

"Try it! I am a good organizer, if nothing else. If you send emissaries to my plants it will cause certain violence, and I think you had better avoid that, for we outnumber you ten to one."

Emerson left in disgust. Nor had he hit upon any method of relief when Cherry came down to the plant on the following morning. She inquired straightway:

"What are you doing about it? You can't afford to lose an hour."

"I have sent a man to each of the other plants to hire fishermen at any price, but I have no hope that they will succeed. Marsh has his crews too well in hand for that."

Cherry nodded. "They wouldn't dare quit him now. He'd never let them return to this country if they did. Meanwhile the rest of your force is on the banks, I presume."

"Yes."

"How many boats have you?"

"Ten."

"Heavens! And this is the first day of the run! It looks bad, doesn't it! Has the trap begun to fill?"

"No. George is down there now. I guess Marsh succeeded in corking it. Meanwhile all the other plants are working while my Chinks are playing fantan. I seem to bring misfortune upon every one connected with me, don't I?" he added. "I'm afraid I'm a poor sort."

How boyish he was, the girl thought tenderly, yet how splendidly brave he had been throughout the fight! There was a voiceless, maternal yearning in her heart as she asked him gravely:

"If you fail now it will mean—the end of everything, will it not?"

"Yes." He squared his tired shoulders. "But I am not beaten yet. You taught me never to give up, Cherry. If I have to go back home without a catch and see Hilliard take this plant over, why—I'll begin once more at something new, and some day I will succeed. But I shan't give up. I'll can what salmon we catch and then begin all over again next season."

"And—suppose you don't succeed! Suppose Hilliard won't carry you?"

"Then I shall try something else. Maybe I shall go to mining again. I don't know. Anyhow, she would not let me grow disheartened if she were here. She wouldn't let me quit. She isn't that sort."

Cherry Malotte stirred and shifted her gaze uncertainly to the gleaming bay. Abreast of them the fleet of fishing boats were drifting with the tide. In the distance others were dotted clear away to where the opal ocean lay. A tug was passing, and she saw the sun flash from the cargo in its tow, while the faint echo of a song came wafting to her ears. She stood so for a long moment, fighting manfully with herself, then wheeled upon him suddenly. There was a new tone in her voice as she said:

"If you will let me have one of your launches I may be able to help you."

"How?" he demanded quickly.

"Never mind how. It's a long chance and hardly worth trying, but—may I take the boat?"

"Certainly," said he. "There's one lying at the dock."

Conserve Your Muskrats.

Since the ladies of the land have so generally decreed that furs must be worn in the winter season even the despised muskrat is being watched and studied and marshlands are being cultivated for his sustenance and home building. Muskrat trapping has for some years past been a profitable occupation among owners of such lands in various parts of the country, and the skins sold to furriers and dyers are splendidly dyed, dressed and made up to imitate costly furs. The government experts are now studying a scientific way of saving the muskrat. Verily, "things do change," as Parson Piff's would say.—National Magazine.

New Mode of Identification.

Dr. Camassin, an Italian, suggests a new method of identification. After long study he has come to the conclusion that the back of the hand possesses advantages over the fingers. He says the veins on the back of the hand are never the same on each hand, and the hands of two persons possess such distinct markings that they can never be taken one for the other. The differences become most apparent when the hand is clinched. The hand easily allows itself to be photographed and offers a much better scope for observation than the thumb print impression of M. Bertillon.—London Globe.

Skirts Said to Be Doomed.

Paris, Dec. 27.—It is solemnly announced here that the successor to the hobble skirt has arrived, and that it is an exact reproduction of the dress worn by Turkish ladies, minus the veil.

Loose-fitting pantaloons fashioned as elegantly as possible will be fastened close at the ankles.

A well-known firm of Paris dressmakers will launch the models of this costume.

BISHOP FALLON'S SPEECH

Bishop Fallon made a notable speech at the annual banquet of the Canadian Club of London a few days ago. He said, "I am an Imperialist on principles and by conviction. As a student of history, I have found that there has been always one dominant nation, whether Assyria, or Babylon, or Rome, or Carthage, or the Empire of Charlemagne, or of the Franks, or the Empire of Philip of Spain. For three centuries or more Great Britain has been the dominant power and I see no nation prepared to take her place. For that reason I am an Imperialist. And it is no restrained, narrow national sense either. There is freedom where the old flag floats, and it is the only nation that, to the fullest degree, knows the meaning of civil and religious liberty."

After dealing with the waste and cost of militarism, for he was speaking on "International Peace," he continued, "Germany has a peace footing of 75,000 men. In time of war she could muster 5,000,000 men armed, into the battle field. Her allies, the Austro-Hungarian States could muster 4,000,000 more, and with Italy, the triple alliance could muster, all told, 10,000,000 armed men. They could threaten the peace of Europe. It is my deliberate conviction—it may not be the tactful thing to say, either—nevertheless it is my deliberate conviction that Germany intends to try to take command of the world's affairs. That would not be a good day for the world. I express the hope that no government of Britain, at no time, will ever be drawn by the delusive gains of peace to threaten, to menace, to destroy, the blessed gift of spreading to the world human liberty, the brotherhood of man, the blessing of prosperity and religious liberty. I say I hope Great Britain never for a moment halts in this great march of duty."

He showed how the resources of many countries have been developed and are being developed by British capital, and declared that more misery, more sorrow, more suffering, would result by the destruction of British credit than has resulted from any war since Napoleon held the world in the hollow of his hand. It was necessary, therefore, to have the ships and the men and the army to protect that credit and preserve it.

That is manly and robust speaking and such as is needed to-day all over the British Empire. Not so very different have been some of the recent utterances of Mr Lloyd George. Those who jeer at the "German scare" know nothing of conditions in Europe, nothing of the feeling of the Foreign Office, nothing of the apprehensions which are felt so acutely by the statesmen at Westminster.

Miss Murray is an actress of decided merit and possessed of a great personal magnetism. Her wardrobe is second to none. The list of strong scenic successes in which they appear gives them many particularly strong roles. The balance of the cast is an extremely strong one and no expense has been spared to make this organization the strongest of its kind on the road to-day. High class specialties will be given between the acts. Opening play for Monday evening the company will present "Beyond Pardon".

"JUDITH ZARAINE"

Pleasing Presentation of Difficult Drama Last Night

There was a good audience at the Grand last night when Lena Ashwell, the famous English actress, supported by a strong company, presented "Judith Zaraine"—a very modern type of drama. Miss Ashwell received hearty applause for her clever work which called for unusual dramatic power. The author of Judith Zaraine, who is the author of powerful "Lena Kleschna," has made his new effort a worthy vehicle for high dramatic art. Miss Ashwell rose to every demand, and was especially effective in the climaxes. The play is almost a melodrama at times, but never descends to the ranting type ordinarily known as melodrama. The performance was thoroughly enjoyed and the lesson it taught in the conflict of capital and labor was one to think over.

PETERBOROUGH HAS GROWN FAST IN THE LAST DECADE

Has Outstripped Nearly All the Cities of the Same Standing in 1910-- Increase of 50 Per Cent is Quite Up to the Average -- A Steady Growth.

A statement issued at Ottawa yesterday shows the population of Ontario cities for 1910, compared with 1901. The average increase is 47 per cent., and Peterborough's growth is about 50 per cent.

St. Catharines, in 1901, was the same size as Peterborough then, but Peterborough has outstripped it entirely. Stratford also was in Peterborough's class in 1901, but has dropped behind in the race. St. Thomas was bigger than Peterborough in 1901, now it is 2,000 smaller. Peterborough has made relatively greater progress than any of the old cities of Ontario, the New Ontario cities growing very fast. The population figures speak for themselves—

The increase in nine years is an average of 47 per cent. The increase of all cities, towns and villages for the same period was 307,112, or nearly 33 per cent. Montreal claims an increase in the nine years of 68 per cent., Winnipeg 207 per cent., Regina 700 per cent., Edmonton 927 per cent. and Vancouver 257 per cent. But these are less certain than the municipal populations of Ontario.

SUING PATTEN FOR $6,000,000

Chicago Man Wants to Recover Losses on the Market

Chicago, Jan. 11.—James A. Patten, wheat king and cotton manipulator of yore, received a rude shock at Hot Springs to-day when he was informed that he had been sued for $6,000,000.

He was sued for this sum by Dr. Paul Burmaster, president of the Chicago anti-gambling league, and the action is based on an old law which permits the recovery of sums lost at gambling, together with a penalty of double the amount.

The suit was brought by Burmaster as a citizen and is an action in debt to recover $2,000,000; the other $4,000,000 is tacked on to make up the penalty.

Burmaster, a short time ago became acquainted with a West side broker, who he says, told him of the methods of the Board of Trade. The broker, conscience-stricken, urged Burmaster to do something. He did. He sued Patten.

DEMAND FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Rev. C. R. Miller, of Berlin, representing J. J. Kelso, the superintendent of neglected and dependent children, is in the city to visit the charitable institutions on a hunt for children.

Mr. Miller says he has about thirty requests, and he finds it very hard to fill them. Girls are more in demand than boys, and the ages range from two years up to fourteen. No one wants boys under ten years of age at least, and most requests are for boys about fourteen. The requests came from both country and city.

Mr. Miller spent the day in visiting around Peterborough, having several cases to investigate.

Stole $50,00

H. B. Turner, formerly of Lindsay, employed by Mr. J. Thompson, the east end baker, collected $50.00 for his employer from the Trent Canal contractors at Healey Falls, last week, and skipped out with the money. Turner drove to Campbellford and took the G. T. R. out of that town. No trace has yet been obtained of him. Chief Bennett of town holds a warrant for his arrest.—Havelock Standard.

WEALTHY DUKE DRIVES AN ENGINE AT 30 CENTS A DAY

Paris, Jan. 11.—In this city is to be seen the only wealthy man who has carried out the resolution made some time or other in their lives by all small boys between the ages of two and six—"of being an engine-driver when I grow up." This is the Duke of Saragossa, who is twice a grandee of Spain, and fabulously rich and the representative of one of the oldest and most distinguished noble families in the peninsula.

The duke regards an engine not like most of us as an evil-smelling, dust-distributing, but necessary evil; he calls it "that sublime invention of the human mind," and when he could no longer devote himself to his toy engines dragged over his nursery floor he had a miniature line constructed in his vast estate in Saragossa, over which he used to drive a baby train. As last an engine became as necessary to his happiness as a ship to a sailor, and, though he has more money than he knows what to do with, he qualified for the profession and became an engine driver in the employ of a French railway company, participating though unwillingly, in the recent recent French railway strike. When on his engine no sign of his "blue blood" creeps out and you probably would not know him from his mate, the fireman, except for a collar that is a few shades further from grey, and the cut of his boots.

During Spain's last "little war" in Northern Africa, the duke forsook his beloved engine and fought for his country, where he gained great distinction.

AN OBJECT LESSON

A great many people from the smaller towns of this province make periodical visits to Toronto and Montreal and while there, make certain observations which would rather startle the regular inhabitants of those cities. These conclusions would be simply amusing were it not that the observers base their future conduct on them, to the detriment of their home towns.

For instance, a visit to the large departmental stores leads the visitor to the conclusion that these firms buy in such enormous quantities that they can afford to sell at a lower price than the merchants in the smaller places. Without looking further into the matter they purchase as much as possible while in the city, and order by mail from the same firms between visits. A little examination will show that this reasoning is superficial and leads to erroneous conclusions.

If you are one of those who have been thus misled, we would ask you the next time you are in Toronto, for instance, and have seen the sights of the large stores, to take a trip out Queen Street West, right through Parkdale and keep your eyes open en route. You will find for miles, starting within a few yards of the large stores, hundreds of small stores each confining itself to one line of business—one to boots and shoes, a second to groceries, a third to fruit, a fourth to clothing, and so on through every line of business.

All these stores look prosperous. They continue to do business year after year. They are filled with customers who are just as intelligent and discriminating as the patrons of the departmental stores. And all this within a stone's throw of the largest stores in Canada!

How do they do it? Why are they not forced out of business by their mighty rivals? Do you not see that there may be another side to bigness. If every person patronized the large stores, these small fry could not live. And there are so many of them! In the aggregate the number of people who buy from small stores must be larger than the number who deal with the large ones.

Yet these small stores are under just as heavy expenses, proportionately, as the large ones. Rents are high, taxes are high, labor is dear. Yet they compete. Should not the merchant in this city be still better able to compete? Here we have lower taxes, lower rents; every fixed charge is lower.

Ask yourself fairly, Are you so much wiser than people who have these departmental stores right at their own doors? Do you think these people would continue to pay high prices if they could save money by dealing at the large stores? We might also add that these smaller stores have a splendid delivery service, and send their goods all over the city, just the same as the big fellows.

The moral of all this is that it does not pay to send your money away from Peterborough. Our local merchants have got or can get you anything you want and save you money on the transaction.

If every citizen of Peterborough would act fairly in this matter, we would have better school and churches, and perhaps better morals. Keep your money in circulation here. Buy at home.

HOCKEY GAME TO BOOM ACROSS THE BORDER

American papers of to-day are predicting that hockey, the great Canadian game, is taking the position in winter in the States that baseball holds in the summer.

They are also agreed that it will not be long before it will be booming across the border. The Buffalo Courier even remarks that to-day there is as much rivalry among the pros. in Canada as the ball stars in the States.

The Detroit Free Press has the following to say:—

Hockey in the future is evidently going to assume the position among sports in the winter that baseball occupies in the summer. This seems to be inevitable. The careful observer who has watched the history of hockey can only see this end. It has been learned by experience that such a condition cannot be arrived at in a jump. It takes time and patience, but not many years are going to elapse before the great Canadian game is going to be the great American game every winter.

The Buffalo Courier says that hockey, the great Canadian game, is getting a foothold in the States, as is also lacrosse.

So magnetic is the sport in Canada that the leading professionals are paid more in proportion for their services than are the diamond heroes on this side of the water. The majority of them are under contract and competition for their services is fully as keen as for those of Lajoie, Wagner and Ty Cobb.

LINDSAY RACES WON IN STRAIGHT HEATS

First Day Events Went to Lue Jean and Harry Mack.

The races held at Lindsay yesterday were marked by fast and exciting work by the horses, the first event on the program, the 2.28 pace, furnishing a grand battle between Lue Jean and Jerry Hal, the former finding the wire with but little to spare. The mixed race was between Harry Mack and Ned Wilkes. Both events were won in straight heats, and the following was the standing—

2.28 PACE.

Lue Jean (Hodgson, Orillia)	1	1	1
Jerry Hal (A. Collins, Sunderland)	2	2	2
Percy H (M. Storey, Peterborough)	3	3	3

Time—2.26, 2.21, 2.20 1-4.

In pacing the third heat at 2.20 1-4 Hodgson's horse set up a new track record.

MIXED RACE

Harry Mack (McMahon, Beaboro)	1	1	1
Ned Wilkes (Collins, Sunderland)	2	2	2
Lady Bran. (Sam McBride, Toronto)	3	4	3
Harry Direct (Dr Johnston, Peterborough)	4	3	4

Time—2.26 4-4, 2.26 1-4, 2.27.

The races are being continued to-day.

PUCKLAND

Intermediates and juniors practiced together last night. Ray was out again.

Much interest is being displayed as to the outcome of the game in Trenton to-morrow night. The ice space is larger than that of the local rink. Ray, Kelly and Sorel should get away with a lot of effective work.

The fare for the excursion to Lindsay next Tuesday, when the Grifters meet the Midgets at home is 55 cents for children and $1 10 for adults.

Winnipeg Telegram: Spectators at Kenora W. A. A. A. game Monday night found the new system of numbering the players of great convenience and assistance in following the players especially as the majority of the players were unfamiliar with the general public. Every man had his number, while in the neat little programme distributed gratis at the doors, he was properly classified and his position given. It was an innovation that met with the favor of the spectators and showed forethought on the part of the W. A. A. A. in scheming up the thing and in going ahead and carrying it out.

Belleville may be dropped from the pro league and the team taken to Brantford and played in the western division.

St. Michael's and Parkdale promise a great senior game at Toronto Saturday night.

Fred Taylor, of the Renfrew national leaguers is all in and threatened with an attack of pneumonia.

Kelly's injured knee shows improvement to-day, and the sturdy left wing will, it is hoped be in good shape for the game to-morrow.

PRIMITIVE PHYSIC.

John Wesley as a Physician and Some of His Remedies.

It is not generally known that John Wesley in one of his brief intervals of leisure published a sort of medical vade mecum called not inappropriately "Primitive Physic." It was first published in 1747, and it ran into at least twenty-four editions. The author was greatly surprised there was so swift and large a demand for it. In the later editions he was able to add the word "Tried" to certain remedies the virtues of which he had meanwhile found opportunities of testing. After five years' careful trial and notwithstanding the objections of the learned he recommends for the ague "to go into the cold bath just before the cold fit," but omits to say how to time the coming of the fit. To prevent apoplexy use the cold bath and drink only water. If this proves useless and a fit should declare itself you have only to "put a handful of salt with a pint of cold water and if possible pour it down the throat of the patient." To cure asthma "take a pint of cold water every morning, washing the head therein immediately after." Wesley gives four ways of curing old age—"take tar water morning and evening" or "a decoction of nettles" or "be electrified daily" or "chew cinnamon daily and swallow your saliva." The two great panaceas in the Wesleyan doctrine are the use of cold water and the use of electricity, and at the end of the book are columns of every sort of disease which may be overcome by these simple expedients.—St. James' Gazette.

The Two Charlies.

Among those who came in contact with the railway officials of Canada there are no better known pair than "Charlie" Macpherson and "Charlie" Foster, of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Both men hail from St. John, N.B., where they did their first work for this great railway corporation. Each in turn went from St. John to Toronto, where each made a "hit." Mr Macpherson went to Winnipeg, where he has repeated his Toronto success. A few years later, Mr. Foster went from Toronto to Vancouver. Now comes the announcement that the passenger traffic of the West, recently in charge of Mr. Ussher, is to be placed wholly under the two "Charlies." Macpherson will manage the lines between Fort William and Revelstoke, and Foster all traffic west of that point.

Urbanity, courtesy and good-fellowship are the qualities which distinguish these two successful officials. At the same time, each has shown his ability to handle large business in a large way. The man with urbanity does not always have exceptional ability, and the capacity for much hard work, but when he does he is a winner. Each of these men fulfils the higher conditions. The public has always had the confidence in them which is again so clearly exhibited by the C.P.R. executive in making these latest promotions.

Her Gain—His Loss.

"Lady," said the fortune-teller, shuffling the cards for the fifteenth time, "in addition to there being something for the house, a little money, a letter, and something better, the Fates decree that you will visit foreign lands, that you will mingle in the court life of kings and queens, and that, conquering all rivals, you will marry the man of your choice—a tall, dark, handsome gent, of distinguished ancestry—in fact, a peer of the realm."

"Will he be young?" queried the fair visitor, clasping her hands together eagerly.

"Young," fawned the fortune-teller, "and rich."

Excitedly the fair visitor clutched the seer's arm.

"But how," she cried, "am I to get rid of my present husband?"

A True Gift For Fiction.

In a New Brunswick village a town character who preferred emphasis to the verities was a witness in a petty trial involving an auger. He positively identified it as the property of the parties to the suit.

"But," asked the attorney for the other side, "do you swear that you know this auger?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" he continued.

"I have known that auger," said the witness, impressively, "ever since it was a gimlet."

STARTS THE NEW YEAR A NEW MAN

Quebec Farmer Tells What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did for Him

They Fixed Up His Kidneys, made His Blood Pure, and Made Him Feel Young all over

Franklin Centre, Que., Jan. 11. (Special.)—The only way to start the New Year right is to get the health right, and Mr. William Gamble, a well-known farmer living near here, is telling his neighbors how he got his health right.

"I am a farmer sixty-seven years of age," Mr. Gamble says, "And I suffered with a weak back and stoppage of water off and on for ten years. I used several boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they made a new man of me. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever taken."

Dodd's Kidney Pills will make a new man of you, because they make the Kidneys strong and healthy and able to do their work of straining all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means new life. It means good circulation and renewed strength and energy all over the body.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all forms of Kidney Disease from Backache to Bright's Disease, and they are also doing a great work by giving renewed health and energy to thousands of Canadians who are run down, tired and generally feeling no good for anything. Start the new year by toning up the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills. It will pay you.

THE SPITBALL.

It Takes Great Strength and Speed to Pitch It Properly.

Describing the spitball in baseball and the way it is pitched, Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine says:

"There came into baseball in 1903 a ball which came near revolutionizing the game and brought a new era of pitching, made great pitchers out of 'has-beens' and poor hitters out of once mighty sluggers.

"The ball is pitched with two, sometimes with three, fingers held on one side of the ball and with the thumb or tip of the thumb and nail being gripped hard against the seam at the opposite side of the sphere. The top of the ball is made slippery at the point of contact with the fingers, so that the sphere slides off the fingers with the minimum of friction, while the thumb, pressed hard against the seam, gives the maximum of friction, the result being that the ball, leaving the hand, takes heavy 'English' from the thumb and starts revolving rapidly in the direction opposite to that in which it naturally would rotate. Therefore it whirls rapidly for a short distance until the natural but suspended motion of the ball overcomes the false 'English' applied by the thumb and a contest between the natural and unnatural forces ensues. The ball ceases revolving unnaturally and floats and wabbles until the natural twist overcomes the false one, and then the ball darts just as it would have done if it had been curved naturally, shooting in the direction in which the heaviest friction was applied. A spitball if pitched directly overhand darts almost straight downward, and if pitched side arm with the thumb toward the body it shoots outward and down as a fast outcurve does, the quickness and speed of the break depending entirely upon the amount of force with which it is thrown and in ratio to the amount of friction applied by the thumb or lack of friction by the fingers. Great strength and speed are essential to the best pitching of this kind of ball."

TOMBS OF THE PHARAOHS.

The Precautions Taken to Guard Against Grave Robbers.

The ingenuity displayed by the ancient Egyptians to prevent robbers from breaking into the pharaonic graves merits admiration from present day engineers, writes Dr. Holscher, chief architect in the Prussian government, in a work on the sarcophagus of Khafra, the builder of the second Gizeh pyramid, who reigned in Egypt some 5,000 years ago.

The lid of the red granite sarcophagus was dovetailed with minute precision into the receptacle. To prevent the cover from being drawn back the Egyptian builders bored two holes in the lid at the edge, not showing above. These corresponded exactly with two similar holes, less deep than the other two, sunk in the front of the receptacle. Two copper bolts were then placed in the lid holes, and at the moment the sarcophagus was fully closed the holes met and the bolts dropped in position from the upper holes partly into the lower, thus making it impossible to move the lid.

It must have struck the Egyptian engineers that grave robbers might get at the body by turning the sarcophagus upside down, in which case the bolts would glide back into their original position and permit the lid being drawn out. To prevent this they filled the lower holes with wax and made the bolts hot. Upon the lids being placed in position the bolts melted their way into the wax and upon cooling became so firmly fixed that nothing short of complete destruction could open the royal tomb.

It must have been a herculean labor to hew the whole edge away, but that is what grave desecrators did, and the wax can still be seen in the bore holes.—New York Sun.

The "House Fly."

The reminiscent man suddenly found a gap in the conversation.

"I was in Kansas once," he began, "when one of those old time cyclones struck the town. I happened to be in my brother's house at the moment and heard the roar of the coming wind. I knew enough to run out in the street and lie down in the gutter with my arms clasped around a hitching post. The next moment the cyclone hit the town. Say, you ought to have seen the house fly."

"Did you swat it?" inquired the mean man on the soap box.

And the story promptly ended.—Denver News.

CRIPPEN'S CABIN NOW A HOODOO

New York Jan. 12.—The late Dr. Crippen's name has proven such a hoodoo to stateroom 52 on the White Star Liner Megantic that the cabin is being converted into a store room. Although it is situated on the shelter deck and provides excellent accommodation for ocean travellers, no one will occupy it now, as its last occupant was the man who was hanged in England for killing Belle Elmore.

Ethel Le Neve occupied the cabin immediately opposite Crippen's. Both cabins are looked upon as hoodoos, and whenever they have been offered to travellers the question has been asked: "Is that the cabin Dr. Crippen had?" During the voyage just completed the passengers looked upon as chambers of horror.

SPENCER'S NEW EARL.

Lord Althorp, Who Succeeds His Half Brother, Is Widely Known.

Spencer's new earl has been a member of the House of Lords for the last four years, having been raised to the peerage as Lord Althorp in 1906, on the occasion of his appointment to the office of Lord Chamberlain, which he still holds. He is a half-brother of the late earl and is widower of a sister of Lord Revelstoke and of Cecil and Hugo Baring, all three of whom are well konwn in America. Moreover, he is a man of very chivalrous instincts and of a sense of honor unfortunately rare in these modern days. For on the occasion of the troubles of the fire at banking house of Baring, some fifteen years ago, he, although possessed of no fortune of his own, voluntarily came to the rescue of his father-in-law, the late Lord Revelstoke, and of the other Baring relatives of his wife, by surrendering to them her dowry. It was by sacrifices of this kind that the House of Baring was able to weather the storm. And now that it is once more on the high tide of prosperity, the money thus surrendered by the peer, familiarly known in the House of Commons as "Bobbie" Spencer, has been restored to him. But at the time when he turned it over to the committee of liquidation formed by the leading bankers of London it seemed doubtful whether he would see a penny of it again.

The new earl is noted for the perfection of his manners and of his attire, his collars in particular being as famous in their way as were those of the late Mr. Gladstone. It is this that caused his commencement of a speech in the House of Commons with the words, "I am not an agricultural laborer," to excite so much hilarity. Among the sobriquets which were applied to him in the lower House was that of "Bradlaugh's Baby," owing to his political connection with Northamptonshire, with which county the first professed atheist to occupy a seat in Parliament was identified. That he is a man of some pluck is shown by the fact that at the time his half-brother, the late earl, was Viceroy of Ireland and in constant danger of assassination, he made a point of accompanying him, in an unofficial capacity, everywhere in and around Dublin, no matter whether walking or riding, for the purpose of protecting him. He succeeds to the ownership of a very stately mansion in London, known as Spencer House, overlooking Green Park, and formerly leased to Mrs. Ogden Goelet, of New York, but now rented by Baron de Forest.

Althorp, his country seat in Northamptonshire, has been in the possession of the Spencers since long before the reign of Henry VIII., and although the celebrated library was sold by the late earl to Mrs. John Rylands for the Rylands Public Library at Manchester, yet the house remains full of treasures of every kind, including no fewer than twenty paintings by Sir Joshua Reynolds and thirty-two by Lely, in addition to masterpieces by Titian, Raphael, Rubens, Murillo, Holbein, Rembrandt, Kneller, Franz Hals, Gainsborough, Vandyc and Guido. The Spencer plate is also extremely valuable. It comprises two pails which are the largest pieces of pure gold plate in any private collection, and a silver [illegible] cistern as large as a bath all three inherited from the first Duke of Marlborough. Perhaps the most cherished pieces in the collection of plate are, however, the gold casket in which the third earl received the freedom of London when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a beautiful silver-gilt jug, one of four provided by penny subscriptions from the nation for Lord Althorp, Lord Russell, Lord Grey and Lord Brougham, in recognition of their efforts in passing the Reform Bill, in the early part of the last century.

Where "Cranford" Was Written.

To lovers of that English classic "Cranford" this picture of the house in Manchester, England, where Mrs. Gaskell wrote her inimitable story will doubtless be of great interest.

The centenary of Mrs. Gaskell's birth was recently celebrated at Knutsford, Cheshire, the English village which furnished the author with character studies for "Cranford," in which she reproduced to the life the everyday existence of the "maiden ladies and widows of limited means" who formed the social life of the village.

THE MANCHESTER HOUSE, WHERE MRS. GASKELL SPENT MOST OF HER MARRIED LIFE.

Stepped on Matches.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Accidentally stepping on some matches in the match factory of the E. B. Eddy Co., Miss E. St. Louis, of Hull, an employe, had a narrow escape with her life yesterday. The matches ignited and caught her clothings, the girl running screaming from the mill. Charles De Repentigny, a timekeeper, managed to get hold of the girl and tearing off her clothing probably saved her life.

De Repentigny came away with badly burnt arms and hands, while the girl escaped with minor injuries to her limbs.

AN ALL AROUND ORDEAL.

When Papa Was Getting Ready to Attend a Banquet.

Papa was going to a banquet. It was unusual for him to attend banquets—so unusual, in fact, that the children had boasted of it for a week to all who would hear.

Now it was the night of the banquet, and papa was getting ready, and the once quiet and orderly house was much upset.

"Run on out," said mamma, "and don't bother your father while he's dressing." Papa was shaving and at the same time committing a speech to memory in case he should be called upon for something impromptu.

The tiny trickles of blood down his chin showed where the speech was getting the better part of his attention. On the bed lay a clean white shirt, and across a chair hung papa's dress clothes. He hadn't worn the dress clothes for two years and was considerably stouter now.

After awhile the children, crouching interestedly at the door, heard entertaining things.

"Confound the shirt!" howled papa. "I know I washed my hands, but the neckband's all dirty." Mamma's voice scotched him.

Through the keyhole the children saw papa struggle into his coat. The stiff shirt rose almost to his ears, and a high collar nearly sawed them off.

"Doggone it!" wailed papa. "The sleeves of this coat are a mile too short."

Then his shoes hurt him; he couldn't get his tie fixed right; his handkerchief was hopelessly missing, and finally he stood miserably in the middle of the floor.

His face was red, the perspiration poured down his nose, his thin hair stood up, and he was about the most uncomfortable looking person the children had ever seen.

"Now, then," said mamma, with a sigh, "you're fixed. You have no idea, dear, how nice you look."

"Oh, yes," papa snarled, "I look nice, I don't think." Then he found his hat and a light coat and stalked stiffly and uncomfortably out. The children, hiding behind the stair railing, saw him depart.

"Gee," said the little boy, "when I get big I won't go to any dinners. They can bring mine."

"You'll have to," said his sister wisely. "Men always have to go to dinners. But they dress up funny, don't they?"—Galveston News.

ALLIGATORS' NESTS.

They Resemble Haystacks and Are Natural Incubators.

"An alligators' nest is an interesting thing," said Alligator Joe. "Wild alligators build their nests on the bank of a river or in marshy places. They are made of mud, saw grass and leaves and mold. They are sort of natural incubators, for the eggs, which are laid from thirty-five to eighty in a nest at one time, are hatched out by the steam which comes up through the mud as much as by the sun. Around the nest a pile of grass is laid, sometimes as high as six feet, and from a distance resembles a stack of hay. The mother gator has her den near by. She makes it by burrowing into a bank of soft mud, and sometimes it is seventy feet or more inland. The only way to get her out of a den like that is to take a long steel rod and thrust it down the tunnel, which is always slanting. When the gator feels the prodding she will come out to see what the trouble is.

"It takes alligator eggs two months and six days to hatch. When the little ones come out the mother calls them together by a noise which is something between a cluck and a grunt, and they all scramble down from the nest to her den. If it is on the edge of a river the den is filled with minnows. As the mother enters the den she swishes her tail around with terrific force, killing the smallest fish, and when they float the little alligators nab them up.

"A mother alligator will sometimes have four or five dens, and she takes her brood from one to another, repeating the swishing process in each one until the young ones have had a full meal."—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's.

Tom's Memory.

"Before I went away I told Tom just what I wanted him to do about the house from day to day, and to make it doubly sure I talked my orders into our phonograph so he could play the record each night and so remember."

"And did he then forget?"

"I found everything in the house about ruined. He said he couldn't bear to play the phonograph in my absence; it reminded him so of me and made him lonely."—Boston Herald.

Not So Far Wrong.

"Have you written all the invitations to my party, mamma?" queried little Eva.

"Yes, dear," answered her mother. "They are all written and mailed."

"And how soon will the acceptions and deceptions begin to come in?"—Chicago News.

A Single Exception.

"Do you think a memory for dates helps a man?"

"Sometimes," replied Farmer Corntassel. "But not when he is selling spring chickens."—Washington Star.

Another Difference.

"I don't see any difference between you and a trained nurse except the uniform," said her sick husband.

"And the salary," she added thoughtfully.—Harper's Bazar.

CANNOT BE ARRESTED.

Ambassadors and Their Servants Are Immune.

Except on felony charges peers of the realm are immune from arrest. If they are arrested for treason or felony they can demand to be tried by their fellow nobles, and should they have the misfortune to be sentenced to death they can exact the use of a silken cord instead of the hempen rope commonly used by the public hangman.

The members and servants of every one of the foreign embassies to the Court of St. James's cannot be touched by British laws, even if they commit murder. The official headquarters of the representatives of foreign powers in London are the territory of the particular country or state which the embassy in question represents. This being so, the laws passed by Parliament and the judges, being operative only in the dominions of the King, have no effect upon the persons residing in the little foreign "countries."

The reason why ambassadors and their servants have this advantage over the average Britisher is that during the reign of Queen Anne a statute was passed by the law makers owing to an imbroglio arising from the seizure of a Russian envoy's effects for debt. This law, which was passed for "the preserving of the privileges of Ambassadors and other public Ministers of foreign Princes and States," has it that any person "presuming to prosecute any writ or process for the arrest or imprisonment of an Ambassador or his domestics shall be deemed a violator of the law of nations."

Though exemption from criminal courts is granted to foreign diplomats and their servants, there is no written law declaring the fact. It is merely a privilege of international law. Immunity from criminal jurisdiction was not always granted to these persons, for it is on record that a secretary of the Portuguese Legation, who was arrested for killing a man in the Royal Exchange, was tried by jury, found guilty, and sentenced to death.

Although it is generally known that the laws of Britain cannot affect in any way the King or any member of his family, most people are not aware that no civil action can possibly lie against the servants of His Majesty, including lords of the bedchamber and other officers of the household. The employes of the King while being immune from arrest, cannot go free if they commit a crime, however. All misdeeds committed within the precincts of the royal palaces and residences are tried by special courts presided over by the Lord Steward, Treasurer, Comptroller, and Master of the Household.

Any crimes committed by the servants at Buckingham Palace are adjudicated on by the Board of Green Cloth, whose powers are limited to a circuit of twelve miles from Whitehall; while the Court of Marshalsea, which dates from the reign of Henry VIII., administers justice between the King's servants at Windsor and elsewhere. Both courts are ruled over by the high officials stated.

Members of Parliament cannot be arrested while actually within the precincts of the Commons, and they are immune while Parliament is in session and for forty days before and after. It will be remembered that in 1888 a Metropolitan police officer made an attempt to arrest a member of the Irish Parliamentary party in Palace Yard. His colleagues were greatly upset at the incident, and the adjournment of the House was moved, a committee being appointed to consider the alleged breach of privilege. The breach was finally affirmed, and the unfortunate officer was severely censured by Parliament.

Barristers on circuit, solicitors engaged on a case, and witnesses in any case are temporarily protected from arrest, and clergymen enjoy the same privilege while actually conducting divine service.

Indian Sedition Trials.

The activity of the Calcutta police in the search for arms continues. One night recently the authorities raided a house in Northern Calcutta, and found two revolvers, some gun barrels, and a quantity of cartridges. The occupants of the house are two Bengali youths, who, however, succeeded in effecting their escape. Information received by the police pointed to this house being the centre of a new conspiracy. Meanwhile the special tribunal is engaged upon the trial of thirteen respectable Bengalis from Khulna, whom the Government charge with conspiracy to wage war against the King. When these proceedings are over, the tribunal will try the sensational Howrah conspiracy case. There are forty-five accused, some of whom are men of wealth and position. All the preliminary hearings will be held in camera. The nature of the charges and also the evidence is unknown.

Dr. Johnson's Fruit Appetite.

No man ever welcomed the return of the fruit season more heartily than did Dr. Johnson. Of strawberries and cream he declared that he could never have enough, though in his later years he devoured enormous quantities of them. A voracious eater at any time, Johnson's appetite for fruits was limitless. Mrs. Thrale says that he used to eat seven or eight peaches before he began his breakfast. Lucy Porter, at Litchfield, used always to keep the best gooseberries on the bushes in her garden until Johnson came down to pick them.

Using Left-Over Apples.

There is money even in poor quality apples, and Australian growers are deriving considerable profit from apples formerly thrown away. An apple-evaporating plant has been introduced, and a new industry started, which last year yielded profit of over $5,000,000. The machines pare and core the apples, which are then sliced into chips and dried. Even the cores and skin peelings are utilized, being exported to France for the manufacture of vinegar, sauces, etc.

Just Struck 1.

It was an old custom among highwaymen to stop prosperous looking men on the street at night and inquire the time and then when the obliging party had pulled out his watch and named the hour to snatch the watch and run off with it.

One night one of these footpads accosted an athlete.

"What time is it?" inquired the footpad.

The athlete dealt the crook a hard punch on the jaw.

"Just struck 1," said the athlete as the footpad went down before his stinging blow.

"Gee," said the crook as myriads of stars were clouding his vision, "I'm glad I didn't meet you an hour ago!"—National Monthly.

AUTOMATIC TRANSPORTATION CO. LOCATE AT WELLAND

A number from here attended the general stockholders' meeting of the Canadian Automatic Transportation Company Limited, was held yesterday at their head office, Confederation Life Chambers, Toronto, and were loud in their praise of the careful management and great prospects in store for the company.

The company have recently secured a very desirable factory site consisting of several acres in the progressive town of Welland. The location is an ideal one for their business, situated as it is on almost adjacent property to the large steel plant there, which can take care of the rolling out of their rails, posts, etc., and thus save unnecessary transportation charges on this heavy material. It also gives them easy access to seven railroads, besides water transportation for shipping facilities.

Necessary capital has been secured to justify the company to start in active operation and the executive committee was instructed yesterday to get out the plans and specifications of their first factory building, which is to be a modern concrete structure.

The American company whose plant is in Buffalo, N.Y., have had for several months roads in active operation which are earning large profits for the stockholders in that company. They have in their factory and on their grounds in Buffalo nine miles of track all completed and ready for shipment for the Montezuma and several other mining companies in Colorado to carry their total product to the steam line at Keyston. This line, when completed, will have an earning power of about $1,000 per day.

It will be worth your while to call at the local office of the company, 18 Bank of Commerce Building, and see photos of roads and cars operated by this marvellous system in actual operation working among the mountains of Pennsylvania and learn how you can secure stock in the Canadian company before it is all taken up.

VATICAN WILL INTERVENE IN QUEBEC

Montreal, Jan 12.—The announcement made in the Mail and Empire, Toronto, that the Laurier Government would attempt to secure the intervention of the Vatican and of the Quebec bishops in its attempt to offset the Nationalist movement is practically confirmed by Le Canada, the Laurier Government organ, which in to-day's issue makes the following highly significant declaration editorially—

"We believe that direct episcopal action will have to be resorted to in order to put an end to this intemperate zeal. Certain priests, by their excessive imprudence, will soon have created the painful idea that religious and political interests are in common, and that in order to be a good Catholic one must be a Nationalist. It is, indeed, time to put an end to such reasoning. We have the assurance of the leaders of the Church that they are against exploitation of religious sentiment in favor of any political faction, that the Holy See absolutely condemns the reading of political newspapers in their seminaries; in a word, that the Church by its doctrine has always placed itself above political passions."

BURNED A $100 DIAMOND RING

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 11.—Maddened by the sight of a mere basket of candy, sent as a Christmas offering by her fiance, Miss Elizabeth Carroll, flung it into the furnace without further examination. Since then the unlucky swain has been refused admittance to the Carrol home. Summoning up courage he at last called for an explanation, and was asked if he thought he could send a miserable basket of candy to his promised wife for a Christmas gift and get away with it.

When he explained that he never meant to insult the girl of his heart with a mere basket of candy, but thought it would be a delightful surprise to hide a $100 diamond ring among the bonbons, there was almost a fainting. For three hours ash cans were searched in vain for the jewel. But the engagement stands.

GARDEN HILL BOY GOES TO REGINA

The following is from the Toronto News of Jan. 9th:—

"The members of the News staff met in the city room yesterday afternoon and presented Mr. Percy M. Little with a handsome calabash pipe. The presentation was made by Mr. J. C. Crate, the News editor, who spoke of the esteem in which Mr. Little is held by his associates and wished him every success in his new position as telegraph operator of the Regina Leader.

"Tim" Little came to Toronto two years ago after having been a reporter in Eastern and Western Canada on daily newspapers. Since that time he has been reporting the county courts, where he is a familiar figure. He leaves for the West tomorrow night."

Percy is a son of T. M. Little, Postmaster of Garden Hill, and has many many friends who read the Guide, and all will be pleased to hear of his success in his chosen profession. He has had a wide range of experience in newspaper work for his time and will no doubt make good on the "Leader."

ROSENBAUM IS NOT WANTED

New York, Jan. 11 – The immigration authorities at Ellis Island apparently have a problem on their hands in disposing of the case of Benjamin Rosembaum, a former New Yorker, who has been something of a shuttlecock between New York and the Isthmus of Panama since last July.

He went to the isthmus in that month, was twice deported by the Panama authorities and once by the United States immigration officials and to-day is back again, following his second deportation from Panama.

Rosenbaum's troubles arose through certain charges preferred against him by secret service officials in Panama. The authorities on the isthmus ordered him deported.

When he arrived here he was put under bond by the immigration department to await trial. Later the bond was recalled, and on December 1 he was deported.

When he reached Panama he was promptly put in jail again and deported by the Panama Government.

BOERS ARE MANY

New York, Jan. 11.—The following cable to the American from Hamilton, Bermuda, which was published Tuesday morning, is a sample of some of the stuff that occasionally finds its way seriously into print, even in a metropolitan paper:

"Bermuda suffers from a plague of Boers. Though the war was over eight years ago, the islands are burdened with hosts of poor prisoners of war, who are still held because they will not swear allegiance to King George.

"Held by an implacable Imperial Government driven here and there by angry insular authorities, wretched and desperate, the men are literally without country.

"Four thousand of unhappy men were exiled to Bermuda, and those who do not die in the bleak cemetery of Hawkins Island, wander about the islands in a practically destitute condition. Many desperate attempts were made by the prisoners to escape, but only nine of them succeeded.

TEACHER WAS PLEASANTLY SURPRISED

By His Sunday School Class in Otonabee—Presented With a Handsome Enamelled Eight-day Clock

The residence of Mr. S. Matchett, at Stewarts, Otonabee, was invaded one evening last week by his Sunday School class of about thirty young ladies of the River Road Union Sunday School, of whom he has been the faithful teacher for the last seven years.

Mr. Matchett to whom the visit was an entire surprise, was presented with a beautiful enamelled eight-day clock, and Miss Emma McCammus, on behalf of the class, assured their teacher of the high degree of esteem and respect which he holds in their estimation, and of the usefulness and help his teaching has been to the class.

Mr. Matchett to whom the tribute of esteem came as a complete surprise, was able to express his thanks in suitable words, and assured the class that some of the happiest moments of his time were spent when he was engaged in instructing them in the Sunday school.

The remainder of the evening was spent in friendly intercourse, and the evening was one of great enjoyment to teacher and class alike.

At present very little land or houses however are changing hands.

FEAR OF DEATH

Well Known Magistrate Doubts its Effect on the Criminal

The well-known magistrate, Mr. Plowden, contributes an interesting study in criminal psychology to the discussion on the death penalty which has been carried on for the past fortnight in the columns of the "Times." Incidentally Mr. Plowden pleads for a saner judgment of the character and motives of the murderer. He says:

It is a popular fallacy to regard a murderer as the worst of criminals. The real truth is that in many cases it is hardly fair to describe him as a criminal at all.

No one who has not been interested in the fire can tell what may be the effect, on his self-control of a long course of studied insults and provocation on the part of a worthless wife against her husband persevered in day by day, for months and even years at a stretch.

Sir Henry Smith, in his virtuous indignation with Crippen, makes no allowance for desperate circumstances like these.

He is angry with Crippen on account of his coolness in the witness box, which he calls an outrage, and he apparently regards it as a distinct aggravation of his conduct that he should have sworn to love and cherish at the altar, the wife whom he subsequently put to death.

It is somewhat amazing to me that considerations such as these should weigh for a moment in any just appreciation of Crippen's character. They were to me absolutely irrelevant.

What Crippen actually did and for which he suffered death was to kill a wife whom he hated for the sake of a woman whom he loved. Probably of all the murders that are committed under the sun, in one country or another, there is no more common type of murder than this.

It was the irony of Crippen's fate that he did not meet No. 2 until after he had met No. 1. Had such been his good fortune, he would probably have lived a life not better nor worse than his neighbors, and have enjoyed with the best of them, the reputation of a contented, law-abiding citizen. I am convinced from such experience as I have had of criminal courts, extending over many years, that what a man murderously inclined really dreads is not death, but pain.

The spectre of death, though it can always be conjured up, is too remote and shadowy to have much effect on the nerves of a man in the enjoyment of full and vigorous health. Not so with pain. There is no imagination so dull that it cannot take in the terrors of the "cat", and I believe if such punishment could be made part of the sentence, even without abolishing capital punishment, the deterrent effect would be unmistakable.

I think even Crippen's courage, wonderful as it was, would have quailed on that dark and wintry morning, had he known that he would have to endure a flogging before he was hung.

And has he been asked which he feared most — the physical pain of the lash or the death to follow —can anyone doubt what his answer would have been?

LIZARDS ON VENUS

Planet Said to be Inhabited by Monsters

Boston, Jan. 11.—Professor William H. Pickering, of the Harvard observatory, believes that the planet Venus may be populated by millions of prehistoric monsters and lizards, such as roamed the earth 300,000 years ago. He does not fully agree with Professor See, who recently declared that human beings populate Venus, but will not be at all surprised if it is proved that his fellow professor is right.

"Venus is so similar to the earth in size, density of atmosphere, and attraction of gravity that it seems possible and even preferable that life exists upon it," said Professor Pickering. "Up to the present great masses of enveloping clouds have prevented an examination of it such as has been given to Mars, and I shall await with the keenest interest details of Prof. See's observations. Of course, when everything is taken into consideration Venus does not seem more capable of supporting life than any other planet except the earth."

CANADA MAKES SOME MINOR CHANGES IN FISHERY RULES

Voluntary Alterations Will Be Made Assenting to the Objections of the United States — Hague Tribunal Will Not Have to Meet Again to Settle the Question—All In Future Go to Permanent Commission.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The commissioners for the United States and Canada who have been considering the fishery regulations, have reached a decision. The Canadian and Newfoundland Governments undertake to change the existing regulations to remove the objections of the United States, thus making it unnecessary to call upon the board of experts.

The objections to the Newfoundland legislation were found not so easy of reconciliation, and Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, left for home last night with the further task ahead of him of drafting legislation which, it is hoped, may be accepted at a later diplomatic conference. The rock on which Newfoundland and the United States split was the request of the latter that their fishermen should have the right to purchase bait from Newfoundland fishermen without any restrictions, and use it for fishing on the Banks. Sir Edward Morris so far has been unwilling to concede this, and it is said he is desirous of securing in return for it the removal of the American duty on Newfoundland fish. Canada grants the American fishermen free bait now under a modus vivendi. As to the free entry of Canadian fish into the United States, there are those who look for that as one of the provisions under the pending trade treaty, should one be enacted.

The conferences have been going on since Monday morning and followed similar conferences by the State Department with representatives of the Gloucester fishing interests. The formal statement of the outcome issued at the State Department is as follows:

"As a result of these conferences an understanding was reached that instead of calling upon the commission of experts appointed under the award to determine the reasonableness of certain existing fisheries regulations to which the United States had objected, Canada will proceed voluntarily to make such changes in the existing regulations as are necessary to remove the objections of the United States.

"The effect of this arrangement is to make it unnecessary to reassemble the (Hague) tribunal to act upon the report of the experts, and eliminates any further proceedings at The Hague. All differences which may arise in the future as to these or any future regulations which cannot be disposed of by diplomatic negotiations will be referred to the permanent mixed fisheries commission, to be established in accordance with recommendations of the award."

The regulations thus to be modified are understood to refer to the use of purse seines, Sunday fishing, right of search and like subjects.

The United States was represented in the conference by Secretary Knox, Counsellor Chandler P. Anderson, Robert Lansing, one of the counsel of the United States in The Hague arbitration, and Hugh M. Smith, acting commissioner of fisheries. The British were represented by Ambassador Bryce, Sir Edward Morris, Prime Minister of Newfoundland; Sir Allan Aylesworth, Minister of Justice of Canada; L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries of Canada; Geo Young, secretary of the British embassy; Dr. Wahcham of the Canadian fisheries. department,. and. Captain O'Reilly of the Newfoundland fisheries department.

Guests of Earl Grey.

New York, Jan. 13.—The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, their son, Viscount Stranbourne, their two daughters, the Ladies Mary and Beatrice Cecil, the Dowager Countess of Arran and Lady Winifred Core, all arrived here yesterday by the steamship Adriatic, on their way to Ottawa, where they will be the guests of Earl Grey. None of the party has ever been on this side before.

The marquis, who is a son of the late Prime Minister, Lord Salisbury, was reticent about politics. "It is too early yet to tell what will be done with the House of Lords," he said. "However, the fact that the balance of power was practically unchanged by the recent elections would seem to indicate that the people are satisfied with the attitude and program of the Government."

Suit For Slander.

Windsor, Jan. 13.—R. H. Holland, who was defeated by Walter Chater in the recent mayoralty race in Walkerville, yesterday issued a writ against Customs Officer John Bailey of Walkerville, claiming $10,000 for slander. Bailey, on nomination day, is alleged to have made a strong speech against Holland, in which, Holland says, he was called dishonest and charged with swindling people in making real estate deals.

MORGAN IS BUSY

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—J. M. Goethals, representing J. Pierpont Morgan and Company, was in Winnipeg for a few hours yesterday, en route to Edmonton, in connection with the Alberta and Great Waterways Railways deal, for the house of Morgan is determined to stand by the American investors who subscribed $7,400,000 for the building of the line, which would run due north from Edmonton to Fort McMurray.

EDDY WILL IS VOIDED

Concord, N.H., Jan. 13.—An opinion, signed by former U. S. Senator William E. Chandler and others, to the effect that the will of Mrs. Eddy Baker Glover Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, is void, and that she therefore died intestate, and her estate "passed on at her death to her next of kin" was made public here last night. It is not stated whether there will be a contest of the will by Mrs. Eddy's relatives. The matter given out for publication here consists of a letter from Mr. Chandler to Hannis Taylor, professor of constitutional and international law at George Washington University, Washington, D.C., and the reply from Prof. Taylor. This reply contains the opinion that Mrs. Eddy's will is void, and to Prof. Taylor's signature to the opinion have been added those of Mr. Chandler, Attorneys John W. Kelley of Portsmouth and De Witt C. Howe of Concord, who were associated with Mr. Chandler as counsel for the "next friends," and William L. Chambers, a lawyer of Washington.

"Mr. Street (Gen. Frank S. Street of Concord) drew the agreement for my signature. When signing, I took it for granted that Mrs. Eddy would not, in giving away her property, undertake to violate public law. If I had thought that she had already done so, by attempting to create a church with an endowment of two millions of dollars, I should not have signed."

The Panama Canal.

Washington, Jan. 13—President Taft yesterday sent to Congres a special message urging the fortification of the Panama Canal and recommending that an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the initiation of the work on the proposed defences be made at the present session of Congress. He forwarded with the message the report of the special army and navy board, recommending fortification of the canal.

Stranded In Europe.

Boston, Jan. 13.—The filing of the bankruptcy schedule of the Collevert Tours Co., shows that between 25 and 30 Americans who had paid for tickets for a tour around the world are stranded at various points in Europe and Asia. The liabilities of the company aggregate nearly $49,000, with assets of less than $2,500.

HUNTING FOR ANARCHISTS

New York, January 12.—Hunt for 300 alleged Anarchists was begun by the police in Brooklyn this afternoon, following the arrest of Louis Lappa, said to be one of a band, who who threatened the life of Jos. Berger, a shoe manufacturer, of 126 Hudson Avenue, in the Adams street police court.

Several detectives who are taking part in the hunt declared that before it was over its consequences might be more serious than those of the Stepney outbreak in London.

Lappa was charged with intimidating Berger on account of a strike, at his factory. In court he told Berger he would be killed to-morrow. The magistrate immediately sentenced Lappa to thirty' days' imprisonment.

MEMBERS OF THE COMMONS RESENT ATTACK ON THE WEST BY ENGLISH PAPER

Pictures of People Starving and Freezing to Death Were Luridly Described—Western Members Voice Their Wrath at Libels.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—For over an hour in the House of Commons yesterday the west "hit back" to an article which both the Prime Minister and the Opposition leader described as maliciously libellous, published in the English periodical edited by Horatio Bottomley, the eccentric financier, journalist, and Parliamentarian. The Canadian West and its people had been anathematized. Settlers were represented as freezing and starving to death, and gruesome pictures were drawn of the hardships alleged to have been experienced. Corruption was described as rife, and officialdom as a by-word for robbery; while the women were declared to be of the lowest class. The article added that the English settlers were discriminated against in favor of Germans and Americans. All of which, when brought to the attention of the House by Mr. Lake (Qu'Appelle) — himself of English birth—caused some vigorous western plain speaking from the representatives to the sunset side of the great lakes.

Dr. Schaffner (Souris) complained that he must necessarily express his sentiment in thought, as the language he would use would be censored by Parliamentary propriety.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer), however, found opportunity in the incident to ventilate what he termed an English-born Canadian's opinion of "the fool talk of British decadence with which defeated and discredited Unionist politicians sought to lie ignorance into disquiet." He alluded to the address of Sir Joseph Lawrence to the Empire Club in Toronto, in which the latter declared that the price Britain was paying for free trade was one million paupers, as the utterance of a man who was either ignorant or irresponsible.

Mr. Ralph Smith (Nanaimo) opined that the article complained of was penned by "a degenerate, useless Englishman who had failed to make good."

"I have no respect for that freedom of the press," quoth Mr. R. L. Borden, "which permits a man in a representative position to publish what he knows to be thoroughly and contemptibly false."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was grateful that the matter had been brought to the attention of the House. "Not that the statements carry weight," observed the Premier, "because they are so false that they carry their own repudiation, but because of the malice with which they are evidently actuated." It was significant that the libels had been most vigorously met by the English-born members from the west. The allegations were dispelled in no more emphatic way than by the presence of so many of these gentlemen in the Canadian House of Commons.

In the Senate yesterday Senator Landry asked if the Government had given Dr. Grenfell financial aid to place draught reindeer in Canadian Labrador, and, if Dr. Grenfell had not placed the reindeer in Canada, would the Government give further aid.

Sir Richard Cartwright said the Government had granted such aid, and was satisfied with the manner in which Dr. Grenfell had carried out the undertaking. Further aid would be granted.

On motion of Senator Landry the Senate ordered a statement of sums received by the National Battlefields Commission, the expenses of the commission and payments for land.

Senator Lougheed said that the Senate had come back from a long vacation with the expectation of finding a large amount of business ready for its consideration, but had been disappointed, as apparently there was really nothing ready for it. He asked what the prospects were of the Government providing the Senate with some work to do.

Sir Richard Cartwright said that the Senate and the Commons had come back from their vacation on the same day, and this might account for the conditions of which Senator Lougheed complained, as bills had not come up from the Commons. However, he expected that there would be a large amount of legislation placed before the Senate within a very short time.

Shut Out Foreign Combines.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Representative Humphrey's bill to shut out of American ports all steamships that belong to foreign shipping trusts or combinations, received the favorable consideration yesterday of the House committee on merchant marine. It would shut out all foreign ships belonging to shipping commissions, under penalty of $200 for each passenger landed, and the forfeiture of all goods brought in. It would also cancel the mail subsidy contracts of this Government to American ships that belong to such trusts.

Child Killed by Train.

Stratford, Jan. 13.—Norman McMillan, the seven-year-old son of J. W. McMillan of Railway avenue, was struck and instantly killed by the G.T.R. express yesterday afternoon. The lad was returning from school with some playmates and was crossing the tracks at Wild's coal yards when the accident happened.

Train Struck Rig.

Arnprior, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Watt of McNab Township were driving into Arnprior yesterday morning when they were struck by a westbound Grand Trunk freight train at Daniel street crossing. Mr. Watt was instantly killed and Mrs. Watt was seriously hurt. The team escaped unhurt.

WOMAN (VS) WOMAN

Trial of Mrs. Schenk Creating Much Interest.

Wheeling, W.Va., Jan. 13.—It was woman against woman yesterday in the sensational trial of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, charged with placing poison in the food and medicines of her husband, John O. Schenk, the millionaire packer. Unmasking his heaviest batteries, Prosecuting Attorney Handlan called as his first witness "Miss Evans," the woman of mystery in the case, who nursed Schenk during his illness from poison.

When court opened at 9 o'clock half an hour earlier than usual, a storm of wind and rain was sweeping the city, and Judge Jordan had the smallest crowd so far in the course of the trial to contend with.

The request of Judge Jordan that the trial be hurried was pleasing news to the jurors, who were anxious to get to their homes, despite an unusual diversion which is allowed them in their quarters in the court house. The jurors are spending the evening in the fascinating recreation of playing "penny ante," four hundred pennies and three decks of cards being allowed them.

Comb Penetrated Scalp.

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—When crossing the icy street at the corner of Talbot and Dundas street yesterday Mrs. John Westman of East Dundas street fell, striking her head on the ground. The comb in her hair penetrated the scalp and caused a serious wound. Her head was also severely bruised.

Threw Snuff In Theatre.

Welland, Jan. 13.—For the past few nights some unknown person has been throwing snuff in the Drexel Theatre, with the result that it was impossible to continue the performance. On Tuesday night Frank Shurer was arrested and fined $14 for the offence.

Severed His Arm.

Harriston, Jan. 13.—While operating a straw-cutting machine on his farm at Drew Station, Arthur Shannon's hand came in contact with the rapidly-revolving knives, which severed the right arm below the elbow. He is expected to recover.

Victoria, Jan. 13.—The Legislature opened yesterday. Amongst the new legislation are bills for the inspection of logging and railway construction camps, and one dealing with insurance. The university endowment question is also up for consideration.

FINTON MURDER TRIAL IS ABSORBING MUCH INTEREST

ARCHBISHOP BRUCHESI.
Who has, it is Reported, Taken Steps to Open a Campaign on Freemasonry.

THE FIRST BILL

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The first bill to be passed in the House of Commons this year was that of F. B. Carvell, of Carleton, N.B., to adopt a 160 lb standard barrel for potatoes. Mr. Carvell pointed out that the Canada barrel was a 180 lb. standard, while in the States the standard was 160 lbs. Thus is a dealer got an order for a certain number of barrels from the States he could keep 20 lbs. on each barrel. The bill passed without a dissenting voice.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC LINE COMPLETED

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—The preparations have all but been completed for the arrangement of the patrol and the care of the hydro power line from here to the Falls.

It is the intention of the commission to erect, as soon as possible, a big horse-power automobile at each fifty miles.

In the local barn there will be four horses, one to work from here to St. Mary's another to St. Thomas, and one on the main line and a truck horse. The horses will work ten miles each way out of the barns, and the autos 25 miles each way, and the latter will be used only for night and hurry calls.

There will be two men on each patrol, and they will spend the night at watch-stations erected at ten-mile points, to be on hand for any emergency whatever. There will be a 'phone in these houses, and also cooking apparatus, beds, etc.

In this way the commission mean to have the very best possible service given the cities and towns all over western Ontario.

Baron Swaythling Dead.

London, Jan. 13.—Baron Swaythling, the banker, died here yesterday.

Montagu Samuel-Montagu, the first Baron Swaythling, was born Dec. 21, 1832, and was the son of the late Louis Samuel, a watchmaker of Liverpool. For over 50 years he conducted business in London, and until September, 1890, was head of the banking firm of Samuel Montagu & Co. In 1894 he was granted a royal license to assume the surnames of Samuel-Montagu, and created a baronet, and in 1907 he was elevated to the peerage, taking the title of Baron Swaythling of Swaythling. The baron took a great interest in advancing Jewish and other institutions and in founding new synagogues.

Message on Table.

Toronto, Jan. —"I have taken——." These words, scrawled upon a sheet of paper and an empty two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid lying upon a nearby table, were the plain explanation of the finding of Mrs. Samuel G. Ball in a dying condition at her home at 681 Crawford street, by a neighbor.

She died about two hours later, after medical aid had been summoned. Ill-health is given as the cause of her act. She was 45 years of age and lived with her husband.

Prisoner Threatened to Leave His Father, Says Witness—Blackstock and Staunton Continue Their Bickerings and Add to Excitement of Case—Brother Found Sixty Dollars Under Head of Lounge.

Hamilton, Jan. 13.—The passages between counsel in the Finton murder trial have been one of the most interesting features of the affair so far. Yesterday George Tait Blackstock, K.C., and George S. Lynch-Staunton, K.C., had several more bitter exchanges. Mr. Staunton objected a number of times to Blackstock's mode of examining the witnesses, and Mr. Blackstock made similar objections, until it was necessary for Justice Teetzel to act as peacemaker between them.

George Millen, ex-reeve of Saltfleet, and an intimate friend of the murdered man, said he told Tom that his father had complained to him of the way the son was acting toward him, and that he had threatened to sell the farm, thereby putting Tom and his wife out of the place. He said he went out with Tom to the barn, when the latter returned from Hamilton, and that Tom refused to look at the body. Mr. Staunton accused the witness of doing all he could to throw suspicion on Tom.

J. W. Finton, the prisoner's brother, explained that when removing a lounge which came to him as a part of his father's furniture, $60 in Traders' Bank bills were found under the head of it. The witness said he went to the jail at the request of Mr. Staunton to see if Tom had a cut on his finger, but forgot it when he got there. He added that he did not have to look for the cut, and Mr. Staunton replied that he might have made it his business to do so, as he was the prisoner's brother. The witness protested that Mr. Staunton was trying to impute something to him, and told him that he did not like what he said.

"I have not said anything," said Mr. Staunton.

"It's the way he says it," chipped in Mr. Blackstock.

Mrs. J. W. Finton said she noticed a coolness between Tom and his father, and that he and his wife were not at the old home for Christmas with the rest of the family.

David Muir, cashier of the Traders' Bank at Stoney Creek, said he cashed a check for $100 for Elijah Finton several days before his death. The witness said that Mrs. Tom Finton did not have an account with the bank, but it was subsequently learned that she had, and that it was under the name of Mrs. Tom Finton, and not Mrs. Bella Finton, the name which he had looked for.

At the conclusion of the morning's session, the prisoner's friends all crowded around him and congratulated him on the good fight being made for him. His wife, a pretty, girlish-looking woman, her face much flushed with anxious excitement, shyly approached him, and after shaking hands urged him to "cheer up." He laughed brightly, and thereby showed that he was not in need of encouragement.

Six of the crown's witnesses were heard on Wednesday, and eight yesterday morning. There are twenty-two crown witnesses altogether, and six or seven defence witnesses. At this rate of progress a conclusion in the trial cannot possibly be reached before to-night at the earliest. Both sides are making an effort to get the hearing over by Saturday, so as not to have the jury locked up over Sunday.

At yesterday afternoon's session Dr. Thompson, coroner, of Stony Creek, told of being summoned to the Finton farm and finding the body lying with the arms folded across the breast. The skull was crushed in on top, and there were pools of blood twelve inches from the body.

The skull being produced, the doctor indicated in detail how it was cracked. He did not think that, had the deceased fallen by accident where he was found, the arms would have been folded as they were. In answer to Mr. Blockstock, he said he thought death was caused by a blow on the head.

The Plague In Manchuria.

Pekin, Jan. 13.—Bubonic plague in Manchuria is spreading rapidly. Reports received here state that hundreds of persons are dying every day, and that the number of fatalities is increasing. A French plague expert has succumbed to the disease. The Chinese Government has appealed to the foreign community for assistance in combatting the epidemic, and four missionary doctors, one an American and the others British, have volunteered their services.

It is planned to quarantine the railways and the great wall, in the hope of arresting the spread of the scourge southward.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, JAN. 13, 1911.

GOOD FOR PETERBOROUGH

The comparative statistics published yesterday in the Review of the growth of Ontario cities and towns since 1901, was very illuminating, especially as regards Peterborough.

The statement shows conclusively, on an assessment census, that Peterborough has grown much faster, progressed more than other cities, which were on a population equality with Peterborough ten years ago

A decade ago Peterborough had 11,000 population Woodstock had 9,250, Guelph 11,271, Stratford 10,450, St Catharines 10,485, Owen Sound 9,255, St Thomas 11,900, Chatham 8,650, Brockville 8 860, Berlin 9 9,4. All of these were in Peterborough's class. To-day what do we find? Peterborough has outstripped them all in growth Peterborough, in the 1910 census—assuming it is a fair test—had 17,000 inhabitants Woodstock had 9,450, a growth of 200 people; Guelph—where the tax rate is so low, you know—had 14,000, a gain of 3,500; Stratford 14,800, a growth of 4,400; St. Catharines had 12,652, a growth of 2,200; Owen Sound had 12,000, a growth of 2,800; St Thomas had 14,875, a gain of 2,900; Chatham 10,300, a gain of 1,700; Brockville 9,275, a growth of 400; Berlin 13,660, an increase of 3,700

What a satisfactory proof of Peterborough's progress! Peterborough gained 6,000 population—THE BIGGEST INCREASE OF ANY CITY IN ONTARIO IN ITS CLASS

Doesn't it make you want to feel some pride in your city, Mr Citizen, Mr. Business Man! Kingston grew about 800 in ten years—Peterborough 6,000. What a comparison!

The reason has been the establishment of powerful factories here, and the fact that power can be secured on good terms Guelph's taxes are lower, if figures tell the truth, but low low taxes, apparently, don't guarantee progress Such a record as Peterborough can show is one to be proud of. THE BI-LINGUAL QUESTION

The Kingston Standard, in discussing the bi-lingual language question, as affecting Ontario, says;

In view of the coming report to the Legislature on bi-lingual schools and the probable re-opening of the question it may be well at this juncture to note carefully section 173 of the British North America Act of Canada, and defining, among other things, the status of the English and French languages respectively. This section is as follows;

"133.—Either the English or the French language may be used by any person in the debates of the Houses of the Parliament of Canada and of the Houses of the Legislature of Quebec; and both these languages shall be used in respective records and journals of those Houses; and either of those languages may be used by any person or in any pleading or process in or issuing from any court of Canada established under this act, and in or from all or any of the courts of Quebec. The acts of the Parliament of Canada and of the Legislature of Quebec shall be printed and published in both these languages."

As will be seen, this section expressly gives the English language a status in the Province of Quebec equal with the French language while at the same time it gives the French language a status in the House of Parliament at Ottawa equal with the English language.

Nothing is said about the French language in Ontario, showing conclusively that in this English Province no official status was given either in the Legislature or in the Courts to the French language. If, as is a fact, the Nationalist speakers and writers are discussing the subject as though recognition of the English language in Quebec were a favor and sprang from the magnanimous toleration of the French people and therefore that the English of Ontario should display an equal toleration by permitting the French language a similar recognition in this Province there will be found in this section of our Constitutional Act a sufficient refutation both of their assumption as to Quebec and their conclusion as to Ontario.

The plain simple truth is that these gentlemen are not only assuming too much in Quebec but they are demanding too much in Ontario. They cannot take English from the minority in Quebec even if they would; while in Ontario they have no minority rights whatever and we in Ontario will be well-advised if we prevent any further entering of the thin end of the wedge. This is an English speaking Province and an English speaking country, a fact ever to be borne in mind.

CONVINCING STATISTICS

The forestry branch of the Department of the Interior has collected figures from fifty of the sixty pulp mills in Canada. Half of these mills are located in Quebec, one-fifth in Ontario, and the remainder in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and British Columbia.

Three-fifths of the pulpwood cut in Canada in 1909 was exported FOR MANUFACTURE to the United States. Nearly all this went from Quebec, which not very long ago put an embargo on such export The pulpwood shipped from Canada in 1909 furnished nearly half of the pulp used by the ninety pulp mills of New York State, and much of that used by New England and Pennsylvania mills. The manufacture of the pulpwood exported in 1909 kept 69 of the 251 pulp mills of the United States running full capacity for the year Had it been manufactured in Quebec, it would have kept 71 mills running of the same size as those now existent.

Can any stronger argument be furnished for a policy of forcing the manufacture of all raw material into products in Canada, giving Canadians the proper benefit of their natural resources?

A CANDID OPINION

We reproduce the following from the Catholic Register, merely to demonstrate what the English language is capable of Isn't it marvelously elastic?—

"We have seen copies of the pamphlets referred to, which have been distributed extensively by Rev. Elmore Harris, of the Toronto Bible Association At one glance it is seen they are simply the distorted and horrible lucubrations of a hopelessly insane person We marvel at the aboriginal grade of intelligence displayed by Minister Harris in writing a preface to them His idea of Protestant intellectuality is surely not flattering We leave the 'refutation' of such things to other mad-house inmates of like tendencies"

AN HONEST ESTIMATE

Mr M. Y. McLean, Liberal member for South Huron writing to his paper, The Seaforth Exchange,' says—

"Mr. Borden is a gentleman in every sense of the term It is no personal profit to him to be in politics He has ability to adorn his own profession and were he to devote himself to that he would make five times more money than he receives for being leader of the Opposition

EDITORIAL NOTES

When the Chinese assemblymen all get talking at once it would be great to Pekin

Toronto city council won't take steps to bar cranks from being mayoralty candidates Even cranks have sensible turns occasionally

The Chinese national assembly is in trouble Someone has demanded that the emperor amputate his pig-tail. What a queuerious request

It is evident that nothing is to be feared from the reciprocity negotiations—as the disposition of the United States politicians and interests is too strongly against concessions that might be of real value to Canadians. Well, Canada can do very nicely as she is, thank you!

The report of the American members of the Waterways Commission urges complete government control of all such power projects, where navigation is affected. It is a body blow at the $50,000,000 syndicate Canada cannot do better than to follow the Biblical injunction, "Go thou and do likewise."

J. M. Clark, K.C., the eminent barrister of Toronto, has been chosen by the Dominion Government to codify the mining laws Probably no one in Canada is as well qualified to do it as he is. His career has been most brilliant, and when he goes to the bench it will be a great loss to the bar.

ALD BRADBURN'S STAND.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In the issue of the Evening Examiner dated 10th. I noticed a letter signed "Ex-Tank," in reference to the stand that Alderman Bradburn took on the T.A.S. exemption. Well Alderman Bradburn is perhaps one of the largest property holders in the city, and pardon me for making the suggestion that I don't think Ex-Tank ever owned a foot of real estate in Peterborough or ever will. He is probably a past president of the T.A.S. of which there are quite a number in the city who have not even got a vote. I would suggest that in case of past events Ex-Tank and his friends might just as well let sleeping dogs lie. Ald. Bradburn will give him and his friends a square deal and so will

Yours truly,
A FRIEND OF KING WILLIAM

A GOOD FRIEND

To the Editor of the Review.

The Catholic Register says: "The Peterborough Review is guilty of the following execrable pun: "Archbishop Begin, of Quebec, has put a grand opera company in Montreal under his ecclesiastical ban. The opera company will Begin to take notice shortly." Now it were bad enough to perpetrate that sort of infamy upon poor readers without also giving evidence of a narrowness and bias of which our esteemed contemporary ought to be ashamed"

This statement in the Catholic Register is not correct, and I will be glad if you will print it and say that Catholics of the Electric City think your paper their best friend.

NUDE ART TOO STRONG

Figures on State Capitol Must be Draped to Please Public

Philadelphia, Pa. Jan 12 — George Gray Barnard, the American sculptor and designer of the studies in nude which were to have adorned the State Capitol in Harrisburg, and about which much agitation has been raised on account of their nudity that they may be attired in the latest costumes, is so impressed with the idea that Americans have not been educated up to the standard of "nude in art" that he is willing to have his masterpieces draped in order to have them correspond with the views of Pennsylvanians on the art idea.

BARNARD SAYS

Mr. Barnard said: "You see this is a new land. Pioneer days here are only a matter of yesterday, and art has had little or no chance to see through the masses as in older countries where its place and power are fixed.

"Our people as a whole must be educated in the matter, and while there isn't an earthly reason why the figure of a man should shock anyone, it is an indisputable fact that many of those who visit the Capitol would be shocked, and so shocked that they would be repelled by rather than impressed with the life lessons I want them to impress upon every beholder.

GOD'S MASTERPIECE

"I feel sorry for the man or woman who cannot look on God's masterpeice without a blush, but my feelings and yours are not the big thing in this matter.

"The time will come when conditions will be changed. The people will take higher ground and then, of course, the drapery can and will be removed. It may be a hundred years or longer, but it will come,"

There has been a good steady trade for cattle all week, commencing with Monday.

Prices have been firm and all offerings readily taken at the prices given daily. George Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Co., 200 cattle at following prices: Steers and heifers, $5.40 to $6.30; cows, $2.50 to $5.10; bulls, $3.75 to $5.30.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby, who is again on deck at the market, reports few stockers and feeders on offer, and few being enquired after. Murby, Maybee & Wilson sold 5 loads of butchers, good to choice at $5.50 to $6, common to medium at $4.85 to $5.40.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves remain firm at $3.50 to $8.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

The hog market has been unsettled all week. It is said that the country roads are in such a condition that many farmers cannot get their hogs to the nearest station, which accounted for the light delivery early in the week, which caused prices to advance. But to-day there was several loads. Prices were reported to-day at $7.60 to $7.70 for hogs, fed and watered at the market, and $7.25 to $7.40 was paid for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points.

should always be used where several people sit, because it does not strain the eyes of those sitting far from it.

The Rayo Lamp is constructed to give the maximum diffused white light. Every detail that increases its light-giving value has been included.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp. You may pay $5, $10 or even $20 for other lamps and get a more expensive container—but you cannot get a better light than the Rayo gives.

This season's Rayo has a new and strengthened burner. A strong, durable shade-holder keeps the shade on firm and true. Easy to keep polished, as it is made of solid brass, finished in nickel.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

He led her to the shore and saw her abroad, then waved goodby and walked moodily back to the office, gratified that she should try to help him, yet certain that she could not succeed where he and George had failed.

"Fingerless" Fraser had breakfast late, as was his luxurious custom, and shortly before noon, in the course of his dissatisfied meanderings, he found his friend in the office, lost in somber thought. It was the first time in many weeks that he had seen this mood in Boyd, and after a fruitless effort to make him talk he fell into his old habit of imaginary reading, droning away to himself as if from a printed page:

"'Your stay among us has not been very pleasant, has it?' Mr. Emerson inquired.

"'Not so that you could notice it,' replied our hero. 'I don't like fish, and I never did.'

"'That is the result of prejudice; the fish is a noble animal,' Mr. Emerson declared.

"'He's not an animal at all,' our hero gently corrected. 'He's a biped—a regular wild biped, without either love of home or affection for his children. The salmon is of a low order of intelligence and has a Queen Anne slant to his roof. No person with a retreating forehead like that knows very much. The only other member of the animal kingdom that is as foolish as the salmon is Alton Clyde. The fish has got a shade the best of it over him, but as for friendship and the gentler emotions—why, the salmon hasn't got them at all. The only thing he's got is a million eggs and a sense of direction. If he had a spark of intelligence he'd lay one egg a year, like a hen, and thus live for a million years. But does he? Not on your Sarony! He's a spendthrift and turns his eggs loose a hatful at a time. He's worse than a shotgun. And then, too, he's as clannish as a Harvard graduate and don't associate with nobody out of his own set. No, sir! Give me a warm blooded animal that suckles its young. I'll take a farmer every time.'

"'These are points I had never considered,' said Mr. Emerson, 'but every business has its drawbacks, you'll agree. If I have failed as a host, what can I do to entertain you while you grace our midst?'

"'You can do most anything,' remarked his handsome companion. 'You can climb a tree or do anything except fish all the time.'

"'But it is a dark night without, and I fear some mischief is afoot.'

"'True! But yonder beautcheous gel'"—

Roused by the familiarity of these lines, Emerson looked up from his preoccupation and smiled at Fraser's serious pantomime.

"What about that 'beautcheous gel' and the mischief that is afoot?"

"Oh, I heard all about your trouble. I just left the pesthouse."

"The what?"

"The pesthouse—Clyde's joint. Ain't he a calamity?"

"In what way?"

"Well, I like silence and quietude. I'm a fool about my quiet, but Clyde"—He paused as if in search for suitable expression. "Well, whenever I try to say anything he interrupts me." After another pause he went on: "He's dead sore on this place, too, and whines around like a litter of pups. He says he was misled into coming up here and has a hunch he's going to lose his bank roll."

"Last night's episode frightened him, I dare say."

"Yes. Ever since he got that wallop on the burr in Seattle a guinea pig could lick him hand to hand. You'd think that ten thou' he put up was all the wealth of the Inkers."

"The wealth of what?"

"Inkers! That's a tribe of rich Mexicans. However, I suppose I'd hang to my coin the same way he does if I had a mayonnaise head like his. He's an awful shine as a business man."

"So he's homesick, eh?"

"Sure! Offered to sell me his stock." Fraser threw back his head and gave vent to one of his rare laughs. "Ain't that a rave?"

"Here he comes now," Boyd announced, with a glance out the window, and the next instant Alton Clyde entered, a picture of dejection.

"Gee! This is fierce, isn't it?" the clubman began, flinging himself into the nearest chair. "They tell me it's all off finally. What are you going to do?"

"Put up what fish I can with a short crew," said Boyd.

"We'll lose a lot of money."

"Probably."

Clyde's tone was querulous as he continued:

"I'm sorry I ever went into this thing. You bet if I had known as much in Chicago as I know now I would have hung on to my money and stayed at home."

"You knew as much as we did," Boyd declared curtly.

"Oh, it's all right for you to talk. You haven't risked any coin in the deal, but I'm a rotten business man, and I'll never make my ante back again if I lose it."

"Don't whine about it," said Boyd stiffly. "You can at least be game and lose like a man."

"Then we are going to lose, eh?" queried Clyde in a scared voice. "I thought maybe you had a plan. Look here," he began an instant later. "Cherry pulled us out once before. Why don't you let her see what she can do with Marsh?"

Boyd scanned the speaker's face sharply before speaking.

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean she can work him if she tries, the same way she worked Hilliard."

"Marsh isn't in the mood to listen to arguments. I have tried that."

"Who said anything about arguments? You know what I mean."

"I don't care to listen to that sort of talk."

"Why not? I'm entitled to have my say in things." Clyde was growing indignant. "I put in $10,000 of my own money and $25,000 besides on your assurances. That's $35,000 more than you put up."

"Nevertheless it doesn't give you the right to insult the girl."

"Insult her! Bah! You're no fool, Boyd. Why did Hilliard advance that loan?"

"Because he wanted to, I dare say."

"What's the use of keeping that up? You know as well as I do that she worked him, and worked him well. She'd do it again if you asked her. She'd do anything for you."

CHAPTER XVI.

BOYD broke out roughly: "I tell you, I've heard enough of that talk, Alton. Anybody but an idiot would know that Cherry is far too good for what you suggest. And when you insult her you insult me."

"Oh, she's good enough," said Clyde. "They're all good, but not perhaps in the way you mean."

"How do you know?"

"I don't know, but Fraser does. He's known her for years. Haven't you, Fraser?" But the adventurer's face was like wood as they turned toward him.

"I don't know nothing," replied "Fingerless" Fraser, with an admirable show of ignorance.

"Well, judge for yourself." Clyde turned again to Emerson. "Who is she? Where did she come from? What is she doing here alone? Answer that. Now, she's interested in this deal just as much as any of us, and if you don't ask her to take a hand I'm going to put it up to her myself."

"You'll do nothing of the sort!" Boyd cried savagely.

Clyde rose hastily, and his voice was shaking with excitement as he stammered:

"See here, Boyd, you're to blame for this trouble, and now you either get us out of it or buy my stock."

"You know that I can't buy your stock."

"Then I'll sell wherever I can. I've been stung, and I want my money. Only, remember, I offered the stock to you first."

"You've got a swell chance to make a turn in Kalvik," said Fraser. "Why don't you take it to Marsh?"

"I will!" declared Alton.

"You wouldn't do a trick like that?" Emerson questioned quickly.

"Why not? You won't listen to my advice. You're playing with other people's money, and it doesn't matter to you whether you win or lose. If this enterprise fails I suppose you can promote another."

"Get out!" Boyd ordered, in such a tone that the speaker obeyed with indicious haste.

"Did you know Cherry before you came to Kalvik?" Boyd asked, searching his companion's face with a look the man could not evade.

"Only casual."

"Where?"

"Nome—the year of the big rush."

"During the mining troubles, eh?"

"Sure."

"What was she doing?"

"Minding her business. She's good at that." Fraser's eyes had become green and fishy, as usual.

"What do you know about her?"

"Well, I know that a lot of fellows would 'go through' for her at the drop of a hat. She could have most anything they've got, I guess. Most any of them miners at Nome would give his right eye or his only child, or any little thing like that, if she asked it."

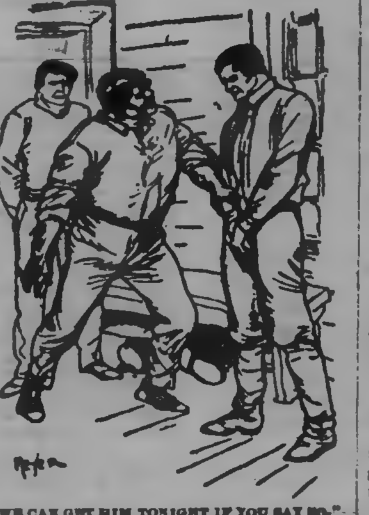
"What else?"

"Well, she was always considered a right good looking party"—

"Yes, yes; of course. But what do you know about the girl herself? Who is she? What is her history?"

"Now, sir, I'm an awful poor detective," confessed "Fingerless" Fraser. "I've often noticed that about myself. If I was the kind that goes snooping around into other people's business, listening to all the gossip I'm told, I'd make a good witness. But I ain't. No, sir! I'm a rotten witness."

Despite this indirect rebuke, Boyd might have continued his questioning had not George Balt's heavy step sounded outside. A moment later the big fellow entered.



"WE CAN GET HIM TONIGHT IF YOU SAY SO."

"What did you find at the traps?" asked Emerson eagerly.

"Nothing." George spoke shortly. "The fish struck in this morning, but our trap is corked." He wrenched off his rubber boots and flung them savagely under a bench.

"What luck with the boats?"

"Not much. Marsh's men are trying to surround our gill netters, and we ain't got enough boats to protect ourselves." He looked up meaningly from under his heavy brows and inquired, "How much longer are we going to stand for this?"

"What do you mean? I've got men out hunting for new hands."

"You know what I mean," the giant rumbled, his red eyes flaming. "You and I can get Willis Marsh."

Emerson shot a quick glance at Fraser, who was staring fixedly at Big George.

"He's got us right enough, and it's bound to come to a killing some day, so the sooner the better," the fisherman ran on. "We can get him tonight if you say so. Are you in on it?"

Boyd faced the window slowly, while the others followed him with anxious eyes. Inside the room a deathlike silence settled.

Moreover, Mildred Wayland was soon to arrive—the yacht was expected daily—and she would find him a failure. What was worse, she would find that Marsh had vanquished him. She would turn elsewhere—perhaps to the very man who had contrived his undoing. At thought of this a sort of desperation seemed to master him; he began to mutter aloud.

"What did you say?" queried Balt.

"I said that you are right. The time is close at hand for some sort of a reckoning," answered Boyd in a harsh, strained voice.

"Good!"

Emerson was upon the point of turning when his eyes fell upon a picture that made him start, then gaze more intently. Out upon the placid waters, abreast of the plant, the launch in which Cherry had departed was approaching, and it was loaded down with men. Not only were they crowded upon the craft itself, but trailing behind it like the tail of a kite was a long line of canoes, and these also were peopled.

"Look yonder!" cried Boyd.

"What?"

"Cherry has got—a crew!" His voice broke, and he bolted toward the door as Big George leaped to the window.

"Injuns!" wildly shouted the giant, and without stopping to stamp his feet into his boots he rushed out barefoot after Boyd and Fraser. Together the three men reached the dock in time to help Cherry up the ladder.

"What does this mean?" Boyd asked her breathlessly. "Will these fellows work?"

"That's what they're here for," said the girl. After her swarmed a crowd of slant eyed, copper hued Aleuts. Those in the kyaks astern cast off and paddled toward the beach.

"I've got fifty men, the best on the river. I tried to get more, but—there aren't any more."

"Fingerless" Fraser slapped himself resoundingly upon the thigh and exploded profanely. Boyd seized the girl's hands in his and wrung them.

"Cherry, you're a treasure!" The memory of his desperate resolution of a moment before swept over him suddenly and his voice trembled with a great thankfulness.

"Don't thank me!" Cherry exclaimed. "It was more Constantine's work than mine."

"But I don't understand. These are Marsh's men."

"To be sure, but I was good to them when they were hungry last winter, and I prevailed upon them to come. They aren't very good fishermen. They're awful lazy and they won't work half as hard as white men, but it's the best I could do." She laughed gladly, more than repaid by the look in her companion's face. "Now get me some lunch. I'm fairly starved."

Big George, when he had fully grasped the situation, became the boss fisherman on the instant. Before the others had reached the cookhouse he was busied in laying out his crews and distributing his gear. The impossible had happened; victory was in sight; the fish were running. He cared to know no more.

That night the floors of the fish dock groaned beneath a weight of silver sided salmon piled waist high to a tall man. All through the cool, dim lit hours the ranks of Chinese butchers hacked and slit and slashed with swift, sure, tireless strokes, while the great building echoed hollowly to the clank of machines and the hissing sighs of the soldering furnaces.

It seemed to Boyd that he had never felt such elation as during the days that followed. He trod upon air; his head was in the clouds. He joked with his men, inspiring them with his own good humor and untiring energy. He was never idle save during the odd hours that he snatched for sleep.

While the daily output was disappearing, Emerson drew consolation from the prospect that his pack would be large enough at least to avert utter ruin.

Up at the trust's headquarters Willis Marsh was in a fine fury. As far as possible his subordinates avoided him.

On the third day after Boyd's deliverance Constantine sought him out in company with several of the native fishermen, translating their demand to be paid for the fish they had caught.

"Can't they wait until the end of the week?" Emerson inquired.

"No! They got no money—they got no grub. They say little baby is hungry, and they like money now. So soon they buy grub, they work some more."

"Very well. Here's an order on the bookkeeper."

Boyd tore a leaf from his notebook and wrote a few words on it, telling the men to present it at the office. As Constantine was about to leave he called to him:

"Wait! I want to talk with you."

The breed halted.

"How long have you known Mr. Marsh?"

"Me know him long time."

"Do you like him?"

A flicker ran over the fellow's coppery face as he replied:

"Yes. Him good man."

"You used to work for him, did you not?"

"Yes."

"Why did you quit?"

Must Pay Charges.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—No more bargain counter incorporations will be allowed to slip into Ontario. Companies have been securing incorporation at Ottawa and a $25 to $50 license from the Ontario Government to do business in this province. Hereafter the possession of a Dominion charter will not relieve the holders from full incorporation charges in Ontario.

The rule governing such cases in the past was as follows:

Fees for licenses are fixed in each case by order-in-council, depending largely on the amount of capital used in Ontario, calculated on the foregoing table of fees for the incorporation of domestic companies, except in the case of Dominion corporations, which may pay either $25 or $50. If the company's capital is $100,000 or less the fee is $25; if the capital exceeds $100,000, the fee is $50.

Chin Wah Nok New Secretary.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—Chin Wah Nok of Canton, China, has been appointed English secretary of the Chinese consul-general for Canada, Mr. Wang, by the Imperial Chinese Government. The new secretary arrived in the capital at noon yesterday, and was received by a large delegation of local Chinamen. Mr. Hum Quom, the local member of the Chinese Parliament, who has been aiding the English secretary to the consul, received the new appointee officially, and turned over the office to him.

Mr. Hum Quom said that it was more than likely he would attend the next session of Parliament in China, to which he was elected.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

POLICE COURT

Vag Got Two Months—Fines In Three Other Cases

At the police court this morning Bruce Roddy acknowledged that the charge vagrancy preferred against him was quite true.

"What will it be, six months or three?" asked the magistrate.

Roddy thought he would like two months.

"He knocks around the city, and one of the troubles with him is drunk," put in the chief.

HE WAS BROKE.

His Worship couldn't understand why Fred Barlow, an unemployed bartender, didn't have $2 with which to pay a fine on a drunk charge, especially when the accused stated that he had been working for about seven months.

He got ten days in which to hand over the two bucks.

A WEAK MEMBER.

Wm. Arthur pleaded guilty to violating the laws of the blacklist.

He offended yesterday, after having been served with the notice on Wednesday.

Questioned by the court as to who served him with the refreshments, Arthur said that he was given whiskey and beer by the shorter of the two bartenders in the Montgomery House bar.

"Did the bartender know you were on the blacklist?" asked His Worship.

"Not that I know of," replied the witness.

"Did he know who you were?"

"I don't think so."

The fine was $10 with ten days' grace.

SCRAPPERS.

Those two followers of the squared circle who transgressed against by-law 895 on Tuesday night were assessed $5.40 and $4.60.

P.C. Newhall said they were fighting on George street. Both told a different story.

COURT CHEMONG OFFICERS WERE INSTALLED

The installation of officers of Court Chemong, 530, I.O.F., took place last night at the semi-annual meeting of the order, Bro. Rooke, C.R., presiding.

It being the first meeting of the year, the officers' reports were given, including the report of the financial secretary, Bro. G. W. Powell, and Treasurer Wm. Madill. The reports showed the affairs and finances of the Court to be in a very satisfactory condition.

The officers were installed in their various chairs of office by Bro. Frank Frank Mullett. Bro. Mullett addressed the meeting briefly in the interests of the order, and gave a very interesting account of his experiences in the west, where the order was making splendid progress, he stated. The membership of one court in his late district was increased by over 200 last year.

Bro Mullett has been appointed district organizer for Eastern Ontario and will have his headquarters at Peterborough.

Arrangements are being made to hold under the direction of Bro. Brownlee, V.C.R., and Bro. Webb, P.C.R., a concert and social evening in the near future.

K.C.'S IN A FISTIC FIGHT

Montreal, Jan. 13.—Considerable excitement was caused in legal circles when two eminent King's Counsel and a young lawyer engaged in a brief fisticuff battle in the police court before Judge Lanctot this morning.

The participants in the scuffle were James Crankshaw, K.C., known all over Canada as the author of "Crankshaw's Criminal Code"; Horace Hutchins, K.C., and Jimmy Crankshaw, the well-known Rugby player, who is in partnership with his father.

The Crankshaws were prosecuting a girl on a charge of perjury, and Mr. Hutchins was defending her and trying to delay the trial on a doctor's certificate. This was opposed by the Crankshaws, on the ground that it was not complete, when Mr. Hutchins, K.C., offered to make an affidavit himself, and ironically remarked that his learned friend could then go after him for perjury.

Mr. Crankshaw replied to the effect that this was not advisable, as the Montreal jail was already overflowing.

To this merry quip Mr. Hutchins responded with a right-hand swing to Mr. Crankshaw's jaw. Although the latter is well over sixty he nimbly sidestepped, and the blow only grazed his ear. Jimmy Crankshaw was standing beside his father as he dodged, and at once hastened to the rescue. Over his father shoulder he landed a left jolt flush on Mr. Hutchins' chin, which was fortunately protected by a fur collar or he would probably have taken the count. As he fell back from the blow young Crankshaw started after Mr. Hutchins, remarking that next time he had better choose someone his own age. But Sub-Chief Carpenter was standing behind the young lawyer and pulled him back, and a moment later cooler counsels prevailed. Judge Lanctot seemed to rather enjoy the proceedings, and no arrests were made, although subsequently several apologies were tendered the Judge by the beliggerent lawyers.

65 LICENSES TO GO ON MAY 1

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Sixty-five licenses will be cut off on the first day of May as a result of the voting on local option by-laws this year in twenty-five municipalities. In thirty municipalities, in which there are licenses, by-laws were carried, but not by sufficient majorities to bring the law into force. There was a majority against local option in twenty-five municipalities, having 116 licenses. Of the twenty-six places carrying local option three are incorporated towns, eight incorporated villages, and fifteen are townships.

The report of these campaigns, and of the more than two thousand meetings held by the Ontario branch of the Dominion Allience during 1910 in connection with field days, as well as of the fourteen county conventions held following the work of field days, will be given by the Campaign Committee of the Executive at its annual meeting this afternoon in the Confederation Life building.

DEATH OF YOUNG MAN WHO TOOK COURSE HERE

The death of Mr. Merton Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Young, of Almonte, Ont., occurred yesterday in Toronto. Deceased, who was in his 20th year, was a student at the School of Practical Science, and returned to the city a week ago yesterday to resume his studies. Following a sudden illness, it was found that Mr. Young was suffering from appendicitis, and an operation was performed by Dr. Starr last Friday evenming, Mr. and Mrs. Young coming to Toronto that evening.

A graduate of the High school, with a couple of years' experience in the Canadian General Electric Works here, Mr. Young was a boy of exceptional capabilities, and had a bright future before him. He is survived by his parents and two brothers and one sister, Mr. Russell Young, Vancouver; Master Vincent, at home, and Miss Etta, at home. The funeral will take place today.

HAND OF DEATH HAD PRECEDED HIM AT HOME

Mr. Wilfrid Metheral received a telegram yesterday informing him of the death at Denver, Colorado, of Mrs. J. A. Stuart, who had numerous friends here, the deceased lady having visited in this city during the past summer, being present at the illness and death of the late Mrs. Metheral.

On receiving the telegram, Mr. Metheral went to the home of Mrs James Chambers, Aylmer street, who was a relative of the deceased, to inform her of the death of Mrs. Stuart.

FARM LABORERS AND DOMESTICS

Some Interesting Facts Concerning S. A. Immigration Work

Commissioner Coombs and Colonel Lamb, Director of The Army's Emigration Work, have just returned from an extended tour making arrangements for the placing of the immigrants that will come to Canada under the auspices of the Salvation Army in the spring. These will principally consist of laborers for farms and domestics. During the past year The Army has arranged the immigration of about ten thousand persons to this country, and arrangements are being perfected for the bringing of a larger number during the next season. A number of Canadian officers will shortly be visiting the Old Country for the purpose of selecting, advising, and conducting parties.

The immigrants that come to this country through the Army are of a highly desirable class, being specially selected by experienced agents who are familiar with the class of workers that Canadian farming conditions call for.

The ten thousand immigrants of last year were selected from over 100,000 applicants. It will thus be seen how severe is the process of selection.

Farmers and others in Ontario who desire to secure labour for next spring should at once get into touch with the Salvation Army, as it is understood there is a great demand for the Army's immigrants. Write for information and application forms to Brigadier H. Morris, Immigration and Colonization Department, James and Albert streets, Toronto.

WANTED-A LIVE ROOTERS' CLUB

Who wants to join the Rooters' Club?

It has been suggested that such be formed for the purpose of handing out to the two O.H.A. teams that support, which with a suitable leader or several of them, would help a whole lot. It won't cost anything except a possible small outlay from part of last summer's wages, for the same to be used in procuring relief in case a member should become afflicted with a "hoarsey" feeling about the vocal organs.

The effects of such organizations on a team is well known to fans who have watched two well balanced organizations of athletes fighting for supremacy. Rooters' clubs have been seen in action at the rink and at Riverside, and they accomplished good work.

The members of both O.H.A. teams are game players and good fellows. They deserve a hearty hand, and a Rooters' Club could encourage them at home and also take in the excursions which will be run by the Peterborough Hockey Club.

Somebody get busy. Billy Green has a tin piccolo on which can be played "Kelly," and all the others. While this instrument is a valuable one, there is a Ray of hope that, if sufficient Bonds for its safe return were put up it might be loaned.

KNIGHTS OF THE STANE

There is probably no winter sport about which there radiates such good fellowship, sociability and true sporting spirit as about the grand old game of curling. For decades back curling has been noted for these elements. When it was first played on the lochs of old Scotland, it was the great medium whereby men of the district were united and drawn together through its rivalry.

As in the olden days it was a great factor for drawing the prominent men of the community together, so to-day it is famed for these very same qualities. There is no room for doubt regarding the position which curling holds in the lives of our business men, professional men, public men, in fact all those of the better class in this country.

Owing to the class of its membership, there is no winter game which has the same influence and around which there reigns the same spirit. The word curling is synonymous with good sport. The men engaged are as a rule, men of the highest type. They play the game for sport. If they win, they win, and they take it as a matter of course. If they lose, a good curler — typical — will bow to inevitable with the best grace possible. It is a game that arouses the keen at play and rivalry, and also the highest standard of sportsmanship.

His whole mind must be concentrated on the play and his strategy should be to force his opponents to play his game. He must also occasionally pull off the unexpected. He is of necessity a punch player. A good skip should pull off some apparently impossible shot in almost every game. He must be a leader and have the ability to unite his rink into a perfect machine. It is absolutely important that he be optimistic and that he radiate optimism and cheerfulness. A good curler is a good loser and a generous winner.

An ideal rink, then, would be skipped by a player capable of playing a high average stone with the latent force to pull off an occasional "impossible" shot at a critical juncture. He must have strong strategic ability, be quick at sizing the situation and have good personal magnetism. His "vice" should be an understudy of him, and bow to the decision of his superior. There is nothing so disastrous as scrapping between the skip and his vice.

The second should have good optimism and be perfectly strong at the draw game, with the ability to play a nice "back" shot when required. The lead should be able to draw and to guard primarily. All the members, especially the last three, should be great sweepers, able to keep the brooms buzzing without fatigue.

There is probably no game that has the influence of blending the men of the different walks of life, as curling. When on the ice they are all "Knights o' the Stane," and the constraint of business fades away and is lost in the good fellowship of the game. It is a game where a man shows himself up. It is a clean competition, with good sportsmen, and exemplifies that a man must play fair and square to be a winner. It teaches a man to take a keen disappointment with good grace, and is certainly a splendid discipline for the unruly temper. It tends to self control and a higher standard of manhood — a man must be a man among men. If he is not, when he takes up the game providing he stays with it long enough, he will probably develops into one. It is a great game for a young man, as the contact with the class of men who play the game can not have other than a strengthening effect on his character and a broadening effect on his ideas. — Walter H. Curan, in the Toronto Telegram.

SPORT TALK

"Old-time fans were never satisfied to watch a ball game without betting," said Frank Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Reds. "There were many funny wagers, but the one that rang the bell came off in Chicago.

"Biddy McPhee drove a grasscutter to Bill Dahlen. It was too hot for Bill and Bid was safe. Just then two fans jumped over the railing and made towards McPhee.

"'Say, McPhee,' said one of them, 'was that a hit or an error?'

"'If you guys live to be a million years old you'll never see a cleaner hit than that one,' said Biddy.

"'Now, don't get sore,' said one. 'I bet $2 you would hit, and I just wanted to see if I won.'"

Stratford has turned down a proposal for pro. hockey. With three O.H.A. teams the boosters of the game there no doubt feel that they have enough on their hands. Few people want troubles anyway.

Goderich intermediates are playing their game at Seaforth, the burned rink not having been repaired as yet.

Abe Attell and Patsy Kline meet for a bout at New York To-night.

Lawson Whitehead will referee the Trenton-Peterborough game tonight.

August Herrmann, of the National Commission, will oppose the move that the number of balls to a batter be lessened. He holds that the present rate at which players get to a base on charities is bad enough.

The management of the Port Hope pros. has received an invitation to take the team to Cleveland for a series of games with a western team.

The Ottawa Hockey Club will, beginning Saturday night, when the professionals meet Quebec, endeavor to stop the practice of smoking in the rink. The players complain about the bad effect the smoke has upon them.

Zybsco, the Polish wrestler, is suffering from an attack of blood poisoning in his hand. The case, however, is not serious.

Frank Gotch was married Wednesday afternoon, only a few relatives and friends being present at the ceremony.

The Bank League game at the rink yesterday went to Dom-Ottawa with a 6-5 score against Royal Commerce. The winners had the benefit of an early start in counting, and while the Royal-Commerce put up a gallant finish, they were too late. Hogul Sawers handled the game in a splendid manner and only two penalties were imposed. The quality of hockey surpassed that of the other games played.

Y.M.C.A. SPORT

In the Intermediate Basketball League two fast games were played last night. The first was between the famous Saw Bones and the Rowdies. After a most strenuous contest the Bones won out. Score 11 to 25

Much depended on the outcome of the second game between the Maple Leafs and Pirates. Had the Leafs won it would have left a chance for three teams, as the Pirates have not a game and they were out in full force looking for the plunder of the Leafs, and after one of the most closely contested games of the season Capt. Hastie and his crew carried off the loot. Score, Pirates, 10, Maple Leafs, 7. Referee, J. J. Thompson. Umpire, C. Nicholls.

THE RING

Chicago, Jan. 12.—H. H. Frazee, a local promoter, and Jack Gleason, who aided in arranging the Jeffries-Johnson fight, have offered a purse of $50,000 for a twenty-round fight between Johnson and Al Kaufman, the San Francisco heavyweight, to be fought in the new Stadium in London, England, during coronation week. Kaufman has accepted the offer, and the promoters expect to receive an answer from Johnson to-day.

HOW A SMALL FORTUNE GREW

Was Originally $100,000 — Now $180,000,000

Berlin, Jan. 11.—A romantic action is pending against the Dutch States. Three hundred years ago General Wirtz made his fortune in the Dutch Indies and retired to Amsterdam to end his days. On his death he bequeathed a half of his fortune to the city of Amsterdam and the other half to his natural heirs.

As the latter failed to put in an appearance—they had probably lost trace of their wealthy relative—the Dutch Government took possession, and as the total fortune amounted to $20,000, the sum taken over by the States amounted to $10,000.

This sum at compound interest has, in the meantime, swollen to about $180,000,000. The rightful heirs appear to be subjects of the Duchy of Luxembourg. Ten years ago one of them discovered the possibilities awaiting descendants of General Wirtz, and gradually the list of claimants grew until, at the present moment, they number 93. They have entrusted their interests to well known counsel, and the machinery of the law has already been set in motion.

The Dutch Government opposes the suit of the claimants on the ground that their rights have lapsed many years ago.

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHED

Sometimes mail order houses offer a leader, that is, they sell some article at less than cost, in order to induce buyers to make up an order which will include many things at a great deal more than cost. The big firm comes out ahead on the whole transaction all right—that is what they are there for.

We heard of an experience of a certain lady the other day who thought it would be a good scheme to simply order the leader, the article sold at less than cost. The particular bargain offered was a pair of shoes at $1.89. When the shoes arrived there was a charge of twenty-five cents for express, which she paid. After she got the shoes home, she discovered that they did not fit, so she packed them up again and returned them by express. The firm said she could return the goods if not satisfactory, at least that was in the advertisement. She paid another twenty-five cents to return them. After waiting about a week the new shoes arrived, and she had to pay another quarter for express. Unfortunately, they were no better than the first ones, as far as fit was concerned. She had now paid $2.44 for a pair of $2.00 shoes, with more to follow. She tried to exchange them with a local dealer, but, of course, that would not work; but while in the local store she saw as good a pair in every respect, which the dealer sold for $1.60 regularly. She may find a lady friend to fit the shoes. If so she may not lose more than a dollar. If not she is out $2.44.

When a woman thinks she has obtained a bargain, she tells her friends about it; but when the experience is not so favorable she is apt to say nothing about it. Most people would rather say nothing when they have got the worst of a deal, although they say a great deal when they think they have got the best of it. That is human nature, but that is why we do not hear more about the experiences of those who deal with mail order houses.

When you come to think of it, is it not rather foolish to buy things just from seeing a picture of them? A farmer would not buy a cow from a catalogue, because he knows something about cows. How much more important it is to see what you buy and know with whom you are dealing when you are getting something about the quality of which you are not able to judge. The Peterborough merchant wants your trade and he knows that the best way to secure it is to be perfectly candid about the quality of the goods he sells. He knows more about quality than you will ever learn unless you go into business for yourself. If an article is not the best he will tell you so, and charge you fairly for what you get. We cannot all afford to buy the highest quality of goods, but we are at least entitled to get fair value for the money we spend and to know just what we are getting. The only way we know of to accomplish this is to buy at home, from a merchant in whom you have confidence. In the long run you are money in pocket by doing [illegible] in addition you are helping Peterborough instead of injuring it. [illegible]

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE LADIES?

Big Tim Thinks Man Should Stand On His Own Merits In Politics

New York, Jan. 12.—"If man is the mighty affair he thinks he is, why should he be afraid of political competition by the women? If he's not such a mighty affair, then it's time he stepped down and gave the ladies a chance to show what they can do in politics."

With these words, "Big Tim" Sullivan, Tammany leader on the Bowery and a member of the assembly, came out recently for women's suffrage. The Bowery chieftain aligned himself under the suffrage standard with many gallant phrases. "Give a woman half a chance," said he, "and you will find she can reason just as well and generally is a god deal fairer and squarer than a man. You can give men a woman with a heart every time—you can go to sleep on the way she is going to act."

EQUAL POLITICAL RIGHTS.

"Big Tim" accompanied his interview with the announcement that he is going to work very hard in the State Legislature for a bill enfranchising women and give them equal political rights with man in every particular.

"Women ought to vote if they think it is going to make things any better for them," he declared.

"Women suffrage has been a success in the States in which it has been tried. You would be surprised to see the number of letters I get from women living in the Bowery district who want to vote.

"Just a few years ago we were turning up our grand white faces and saying the black man couldn't vote because his face wasn't white. Now it's the women who are not fit. Anybody who believes in universal suffrage must believe in woman's suffrage."

HIS GRACE AFTER MASONS

Montreal, Jan. 12.—In opposition to the doctrine of brotherly love which Mgr. Bruchesi promulgated New Year's day, in which he referred considerably to non-Catholics, is the announcement of the programme of sermons for the year.

Each year the Archbishop issues to his clergy subjects to preach on, and these include several chapters on Freemasonry. He denounces it as a lying and anti-religious society, advises to attack it in the head by unmasking it, and the heart by keeping it from getting money; and also says the leaders should be denounced.

On the press, it says that it is omnipotent and should be encouraged when preaching proper doctrines. It describes a bad newspaper as one that is sectarian, or neutral, or sensational.

JOHN D. ON FORGETTING IT

Forget your sins and your failures as dwelling upon them is dispiriting and depressing. Above all, forget the sins and shortcomings of others. Society, with the refinement of cruelty unequaled by barbarians, regards the woman who has once fallen, perhaps through no fault of her own, as damned.

This is not a Christian attitude.

Forget the past.

I do not know but that is the best way to prepare for a better future. Failures should be turned into the foundations for success. The world talks of failure and success as though they were separate things. This is erroneous. The dividing line is only the width of a hair. Dont' feel that there is a great gulf between success and failure. You may fail to accomplish a certain thing after nine determined efforts. Don't stop then discouraged. The tenth time you may succeed.

Let us not waste our time in useless repining over the things that might have been. Avoid animosity because it dwarfs and stunts life. It ought to be cast out, as generally is the result of misunderstanding. If one looks into men's faces for the good that is within them it will be found. — John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to his Bible class of Fifth Avenue (N. Y.) Baptist Church.

NEW YEAR'S DINNER

Very Pleasant Gathering of Red Rose Tea Staff

The New Year dinner of the Ontario branch of the Red Rose Tea Company was held at the office and warehouse in this city on Saturday night. About fifty of the travelling, office and warehouse staffs and their wives sat down to an excellent repast, spread by Coles, in the board-room. Marking the close of a very successful year's business, and every indication pointing to a very large increase in the sales of "good tea" this year, much enthusiasm pervaded the gathering.

Mr. Geo. F. Campbell, the manager, presided. A telegram of greeting was read from Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, of St. John, N.B., the proprietor, who was unable to be present, and his health was drunk with great heartiness. The progress of the toast list was enlivened with a racy line of narrative and jest, and there was a ball-throwing contest for the ladies, which created much amusement. It was an evening of great sociability and thorough enjoyment, presaging and thorough success for Red Rose Tea.

Two passengers and the conductor were flung through the windows when a trolley car skidded and struck a fence at New Brighton, L. I.

When Canada calls McLaughlins respond

CANADA'S CALL

IT is just about three years since the Canadian public first showed a real inclination to use Motor Cars—just about three years since it began to be evident that there was a need for some responsible Canadian firm to produce a line of cars suitable for Canadian conditions. "The Car," said those most capable of judging the needs of Canadian Motorists, "must be simple, durable, economical, powerful—and, above all, reasonable as to price."

McLaughlins Responded

It is well within the mark to say, that the McLaughlin-Buick has proved the car that fully answers the above requirements. We were pioneers in eliminating for Canadians, the large overhead expenses entailed in experimenting—for we adopted a tested and proved product. We selected the "Buick" as our pattern, because it, more than any other car made, seemed to satisfy the needs of this country.

We Were Right in Selecting the Buick

Three years of success has proven the correctness of our choice. To-day the aggregate value of McLaughlin-Buick Cars in use in Canada exceeds any other. Everywhere you go you see McLaughlin-Buicks—and giving complete satisfaction to their owners.

Why This Big Success?

Here's the answer—under the four important heads that govern Motor Car value:

The Plant

We have the largest and most complete automobile factory in the Dominion—few even in the United States excel it in size or completeness. Only in a plant like ours can cars of real value and real merit be produced. A plant like this behind a car is a better guarantee of satisfaction to the motorist than any mere printed guarantee we have ever seen.

The Car

By adhering to the time-honored McLaughlin Motto—"One grade only and that the best," we have so maintained the Standard that every car we turn out—every representative of every one of our twenty and more models—is a credit to us, and the land that made our enterprise possible. Fearless, Powerful, Reliable, Record-winning, Economical—the McLaughlin-Buick is recognized from coast to coast as the car that best exemplifies the ideals of Canadian motorists.

The Price

Elimination of all unnecessary ornamentation and gaudy frippery—careful buying of materials—large plant and production—these are the features that enable us to produce the cars we do at the prices we ask—prices that are enabling Canadian Motorists to own cars at a minimum expenditure, and, equally important, cars that are economical of operation.

The Firm

The name McLaughlin has become significant of, "A square deal to all." It is known wherever carriages or motor cars are known, that we spare neither pains nor rational expense to attain our high ideals of a worthy Canadian product. By establishing branches in the most important centres we are in a position to readily, quickly supply all necessary parts.

In brief, it is no exaggeration to state that

This Firm Has Met The Call

We're filling the needs of Canadian Motordom as no other manufacturer is attempting to do—and—

We want you, if you are an intending purchaser, to go to the nearest McLaughlin Garage—and make us prove it.

TRIPLE AGREEMENT IS SOLID

Paris, January 12.—Efforts of the German press to create the impression that the special treaty between Russia and Germany regulating the situation in regard to the Persia and Bagdad Railroad indicates a withdrawal of Russia from the triple entente existing between Russia, France and England are viewed in diplomatic circles here with cold indifference.

IS QUITE SOLID.

The French Government has the best possible reasons for believing that the triple entente was never more solid than to-day. The special agreement between Russia and Germany concerning Persia is almost the same as that concluded in 1909 between France and Germany concerning Morocco, and does not alter the general policy of the contracting powers.

Messages of the most friendly nature have been exchanged between Nicholas II. and President Fallieres.

NOT WEAKENED.

Your correspondent is assured on the highest possible authority that neither the recent Postdam interview nor the Russo-German convention concerning Persia in any way weakens the triple entente nor modifies the European equilibrium maintained by it.

Moreover, the exceedingly cordial manner in which the Emperor Nicholas received Paul Doumer and the friendly welcome accorded by the Czar to Mr. Doumer's proposals for establishing a French institute at St. Petersburg aroused enthusiasm among French University men and students, and were regarded here as establishing new bonds of sympathy between Russia and French universities of deep intellectual and political significance.

WAS IT A CASE OF SPOOKS?

(Denver Times)

C. Fred Braendin, chief clerk at the Shirley Hotel, says he doesn't believe in "spooks" but nevertheless his hair stood straight up when he received through the mail, the key to room No. 436, Shirley Annex. The key came from Dr. Wallingford, of San Francisco, a psychic teacher and exponent of telepathy. Dr. Wallingford occupied that room when he was at the Shirley Hotel over a week ago.

Not that the key itself was "spooky" but the fact is that only two days ago, the clerks at the Shirley succeeded in getting into the room left by Dr. Wallingford. The pass keys would not open the door because the door had been locked from the inside.

The way keys lock in the Shirley Hotel is like this: If a guest locks his door on the inside, no other key in the house will unlock it, not even the passkey.

But the guest himself, after locking his door from the inside, cannot take the key out of the door. The lock is so arranged that the key cannot be removed unless the door is unlocked. As long as the door is locked the key cannot be taken out inside the room. Do you catch all that? This circumstance is a safeguard against fire. A guest cannot lock himself in his room and lose the key. The key is always in the door or else the door is unlocked.

Well, Dr. Wallingford went away a week ago and didn't leave his key at the desk because he was in a great hurry to catch an early train. When the housemaid went up with the passkey to fix up the room she couldn't open the door. Every key in the house was tried, but with no result. Finally, Mr. Braendin got into the room by opening a double door leading from the room next. The key of Dr. Wallingford's room was gone.

Now the question that is causing a great scratching of heads is: How did Dr. Wallingford get his key out of his door without unlocking the door, since the lock was found to be in perfect order? And if Mr. Wallingford locked his door from the outside, why was it that the passkey wouldn't open the door? And, above all, how in blazes did Dr. Wallingford get out of that room anyhow?

The key came back with a noncommittal note.

"Very sorry," Dr. Wallingford wrote. "I didn't discover the key until I got home."

TOBACCO MERGER SUIT HEARD

The merger of the McAlpine Tobacco Company, effected a few years ago was aired in the courts again yesterday, when O. E. Fleming K. C., J. A. Straith and Robert Pinchin on behalf of themselves and other shareholders of the Consumers Tobacco Co., commenced suit against E. A. McAlpine and Chas. A. B. Pratt, and the McAlpine Consumers' Tobacco Co., for $152,500.

They allege that at the time of the merger of the McAlpine Tobacco Co., the defendants took possession of certain stocks and manipulated them in such a manner that they came into possession of all the assets and were left without funds to make up the deficit.

McAlpine and Pratt deny that there was any fraud and bring in a number of counter claims. By the mutual consent of the two counsels, Hon. Justice Riddell transferred the case to the non-jury court and it will come up on February 16.

THEY ALL WANT A PEEK AT CANADA'S BRAND NEW NAVY

Washington, Jan. 12.—Canada's new navy, with all ships, officers and men and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, if he can come, will be present at the famous Mardi Gras festivities to be held next month at New Orleans if the invitation of Mr. B. Trezevant, manager of the New Orleans Progressive Union, supervising the Mardi Gras carnival, is accepted. Mr. Trezevant dispatched the invitations to the Governor-General and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries yesterday, and they will doubtless be received by to-morrow. Canada's cruiser "Rainbow" has been given a special invitation.

GREAT SOCIAL EVENT

The Mardi Gras carnival is the greatest annual social event of the southern season, and thousands of people take part in the entertainments and rounds of gayety furnished on that occasion. The invitation from New Orleans to Canada is the first ever extended by the Mardi Gras leaders to the Dominion, and is doubtless due to that reciprocity of good will which has advanced in recent years independent of any tariff walls.

The invitation is particularly appropriate inasmuch as Louisiana and New Orleans are the home of descendants of the same stock of old France which settled in Lower Canada.

WILL RECEIVE WELCOME

Advices received by your correspondent from Mr. Trezevant indicate that the city of New Orleans is anxiously awaiting a reply from Earl Grey and Hon. Mr. Brodeur, and that should the "Rainbow" be sent as a representative of the newest world navy the ship, officers and men will receive a royal welcome at every turn.

The British Government has also been requested to send a ship from the West Indian squadron to the Mardi Gras carnival. The matter is now under consideration by the Foreign Office in London. Officers of the British embassy here, including Ambassador Bryce, have recommended that the ship be sent, and it doubtless will.

NEWS SERVICE OVER 'PHONE

New System of Transmitting Intelligence Will Soon Be Installed in Montreal

Montreal Gazette.

The day's news by telephone, opera, drama and vaudeville by telephone, and even the Sunday sermon by telephone, in the quiet of your own home, may soon be an accomplished fact in Montreal, as it has been in Budapest, Paris, and London for years, and lately established in New York and Chicago.

"A boon to the lazy man—and the very busy man as well, entertainment for invalids confined to their beds, amusement for the children in the nursery, a concert for the luncheon and the dinner hour, together with the best of the day's news, and all for five cents," is the description of the service of the Telephone Herald Company, given by Mr. Ladislaus de Doory, who was in Montreal yesterday making preliminary arrangements for installing the system here. Mr. de Doory has enlisted the support of some prominent financial and business men in Montreal, and a demonstration of the working of the system will be given shortly.

IN BUDAPEST.

Every visitor to Budapest has been quick to learn of the "Telefon Hirmondo," as it is known there, for in every room of the leading hotels there is an attachment, and the habit is at once formed of listening to such of its service as has interest at the moment. A convenient programme tells what special feature is due at any moment, beginning with the exact astronomical time at 9 o'clock in the morning, and following with the local and foreign news, parliamentary and official happenings, weather, sporting and fashion news, regimental band music, theatres and the opera until 10 o'clock at night. The central office from which this unique news service is disseminated throughout the city is described as a newspaper office. And instead of a passing fad it is stated to have achieved an enormous success in the past ten years, among the prominent subscribers being the Prime Minister, Baron Banffy and all the other members of the Hungarian Cabinet, Marus Jokai, the famous author, the Mayor of Budapest, and 80,000 other subscribers among the common people, which are being added to at the rate of nearly 2,500 a year.

IN PARIS

In Paris the system is called the Theatrophone, in London the Electrophone, and in the United States the Telephone Herald. Mr. Manly M. Gillam, of the New York Herald, is the president, and patents for the invention have been taken out recently in Canada. In New York and Chicago the wires of the Bell Telephone Company are used for transmitting the news of the Telephone Herald, but the company will eventually install their own wires as is the case in Budapest.

IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Mr. de Doory said he was enthusiastic about the support given the project by the business men of Montreal, and the prospects for an early demonstration here. Mr. de Doory said he had learned from statistics that gramophones were more numerous in proportion to the population than in any other country. The people were apparently fond of staying as much at home as possible, and of having entertainment while at home. A great many people also attended the moving picture shows frequently, paying, perhaps, both for admission and car fare, and to these the very best entertainment and finest music could be given in their own homes for less than the cost of the picture shows. But the greatest boon would be to the aged and the invalid in their homes, patients in the hospitals, the blind and all those who have neither time nor money to go to the theatre, concert or opera.

WANT DUTY CUT.

Niagara Fruit Growers Uphold Ontario Association.

Grimsby, Jan. 13.—Niagara Peninsula fruit growers, at their annual meeting here yesterday afternoon, approved of the action of the representatives of the tender fruit interests at the annual meeting of Ontario growers, in agreeing to cut in two the import duty on grapes, in order that the States may be induced to lower the duty on Canadian apples. The duty on grapes is now two cents a pound.

Another very important matter taken up was the recent victory over the express companies in regard to rates. General Manager Bryce of the Canadian Express Co., and General Manager Stout of the Dominion Express Co., have agreed to come to the district to confer with the growers as to a new tariff, satisfactory to both. To meet the express men a committee was appointed, with instructions to prepare a brief on behalf of the growers.

Growers who attended New York State Growers' Convention at Rochester, reported that there it had been demonstrated that an arsenate of lead mixed with lime and sulphur, spray would greatly increase its efficiency. The only danger is in getting too strong a mixture, but to overcome this hydrometers to regulate the strength had been arranged. One has been purchased for St. Catharines district.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer Fisher shows a balance of $275.13 in the treasury. Regarding annual meeting of the institution, to be held late in February, Profs. Parrott and Whitgee of Geneva, N.Y., were suggested, the selection being placed in the hands of the directors.

A life membership and honorary directorship was bestowed on Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., for his active interest in the work of the growers.

London, Jan. 13.—J. P. Crommelin Liberal minister in London and diplomatic agent to France, left yesterday for Paris, where he has been authorized to sign the boundary treaty between France and Liberia. This treaty was negotiated in 1907, and its consummation was made recently a condition upon which France would approve the American project for the reestablishment of the finances of Liberia.

Will Now Hear Other Side.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—Twenty members of the Canadian Manufacturers Association are here arranging for the presentation of the memorials on the question of the tariff.

A preliminary meeting was held yesterday afternoon and another last night after the arrival of the Montreal delegation. The finishing touches was then put upon the memorial.

The manufacturers will be received to-day by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright and other Ministers.

Sir Thomas Brocklebank Dead.

Pittsburg, Jan. 13—Cable despatches to this city announce the death in Liverpool yesterday of Sir Thomas Brocklebank, baronet, father of Mrs. George Westinghouse, jr., of this city. He was 63 years old, and was made a baronet by Queen Victoria. He leaves a widow and three sons and three daughters.

WANTED A JOB.

Therefore He Did His Best to Please the Manager.

A certain playwright relates how a manager was much annoyed by the persistent applications for a "job" made by a peculiarly seedy individual. Time and again the manager had referred this person to his stage manager. "See Blank," he would say, interrupting the man's attempts to set forth his qualifications.

At last the applicant did succeed in gaining audience of Blank, the stage manager, who was in the theater for the time "sizing up" candidates for the chorus.

There were, of course, a number ahead of him, but this fact did not prevent the seedy man from interrupting the stage manager between songs with requests for a job.

Exasperated, the stage manager at length turned to the pianist and ordered him to play an accompaniment for the stranger. With considerable hesitation the seedy person raised what voice he had in song. The result was bad as bad could be.

The manager suddenly commanded him to desist.

"What do you mean by this tomfoolery?" he demanded, disgusted. "You certainly have confounded impudence to ask me for a job!"

"Look here!" said the stranger, angry in turn. "I don't claim to be able to sing. In fact, I don't want to sing. I'm a stage carpenter. I only sang to please you because you insisted on it!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Shot by Litigant.

Caney, Kans., Jan. 9.—J. D. S. Neeley, president of the Wichita Pipe Line Co., president of the Lima (Ohio) Trust Co., and head of several large oil companies, was shot and killed in the Palace Hotel here yesterday morning by Al. O. Truskett, a prominent business man of Caney.

The shooting was the result of litigation over an oil lease. Truskett surrendered immediately.

Truskett was taken by automobile to the county jail at Independence, Kansas.

The shooting occurred in the rear of the hotel. Mr. Neeley had been sitting in the lobby reading a letter. Truskett, sitting opposite, had been watching him closely. When Mr. Neeley got up and walked toward the rear of the hotel, Trusket hurried around to the sample-room. As Neeley passed the door of this room, Truskett fired at him twice. One bullet passed through Neeley's heart and the other through his left arm. When employes of the hotel reached the prostrate man he was dead.

TRAVERS SPRANG SURPRISE WHEN HE PLEADED "GUILTY"

Before a Large Gathering of Financial Men at Toronto Police Court He Admits Forgery and Sentence Is Withheld Until Monday — Crown Had Prepared an Elaborate Case Against Him.

Toronto, Jan. 14.—W. R. Travers, former vice-president and general manager of the collapsed Farmers' Bank and director of the Keeley Mines, Ltd., pleaded guilty to charges of forgery, theft and making false returns to the Dominion Government when arraigned in the police court yesterday morning. Even with the rumor of a plea of guilty current in the streets, the denouement came as something of a shock to the courtroom full of spectators of a weight and prominence not often seen within its dingy walls.

The staging was dramatic, and so arranged that the collapse of the defence at the last moment came as a bolt from the blue. At the close of the regular calendar, detectives and others marched into the courtroom bearing great shoulder-loads of impressive ledgers. The scene was set for an extensive probing, when Magistrate Denison looked up from his own book to remark:

"Now, is Mr. Corley ready to go on in that Travers' case?"

"Yes, your worship," was the reply.

"Which case will you take up first?"

"We will take the general charge, that of making false returns to the Government."

Here H. H. Dewart, K.C., counsel for the defence, interrupted to remark that Travers had not yet pleaded to the second charge, that of theft of $40,000. Crown Attorney Corley added that Inspector of Detectives Duncan had a further charge of forgery of minutes of a directors meeting to add, and this was put upon the calendar.

The charge of theft was then read and Travers was asked to plead.

In answer to the magistrate's question Mr. Dewart remarked quietly: "Upon the advice of counsel, he pleads guilty."

There was a stir in the courtroom, a quick catching of many breaths, and even the magistrate looked up with something of surprise.

"But what does he say himself?" he asked, "perhaps he knows better than his counsel."

"Guilty, sir," said Travers, who stood behind his counsel and directly in front of the magistrate. The whole man was eloquent of weariness. It spoke in the heavy shoulders, bowed as he leaned upon the back of a chair, and from the tired eyes over the heavy flesh pouches of his cheeks.

The magistrate then read the charge newly laid by Inspector Duncan:

"That W. R. Travers did unlawfully make a false document in words and figures. That is to say:

"'The general manager reported the following credits of $5,000 and upwards had been granted since last board meeting, viz., George Wishart and Keeley J. W. Mine —— $50,000.'

"'The general manager explained the formation and interests in the Keeley Mine, which was satisfactory to the board and further advances were authorized if necessary,' with intent to defraud contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided."

Mr. Corley later explained that the final figures in the first and the words of the last paragraph of the quoted minute of a meeting of the bank directors had been altered by a clerk upon the order and at the dictation of Travers.

Travers elected to be tried summarily, and pleaded guilty in the same quiet but husky voice.

Then Mr. Dewart announced that his client desired to withdraw both plea and election on the charge of making false returns, and in this case a plea of guilty was also entered.

Mr. Corley plunged into the reading of a document which he had announced was a statement of the case prepared by the liquidator. The magistrate interrupted.

"Before I can sentence this man," he said, "I must know some of the circumstances surrounding the case."

"No, and you couldn't hear the evidence without understanding these features of the case. I was about to give you the facts," replied the crown attorney.

"No," said the magistrate, and Mr. Corley once more began to read the statement, elaborating its points from time to time.

At the close of Mr. Corley's remarks, Mr. Dewart arose to address the court.

"At the outset," said Mr. Dewart, "I would like to say that rumors that the delays and adjournments in this case were intended to hush up proceedings are absolutely without foundation. Nor is the plea entered by my client intended to stop investigation. Since the adjournment my client and I have had an opportunity of seeing the data in the hands of the crown, and in that way the time of the court was saved. I trust that the statement I am about to make may throw some further light on the unfortunate affairs of the bank."

Mr. Dewart then went on to say that he did not think his client should be made a "scapegoat" for others.

Mr. Dewart wanted the court to remember that already Mr. Travers had offered $500,000 for the Keeley mine, and that if this asset of the bank were not sacrificed, its ultimate sale would go a long way toward preventing any of those connected with the failure from feeling the pinch of distress, if it did not actually provide sufficient to meet all liabilities.

Counsel closed with a plea for mercy. He said:

"He stands here to-day a penniless, broken man, 57 years of age. Seven years is the utmost that you can say, but I think that I can ask for a lesser sentence than that, in view of the circumstances.

"Three years would be more to him than would twenty to a younger man.

"Temper justice with mercy. He suffers more from the humiliation and degradation of this day than he could suffer from any penalty which your worship could impose.

"He has made full acknowledgement of any guilt, and has showed in every way an earnest desire to repair the fortunes of the bank in any transactions into which he may have entered.

Chief Accountant J. G. Fitzgibbon was then called and identified the false entries in the books.

LEMIEUX IS COMING HOME

(Special To The Review.)

Ottawa, Jan. 14—Word has reached here that Hon.: R. Lemieux, Postmaster General, will reach New York to day per S. S. Celtic, and will be in Montreal, to-morrow sometime. He will spend a few hours at his father's home there, and will then come on to Ottawa, reaching here probably at noon on Monday. He has been in Europe for some time. His brother, Mr. A. Lemieux, K. C., to-day went to Montreal to meet him.

HON. W. J. HANNA,
His prison reform schemes are attracting much attention and sympathy.

A Legal Mix-Up.

Montreal, Jan. 14.—Two eminent King's Counsel and a young lawyer engaged in a brief fisticuff battle in the police court before Judge Lanceton Thursday. The participants in the scuffle were James Crankshaw, K.C., Horace Hutchins, K.C., and Jimmy Crankshaw. The Crankshaws were prosecuting a girl on a charge of perjury, and Mr. Hutchins was defending her. He offered to make an affidavit himself, and ironically remarked that his learned friend could then go after him for perjury. Mr. Crankshaw replied to the effect that this was not advisable as the Montreal jail was already overflowing.

Mr. Hutchins responded with a righthand swing to Mr. Crankshaw's jaw. He sidestepped. Jimmy Crankshaw then landed a left jolt flush on Hutchins' chin. Subsequently several apologies were tendered the judge by the belligerent lawyers.

STUDENTS MAY HOP

The students at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph may dance with the students of the Macdonald Institute across the way at least twice before the summer holidays. The Minister of Agriculture has given his consent.

"Certainly," said Mr. Duff, when spoken to to-day. "I have given my consent for dancing at the college and the Macdonald Institute. At the same time I do not see why there should be so much fuss about it. As a matter of fact I have not received any petition from the students, but I have a letter from the president, in which he intimated that there was a feeling that the restriction should be removed. I did not know of any other secular educational institution where dancing, under proper restrictions, is not permitted, and hence I did not see why this privilege should not be enjoyed by our students as well.

"I have no hesitation in giving my consent to a dance or two during the College term, to be held in the gymnasium and under such restrictions and safeguards."

TO RESTRICT THE SELLING OF COCAINE

Clause for This Purpose Will Be Added to Hon. Mackenzie King's Bill Against Illegal Drug Traffic—Offending Merchants and Druggists Will be Punished.

(Special To The Review.)

Ottawa, Jan. 14 — It is understood that there will be an important change made in the Bill that Hon. W. King, Minister of Labor is introducing to stop the illegal manufacture and sale of opium. On complaints made, especially from Montreal, he will probably also add an amendment with reference to cocaine.

It is said that the Canadian metropolis, and some other cities throughout Canada, cocaine is being sold to minors, and to adults for purposes other than strictly medicinal ones. There is reason to believe that stringent legislation will be put on the statute books to stop this, especially to punish the druggist or merchant in any line of business who sells the drug to children.

FRANZ LOBINSKI BEATEN TO DEATH FOR HIS MONEY

Neighbor Passing by Home of Wealthy Polish Farmer Finds Latter's Body Tied by Leg to Post and Horribly Mutilated—Tin Box In Which He Kept His Money Found Empty In the Snow—He Lived Alone.

Berlin, Jan. 14.—Murdered for his money was the fate which overtook Franz Lobinski, a seventy-year-old Pole, whose body was found tied to a post in the yard of his late home on the second concession, two miles west of Wellesley Village. His body was horribly mutilated, the head being battered almost beyond recognition. A neighbor named Leyes, passing by the house, made the horrible discovery at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, being attracted by the loud bellowing of cattle. Going in from the road to investigate, he received a nerve-racking shock, upon beholding the body of Lobinski, lying beside a post near the back door, one leg being tied to the post. The body was covered with blood and frozen stiff, indicating that it had lain there all night and possibly all the previous day. The loud bellowing of the cattle was due to their not having been fed.

The tracks of two men were found in the snow, also the tracks of a team of horses. Footsteps led to the front window, but an entrance had evidently been effected by getting Lobinski to open the back door, where he was attacked. The kitchen presented a horrible blood-bespattered scene, and it was apparent that the old man had put up a fight for his life. Outside the door was a still worse spectacle of bloodshed, a pool of blood being frozen there.

It can only be conjectured as to the reason for the body being tied to the post, the most reasonable theory being advanced by High Constable Huber, who came back from the scene of the murder last evening, to the effect that his assailants, apparently thinking they had done for the old man, threw him outside the door, which would account for the pool of blood there, but that he recovered sufficiently to come back at them, whereupon they dragged him to the post by his foot, using a wire. Fifty yards away a blood-covered hammer was found.

There is no question but that the motive for the murder was robbery, as a little tin box, in which Lobinski was known to have kept gold, was found outside in the snow.

When interviewed last night High Constable Huber said that the man Leyes had been the murdered man's confidential adviser, transacting most of his business. Lobinski was worth probably in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars.

A complete search of the house has been made by the authorities, but among the articles found were a number of personal notes for good-sized amounts which had been held by Lobinski. The old man had often taken a delight in showing gold to people, according to Leyes' story. Since the death of his wife, six years ago, Lobinski had lived alone.

Coroner Gleister of Wellesley was notified in the morning, but could not proceed to empanel a jury as he had not taken the oath of allegiance since the accession of King George. Consequently he had to drive to Berlin, where he was sworn in by Crown Attorney Bowlby, returning to Wellesley towards evening. The inquest consequently will not be held till this afternoon.

BIGGER AND BETTER AT ROYAL THEATRE

The Bill of Fare for the First Three Nights of Next Week

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Royal Theatre has secured absolutely, the best vaudeville ever shown in this city. You will see some fourteen actual performers on the stage. They include Prof. W. Rand's Musical, Dramatic, Mental and Acrobatic Dogs. The act opens with a pantomime before the trainer enters the stage. Dogs that play musical instruments in perfect tune and time. The only dog that spells any word. Also Mlle Reno, the Queen of Magic. The vaudeville also includes Nebur and Cacum in their dramatical, musical play entitled "The Last Dollar." Such a cast costs big money, but the Royal must have the best, however. No extra charge made for admission. 3d

INVESTIGATION INTO OTONABEE SCHOOL TROUBLE

Was Opened This Afternoon at County Council Chamber Before County School Inspector R. Lees--Large Attendance of Ratepayers --Interesting Evidence.

MR. O'CONNELL AND MR. BURNHAM COMPARED THE RATEPAYERS' LIST FOR THE SECTION, RETIRING, AND ON THE RETURN TO THE COURT ROOM MR. O'CONNELL ANNOUNCED THAT IT HAD BEEN AGREED THAT TRUSTEE O'CONNOR HAD BEEN ELECTED BY A VOTE OF 19 TO 17. THIS VALIDATES THE ELECTION OF TRUSTEE O'CONNOR.

The hearing of the protest by Protestant ratepayers of Otonabee School Section No 8, against the alleged irregularity of the election of Trustee John O'Connor, was commenced this afternoon before County School Inspector Lees. The County Council chamber was inadequate to hold the immense crowd that assembled, and the hearing was transferred to the spacious court room of the county court.

J. H. Burnham acted for the complainants and D. O'Connell appeared as counsel to contest the claim that Mr. O'Connor's election was illegal.

THE COMPLAINT.

Mr. Burnham said the last annual meeting was so irregular that it was abortive. The results of the election gave the Catholic ratepayers two representatives on the School Board.

Mr. Burnham said that the complainants believed that more than ratepayers voted, that two hands were held up by some electors, and that the ballots weren't even regularly counted. If this was true the election could not be in substantial conformity with the regulation of the School Act.

"This is a very simple matter," said Mr. O'Connell in reply, "and can be disposed of very easily."

AGAINST ELECTION.

All the evidence that would be investigated would have to be in regard to the specific complaint against the validity of the election.

The Public School Act provided in section 53 what would be done at the meetings of ratepayers. One of these was the election of school trustees. These ratepayers were there for the election of school trustees. The trustees were elected and the chairman declared them elected. If the ratepayers had any objection to the trustee, the ratepayers who were dissatisfied with the election should have demanded a poll, as they had privilege to do so by the provision of the Public School Act.

NOT LEGAL ELECTION.

The grounds, according to the act on which the trustees could demand an investigation were that an election was not conducted as called for by the act. It was held this had been complied with at the meeting and that the meeting and election were regular.

Mr. Burnham replied to Mr. O'Connell, and the latter claimed that Mr. Burnham had had his say once. If it was to be speech after speech the case would be interminable.

"Who are you? Are you the inspector?" asked Mr. Burnham of Mr. O'Connell.

Mr. Burnham asked the inspector for a ruling and the latter thought that further argument was not advisable and that the evidence should be heard.

CHAIRMAN TESTIFIES.

P. G. Hazlitt, chairman of the meeting, was called as the first witness.

Mr. O'Connell called attention to the fact that the onus of proving the alleged irregularity of O'Connor's election lay with the complainants.

Mr. Haslitt stated that Messrs. Thompson and O'Connor were nominated as trustees. He counted 21 votes for O'Connor and 20 for Thompson. He might have been mistaken in the counting of the vote which was taken in the usual way by the showing of hands. He didn't sign the returns of the election made to the Provincial Government.

In answer to Mr. O'Connell, witness stated he declared O'Connor elected at the meeting.

Mr. Lees suggested that a list of names of those who voted for Thompson and those who voted for O'Connor be submitted to him.

Mr. Burnham and Mr. O'Connell adjourned to an ante-room to prepare the lists.

Inspector Lees said there were two things to be considered in dealing with the case. One was the number of voters who supported each candidate, the other was concerning the qualifications of those who did vote as to whether they were entitled to vote or not.

While counsel were preparing the lists Mr. Lees read over, for the enlightenment of the gathering the regulations governing religious instruction in schools. The matter of allowing religious teaching in the school after hours was in the hands of the trustees.

PREPAIRING FOR CORONATION

London, Jan. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The aggregate representation of colonial contingents attending the coronation will number 2,000, five per cent. of which will be officers. The contingents will be camped at Alexandra Park. The coronation festivitives begin on June 19 and continue until the 30th.

London hotels have already raised rates. A Canadian, a regular visitor to London, endeavored to engage a room in a hotel on the route of the procession, but was informed prices were ten guineas, where they were ordinarily a guinea.

Postmaster Half a Century.

St. Catharines, Jan. 14.—Alonzo W. Riggins, who for close on to half a century has been deputy postmaster here, died yesterday morning, aged 70. He had served under three postmasters. He was a brother of Magistrate C. S. Riggins of Beamsville, and leaves a widow and two daughters, one of whom is the wife of J. A. McArthur of the National Drug Co. of Toronto.

A Brutal Assault.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Mary Normanzell was brutally assaulted yesterday morning by a thief, who awakened her with a terrible blow on the head. He also choked her and demanded her money. She escaped in her night clothes and bare feet, and rushed across the street for help. The robber did not find any money.

Kingston, Jan. 14.—The trustees of the Methodist Church at Verona, destroyed by fire, have decided to build a new edifice at a cost of $15,000.

CONNAUGHT'S ACCEPTANCE OF GOVERNOR-GENERALSHIP

English Mails Bring His Official Announcement of His Intention of Coming and He Will Probably Arrive In Autumn—Major Lowther to Be His Military and Arthur Sladen His Private Secretary.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Advices received here yesterday are that the coming to Canada of the Duke of Connaught this year as Governor-General is now beyond all doubt. The English mail, which arrived yesterday, brought the formal notice of his acceptance of the office, and the announcement of some appointments to his staff.

The Duke of Connaught, who is a brother of the late King Edward, will arrived in Canada towards the end of September or the beginning of October.

H.R.H. DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

The duke's military secretary will be Major Henry Cecil Lowther, C.V.O., D.S.O., of the Scots Guards. He was for some time military attache at Paris. He also accompanied His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught to South Africa, when he went there recently to open the first Parliament of United South Africa, the latest dominion within the British Empire. He is a son of Hon. Gerald Lowther, Speaker of the Imperial Parliament.

The Duke of Connaught has also appointed his private secretary. He will be Arthur F. Sladen, who is at present private secretary to Earl Grey, the present Governor-General.

Dairymen Conclude Session.

Stratford, Jan. 14.—The Western Ontario Dairymen's Association concluded its best convention Thursday night.

Valentine Stock, M.P.P., Tavistock, warned the dairymen that if reciprocity materialises, they will face the unfair competition of adulterate, low-grade American dairy products.

The new officers are: President, Wm. Waddell, Kerwood; first vice-president, D. A. Dempsey, Stratford; second vice-president, S. R. Wallace, Burgessville; third vice-president, W. S. Stocks, Britton; secretary-treasurer, F. Herns, London; auditors, J. A. Nelles, London, and J. C. Hegler, Ingersoll. Representatives to Western Fair, I. W. Steinhoff, Stratford, and the secretary; representatives to Toronto Exhibition, R. Johnston, Woodstock, and the secretary; directors, the officers and J. N. Paget, Canboro; J. J. Parsons, Jarvis; J. B. Smith, Alton; S. E. Facey, Harrietsville; J. B. Moir, Ingersoll.

TAFT ENDORSES COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 14.—Significant progress was made yesterday in the movement for the creation of a permanent tariff commission. Not only did President Taft in an address at the banquet of the National Tariff Commission Association openly endorse the Longworth bill, characterizing it as "a conciliatory measure embodying all the important features that are necessary to make the commission effective," but early yesterday he summoned the Republican members of the ways and means committee to the White House, and urged them to harmonize their differences.

THEY ALL WANT TO GO

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—The suggestion has been made that the entire House of Commons members should attend the coronation of King George, going to England on the Canadian battleship Niobe. There will be a contingent, but nothing is settled yet.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

The House of Commons members want to attend the coronation in a body. It would never do for Canada to be represented by the mere servants of THE PEOPLE. Send the people, by all means!

• • •

It would be quite a Niobener for the M.P.'s to ride on our flagship.

• • •

Trenton seems to have a most capacious appetite—nearly swallowed our seasoned hockey boys alive.

Billy Maclean says that there are a lot of "political peacocks" in parliament. Billy ought to be able to recognize his kindred.

• • •

Casey at the bat is dead, but its not uncommon to see K.C.'s at the bar (legal, of course.)

I suppose its quite proper to say if he is diggin' hard to-day, yesterday, he was Duggan hard.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely knew what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. He decided to get me a bottle, and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles."—Mrs. J. M. TWEEDALE, 138 Nassau St., Toronto, Canada.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, JAN. 14, 1911.

A FINE REPORT

In the Review to-day appears a very exhaustive resume of Canadian commercial and financial conditions from the pen of Sir Byron E. Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, and one of the foremost bankers and business men of the Dominion. This far-reaching and carefully compiled report, covering every important line of industry, is embodied in the annual report of the Bank of Commerce—a report of which the officers of the bank have every right to feel proud.

The directors' report shows the Bank of Commerce to be steadily gaining in assets, in branches, in power as one of the biggest of Canadian financial institutions. The general manager was able to report a profit for 1910 of $1,838,065.04, an increase of $327,370 over the best previous year. This profit was 18 per cent of the capital. The dividend was, therefore, increased to 9 per cent., calling for a payment of $900,000 in dividends. The sum of $1,000,000 was transferred to reserve account, and $310,204.06 was carried forward on account of profit and loss. Assets total $157,053,015. Such a report from a leading bank indicates great prosperity, both in its own affairs and those of the country at large. Sir Edmund Walker's sweeping analysis of commercial conditions confirms this view. It is a pleasure to read such optimistic literature.

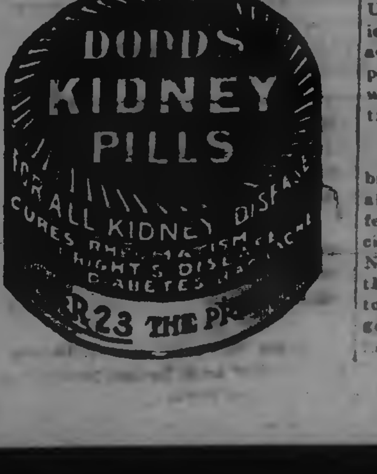
THE MANUFACTURERS

A large and most representative delegation of manufacturers, embracing nearly every one of the important classes of industries, visited Ottawa yesterday to present to Premier Laurier, their claims. The case they presented was remarkable in its clearness of view, its wealth of fact, its seizure of the situation. The Premier, in his reply, assured the delegation that Hon. Mr. Fielding and Hon. Mr. Paterson would do nothing to interfere with the manufacturing interests. Sir Wilfrid said:

> We do not intend to make any arrangements which would unsettle the prosperous conditions which we now enjoy. This Government has been careful not to disturb conditions which have prevailed in the manufacturing industries of the country. When we came into office we were very careful in carrying out the reforms which we intended not to disturb conditions. I may say that the best reform may be carried on in such a manner as to do as much harm as good. The aim of this Government has been not to bring about revolution but to bring about evolution.

This declaration on the part of the Premier will relieve many anxious minds. It would have been suicidal folly for Canada to have exposed its manufacturing industries to the destructive opposition of the United States trusts, to practically destroy Canadian prosperity.

The intimation from Premier Laurier that the business interests of Canada may regard present tariff conditions as perfectly stable insofar as they are concerned, is indeed welcome news. To have done otherwise would have proved the Laurier administration bent on Canada's destruction, which we are glad as Canadians to say it is not.



PRISON REFORM

Hon. W. J. Hanna is making another innovation for caring for prisoners. At the new Central Prison farm at Guelph, where so many reforms are to be instituted in the enlightened and humane treatment of prisoners, there will be separate rooms for the prisoners. Only fifteen per cent. of the accommodation will be in cells. In these will be placed men who cannot be trusted with liberty under parole, or those who are unruly. One half of the accommodation will be in the form of dormitories, where the men will sleep with windows open and doors unlocked. There will be no armed guards in the corridors, and in the rooms will be hung pictures, while newspapers and magazines will be provided.

Mr. Hanna's humanitarian idea of treating prisoners is based on sound psychology. More men can be won to a straight and honest life by kindness and consideration than by close confinement. When a man utterly loses his self-respect, when everyone seems to spurn him, he loses hope, and becomes desperate and a chronic criminal. More than this, the criminal who is encouraged to think along higher lines, who is brought into contact with clean, kindly life, knowing that while he suffers for sin against his fellows, he is given consideration by them, will, in nine cases out of ten, respond to the trust.

At any rate, it is Hon. Mr. Hanna's belief that such consideration will be well repaid. It is to be hoped that this enlightened and progressive method of reaching those whose lives have not been stainless will lead to good results, for much depends on it. Ontario has taken a radical step, made an important innovation, and it will have a great influence on general prison policy. All honor to Mr. Hanna in his great work!

EDITORIAL NOTES

The weather at Edmonton is only 52 below zero. Wouldn't it freeze you!

Toronto schools will adopt paper towels. The small boy is quite indifferent—it's all the same to him!

Seventeen Presbyteries in Canada have favored church union. Plenty of opinion, but no action!

Berlin's Board of Trade unanimously disapproves any reciprocity agreement with the United States. Next!

The Farmers' Bank shareholders who see a cool million tied up in the Keeley mine, may be excused if they take the Keeley cure.

Senator Landry yesterday in the Senate said that many Quebec households contained from twenty to thirty children. The best test is not how many heads there are, but what is there in them!

Two and one-half million people are reported to be starving in China the result of a terrible flood. The mind scarcely realizes the magnitude of such a disaster. Imagine a third of the Canadian population starving!

The Brockville and Oshawa boards of trade have passed resolutions in favor of letting things stand as they are in reference to United States negotiations. Many other boards have done the same. There is no denying the strength of public opinion on the subject.

The United Press, an American newspaper service, hands out some rich stuff about the reciprocity negotiations. It says that Canadian tariff experts were called to the conference, because Canada was placed on the defensive, and had been "obliged to offer detailed evidence to prove the justness of their position." The United Press says that a serious breach was averted by the Canadian Government sending the experts to save the situation. No one will accuse the United Press of not trying to suit its American clientele.

A New York fruit and produce broker, who doesn't believe in vaccination has made the following offer:—"Five physicians are to be vaccinated with vaccine furnished by the New York Board of Health. After the vaccine has "taken" the five are to be inoculated with smallpox germs. If three of the five do not take the disease he will give $1,000 to any charity the doctors name." It is quite certain that the doctors will sleep on the proposition for several nights at least.

BABY'S SPLENDID HEALTH

Mrs. R. Yates, Montreal, Que., writes—"Baby's splendid health was obtained through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. They are a grand medicine for constipation as their action is easy and does not give baby pain. I would recommend them to all mothers; no one should be without them who have young children in the house." This testimony is similar to thousands of others sent us by grateful mothers. Every mother who has ever used the Tablets for her little ones will tell you they are the very best medicine in the world. They not only cure the ills of the little ones, but they make them grow happy and strong. The Tablets can be given to even the youngest babe with absolute safety, as they are sold under the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate or other harmful drug. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Chistrian Citizenship

The second part of the address on "Christian Citizenship" will be given in the Princess Theatre on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the St. John's Guild of Good Fellowship. Last Sunday the Guild considered the duty of the State toward the individual, and this week the discussion will be upon "The Duty of the Citizen Toward the State." All men of 18 years or over will be most cordially welcomed. These meetings are greatly appreciated by those who attend, but there is plenty of room for new-comers of all classes and creeds.

Do not forget the place and hour, the Princess Theatre, from 3 to 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

TRENT CANAL TRAFFIC WAS HEAVIEST IN ITS HISTORY

Annual Report Shows a Considerable Increase—Young's Point is the Busiest on Entire System—The Details From the Various Locks.

The annual report of the traffic at the various locks on the Trent Canal for the season, 1910, has been issued by the superintendent of the Canal, J. H McClellan. Traffic at nearly every lock shows an increase over the preceding year, and altogether the business on the canal was the largest in its history. Young's Point continues to be the busiest point on the entire system, there being a total of 2,634 lockages there during the season. The reports of the individual lockmasters are as follows;

GAMEBRIDGE.

D. H. Gilchrist, Lockmaster.

The lock at Gamebridge is sometimes known as Lock No. 5, of the Lake Simcoe-Balsam Lake division of the Trent Canal. The lock is a short distance from the entrance of the canal to Lake Simcoe. This is the second year that any records have been supplied showing the volume of traffic through this lock. Of course, owing to the fact that the canal, is as yet, in an uncomplete state, there is nothing to direct much traffic over the division on which this lock is located. The detailed statement as to the volume of traffic is as follows;

Total No. of lockages 150.
Total No. of passengers 2,257.
Total No. ft. of lumber, 150 M.

The difference in the depth of water this season on Lake Simcoe was one foot ten inches. Last year it was one foot, five inches.

FROM GAMEBRIDGE TO KIRKFIELD

There are four locks between this point and the Kirkfield Hydraulic Lift Lock, but a record of the lockages at Gamebridge together with the lockages at the Kirkfield Hydraulic lift lock is a fair criterion of the extent of the traffic all along this division.

KIRKFIELD HYDRAULIC LIFT LOCK.

Wm. Jobe, Lockmaster.

This is the fourth year that the Kirkfield hydraulic lift lock has been operated, and notwithstanding the fact, that there is no through route from Georgian Bay, as yet, and nothing to demand very much traffic over the Lake Simcoe-Balsam Lake division of the canal there were a total of 217 lockages at Kirkfield during the past season.

Total No. of lockages, 217.

ROSEDALE.

A. E. Minthorn, Lockmaster.

A substantial new lock at Rosedale was placed in commission at the beginning of the season. A new concrete dam, it is expected, will be finished some time during next summer. Balsam Lake just above Rosedale lock constitutes the summit waters of the Trent Canal. From Balsam Lake the waters of the Trent Canal flow eastward to Lake Ontario, while the artificial stretch from Balsam Lake to Lake Simcoe carried a very light portion of the water from Balsam Lake to Georgian Bay. A record of the lockages at Rosedale during the past year is as follows;—

Total No. of lockages, 2,900.
Total. No. of passengers, 3,903.
Total No. of ft. of lumber. 117,000.
Total No. of cords of wood, 685.
Total No. of livestock 271.
Total No. shingles, 135,000.
Total No. of boom sticks, 100.
Total No. of logs, 360.

FENELON FALLS.

W. T. Junkin, Lockmaster.

The lockages at Fenelon Falls for the past year show an increase of 232 over the lockages of the preceding year. The report of the lockmaster is as follows;

Total No. of lockages, 638
Total No. of passengers, 3,147.
Total No. of feet of lumber 111,000
Total No. of cords of wood, 291.

LINDSAY LOCK.

John Mekins, Lockmaster

As is well known the Lindsay lock is not on the main line of the Trent Canal, being on the Scugog River and affording a means of navigation to and from Port Perry on Scugog Lake, to the main line of the Trent Canal. A new lock has been built at this point and navigation was suspended until the month of July, when the amount of traffic through Lindsay lock during the past season;

Total No of feet of lumber, 5,000.
One scow lath, 20,000.
One scow brick, 40,500.
One scow manure, 20 tons.

BOBCAYGEON.

John J. Walker, Lockmaster.

The lockages at Bobcaygeon during the past year totalled 925, a slight decrease from the number of lockages of last year at this point. The report of the lockages at Bobcaygeon for the past season is as follows.—

Total No. of lockages 925.
Total No of passengers 3,418.
Total No of feet of lumber, 179,000.
Total No. of cords wood, 1,396.

BUCKHORN.

R. T. Hill, Lockmaster.

Buckhorn lock connects Lovesick Lake with Buckhorn. The total number of lockages during the past year at this point was 1,425, a slight increase over the number of lockages of the previous year. The returns from this lock are as follows;

Total No. of lockages, 1,425.
Total No. of passengers, 6,552.
Total No. of feet of lumber, 533,000.

BURLEIGH FALLS.

Jacob C Bates, Lockmaster

The lockages at Burleigh Falls during the past season show a slight increase over the traffic of 1909 at this point.

Total lockages, 1,330

YOUNG'S POINT

P. P. Young, Lockmaster.

Young's Point still maintains the proud position of being the busiest lock on the entire Trent canal. Each year the number of lockages show an increase over the preceding year, and during the past season the number of lockages at this point totalled 2,634, an increase of nearly 200 over the preceding year. Notwithstanding the Grand Trunk Railway strike, which tied up the excursion trade during the greater portion of the summer season 34,390 passengers passed through the Young's Point lock. The report of the lockmaster is as follows—

Total lockages, 2,634
Total No of passengers, 34,390.

LAKEFIELD LOCK

J. H. McWilliams, Lockmaster.

This lock is known as Lock No 1, of the Peterborough-Lakefield section of the Trent canal. The number of lockages at this point show a considerable increase over the lockages of last year. This was due, no doubt, to the fact that an extra passenger boat plied between Peterborough and Stony Lake. The returns of the lockmaster are as follows—

Total lockages, 1,185
Total No feet of lumber, 200,000
Total No cords of wood, 4,200.
Total No livestock, 220 hogs.

PETERBOROUGH HYDRAULIC LIFT LOCK

H. W. Gillespie, Lockmaster

Wm Collins, Lockmaster.

The traffic through the Peterborough Lock does not now indicate the volume of traffic down the Otonabee river to Rice Lake, as it did some years ago, before the Street Railway Company extended its line to a point on the Otonabee river below the locks. A great deal of traffic on the Otonabee river arises at the street railway terminus. However, the report of the lockmaster shows a total of 1,112 lockages. A record of the lockages at the Peterborough Locks is as follows—

Total lockages, 1,112.
Total No of passengers, 28,811.
Total No feet of lumber, 225,000.
Total No Cords of wood, 250.

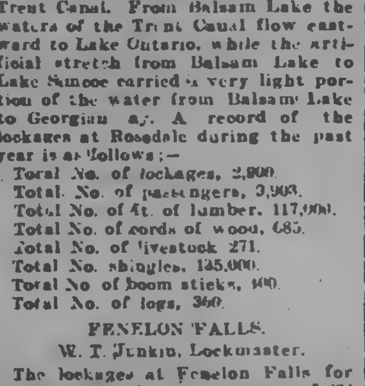
HASTINGS LOCK

John Tracy, Lockmaster

Owing to the fact that a substantial new lock is in course of construction at this point, on the site of the old lock, there was no navigation between Hastings and Healey Falls during the past season. The new lock is about completed and traffic will be opened again through Hastings lock next season.



Cured His Rheumatism In Three Weeks.

James LeB. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, writes:

"I contracted Rheumatism by exposure, five years ago, and was ailing for two months and in great pain all the time. I got Father Morriscy's No. 7 Tablets and took them for about three weeks, when the Rheumatism all left me and I have had no return of the pains since."

Father Morriscy's "No. 7" Tablets have cured thousands of this terribly painful disease.

Rheumatism is generally brought on by exposure, but is really caused by Uric Acid in the blood. This Uric Acid is an irritating poison, formed from the waste matter of the body. The kidneys should remove it, but when they fail it poisons the blood, and, settling in the joints, causes Rheumatism.

"No. 7" Tablets clear out the clogged-up Kidneys and stimulate them to perform their task of filtering the Uric Acid out of the blood. When this is done the Rheumatism simply and naturally vanishes.

"No 7" Tablets cost 50c. At your dealer's. 28

THE SILVER HORDE

BY REX BEACH

Constantine hesitated slightly before answering. "Me go work for Cherry."

"Why?"

"She good to my little broder. You savvy little chil'ren—so big?"

"Yes, I've seen him. He's a fine little fellow. By the way, do you remember that night about two weeks ago when I was at Cherry's house—the night you and your sister went out?"

"I 'member."

"Where did you go?"

Constantine shifted his walrus soled boots. "What for you ask?"

"Never mind! Where did you go when you left the house?"

"Me go Indian village. What for you ask?"

"Nothing. Only if you ever have any trouble with Mr. Marsh I may be able to help you. I like you, and I don't like him."

The breed grunted unintelligibly and was about to leave when Boyd reached forth suddenly and plucked the fellow's sheath knife from its scabbard. With a startled cry, Constantine whirled, his face convulsed, his nostrils dilated like those of a frightened horse.

But Emerson merely fingered the Indian's weapon carelessly, remarking:

"That is a curious knife you have. I have noticed it several times."

He eyed him shrewdly for a moment, then handed the blade back with a smile. Constantine slipped it into its place and strode away without a word.

It was considerably later in the day when Boyd discovered the Indians to whom he had given the note talking excitedly on the dock. Seeing Constantine in argument with them, he approached to demand an explanation, whereupon the quarter breed held out a silver dollar in his palm with the words:

"These men say this money no good."

"What do you mean?"

"It no good. No can buy grub at company store."

It was evident that even Constantine was vaguely distrustful.

Another native extended a coin, saying:

"We want money like this."

Boyd took the piece and examined it, whereupon a light broke upon him. The coin was stamped with the initials of one of the old fishing companies, and he instantly recognized a ruse practiced in the north during the days of the first trading concerns. It had been the custom of these companies to pay their Indians in coins bearing their own impress and to refuse all other specie at their posts, thus compelling the natives to trade at company stores. Seeing that his words carried no conviction, Emerson gave up at last, saying:

"If the company store won't take the money I'll sell you whatever you need from the commissary. We are not going to have any trouble over a little thing like this."

He marched the natives in a body to the storehouse, where he saw to it that they received what provisions they needed and assisted them in loading their canoes.

But his amusement at the episode gave way to uneasiness on the following morning when the Aleuts failed to report for work, and by noon his anxiety resolved itself into strong suspicion.

To be continued.

Frank Sharer was fined $14 for throwing snuff around in a Welland theatre.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Tax on Improvements

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The city of Peterborough is uniting with about 100 other municipalities in Ontario in the presentation of a petition to the Ontario Legislature that will give corporations the power to tax on improvements such as buildings, at lower rates than land values. May I therefore be permitted to say a few words on the subject. The average man feels in his heart that there is something fundamentally wrong with a system of taxation which results in his taxes being increased following every effort he puts forth to improve his home, and thereby surrounding homes, such as by the painting of his house, the planting of a few trees or the erection of a new verandah. He realizes that every house or store or factory that is created gives employment to labor and is a benefit to the community. For this reason he regrets the apparent necessity that compels the municipality to impose taxes on such buildings.

It is with the object of escaping the results of this form of taxation that cities frequently agree, as Peterborough has asked to do several times of late, to forego the payment of taxes, or give a fixed assessment for a period of years, in their efforts to attract new industries.

Together with all this, the public is beginning to see, especially since Lloyd-George has taken up the matter in Great Britain, that there is something that at least seems unfair in a system which permits a man to increase in wealth, through no effort on his part, by merely holding land idle in a city, while it is increasing in value, largely through the efforts of other men who are taxed for every improvement they make.

During the past year or more, much attention has been drawn through the press to the system of taxation that is proving so successful in the city of Vancouver. Finding that the tax on buildings was retarding building operations, and that the speculation in land within the city limits to be held idle, the city council threw off 25 per cent. of the tax on buildings, and improvements and increased the tax on land values, in proportion.

Finding that the experiment was proving a success, it a few years later reduced the tax on buildings and improvements still another 25 per cent., and again added it to the tax on land values. This, also proving successful, led the city council last year to throw off all taxes on buildings and improvements and place it on land values.

The progress that has been made by Vancouver under this system of taxation has been remarkable. In 1902 the value of the building permits was $833,607. For the first seven months of last year they were $7,9525,410. In 1905 the population of Vancouver was estimated at 44,631. To-day it is placed at around 110,000. It has more than doubled within five years. Bonds issued by the city for $2,000,000 last June brought the highest figures in the history of the city.

The increased tax on land has made it more difficult for people to speculate in land by holding it idle, while the knowledge that they would not be taxed for so doing has encouraged them to put their land to more profitable use by erecting buildings thereon.

Adjoining cities in the States, such as Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, have not been making the same progress. A committee that was appointed in one of them to ascertain the reason reported that the building records for the four cities for the first seven months of 1909 showed that in Spokane there had been a decrease during 1910 of 16 per cent. over the year before, in Tacoma a decrease of 24 per cent., in Seattle a decrease of 20 per cent., while in Vancouver there had been an increase of 86 per cent. The committee recommended the adoption of a system similar to that being followed in Vancouver.

The ratepayers of Vernon, B.C., last summer by a vote of two to one pronounced in favor of adopting the same system. The city of Edmonton has a system of taxation much similar to that in force in Vancouver.

In New South Wales, some 374 municipalities tax land values almost exclusively. Mr. A. G. Huie, of Sydney, N.S.W., writes me that the people generally are heartily in favor of this system, and that it is a huge success.

My object in calling attention to these matters is the fact that Mr. A. B. Farmer, B.A., of Toronto, the secretary of the Tax Reform League, is to give a public address on this subject to the men of St. Paul's church next Tuesday evening. Mr. Farmer has been addressing Boards of Trade, and other public bodies throughout Ontario during the past years with marked success. As this matter is of more than usual interest, members of the executive of the Brotherhood of St. Paul desire to extend a general invitation to all who care to do so, to attend. A special invitation is extended to members of the city council and of the Board of Trade.

Yours very truly,
H. B. COWAN,
President,
Brotherhood of St. Paul.

FOR LADY READERS

The Secret of a Good Complexion

This is the season for evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best. Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound natural lines, by using Zam-Buk, Nature's herbal balm.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face each night, acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation thus started carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. Hard, pimply, growths are softened and disappear. That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health and the white, velvety "look" and "feel" which healthy skin alone has.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? They only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts.

Zam-Buk also cures skin diseases pimples ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds chapped places, scalp sores, piles, etc. 50c. box all druggists and stores or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, but beware of harmful substitutes and imitations.

LARGE ICE AND TRENTON'S SPEED WAS TOO MUCH

Local Intermediates Defeated 18-4, With Half Time Figures 11-1—Were Better in Second Half—Trenton Played An Effective Individual Game.

Tough luck, the space will not permit to-day of explanation, of how the trip was made each way; of all our consternation; of how the shots went whizzing by our Lady's upper storey; of how the voice of Wallie Breen won fame and unsought glory; of how the Cannon Ball Express made stops at every station; of how the boys in blue and white made good at aviation. Nor can a word be said of "Jock" or Kel or Fat or Jerry, or how at Pop McGeachie's home the bunch were all made merry. There's space enough to tell the score, 'twas 18—4, dear Mona, but that don't cut a bit of ice—we've found who is the JONAH. Next game you'll see the Petes break away, for scores they'll need a tub, so get in line, just lend a hand and join the ROOTERS' CLUB.

No, it wasn't a poor referee, for he was Lawson Whitehead; neither was it soft ice, poor condition, knockouts or penalties. It was Trenton's classy collection of speed kings, shooters and stay-on-the-ice players that registered and bagged the big end of that 18—4 score against Peterborough intermediates last night. It's a tough bill o' fare, and a particularly hard one to digest, coming, as it does, so soon after that uphill fight and win at Cobourg on Monday of this very same week. Friday, January 13, will remain green in the memory of the local seven for a few days at least. Eighteen goals is quite a contract to put over Derocher, but it was done and done rightly. Every team is bound to run up against a snag sometime or other, and last night was the date for the Petes. They were all there, and while the score may not look very promising, the boys were really playing great hockey, and at times the game was lightning fast, the teams putting up a struggle that was worth going out of town to witness. Peterborough fans may be assured of a great contest when the two sevens meet on local ice.

To begin with, Trenton started scoring right off the handle, finding the nets three times in two minutes. That was their game, and on the large sheet of ice they were able to get away with it. This onslaught, followed by a combination of hard luck shooting and misses on the part of the blue and white brigade in Trenton territory, had its effect.

Trenton however, had every license to win. Every man was right on. Individually, the team was very strong. Each could handle his stick, check or shoot like a winner, and the majority of the goals were scored by one-man plays, and the manner in which many of the counters were tallied was pretty to watch. Many were shot at Derocher at close range, and with steam behind them. No goaltender, whoever wore a pair of pads, could have stopped Trenton last night. And their stick handling was so effective, the players being helped by the large ice that the Petes' defence men had to submit. Coughlin and Bond broke up and sidetracked many plays, both individual and combined, the former getting away for numerous rink-end rushes, and otherwise distinguishing himself. The line was there too, all the time, but it was simply a case of being lost on a rink with the strongest kind of opposition.

For Trenton Armstrong and "Crab" Fletcher starred with Croft and McGraw always in the limelight. Fletcher is a product of Stirling, having played in the Trent Valley League and made the sparks fly at all stages. He gets around with the activity of a chased mouse, and is on the puck every minute. Armstrong's shooting was a feature of the work of the winners, he and Fletcher being the heaviest scorers.

Captain Ray received a nasty cut on the lip in the first half, accidentally. The game was not in any way rough, and Referee Whitehead had an easy time.

The teams were—

Trenton—18		4—Peterborough
	—Goal—
Law		Derocher
	—Point—
Croft		Bond
	—Cover-point—
McGraw (Capt.)		Coughlin
	—Rover—
Cummings		Ray (Capt.)
	—Centre—
Fletcher		Dobson
	—Right Wing—
Armstrong		Kelly
	—Left Wing—
Powers		Sarels

HOW IT WAS DONE

Trenton started off with a burst of speed that made the locals blink. The first score came in one minute, Fletcher landing the rubber behind Derocher. He repeated, and once again in another sixty seconds. Peterborough had not worked the puck past centre ice. Finally Ray and Dobson got away, but lost the rubber. Derocher stopped a hot shot from Fletcher on a lone rush. Trenton had the better of the play by long odds. Ray took the puck up and Dobson shot wild from in front of the nets. On the return Croft stopped Coughlin. Kelly shot wide and a scrimmage followed. Sarels missed a chance to bat in a score. Cummings took possession, rushed, and Derocher blocked his shot. Ray and Kelly got away, the latter shooting wide. The former was hurt in the face and play was stopped. Coughlin got the puck at his goal, rushed the rink, passed to Kelly, and Law handled his shot. McGraw took a loner, passed to Armstrong and Derocher dished his attempt. Ray lost the disc to McGraw who again rushed, only to be sidetracked at the defence. Dobson had a hard luck shot, hitting Croft in front of the goal. He took another, and it went high.

The next score came in fifteen minutes, when Fletcher took the puck from Sarels and passed it to Powers, who shot. Trenton 4, Peterborough 0.

Armstrong and Fletcher combined for the next counter in half a minute. McGraw got a penalty and Ray was next man. Coughlin rushed again, but lost at goal. Armstrong pulled off a lonely for another tally, going through the whole team. Coughlin tried another alone, and was chased into the corner. On the pass-out Dobson missed the nets by inches, but handed a shot to Kelly for the first Peterborough goal, after Trenton had lost on the return.

Following an assault on Derocher, Ray took a jaunt, slid one to Kelly, and he shot high over the nets. Armstrong stole from Dobson, rushed and Derocher handled his shot. The return saw Law block a hot one from Kelly. Derocher behaved likewise after a rush by McGraw. Sarels pulled off a screamer, and passed to left. The shot was wide and Armstrong returned. Peterborough scored a goal following some nice work by Sarels, but an off-side put it to the bad. Coughlin Kelly and Dobson had combined without success. McGraw corkscrewed and the light shone.

Trenton 7; Peterborough 1

Cummings took the next on a pass from Croft, who rushed the boards. Sarels shot wide on an opening, and Croft wiggled through for Trenton's ninth tally. Armstrong started the play for the next, passed to Fletcher, who counted. Armstrong gathered the last goal of the half on a rush, and following a high shot by Kelly.

Trenton 11; Peterborough 1

SECOND HALF

After the rest the locals broke away in a manner different from the first half. The play went up and down. Coughlin got away nicely after some fast playing, and passed to Ray, who shook the netting.

Trenton 11; Peterborough 2

With Bond away from home, Croft sauntered up and gave Trenton an even dozen. Ray and Dobson combined, the play going into a mixup in which Dobson had a chance to score, but couldn't pull it off. Sarels unloaded a winder, passed to Kelly, the shot going wide. McGraw journeyed alone and was sidetracked by Coughlin who next broke up a nice play by Cummings and Armstrong. Derocher blocked a shot from an Armstrong-Fletcher attempt, but Cummings beat him, giving Trenton their thirteenth count.

Kelly uncovered a board rush, and shot wide. Armstrong took a hand after a three-man rush had failed. He landed a hot one past Derocher. He went out of his nets on the next one. Croft came up, got around Coughlin, then Bond, and coaxed Law out, and all he had to do was to put the rubber in.

McGraw recovered from Coughlin, passed to Fletcher, and it was Trenton 16; Peterborough 2.

The play was, despite the heavy scoring of the Trenton team, interesting and exciting, Peterborough making a good showing in the play, but being weak in scoring ability. The locals' next goal went to Ray, but Fletcher got it back, accepting a pass from Armstrong, who rushed the rink. Sarels made it a quartette for his team, beating Law on a pretty side shot. Croft rushed, showed his heels to Kelly, who tried to get him, worked around Coughlin and Bond, and notched the eighteenth goal. Play ended with Armstrong away on a loner.

HELD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of the officers of Murray street Baptist Sunday school last evening the yearly reports were read and each report showed a most satisfactory and progressive condition of affairs prevailing.

Mr. O. S. Matchett, the energetic secretary, gave a very encouraging report. The average attendance of the school for 1910, was 215 as compared to 198 in 1909, and 196, in 1908. Twelve scholars have attended fifty-one or more Sundays during the year. One scholar missed but one Sunday in four years. Charlie Hardwicke has attended every Sunday for eleven years, and Miss Bessie Elcome every Sunday for eight years. A much larger number had attended forty-eight or more Sundays during the year. There were 364 star classes during the year in which every member of the class had been present. The banners for the star classes have been held by Mr. Wilfrid Shiner, Mr. Garbutt, Mrs. G. K. Martin, Mrs J. R. Webb, Mrs. Scott and Miss Martin.

The treasurer's report showed the receipts to be considerably in advance of the previous year and the amounts given to missions were ahead of last year, all the liabilities of the year were paid and a balance left on the right side. The treasurer is Mr. Cottingham. The library report showed a balance on hand of something over one hundred dollars. Mr. Weboer is the librarian. The cradle roll in charge of Mrs. O. S. Matchett is also in a prosperous condition.

The appointment of officers followed the reports. The superintendent was re-appointed. Assistant superintendents are Messrs. C. B. Routley, Mr. Cottingham and Wilfrid Shiner. The Executive Committee are the same as last year. Miss Bessie Elcome was re-appointed as pianist and Mr. Enoch Miller as chorister. A resolution of appreciation was passed to Miss Elcome for her efficient and painstaking services as pianist, she having never missed a Sunday for eight years. The motion was heartily endorsed. A similar motion was also made to the popular secretary, Miss Garbutt. She was re-appointed to the position. Mr. Wilmot Browett is again asst.-secretary, and O. S. Matchett, recording-secretary: Miss Barnard and Mr. Cottingham were also re-appointed treasurers.

6 YEAR OLD GIRL

Cured of Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Alex. Moore, of James street, Oxford, N.S., says "Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christian, age six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and the least exertion would tire her. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. Finally we learned of Booth's Kidney Pills, and procured a box. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions have become normal, and she plays around the house with no apparent fatigue. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilled. I wrote them and got The New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

"Salvador" BEER

THE FAMOUS NATIONAL DRINK

There's a story behind "Salvador" beer —Canada's most famous brew—that carries us back to the year 1651

The Grand Duke Ferdinand, the Bavarian monarch of that period, established the now famous cloister brewery on the Nockerberg Mountain, near Munich, and appointed Father Sale the chief brewmaster.

The product of the royal brewery was first known as "Father Sale's Beer," until the more convenient title of "Salvador" was adopted, about a century later.

For over 150 years "Salvador" was brewed under the patronage of the Bavarian royal family. In 1806, Franz X. Zacherl acquired control of the cloister brewery and purchased the secret formula of the royal brew.

From that day to this the formula and sole European rights have been the most jealously guarded inheritance of the famous brewer's family.

The rich, mellow flavor of "Salvador" is only attained by a special aging process, and if the output of the cloister brewery was great enough the people of Bavaria would drink no other beer.

Mr. Lothar Reinhardt completed his extensive studies of German brewing in this famous cloister brewery, where he secured the secret formula and process for brewing "Salvador." He has the sole right under the Canadian Government Copyright and Letters Patent to manufacture this famous brew.

Reinhardts' "Salvador" has become "The National Drink by a rigorous adherence to every detail of the original process devised by Father Sale in 1651.

Compared with all other brews, "Salvador" beer is worth a dollar a drop, yet it costs no more than just ordinary beer.

Every pint of "Salvador" is matured in wood for at least six months before bottling.

"Salvador" is not only a pure, sparkling and refreshing brew; it also possesses tonic qualities which make it the beer par excellence for family use.

Always order "Salvador" if you want the best beer brewed.

Bank of Commerce President Very Optimistic on Canadian Commercial Development and Prospects

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS

TUESDAY, 10th JANUARY, 1911

The forty-fourth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce was held in the banking house on Tuesday, 10th January, 1911, at 12 o'clock.

The President, Sir Edmund Walker, having taken the chair, Mr. A. St. L. Trigge was appointed to act as Secretary, and Messrs. A. J. Glazebrook and W. E. Rundle were appointed scrutineers.

The President called upon the Secretary to read the Annual Report of the Directors, as follows:

Report.

The Directors beg to present to the Shareholders the forty-fourth Annual Report, covering the year ending 30th November, 1910, together with the usual Statement of Assets and Liabilities:

The balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account, brought forward from last year, was ....$	722,139 02
The net profits for the year ending 30th November, after providing for all bad and doubtful debts, amounted to	1,838,065 04
	$2,560,204 06
This has been appropriated as follows:
Dividends Nos. 92, 93, 94 and 95, at nine per cent. per annum ....$	900,000 00
Written off Bank Premises	300,000 00
Transferred to Pension Fund (annual contribution)	50,000 00
Transferred to Rest Account	1,000,000 00
Balance carried forward ..	310,204 06
	$2,560,204 06

The assets of the Bank have all been carefully revalued in accordance with our usual practice, and all bad and doubtful debts have been amply provided for.

It is with deep regret that your Directors have to announce the death during the past year of Mr. James Crathern, of Montreal, who had been a member of the Board for twenty-seven years, and who at the time of his death was our oldest Director. To fill the vacancy your Directors have elected Mr. George F. Galt, of Winnipeg.

During the year the actuarial work connected with the establishment of a fund to provide pensions for the widows and orphans of deceased officers of the Bank, as authorized by the Shareholders at the last Annual Meeting, has been completed. It was thought advisable that the new requirements should be met by enlarging the scope of the existing Pension Fund and this has been found practicable on a very satisfactory basis. The new provisions came into effect in November.

The following branches have been opened during the year: In Manitoba—Transcona; in Saskatchewan—Bounty, Kerr Robert, Kindersley, Marcelin, Morse, Swift Current; in Alberta—Bassano, Champion, Kitscoty, Lougheed, Milk River, New Dayton; in British Columbia—Cumberland, South Hill, Stewart, Mount Pleasant (Vancouver), North Victoria; and in the City of Mexico. The branches at Elk Lake, Ontario, and Skagway, Alaska, have been closed. Since the close of the year branches have been opened at the following places: Porcupine and Bloor and Dufferin (Toronto), Ontario; The Pas, N.W.T., Brooking, Lamerton, and Nutana, Saskatchewan; Chilliwack and Salmon Arm, British Columbia.

As is usual, the branches and agencies of the Bank in Canada, the United States, and Great Britain, and the various departments of the Head Office have been thoroughly inspected during the year.

Your Directors desire again to record their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which the officers of the Bank continue to perform their respective duties.

B. E. WALKER.

Toronto, 10th January, 1911. President.

In moving the adoption of the Report the President called on the General Manager to address the shareholders.

General Manager's Address.

The General Manager then said:

We have pleasure in presenting you with a statement which is in many respects a culminating record in the Bank's history. The past year was remarkable for a large volume of business and general prosperity, which justified our predictions when last we had the honour of appearing before you. At no time during the year was there any apprehension lest we should fall short of our estimates. The trend of business, uniformly satisfactory profits, and comparative freedom from losses make it possible to lay before you the results of our operations with great confidence and a full assurance that they will meet with your very cordial approval.

The profits for the past year were $1,838,065.04, an increase of $327,310 as compared with those of the previous year—being 18.38 per cent. on the paid-up capital. This result was obtained after making a careful revaluation of our assets, and ample provision for all bad and doubtful debts.

In accordance with our recommendation, your Directors increased the dividend to nine per cent. per annum, which called for a payment of $900,000. We are gratified that our present and prospective prosperity justifies the expectation of a larger return on your capital, and it will be our pleasure to suggest the payment of ten per cent. for the coming year.

You were good enough to pass a resolution at the last annual meeting authorising the grant of $20,000 as a nucleus for a Widows' and Orphans' Fund, and this sum, with the regular payment of $30,000 towards the Pension Fund, accounts for the $50,000 charged against profits for this year. After very careful investigation and actuarial examination, we are pleased to say we have been able to adopt a comprehensive scheme to embrace in one fund a beneficent recognition of every member of the staff. We cannot express too strongly our gratification at this consummation of our desire for the welfare of the service. This crowning act will do much to foster the best interests of the Bank, so zealously guarded since its establishment.

The extraordinary development of Canada, the manifest need for the extension of our system to meet the requirements of a rapidly growing business, and the protection of our business at points where we are already established, make it imperative that we should do our duty in opening branches, often anticipating the necessities of the case. We are not unmindful of the criticism activity of this kind engenders, but are conscious of the fact that we are expected to do our full share in the upbuilding of the country which gives us privileges with the understanding that our service will be commensurate with our opportunities. We realize our accountability to the shareholders of this Bank, who have entrusted us with a large investment, and we believe you will be satisfied with the assurance that we exercise a prudent caution as we continue to open branches in new fields.

The occupation of an extended territory with a network of branch banks gives us serious thought when we come to the question of suitable and efficient management. This is always a difficult problem, but we have been fortunate in selecting an active, intelligent, and loyal staff who have shown a devotion to duty in circumstances not always very agreeable, and in which the ordinary comforts of life often cannot be obtained. We take pleasure in acknowledging our indebtedness to your Directors for a willing acquiescence in every suggestion for a proper recognition of the faithful work of able assistants who are asked to assume exceptional burdens of administration.

We have closed a very satisfactory year, our accounts showing unusual profits and a healthy advance in material prosperity. There was a steady and persistent demand for money to care for the needs of merchants, manufacturers, and our farming community, with rates fairly well maintained, the fluctuations being unimportant, notwithstanding the uncertainty of financial affairs in other centres with which we are intimately connected. The outlook for easier conditions in Great Britain will probably result in the sale of Canadian securities abroad in large volume, and the prospect of cheaper money in the United States may have a reflex influence here; but with the great development in all parts of Canada there should be employment at remunerative rates for funds to carry on ordinary business, and all the indications are favorable to active trade along safe lines. We enter the coming year with a confidence begotten of past experience, and hope to share in the general prosperity, and to enjoy reasonable freedom from undue anxiety in the management of our institution.

President's Address.

The President then said:

Doubtless the feeling most strongly present at the moment regarding business conditions in Canada is that we are enjoying a prosperity as great as we have ever known. Whatever significance the check of 1907 had at the time or should still have, even the memory of it seems to have passed away, and with larger foreign and home trade, larger bank clearings, a larger amount of building in cities, a larger amount of railway construction, and larger immigration than in any previous year, it would be strange if we felt otherwise. Our Western crops were not to our liking this year, bankers know that a little more expansion may make money scarce, and the pace of real estate speculation has brought on the inevitable temporary exhaustion, but, important as these things are, they have little effect on the situation as a whole. Even the large reduction in the volume of business in the United States is regarded as mainly due to political unrest and as having no direct bearing on our position. That we are experiencing very great prosperity is a matter evident to all, but if we examine in detail the circumstances accompanying this prosperity, there is much that is not satisfactory. Great Britain is a country which can afford to import much more than it exports because the world owes it annually an enormous sum for interest and other things, for which it must of course take payment mainly in merchandise. The United States is a country which should export annually about $500,000,000 more than it imports in order to pay for interest, and for the money drawn from the country by permanent absentees, tourists, emigrants to Canada, etc., and because it cannot afford to increase its debt to foreign countries, having already about 100,000,000 people and a scarcity in many raw materials. Canada is one of the new countries which is entitled to, and which must, during its period of rapid settlement, import more than it exports. The difference is met, however, by debt obligations which must some day be paid. The question, then, as to how much we should go into debt is the same which confronts the individual in trade, but the considerations are so large and so complicated that it is hard to know when we are wise and when unwise. What is certain however, is that when a man is in debt he should live sparingly, not extravagantly, and that if, with the money he has borrowed, he has put himself in the way of making a product with which he hopes to pay his debt, he should strain every nerve to make and sell as much of that product as he can, in order to reduce his indebtedness to the lowest point possible. Now, Canada is somewhat like a man who, having a rich inheritance in land, borrows to develop it, and, confident of its future value, spends freely for his present gratification while he does not make effort enough to create the needed present revenue from his property.

The total value of the field crops of Canada, at local market prices, as estimated by the Census Department, is $507,185,000, the product of 32,711,062 acres. The corresponding figures for 1909 are $532,992,000, from 30,065,556 acres, and for 1908, $432,534,000 from 27,505,663 acres. The loss in 1910 was in wheat, oats, and barley, in which the acreage was 20,992,900, with a value of only $248,738,000, against 18,917,900 acres in 1909, with a value of $289,144,000. So that, while the decrease in all field crops is $25,807,000, the loss in wheat, oats, and barley alone is $40,406,000, leaving a handsome increase in all other field crops.

Our clearing house returns again reflect the great growth in business. The total of the seventeen clearing houses for 1910, two being only a few months old, is $6,154,000,000, as compared with $5,204,000,000 for 1909, a gain of eighteen per cent in the year. There is a gain in every clearing house in Canada, most notably in Edmonton, Calgary, Victoria, Vancouver, and Montreal.

The building permits in the four chief cities will illustrate forcibly the growth of Canada. Hundreds of towns and cities would show similar proportions of growth could we but find space in which to give the figures.

	1909.	1910
Montreal	$10,713,000	$15,815,000
Toronto	18,139,000	21,127,000
Winnipeg	9,226,000	15,106,000
Vancouver	7,202,00	13,150,000

With the Montreal figures for 1909 are included municipalities which in 1910 had become a part of the city.

The most curious feature in Canada at the moment is the outbreak from time to time of agitation stirred up sometimes by guilds, sometimes by strikes, and often by city councils, but always by one set of interests against another. We have a more general prosperity than could readily be found elsewhere, now or in the history of the past. The only people with a just complaint are those whose labour and brains are paid by a more or less fixed recompense, which is not adjusted in accordance with the change in prices. These are the people who, as a rule, do not complain, perhaps because their fortune is the same in every country. In the case of the majority of our wage-earners there is some adjustment, whether sufficient or not. In any event, the overwhelming bulk of our people share in our prosperity, which, be it remembered, is the result of our combined activities. It is not due to the farmer alone, nor to the mechanic, nor to the railroad, the bank, the manufacturer, or the shopkeeper. It is the result of the fortuitous circumstances under which we are enabled by our combined effort to make profitable use of the natural resources of Canada. Is it not, therefore, most regrettable that, instead of each individual finding happiness and contentment in his own prosperity and in his share in building up this country, which is his guarantee of future well-being, we agitate merely that we may still further profit as individuals, even if other Canadian industries are made to lose or are destroyed thereby?

Ontario and Quebec.

A year ago, despite some fluctuations in conditions, the record of agriculture in Ontario and Quebec was most satisfactory. This year the record is still better, and it is questionable if as regards yield or prices, excepting in the case of fruit, potatoes, and one or two minor articles, a more generally successful result was ever obtained by our farmers. High prices in 1909 had caused a larger acreage of grain to be planted, farm work began early in the spring, fall wheat came through the winter well, harvest results were excellent, hay gave a large yield, roots in most localities did well, cattle, horses, hogs, poultry, eggs and all dairy products brought high prices, but the supply was unfortunately always insufficient. The value of the field crops of Ontario and Quebec for 1910 was $301,109,000, compared with $290,469,000 for 1909.

Although in the fruit districts where apple growing is carried on scientifically as fine apples were produced as could be desired, the crop as a whole was as great a failure in Ontario as in the Maritime Provinces. In neither district can accurate statistics be obtained, but the quantity shipped from Montreal is sufficient to show what a bad crop means. In 1910 the shipments were only 163,000 barrels, there being no recent year comparable with this except 1901, when shipments were only 122,000 barrels. The highest figure reached was in 1903, 732,000 barrels, and the average of eight ordinary years was about 515,000 barrels. Doubtless no care would have averted the main cause of a lessened crop, but with scientific methods the number and size of the apples would always be greatly increased and the quality greatly improved.

We used to be able to follow closely the growth of our dairying industry by using the figures of the shipments of cheese and butter from Montreal as examples, but new conditions have arisen, and these figures are now of little use. The consumption of butter in Canada and of cream in Canada and the United States has practically destroyed our foreign trade in butter, which one year reached 573,489 packages, valued at $7,400,000. The same causes have kept our cheese exports almost stationary for three or four years. The figures for 1910 are 1,892,000 boxes, worth $17,503,000, as against the record of 2,395,932 boxes in 1903, valued at $21,500,000. One great departmental store collects direct from the farmers sufficient milk to keep several cheese factories busy.

Successful as the year has been with the farmers of the East, there is a growing conviction that this part of Canada is at the moment a land of neglected opportunity, largely owing to the easy success of those who have taken up the cheap lands and virgin soil of the West. While many think that more effort is necessary to succeed in the East, facts gathered from recent experience show that in no part of Canada can a larger return be obtained in proportion to the intelligence employed than here in Ontario. We have one of the best and most famous of Agricultural Colleges, and wherever one of its students is farming, the effect of his knowledge on his own farm and the influence of his example on those of others is most marked, but there are many parts where no such examples of improved methods exist, and the Government has now adopted the plan of taking the College to the farmer. The Farmers' Institute lectures and the Agricultural Fair prizes have done and are doing much good, but the new effort is of a much more effective and practical nature. It is sought by demonstration farming actually carried on by experts acting for the Government, and by visits paid to various parts of the Province by experts who are able and willing to give advice, gradually to break up that condition of contentment with the farming of our fathers which is so great an enemy to progress. If young men can be shown the results of a thorough knowledge of stock-raising as compared with not knowing, of caring for orchards instead of not caring for them, of systematic manuring and of proper drainage, of a knowledge, indeed, of the many things which bring about the enormous difference in results between old-fashioned and up-to-date farming, we may hope that more farmers' sons will stay on the land, and that many city men will settle there, and that increased wealth and happiness will be the result. But actual results are more powerful arguments than mere preaching. An orchard in Ontario which yielded prior to 1909, $100 worth of apples, annually, produced in 1909 in new hands fruit worth $1,437, the net profit on which was $974, in addition to apples not suitable for eating worth more than the whole crop before the orchard was properly cared for. In other cases 8 acres of orchard produced $2,489 gross and $1,890 net; 5½ acres produced $2,237 gross and $1,720 net; 1¼ acres produced $539 gross; and many cases of yields in money from $150 to $300 per acre could be shown, the result varying of course with the age of the trees, but mainly with the practical knowledge of the fruit-grower. In vegetables one man with 17 acres raised 127 tons of cauliflower, which he sold for $30 per ton, a return of about $225 per acre. We know that for years large profits have been made in Ontario growing fine roses and other flowers for New York and other United States markets, but we now hear of one experienced hybridizer, who is also a banker, who has made himself famous as well as prosperous as a producer of innumerable species of gladioli, which are in demand in all quarters of the world. It must be remembered that these results are not due merely to the proximity of a market, but that in almost any part of Western Ontario similar things can be done. Too much credit cannot be accorded to the Department of Agriculture of Ontario for the effort it is making, and we can but hope that the number of lecturers and demonstrators will be increased, and that they will be persistently kept at work as a permanent force working for agricultural improvement. In some parts already a new tone has been given to farm affairs, emigration to the West has nearly ceased, farm values are increasing, and intensive farming is a subject of general and keen interest.

That a more enterprising spirit is necessary may be readily gathered from the statistics of live stock in Ontario. From 1901 to 1907 the number of horses on hand grew from 620,000 to 725,000, but since that year there has been practically no increase. The number sold annually has, however, increased from 51,000 in 1901 to 93,000 in 1910, which is evidence enough of the difficulty of maintaining a stock on hand. The number of milch cows in 1901 was 984,000, in 1907 1,152,000, in 1910 only 1,052,000. The number of other cattle in 1901 was 1,523,000, in 1906 1,884,000, and in 1910 only 1,514,006. The number of stock slaughtered, however, rose steadily from 610,000 in 1901 to 817,000 in 1910. In sheep and lambs the story is one of steady decline from 1901 to 1910 in both the number of those on hand and of those slaughtered. In swine the number on hand rose from 1,491,000 in 1901 to 2,049,000 in 1907, and fell to 1,561,000 in 1910, while the number slaughtered rose from 1,973,000 in 1901 to 2,387,000 in 1905, and fell to 1,844,000 in 1910. In poultry of all classes there has been a satisfactory increase in the number on hand and in the number annually killed. It will be seen from these figures, which are mainly taken from reports of the Agricultural Department of the Province of Ontario, and do not agree very closely with those of the Census Department at Ottawa, that we are meeting a greatly increased demand by decreasing the stock on hand, and such a state of things cannot, of course, continue long. Many quite natural causes have led to this result, and others will tend to remedy it to some extent in the near future. Hay being scarce, high prices prevailing for coarse grains and the highest prices ever known for cattle, the farmer has in many cases sold both cattle and coarse grains, instead of feeding his stock as usual. But food crops are now more plentiful, and we may look for an increase in the stock of animals on hand.

In all manufacturing centres the story is one of a general enlargement of plants, an increase of wages, and a difficulty in filling orders, with prosperity to the local shop-keeper as one of the natural consequences. The output of pig iron, steel rails, ingots, etc., at the important plants at Sault Ste Marie and Hamilton show large increases over 1909 in all articles.

Building operations are being carried on at a pace which clearly reflects our prosperity. The farmer is spending more than usual on tile draining and on outbuildings. In the construction of which cement is now largely used; in towns and cities extensive municipal improvements are general; while ordinary building operations for business and other purposes exceed all previous experience.

Flour milling, one of our most important industries, has done reasonably well, but much less so than in the previous season of abnormal profits. Indeed, competition in the business has reached a rather unhealthy stage, and it would be well if there were no more expansion in this business for a time.

The conditions of the lumber market are not very different from 1909. There has been a ready sale for high grades both abroad and in North America, and a satisfactory market for intermediate grades, but the sale of low-grade lumber is still seriously interfered with by Southern pine, which has for the time being taken away our market in the United States and even invaded Canada. Just at the end of the year, however, there seems to be a better demand for low-grade lumber.

Although there has been no new development at Cobalt, and public attention has been drawn away from it to the new gold fields of the Porcupine district, the output of silver for 1910 will be about $14,500,000, against $12,461,000 for 1909. The larger result is due to an increase of about 3,000,000 ounces in the quantity mined and a better price for silver. Up to the present, out of a total product of $48,000,000 since the camp began, about $24,500,000 have been paid in dividends. The world's production of silver for 1909 was worth $107,000,000, and of this Cobalt's percentage was 11.6. The value of the total production of minerals in Canada for 1909 is estimated at $90,400,000—just about half metallic and half non-metallic. This amount is, of course, the largest in our history, and compares with $49,234,000 ten years ago and $14,013,000 twenty years ago.

While it is our habit to turn to cities in the prairie provinces or in British Columbia for evidence of unusual growth, it may be well to note that in a list of Canadian cities, recently compiled in order to exhibit growth of population, Fort William and Port Arthur exceed all others, showing an increase in ten years of 359 and 390 per cent. respectively.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

Considerable disappointment, as we all know, accompanies the record of what is nevertheless another year of progress in the prairie provinces. The wheat, oats, and flax reaped in the previous year were the highest in grade, and the whole crop was the largest and produced the largest sum in money ever known. Under such conditions the acreage for 1910 was naturally increased, not merely by older farmers, but by new settlers preparing their first crops. With an early spring everything promised well but because of many adverse conditions a smaller and less highly graded crop was the result. Our estimates in August were:—

	Bushels
Wheat...	88,000,000
Oats...	90,000,000
Barley...	17,000,000
Flax	4,000,000

Other estimates are as high as 104,000,000 bushels for wheat and 128,000,000 bushels for oats, but we do not expect either wheat or oats to reach 100,000,000 bushels. About 60 per cent of the wheat is fit for milling, and oats and barley grade badly. The flax crop was larger than in 1909 and the price during 1910 has been as high as $2.54 per bushel, and is still most unusually high, so that the crop is much more important than might be supposed. The money result from the crops of the three prairie provinces, as estimated by conservative Western opinion, will be about $20,000,000 less than for 1909. The estimate of the Census Department, which includes all field crops, is less favourable. The total field crops for the three provinces for 1910 are valued at $155,926,000, as compared with $192,839,000 for 1909, a less amount by about $37,000,000. Much of the shrinkage in value is due to decline in price. The smaller yield of the crops of these provinces is due to unfavourable weather in three districts, Southern Alberta, Southern Manitoba, and South-Western Saskatchewan. In the northern districts and in some southern parts results were most excellent. In the districts where results were generally unfavourable, however, isolated cases stand out clearly, showing splendid results obtained, despite the weather, simply by scientific farming. Agricultural conditions at the moment in Southern Manitoba and parts of South-Western Saskatchewan are unsatisfactory because of lack of moisture, while in Southern Alberta, because of plentiful moisture during the last few months, the prospects are as good as could be desired. For some years the necessity of more advanced methods in such older parts as Southern Manitoba has been painfully evident. May we now hope that the Government of Manitoba as well as the farmers will forthwith do the quite obvious and not difficult things necessary to redeem and maintain the reputation of this part of Canada as a grain-producing country. Undoubtedly the crop is largely reduced every year by the prevalence of weeds, and it is clear that the Provincial Government cannot take too much trouble to remove this evil as far as possible. Enough has been done by individual cases of good farming to show how much larger the profits of agriculture in the West should be. The results of the present poor crop have been improved by the fact that mixed farming has been increasing—indeed, that is one direction in which Southern Manitoba is already working out the reform made necessary by the impoverishment of the land as a result of repeated grain crops.

There is no question of more importance to Western development than that of improving the breeding of live stock and of increasing their numbers. We are witnessing the gradual extinction of the rancher and the gradual establishment of a great grazing and feeding industry. It is naturally difficult by the increase due to the slower methods of the latter to make up for the losses consequent on the passing of the rancher, but the outlook as a whole is promising. The Live Stock Exhibition at Winnipeg in 1910 exceeded all records in the number of high-grade animals shown, and these were of such excellence that little further improvement can be looked for, some classes having been the finest ever shown in America. The progressive Western farmer is demonstrating to his fellows that if each of them will, as soon as he can afford it, raise a few head of high-grade stock, the disappearance of the rancher will redound to their gain and the problem of maintaining a sufficient supply of animals will be solved. As matters now stand, stocks are not as large as they should be, nor are they increasing as fast as they should. Statistics do not go far enough back in Saskatchewan and Alberta to be of much service, but in Manitoba horses have increased in numbers only about 50 per cent. in ten years, cattle a trifle more than 50 per cent., sheep have lessened in number, swine have increased about 100 per cent., and poultry about 65 to 70 per cent. Such statistics as are available show that stocks on hand for the three Provinces are about 870,000 horses, 2,300,000 cattle, 345,000 sheep, and 608,000 swine. Figures for poultry seem unreliable, but apparently there are not yet half as many as in Ontario. One has only to look at the map and consider the small part of Ontario that is farmed, and to compare it with the West, in order to see how very much must be done before it can be made impossible for the Vice-President of the C. P. R. to reproach Manitoba with the importation of 12,000,000 eggs in one year over that railway alone, and to say further that the poultry and cream for their dining cars must be obtained partly in the United States.

The railways are again to be congratulated on the manner in which they handled the crop. It is estimated that by the close of navigation 60,000,000 bushels had reached the head of the lakes. Terminal facilities for handling the crop have still further improved, and through the Lake Shippers' Clearance Association vessels can be loaded and despatched with much greater rapidity than heretofore.

One of the most interesting things in the settlement of Canada is the work of the superintendent of the irrigation schemes of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The policy of providing "ready-made" farms is succeeding admirably, and the dryness of the past season has drawn attention to the value of irrigation in Southern Alberta. Sales of land in the irrigation area have been very large during the last three years, and have lately averaged a million dollars a month. The railway company naturally favour sales which result in immediate occupation. Their plans have succeeded so well that an appropriation of $8,000,000 is said to have been voted by the Railway Board in order to carry the irrigation system further east.

Despite lean crops in the south, farm lands have increased in price in almost all districts. In towns and cities the increase in assessments, in building operations, and in population is even more startling than in previous years, while in the already numerous manufacturing establishments of Winnipeg there is the same increase in plant and output as in the East, and with the advent of cheap power we are, doubtless, destined to see a great manufacturing centre rapidly created. There are said to be already in Winnipeg 236 manufacturing establishments, with an annual output of $36,500,000. In 1910 there were 65 industrial companies incorporated, with an authorized capital of $16,000,000, while 13 existing companies increased their capital by $3,000,000.

We regret that it is impossible to supply the details of the extraordinary growth of several of our Western cities, but we cannot refrain from recording that in 1910 Winnipeg was the largest actual wheat market on the North American continent.

Mexico.

As you will know, we are now interested in Mexico. Business conditions there have been a little slower in recovering from the contraction of 1907 than in other parts of North America, largely because the country depends for its development so much on the introduction of foreign capital. Speaking broadly, the supply of foreign capital has been drawn from the following sources:

1. British, including Canadian, about $700,000,000; about 60 per cent. being invested in railways, 15 per cent. in mining, and 25 per cent. in agricultural and other industrial enterprises.

2. United States, about $1,000,000,000; about 35 per cent. invested in railways, 45 per cent. in mining, and the balance in other industries.

3. French, German, Belgian, Dutch, and Spanish about $300,000,000 invested largely in bank stocks in manufactures, and in wholesale and retail trade.

The Germans control the hardware trade, the French the dry goods, and the Spanish the grocery trade. We find that the trade which might be done by Canada is almost entirely monopolized by the United States, the grain trade excepted. A business not always large but always valuable is carried on with the United States in lard, hams, bacon, canned meats, fish, butter, condensed milk, cheese, fresh, preserved, and dried fruits, vegetables, grain, flour, cereal foods, etc. In comparison with this, we figure only as sellers of grain, and doubtless until we can produce more we shall not do any of this trade except grain, but, nevertheless, it awaits us when we are energetic enough to seek it.

The motion for the adoption of the Report was then put and carried. A resolution relative to the Pension Fund was submitted to the shareholders and passed. The usual resolutions, expressing the thanks of the shareholders to the President, Vice-President, and Directors, and also to the General Manager, Superintendent of Branches, and other officers of the Bank were unanimously carried. Upon motion, the meeting proceeded to elect Directors for the coming year, and then adjourned.

The scrutineers subsequently reported the following gentlemen to be elected as Directors for the ensuing year: Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L.; Hon. George A. Cox, Robert Kilgour, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D.; J. W. Flavelle, LL.D.; A. Kingman, Hon. L. Melvin-Jones, Hon. W. C. Edwards, Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D.; E. R. Wood, Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., LL.D.; William McMaster, Robert Stuart, George F. Galt.

At a meeting of the newly-elected Board of Directors, held subsequently, Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., D.C.L., was elected President, and Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., Vice-President.

TOOK THE ADVICE OF HER FRIENDS

And Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Mrs. Painchaud Well

She Inherited Ill-Health from her Parents, and for seven years was a sufferer from Kidney and Heart Troubles

Whitworth, Temiscouta Co., Que. Jan. 13.—(Special)—That she took the advice of her friends and used Dodd's Kidney Pills is the reason Mrs. Julien Painchaud, of this place, gives for the perfect health that shows in her every movement

"I inherited ill-health from my parents," Mrs. Painchaud says in an interview. "For seven years my Heart and Kidneys bothered me. I was always tired and nervous. I could not sleep. My eyes had dark circles round them and were puffed and swollen.

"I could hardly do my housework when I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. One box relieved me of pain, and six boxes made me perfectly well."

Every woman who is feeling fagged, tired and worn out, should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cure the Kidneys, and every woman's health depends on her Kidneys. Healthy Kidneys mean pure blood, and pure blood carries new life to run down organs which supply the body with energy.

If you're a suffering woman ask your friends. They'll tell you out of their own experience to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

S.S. Association to Meet

A meeting of the City Sunday School Association, of which Mr. Devey is president, will be held on Monday evening at 9 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. All officers, superintendents and pastors are requested to attend.

POLICE COURT

No less than eight applications for for free nights lodging were received at the Police Station during last night.

Two of the number, Patrick Harver and John McIntyre, umbrella menders were held over for explanations in court. They were both under the influence of liquor, when placed in a cell last-night, and officers on duty had to quell a fight that broke out between the two of them.

To His Worship Harvey said he had a home in Montreal, so he and his pal were given the balance of the day to clear out of the city.

FELL DOWN AGAIN

Fred. Barlow made his second appearance on a drunken charge and pleaded guilty.

Yesterday he was given ten days in which to pay a $2 fine. This morning it was forthwith or ten long days of jail.

He couldn't pay.

MEETINGS WITH MISS BLODGETT

Miss Mary N. Blodgett, of Detroit who comes to the city to conduct two weeks studies of Bible characters under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. will give her first address to-morrow afternoon at 4.15 in the Murray St. Baptist Church. The public is cordially invited to attend, and also at the afternoon meetings at the Y. W. C. MARKET WAS GOOD TO-DAY

Produce Much More Plentiful than Last Week

The market to-day was a great improvement on last week, the attendance and amount of produce being far greater. The outside market was well stocked with all kinds of vegetables, even potatoes again being offered. Apples and meats were also very plentiful. No hay was on today and only three loads of wood.

Inside the market hall was well filled. Eggs and butter were the most numerous. A few turkeys were offered at prices quite low. This was no doubt due to the slight demand for them since the Christmas market.

The following were the standard prices to-day:

Eggs—38 and 40 cents.
Butter—25c.
Turkeys—$2.00 and $2.50.
Geese—$1.50.
Chickens—90c, a pair.
Potatoes—85 cents a bag.
Apples—$1.75 and $2.00 a bag.
Apples (by the barrel)—$4.00.
Soft wood—$4.50.
Hard wood—$6.00.
Lamb—12 and 18c.
Pork—8 and 9 cents.
Beef—12 and 13 cents.
Small vegetables at the usual prices.

AN OPEN LETTER

From a Baptist Clergyman Telling of Cures Wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co.,
Brockville, Ont.—

Gentlemen,—It has been my intention to write to you for sometime, but being busy I have neglected to do so until now.

I am a Baptist minister. Was ordained June 14th, 1887, in Cramabe Baptist church, Northumberland Co, Ont. I want to tell you in as few words as possible what I know about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was pastor of the Dalesville, Que., Baptist church in 1891 and again in 1894-5. While pastor in 1891, the Rev. John King, a former pastor, aged 74, was stricken with paralysis so that he could not help himself. He had to, or did, take a tablespoonful of rhubarb every day to keep his bowels regular. I thought of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He began taking them, and it was not long before he could walk again and his bowels were regular. The paralysis never returned and his bowels remained active. He died a few years ago, practically from old age.

I went from Dalesville, Que., to Groton, Vermont, as pastor of the Baptist church in that place. There lived a man about two and one-half miles from Groton by the name of Neil McCrea, a Canadian. I heard he was ill, and being a Canadian, I went to see him. I found him lying in bed. He said he had no pain, but was too weak to sit up. His lips were bloodless, in fact he was as white as chalk. I recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and gave him some. He began taking them, and in a short time could see blood in the veins of his hands and in the course of a few weeks he was out watching men building a new barn for him, and shortly after that he came to Groton to church. Now, I ought to tell you that the doctor of Groton had given him up. The Ryegate doctor (a doctor in an adjoining village) could not help him and said so. The best doctor in the hospital of Burlington, Vt., came and saw Mr. McCrea, but said he could not help him. He did not get any help till Dr. Williams' Pink Pills put him on his feet again

Later I returned to Dalesville, Que., as pastor. A young lady who lived about six miles west of Dalesville at a place called Edina, sent for me to come to see her, as she had been a member of my congregation in my former pastorate. I went to see her and found a similar case to that of Mr. McCrae, of Groton, Vt. This girl was so weak she could not sit up. She appeared to be bloodless. I said to her, "It will cost you $6.00 to get a doctor to come out from Lachute to see you, whereas you can get six boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for $2.50." She followed my advice, took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and when some time later I saw her in Lachute, she was as well as ever, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did it all.

I have given you the facts of these three cases which came to my personal notice, and I think only just to other sufferers that these cures should be given the widest publicity. If you wish me to go before a magistrate and take oath to the truthfulness of the things mentioned above, I am prepared to do so. I am at present engaged in evangelistic work, and have therefore not at the present time a permanent address. I can, however, refer you to the editor of the Canadian Baptist.

LECTURE ON MACBETH

"Macbeth" the greatest of Shakesperina tragedies, was most acceptably and vividly presented in a lecture recital to a large and highly appreciative audience last evening in the Normal School Assembly Hall.

The lecturer was Walter Gordon Craig, a talented exponent of the works of Shakespear, and the power of describing in a lucid entertaining manner, probably the most faciuating and thrilling productions of this great writer, calls for ability of high order.

The speaker gave a realistic and finished delination of the various characters of the play. Especially deserving were his portrayals of the many sided character of Lady Macbeth.

Mr. Craig stated in prefacing his lecture that the tragedy of Macbeth might truthfully be styled one of the most enthrilling of all Shakesperian writings.

The plot was deep, admirably conceived and perfectly enacted and no possible improvement in it from a literary or classical standpoint could be made. We had Macbeth presented to us as a man possessing many admirable qualities and yet, as the story proceeded, the latent weakness in his character was revealed, culminating when he yielded to the gibes and sneers of his wife, and slew King Duncan.

There were also some students of Shakespeare, who were eager to defend the character of Lady Macbeth but a lady who would deliberatly stifle her conscience to kill the King and finally lays violent hands upon herself thus ending a remarkable life was scarcely deserving of rightly placed sympathy.

Mr. Craig recited numerous passages from the tragedy in a most impressive and telling way, and his efforts would if performed on the stage would place him in the ranks of first class actors. His voice and personality are material factors in his successful reproduction of the characters in the tragedy. The lecture-recital was indeed a rare treat and will undoubtedly do much toward stimulating an increased interest and liking for "Macbeth," among those who were fortunate enough to hear him.

HELPLESS CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Five Boxes Of "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, DEC. 15th, 1909.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism for nearly a year, and my right arm was swollen and the pain was fearful. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful, and I could hardly move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians but their medicine did me no good, and I tried numerous other remedies but received no benefit. I was simply a helpless cripple and suffered from Rheumatism all during last winter.

I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised in "The Telegram" and decided to try this remedy. After I had taken one box, I was much better and the pain less, and I continued the treatment with good hopes. When I had taken three boxes, I was so well that I could use my arm again and the pain was practically gone. After I had taken five boxes, I was entirely well again—no pain—no suffering—and now I am as WELL as I ever was.

The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me of my sufferings.

For the sake of others who may suffer from this terrible disease, Rheumatism, I give you permission to publish this statement."

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy that actually cures Rheumatism, and Sciatica because "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that actually prevents Uric Acid being formed in any quantity in the body. If there is no excess of uric acid in the blood, there can be no Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives" keeps the stomach clean—the liver active—the bowels regular—the kidney strong and the skin healthy. These are the organs that rid the body of all waste. When "Fruit-a-tives" so regulates the system that all waste is eliminated, then there can be no waste or "urea" to be changed into uric acid. Thus, there can be no uric acid in the blood, to inflame nerves and cause the pain which we know by the names of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia. "Fruit-a-tives" will cure every trace of Rheumatism, Pain In The Back, Swollen Hands and Feet, and other troubles due to the blood being poisoned by uric acid.

If you are subject to Rheumatism, cure yourself now with "Fruit-a-tives" and be free of pain this winter.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

TWO STRANGERS SUSPECTED OF THE BERLIN MURDER

Police at Scene of Lobinski Murder Say They Have Several Clues—Many Rumers Are Current Involving Several Persons, But Two Strangers Who Were In Village Believed to Have Killed Farmer.

Berlin, Jan. 61.—Provincial Detective Boyd arrived Saturday evening to take charge of the Lobinski murder case. The police claim to have clews that will lead to arrests, but will divulge nothing. Detectives Boyd and Huber left early yesterday morning for the scene of the crime, and, after a thorough examination of the premises, interviewed everybody prominently connected with the case.

On Saturday afternoon the inquest was opened by Coroner Glaister, and adjourned until Wednesday in Wellesley village. Many false reports have been circulated, even the police having incorrect information until Saturday. For instance, the man who made the discovery of the body was not Leyes, but Charles R. Gerber. This was Thursday morning, his attention being attracted by the smokeless chimney and wide-open doors.

That the crime was committed on Wednesday night is indicated by the fact that Lobinski was seen at the window Wednesday noon. A brother of Chris Gerber had noticed on Thursday that the two rear doors were open, but he did not go in. When Chris was passing next morning, however, he went around to the back of the house, and found the body.

Many rumors are current, suspicions being cast on different persons. Much stress is laid on the reputed movements of two strangers wearing fur coats, and driving a team of horses, passing northward through St. Agatha and stopping at Bamberg Hotel Wednesday night.

Tracks in the snow showed that the men came from the north, and went that way. The position of the tracks make it appear that the team were not tied, giving rise to the belief that one man held the team while the other went into the house. The indications are that the men likely knew Lobinski well enough to induce him to let them in the house.

Paris green and doped whisky in a bottle found in the yard near the blood-stained hammer makes it seem probable that the hammer was used as an after thought. The hammer belonged to Lobinski. A blood-marked chair tends to show that one man used it in assaulting Lobinski, while the other crushed in his skull with the hammer. An empty whisky glass was found standing on the window sill. Three loaded shotguns were in their usual places.

A search discovered no money, so that the murderers must have got it all, but there is nothing to show that the old man had over $700, all told, part of that consistsing of personal notes.

Lobinski was a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war, and came to Canada over forty years ago, living in Berlin before settling in Wellesley Township, about twenty-five years ago.

Living all alone since the death of his wife, Lobinski allowed his hovel to get into a condition of horrible filth. He was known to shoot and eat skunks. The parts of two bodies of shunks were found in the house.

A baffling circumstance is the fact that the body was tied to a post outside. The blood shed inside the house goes to prove that an attack was made in there. The wire used in fastening the murdered man's foot to the post was so tightly twisted that nippers must have been used.

The fact that the message to the provincial police was not sent by wire on Friday prevented Detective Boyd from getting here until Saturday afternoon, thus causing a delay of over 24 hours. This has occasioned very sharp criticism, as has the fact that Coroner Glaister had to come to Berlin to be sworn in, instead of a Berlin coroner being sent up. If this had been done an inquest could have been opened almost a day sooner.

FINTON WAS ACQUITTED

Not a Stain on His Character, Says Judge, After Charging the Jury Strongly in Favor of the Prisoner—None of the Crown Witnesses, He Declares, Proves Quarrelling Between Prison and His Father.

Hamilton, Jan. 16.—Thomas Finton was freed hete Saturday without a stain on his character after Judge Teetzel had strongly charged the jury in his favor.

He was put on the stand in his own behalf and told told of his last talk with his father. They had a friendly conversation on several topics and he (Tom) then went and did the chores. He saw his father later and got a dollar with which to buy feed.

At the afternoon's session the defence concluded its case with Tom Finton, and Mr. Blackstock called a number of witnesses in. When these had all been heard, Justice Teetzel created somewhat of a sensation by asking Mr. Blackstock to give his views why the evidence should be given to the jury, intimating that no direct evidence, such as the weapon, or direct implication against the prisoner had been submitted. Mr. Blackstock therefore proceeded to review the evidence, pointing out where suspicion pointed to the prisoner. Tom wanted to get his wife on the farm, and the only way he could work it was, knowing that his father's will provided for him recovering half the farm, to do away with the father. With reference to the blood spots, Mr. Blackstock asked if the prisoner had not been given every opportunity to explain them, yet no attempt at doing so had been made, until the lawyers got on the case, when a cut on Tom's finger was wrung in so as to convince the jury that it was how the blood got there. He thought that Tom's statement that perhaps Mrs. Kerr put the blood on his overalls, showed that Tom was afraid. He contended that it was not necessary that the weapon should be found. He asked if it were natural that shoes that were worn around a barnyard should be immaculate. It was not necessary for the crown to explain these blood stains or what Tom put on his wagon before leaving home. Tom's uneasiness whenever the shoe pinched, was a point against him. Too much stress had been taken up with the weakness of circumstantial evidence, to suit him. Mr. Blackstock asked if it was possible with such a mass of evidence that the prisoner should escape for one of the most brutal crimes in criminal annals.

Justice Teetzel felt that should he send this case to the jury he would consider it necessary to tell them that circumstantial evidence should be taken with the greatest caution. He quoted law on the subject, and also English opinions to substantiate the stand he was taking. The circumstances had to be consistent with the prisoner's guilt, and while he would not go so far as to say that the facts were not consistent in this case, he thought that the evidence was weak in some particulars.

Justice Teetzel had a compliment to pay to Mr. Blackstock's ability and reliability on questions of law, and regretted that he was unable to agree with his opinion on this point.

Taking the evidence in its entirety, the jury would have a right to accept that the deceased was subject to fainting spells. He thought the position of the body outside the barn door was sufficient to raise a presumption in the minds of the jury that he might have died from an accident, and this had not been dispelled. His lordship did not think there was sufficient evidence to show a motive for the prisoner killing his father. The crown had failed to show that there was such a feeling between the father and the son as to indicate that the prisoner would commit murder. None of the crown witnesses had given evidence of actual quarreling. Acting on the presumption that all criminal prosecutions favor the innocence of the prisoner, he therefore told the jury that he must instruct them not to bring in a verdict of guilt against the prisoner. All the evidence did was to throw strong suspicion on the prisoner. He believed that the crown's action was fully justified, and that the investigation had been well conducted.

His lordship therefore recorded a verdict of "Not guilty" on behalf of the jury. The prisoner's wife and friends flocked around him, and Finton laughed for the first time since he appeared in court.

Rear-Admiral Hewitt of the British navy occupied a seat beside his lordship during the afternoon's session.

The crowd in court was so large that the police had to give out instructions before the ptisoner was actually discharged.

When the courtroom had been cleared his lordship addressed the prisoner as follows: "You have heard my address to the jury, and, as I said, that while there was not sufficient evidence to convict you, yet there was sufficient to cast suspicion on you and force you to suffer the long term of imprisonment prior to your trial. I trust your conscience is as clear as mine is in discharging you. This matter is between you and your Maker, and no one else knows. And I believe you are an innocent man, and you are discharged from this court without a stain upon you."

GAS ALMOST POISONED HIM

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Arthur Gilbert, the Nationalist member for Drummond-Arthabaska, was, along with his wife and children, almost poisoned to death on Saturday by coal gas.

It is a curious circumstance that the building in which the near tragedy occurred belongs to the Dominion Government. Mr. Gilbert resides at 113 St. Patrick street, and on Saturday the employes of the Public Works Department did some work around the furnace. Apparently they had shut off the dampers before the gas had been burned out of the coal, for Mr. Gilbert and his family were soon under the influence of the poison.

About six in the evening Mr. Gilbert recovered consciousness, and having reached the door, made an effort to call help. He fell down in a stupor and passersby thought he was merely a sleeping inebriate. Eventually the situation was understood and the family were got out of the building.

Mr. Gilbert, his wife and family and servant were unconscious for some hours, but are now out of danger.

TRAVERS GETS SIX YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

(Sentence Passed This Morning)

Special to Review.

TORONTO, JAN. 16.—W. R. TRAVERS, GENERAL MANAGER OF THE DEFUNCT FARMERS' BANK, WAS SENTENCED BY P.M. COL. DENISON THIS MORNING TO SIX YEARS IN THE KINGSTON PENITENTIARY. TRAVERS PLEADED GUILTY TO THREE CHARGES, THEFT, FALSIFICATION OF RETURNS TO THE GOVERNMENT AND FALSIFICATION OF THE BOOKS OF THE BANK.

WHEN TRAVERS PLEADED GUILTY AT HIS FIRST HEARING, H. H. DEWART, SUGGESTED THAT THREE YEARS WOULD BE SUFFICIENT TO MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF JUSTICE.

FROM THE ATTITUDE OF THE CROWN IT SEEMS ALTOGETHER LIKELY THAT THE CONDUCT OF OTHER OFFICIALS OF THE BANK WILL BE THOROUGHLY INVESTIGATED AND OTHER PROSECUTIONS MAY FOLLOW.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR DR. NESBITT

New and Sensational Phase of Farmers' Bank Affair--Inspector Duncan Was After Nesbitt Two Days, But the Trail Was Cold---Whereabouts Unknown

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—A warrant has been issued at the police headquarters for the arrest of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt on a charge of fraud in connection with the Farmers' Bank affairs. Inspector of Detectives Duncan has returned from Sudbury after a two days' fruitless search for Nesbitt.

The news that the warrant had been issued did not cause special surprise, although at the same time it created quite a sensation. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt has been a prominent politician around Toronto, representing one of the constituencies in the Legislature for a term and at one time was regarded as a likely member of the Ontario Cabinet. He was one of the organizers of the Farmers' Bank, and it was probably he whom Mr. Dewart had in mind, when he referred in the police court to there being others besides Travers who were guilty of fraud and mismanagement.

BIGGER AND BETTER AT ROYAL THEATRE

The Bill of Fare for To-night's Special Show

For to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday the Royal Theatre has secured absolutely, the best vaudeville ever shown in this city. You will see some fourteen actual performers on the stage. They include Prof. W. Rand's Musical, Dramatic, Mental and Acrobatic Dogs. The act opens with a pantomime before the trainer enters the stage. Dogs that play musical instruments in perfect tune and time. The only dog that spells any word. Also Mlle Reno, the Queen of Magic. The vaudeville also includes Nebur and Cacum in their dramatical, musical play entitled "The Last Dollar." Such a cast costs big money, but the Royal must have the best, however. No extra charge made for admission.

The Royal has arranged for special orchestra music for Mr. Nebur's dramatic musical playlet, which is the most pretentious one of its kind on the Griffin Circuit, and in it is introduced high-class operatic work.

BLACKHAND TERRORISM

Friends of Kidnappers Make Trouble for Magistrate.

New York, Jan 16.—When Felie Esposito and Vincenzo Nicoza were arraigned before Magistrate Dodd yesterday there were a thousand ugly-looking men, many armed, of their own race, crowding the sidewalks outside the court room. They were friends of Esposito and Nicoza.

They could not get in, because Magistrate Dodd, warned by his last experience in attempting to try the same men, had sent for the reserves of the Miller avenue police station and had prevented any of the lowering, growling crew from entering the court. Even this precaution did not prevent an attack on Detective Santoco in court, of such violence that the case was adjourned.

At the last hearing the crowd got into the court room. The witnesses in the case were trembling in terror and even the detectives of the Italian bureau were nervous. Magistrate Dodd sent for the reserves and had the room cleared. Several knives and a revolver were found in the court room when the last of the crew had been pushed out to the street.

The men are charged with stealing Antonietta Sgambetta, 18 years old, from her home, and keeping her prisoner for several days in a hut.

Detective Santoso took the stand and began giving evidence. Vincenzo Nicoza leaped from the prisoners' chair at the detective's throat. He was tripped and pushed back to his place. With tightly clenched fists he leaned forward and, baring his teeth like a cornered wolf, screamed in Italian at the detective: "You lie, you lie, and I will get you; and if I do not get you, we will!" His struggles to reach the detective became so frenzied that the uproar in court was echoed by the surly crowd outside.

Magistrate Dodd hastily adjourned the case, ordering the men hurried back to prison and had the street cleared.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

MINE WORKERS MAY WITHDRAW

Montreal, Jan. 16.—The prevailing opinion in labor circles is that Grand President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America has been defeated, and that his opponent, Mr. White, has been elected. This means the withdrawal of the union from the lower provinces, where the Sydney and Springhill strikes, under the leadership of Grand President Lewis, the U.M.W.A. has dropped no less than $1,500,000, while 1,500 men and their families at Springhill are still on the payroll of the association.

President White has all along maintained that the Canadian end of the U.M.W.A. has been fatal, a drag on the finances of the concern, that the management has been worse than bad, that graft has existed amongst the officials, and that, while 5,000 men in Eastern Canada have benefitted by the Lewis regime, no less than 100,000 have suffered in the United States, owing to the so-called blunder of the existing management of the U.M.W.A.

This being the case, it is understood that the Dominion Steel Corporation looks for an end to the Springhill struggle within five weeks' time.

It is also expected that socialism will receive an impetus under the coming regime, and reports state that this is spreading amongst the miners of Eastern Nova Scotia. It is stated, in fact, that to-day there are no less than 1,600 Socialists enrolled in the County of Cumberland, N.S., alone, and that the various associations affiliated with Socialism have a great many recruits in other parts of Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia.

LEMIEUX TELLS NEW YORK TRADE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

Canadian Manufacturers Should Send Agents to South Africa, He Says, In Course of an Interview at New York—Negro and Hindu Questions Are Serious Ones Ahead of the New Commonwealth.

New York, Jan. 16.—Bubbling over with enthusiasm for the future "new South African union," Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux reached New York yesterday and last night started on the last lap of his world circling tour. Captain Hector A. Vrret, Mr. Lemieux's private secretary, accompanied his chief on the mission. Mrs. Lemieux and Mrs. Verret met their husbands at Naples, and the party left last night for Montreal with Dr. Eugene Lemieux, who has been here since Thursday awaiting the arrival of the Celtic.

"South Africa is not Canada, of course, but it is a great country," said Mr. Lemieux to the representative of the Canadian Press, who was the first to reach the deck as the big ship was warped into her dock. "We had a splendid voyage across," he added, "not a ripple and we were far enough out to avoid the fog which detained the Megantic seventeen hours just outside the harbor. I have become quite a sailor, for it took us 17 days from Southampton to Cape Town, while from Durban to Naples it took us just 31 days.

"The chances for trade with South Africa are excellent. If the Canadian manufacturers will only send agents over there, they will find the market the best they could wish for. South Africa is a great ranching and mining country, but so far they have no manufacturers. Maize is grown to a large extent and exported, but Canada could sell them fruits as well as wheat and flour.

"They have everything that could be desired to make a splendid success of their union," continued Mr. Lemieux, "and up to date the union is working fine. The nation and the new union have been chosen as a new starting point for all. You could not believe in seeing how the Dutch and the English are working together earnestly for the upbuilding of the country that ten years ago they were at one another's throats."

"How does the dual language question affect the union?"

"There is no friction that I could observe," said the Canadian Minister. "Parliament uses both languages; prayers at the opening of each sitting are said in both languages, and everybody seems satisfied. They have no school question like we have in Canada. The various provinces or states have charge of primary education, but, in view of the possible difficulties that might arise out of the application of the Herzog Act, Dr. Jameson and Gen. Botha have agreed on the appointment of a joint committee, which shall take up the educational question for all parts of the country.

"The provinces have less power than ours. Their Legislatures are called provincial councils, and they have a legislative union instead of a confederation. The central Government has the right to revise all money grants made by the councils. They have a wise provision for an amendment to their constitution in ten years if it should prove not to work as well as they hope.

"There are two serious problems ahead of South Africa, however—the negro and the Hindu questions. Natal, for instance, has 125,000 Hindus to 100,000 whites, while the native population is much greater than the Hindu. The Hindus came over to work in the coffee fields, and they did not go back. The question is whether all the provinces shall give the negroes and Asiatics the franchise. Cape Town admits negroes to vote, but the other provinces have not yet decided.

"I was very much interested during my stay in South Africa by visits to the old Dutch and old Hugenot families. These have been there for a long time, and they have splendid farms. I took a special interest in the Hugenots, for there are many of the same people in my own county of Gaspe, and there, too, they are among the solid and prosperous people of the district.

"The Germans and the Portuguese along the east coast vie with the English and a few Americans in promoting business, while there is an immense territory in Rhodesia, rich in gold and silver and other products, which will in a short time be one of the provinces of the new union.

"They have everything to make a success. With the exception of a comparatively small tract, the veldt, which is very hot in the day and cold at night, the climate is fine. The scenery is magnificent. The country about Durban is like the Riviera, while Table Mountain rivals the mountain of Fujiyama in Japan, and, with two races working together in perfect harmony, and with unlimited natural resources, the South African Union seems to me to be destined to become one of the most important parts of the British Empire.

"I must add that, as Canada's representative, I was welcomed with great warmth by all classes in the new union. His Grace the Duke of Connaught was most gracious. He told me that he was disposed to accept the office of Governor-General of Canada, and I am glad to hear that it is practically decided that he will come to us."

Mr. Lemieux expressed great satisfaction at hearing that the fisheries conference had resulted in a full understanding, and, while he would not make any statement on reciprocity while the subject was under discussion, he said he would welcome any settlement that was advantageous to both countries.

"I enjoyed my trip very much, and I was charmed with what I saw; but I am delighted to get back home, for, after all, Canada is the finest country on earth."

ARE READY TO RATIFY

Canada's Share of Fisheries Negotiations Are Brought to Conclusion.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Diplomatic negotiations have scored a victory over arbitration in the fisheries dispute between Canada, Newfoundland and the United States, a statement issued Saturday by the State Department here, disclosed the fact that a complete agreement on all details involved had been reached between Canada and the United States, and likewise that a sufficient adjustment of difficulties with Newfoundland have been reflected to make unnecessary any recourse to the mixed commission of The Hague tribunal. Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, has returned home, to confer with the members of his Cabinet, but enough ground already has been covered to warrant the belief that a complete settlement soon will be effected. Sir Edward Morris' departure to Newfoundland was made possible on Thursday, when negotiations reached the point where it became obvious that it would not be necessary to take the question up again with The Hague.

The details of the agreement were not divulged, but they include the modification of certain fishing regulations, as well as the continuance of others hitherto in effect. A conspicuous revelation to the representatives of both countries was the ease with which the fisheries negotiations could be misconstrued. Many misunderstandings were straightened out, and the belief was general yesterday with respect to the Canadian fisheries question that American as well as Canadian fishermen would find mutual benefit from the improved regulations.

A FEW TRIFLES

J. Pierpont Morgan couldn't go to Europe! Sad, but it's true. Mr. Morgan was detained in New York by a few trifling details concerning running the business of a few trusts and the making of a few loans. Mr. Morgan as the supreme head of the great financial octopus, felt quite disappointed that these half dozen trifles should have interfered. There are some of the details which kept him at home—

He had to help Judge Gary select a new president of United States Steel, and both wanted a man who was not short of Steel common now, and would not go short after his election.

He had to see that the Honduras loan which he is financing was endorsed in its wording by the State Department.

He had to wait for the rounding out of plans and the clarifying of the banking situation following the closing of the Carnegie Trust Co.

He wanted to see plans perfected for the new city loan of $60,000,000 4 1-4 per cent. bonds and to ascertain when the Panama bond issue may come.

He wanted to be sure that if the city's new subways are built with private capital the financing would be done by J. P. Morgan & Co.

THE BANKING ACT

The revelations in the Farmers' Bank case point to certainly amazing conditions which might creep into any bank's affairs, for all there is in the way of safeguard. General Manager Travers has pleaded guilty to three charges—one of direct theft, one of falsification, and one of making false returns to the Government. The whole history of the Farmers' Bank, as revealed under the probe, is one of the concealment of the true financial status of the bank, of criminal misuse of funds, of general wild and reckless management. The Farmers' Bank, founded on an insecure basis, started on the toboggan shortly after its organization and of course it came to the inevitable.

But what, one might ask, of the innocent depositors, the shareholders of the bank, who were deceived as to the state of affairs by cooked up accounts, by the falsification of the books? They are innocent sufferers—people who relied on the "sound" banking system of Canada to prevent such enormities of mismanagement as were committed by the Farmers' Bank officers. Parliament is in session to amend the Banking Act. Will the timely warning of the Farmers' Bank, of the Sovereign Bank, of the Ontario Bank, be unheeded?

There is only one answer to the situation created by the failures of these institutions. There should be a system of periodic government inspection to operate automatically. The present amendments provide that the shareholders at a general meeting may provide their own auditor for the books, but that is insufficient. It should not be left to the shareholders, nor to any private individuals or bodies to say that there shall or shall not be inspection.

The only protection the people of the country at large have in our "sound" and "magnificent" banking system is in-spection that inspects independently, and from the outside. The United States provides for it. No bank that is properly managed, need be ashamed to show its book and securities although the banks will fight the right to run the affairs of the institution as the head office may see fit.

The other day the president of one of the leading banks protested against the clause in the amendments that provides for making each director liable to imprisonment for any error or misstatement made in the government returns. If there was periodic external inspection there would not be the same need for making the signatories to returns so responsible. When the banking amendments are considered, let the remodelling of the Act be well done. Protect the people!

SIX GOOD REASONS

A committee of Duluth citizens who have been investigating the commission form of Government has decided very much in favor of this form of civic administration. It gives six reasons for this preference. These are very interesting, being the fruits of much research and comparison:

"1. Because it establishes the city on a business basis and under it the city is operated as any large commercial corporation would be, thus eliminating political interests of all kinds.

2. Because it centralizes responsibility so it cannot be evaded.

"3. Because it naturally follows that greater economy will result from a purely business administration.

"4. Because it provides or should provide that the commissioners shall give all their time to the city's business and that they shall be paid salaries sufficient to attract the right kind of men.

"5. Because it abolishes the ward referendum, initiative and recall give the citizens greater responsibilities, greater interest in public affairs, and greater incentive to participate in them.

"6. Because it abolishes the ward system by electing city officers from the whole city, makes them responsible to all parts of the city and compels them to take care of the needs of all parts of the city."

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

The seventy-ninth annual report of the Bank of Nova Scotia, published in this issue of the Review, is a statement showing sound, steady progress in every branch of banking work, and in some particulars, unique features in banking growth. The Bank of Nova Scotia has long been regarded as one of Canada's leading and soundest monetary institutions, and the progress noted in this latest annual report is in keeping with the Nova Scotia's fine record.

The net profits for the year were $682,301.80, on a paid up capital of $3,000,000. This is a profit rate of 22 per cent., the highest next profit reported by any bank for 1910. Such a rate is indicative of the finest possible management when it is considered that the Bank of Nova Scotia is very conservatively managed. A fact well worth noting is that while the paid up capital is $3,000,000, the reserve fund amounts to $5,650,000, or more than the authorized capital of $5,000,000. Such a strong reserve fund is the finest sort of guarantee of a bank's stability and strength. The liabilities to the public, in the form of deposits are $39,958,233, or an increase from $35,008,332. It is interesting to note that although the Bank's liability to the public is roughly $40,000,000, the liquid assets of the bank—the cash resources immediately available, amounts to $28,435,000, or nearly 70 per cent. of the liability.

While the amount carried forward to the credit of profit and loss is only $42,166, the bank has added $150,000 to the reserve fund during the year, and increased its assets from $48,359,366 to $53,506,980.

Another feature of the report is the independent audit of the bank's books by Price, Waterhouse & Co., chartered accountants, and their certification of the correctness of all statements as to securities held, and financial reports made.

The local branch of the bank will shortly be moved to the fine new premises on George street, where the increased facilities for banking will be of great convenience to the bank's customers.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A Pole has been kidnapped in Montreal. No such luck as to lose some of Peterborough's poles.

United States customs officials rule that a hen is not a bird. As long as it will lay the eggs what does the public care?

W. B. Northrup in the House of Commons last week brought to notice a curious "bull" made in the notice addressed by Hon. Charles Murphy to the employees of the Printing Bureau. This notice declared that employees coming to work intoxicated would be suspended for a week, for a second offence they would be discharged. It added, "This regulation shall not apply to those who do not use liquor."

The Palmoral Hotel at Lethbridge, Alta., was destroyed by fire in 30 below zero weather.

MORGAN GROUP IN MONTREAL

Mr. Hosmer's Election to the Sun Life Company is Suggestive of This Montreal Star.

The election of Mr. C. R. Hosmer and Mr. H. S. Holt, of the Sun Life Assurance Company, emphasis the fact that there is a financial power growing up in Montreal not unlike the immense power concentrated in New York under the leadership of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan.

To-day Mr. Hosmer, for instance, sits on the boards of such concerns as the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Bank of Montreal, the Royal Trust Co., the Sun Life, London & Lancashire, C. Meredith & Co., Limited, and possibly fifteen other enterprises.

The concerns mentioned invest many millions of dollars each year, and are among the real forces in the local money world, the Sun Life alone having assets of something short of $35,000,000.

A glance at the directorates of these enterprises and other large banks, trust companies and insurance concerns, shows very clearly that the C. P. R.-Bank of Montreal group of financiers is just as powerful here in a money sense as are Morgan and his associates in Wall street.

It is to these men and concerns that the weaker vessels look in times of stress to pour oil on the troubled waters, and in times of prosperity to put the breaks on the financial wheels when they revolve too quickly.

Woman's Strange Disappearance.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 16.—The strange disappearance of Mrs. Douglas Robertson, wife of a well-known storekeeper of Norton, about 30 miles from here, is arousing much interest. The woman came to St. John with some produce, as was her custom, on Wednesday, Jan. 4, and remained with her sister, Mrs. James Clark, St. John West, when she started to return home. Her neice accompanied her to the Intercolonial Railway station, but they missed the train, and Mrs. Robertson decided to wait in the depot until the next train should start, about an hour later.

Mrs. Robertson has not been seen since, though her husband and relatives searched in vain for a week, and on Saturday notified the St. John police. Mrs. Robertson is 44 years of age, and has a large family of children.

Cabby Cut His Throat.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Thomas Walker, a cabman, aged about 45 years, formerly in the employ of Hinton's livery, Albert street, committed suicide early yesterday at the Cambridge restaurant, corner Bank and Queen streets, by cutting his throat with a razor. Despondency, brought on by ill-health and a hard course of drinking and unemployment, are held to be the cause of the man's rash act. Walker has resided in Ottawa for several years, and was a native of Yorkshire, England.

New Zealand Mails.

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has cabled Premier Fisher of Australia, regretting that the Commonwealth has declined to renew the Vancouver and Australian mail service, with calls at Auckland and Sydney. Canada has decided, therefore, to enter into a contract with the Union Steamship Co. of New Zealand, of which Sir James Mills is chairman, for a five-years' service between Canada and New Zealand.

Ordered to England.

Kingston, Jan. 16.—Orders to proceed to England as soon as possible have been received by Major Henri Panet, commanding A Battery, R.C.H.A. Just where he will be stationed he does not yet know, but he will be with one of the Royal Horse batteries. He will leave at the end of next month and be absent eight months.

The Silver Horde

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

. Balt had returned from the banks earlier in the morning with news of a struggle between his white crew and Marsh's men. George's boats had been surrounded during the night, nets had been cut and several encounters had occurred, resulting in serious injury to his men. The giant, in no amiable mood, had returned for re-enforcements, stating that the situation was becoming more serious every hour. Hearing of the desertion of the natives, he burst into profanity, then armed himself and returned to the banks, while Boyd, now thoroughly alarmed, took a launch and sped up the river to Cherry's house in the hope that she could prevail upon her own recruits to return.

He found the girl ready to accompany him, and they were about to embark when Chakawana came running from the house as if in sudden fright.

"Where you go?" she asked her mistress.

"I am going to the Indian village. You stay here."

"No, no! I no stop here alone. I go 'long too." She cast a glance over her shoulder

"But, Chakawana, what is the matter? Are you afraid?"

"Yes." Chakawana nodded her pretty head vigorously.

"What are you afraid of?" Boyd asked, but she merely stared at him with eyes as black and round as ox heart cherries, then renewed her entreaty. When she had received permission and had hurried back to the house her mistress remarked, with a puzzled frown:

WITH A STARTLED CRY, CONSTANTINE WHIRLED, HIS FACE CONVULSED.

"I don't know what to make of her. She and Constantine have been acting very strangely of late. She used to be the happiest sort of creature, always laughing and singing, but she has changed entirely during the last few weeks. Both she and Constantine are forever whispering to each other and skulking about until I am getting nervous myself." Then, as the Indian girl came flying back with her tiny baby brother in her arms, Cherry added: "She's pretty, isn't she? I can't bear ugly people around me."

At the native village, in spite of every effort she and Boyd could make, the Indians refused to go back to work.

"Since they can't use your money at the store, they don't seem to care whether it is good or not," Cherry announced after a time. "Oh, but it's maddening!" She stamped her foot angrily. "And I was so proud of my work. I thought I had really done something to help at last. But I don't know what more we can do. I've reached the end of my rope."

"So have I," he confessed. "Even with those fifty Aleuts we weren't running at more than half capacity, but we were making a showing at least. Now!" He flung up his hands in a gesture of despair. "George is in trouble, as usual. Marsh's men have cut our nets, and the yacht may arrive at any time."

"The yacht! What yacht?"

"Mr. Wayland's yacht. He is making a tour of this coast with the other officers of the trust and—Mildred."

"Is—is she coming here?" demanded Cherry in a strained voice.

"Yes."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I don't know; I didn't think you would be interested."

"So she can't wait? She is so eager that she follows you from Chicago clear up into this wilderness. Then you won't need my assistance any more, will you?" Her lids drooped, half hiding her eyes, and her face hardened.

"Of course I shall need your help. Her coming won't make any difference."

"It strikes me that you have allowed me to make a fool of myself long enough," said Cherry angrily. "Here I have been breaking my heart over this enterprise, while you have known all the time that she was coming. Why, you have merely used me—and George, and all the rest of us, for that matter." She laughed harshly.

"You don't understand," said Boyd. "Miss Wayland"—

"Oh, yes, I do. I dare say it will gratify her to straighten out your troubles. A word from her lips and your worries will vanish like a mist. Let us acknowledge ourselves beaten and beg her to save us."

Boyd shook his head in negation, but she gave him no time for speech.

"It seems that you wanted to pose as a hero before her and employed us to build up your triumph. Well, I am glad we failed; I'm glad Willis Marsh showed you how very helpless you are. Let her come to your rescue now. I'm through. Do you understand? I'm through!"

Emerson gazed at her in astonishment, the outburst had been so unexpected, but he realized that he owed her too much to take offense.

"Miss Wayland will take no hand in my affairs. I doubt if she will even realize what this trouble is all about," he said, a trifle stiffly. "I suppose I did want to play the hero, and I dare say I did use you and the others, but you knew that all the time."

"Why won't she help you?" queried Cherry. "Doesn't she care enough about you? Doesn't she know enough to understand your plight?"

"Yes, but this is my fight, and I've got to make good without her assistance. She isn't the sort to marry a failure, and she has left me to make my own way. Besides, she would not dare go contrary to her father's wishes even if she desired. That is part of her education. Oh, Wayne Wayland's opposition isn't all I have had to overcome. I have had to show his daughter that I am one of her own kind, for she hates weakness."

"And you think that woman loves you! Why, she isn't a woman at all. She doesn't know what love means. When a woman loves, do you imagine she cares for money or fame or success? If I cared for a man do you think I'd stop to ask my father if I might marry him or wait for my lover to prove himself worthy of me? Do you think I'd send him through the hell you have suffered to try his metal?" She laughed outright. "Why, I'd become what he was, and I'd fight with him. I'd give him all I had—money, position, friends, influence. If my people objected I'd tell them to go hang. I'd give them up and join him. I'd use every dollar, every wile and feminine device that I possessed, in his service. When a woman loves she doesn't care what the world says. The man may be a weakling or worse, but he is still her lover, and she will go to him."

The words had come tumbling forth until Cherry was forced to pause for breath.

"You don't understand," said Boyd. "You are primitive; you have lived in the open. She is exactly your opposite. Conservatism is bred in her, and she can't help her nature. It was hard even for me to understand at first, but when I saw her life, when I saw how she had been reared from childhood, I understood perfectly. I would not have her other than she is. It is enough for me to know that in her own way she cares for me."

Cherry tossed her head in derision.

"For my part I prefer red blood to sap, and when I love I want to know it. I don't want to have it proved to me like a problem in geometery. I want to love and hate and do wild, impulsive things against my own judgment."

"Have you ever loved in that way?" he inquired abruptly.

"Yes," she answered without hesitation, looking him squarely in the eye with an expression he could not fathom. "Thank heaven, I'm not the artificial kind! As you say, I'm primitive. I have lived!" Her crimson lips curled scornfully.

"I didn't expect you to understand her," he said. "But she loves me. And I—well, she is my religion. A man must have some God. He can't worship his own image."

Cherry Malotte turned slowly to the landing place and made her way into the launch. All the way back she kept silence, and Boyd, confused by her attack upon the citadel of his faith and strangely sore at heart, made no effort at speech.

"Fingerless" Fraser met him at the water's edge.

"Where in the devil have you been?" he cried breathlessly.

"At the Indian village after help. Why?"

"Big George is in more trouble. He sent for help two hours ago. I was just going to 'beat it' down there."

"What's up?"

"There's six of your men in the bunk house all beat up. They don't look like they'd fish any more for awhile. Marsh's men threw their salmon overboard, and they had another fight. Things are getting warm."

"We can't allow ourselves to be driven from the banks," said Boyd quickly. "I'll get the shoremen together right away. Find Alton and bring him along. We'll need every man we can get."

"Nothing doing with that party. He's quit like a house cat and gone to bed."

"Very well; he's no good anyhow. He's better out of the way."

He hurried through the building, now silent and half deserted, gathering a crew; then, leaving only the orientals and the watchman to guard the plant, he loaded his men into the boats and set out.

All that afternoon and on through the long, murky hours of the night the battle raged on the lower reaches of the Kalvik. Boat crews clashed; half clad men cursed each other and fought with naked fists, with oars and clubs, and when these failed they drove at one another with wicked one tined fish "pues." All night the hordes of salmon swarmed upward toward the fatal waters of their birth, through sagging nets that were torn and slit, beneath keels that rocked to the impact of struggling, heedless bodies.

CHAPTER XVII.

As the sun slanted up between the southward hills out from the gossamer haze that lay like filmy forest smoke above the ocean came a snow white yacht.

To Boyd Emerson she seemed like an angel of mercy, and he stood forth upon the deck of his launch searching her hungrily for the sight of a woman's figure. When he had first seen the ship rounding the point he had uttered a cry, then fallen silent watching her as she drew near, heedless of his surroundings. His heart was leaping; his breath was choking him. It seemed as if he must shout Mildred's name aloud and stretch his arms out to her. Of course she would see him as the Grande Dame passed. She would be looking for him, he knew. She would be standing there, wet with the dew, searching with all her eyes. Doubtless she had waited patiently at her post from the instant land came into sight. Seized by a sudden panic lest she pass him unnoticed, he ordered his launch near the yacht's course.

MAJORITY IS NINE

Government Is Nearly Caught on a Snap Vote.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—On a snap verdict the Government's majority was reduced yesterday to nine votes, which is said to be the smallest since 1896. The question arose over a motion to reduce an appropriation of $17,000 for a postoffice at Marieville, Que., which the members of the Opposition denounced as granting large public buildings to small places in the Quebec Province in the hope of affecting votes, while larger and more important places throughout the Dominion were suffering from the need of increasing facilities for postoffice and customs purposes. The amount expended so far is $32,000, and the $17,000 additional is asked from the House. Marieville has only 800 inhabitants. The vote in question stood 43 to 34.

It is interesting to note that while appropriations of $15,000 for a postoffice in Arthabaska was under discussion, Arthur Gilbert, the Nationalist member, remained silent.

Hon. Frank Oliver introduced a bill providing for the creation of a new schedule of forest reserves. Included in it is the reserve on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, the eastern boundary of which will be from the Yellow Head Pass north. Powers are provided for the expropriation of property which may be held by private individuals. Any rights which exist as, for instance, timber limits or leases, will not be interfered with, but patents may be expropriated.

E. N. Lewis (East Huron) introduced two bills, one to make it possible to deport immigrants within four years of their landing in Canada, if found guilty of carrying offensive weapons. The other is to make the acceptance of secret commissions a criminal offence.

W. D. Northrup (East Hastings), drew the attention of the Prime Minister to the fact that the Minister of External Affairs, Hon. Chas. Murphy, had not been sent to Washington to conduct, as such, the negotiations with the U. S. Government. It was proof, he said, that the new Department was not required.

The argument for the negative in the debate between the agriculturists and the manufacturers on the resolutions proposed by the organized farmers' deputation anent lower tariff, reciprocity with the United States, and a general tearing down of the protectionist ramparts was presented to the Government yesterday morning by a deputation of fifty manufacturers, representing the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and industries generally throughout Canada that would be affected by any trade agreement with the United States involving decreased protection to Canadian manufacturing and industrial interests.

The case for the manufacturers was presented by Mr. T. A. Russell of Toronto, chairman of the tariff committee of the association, succinctly reviewing all the arguments in favor of a steadfast adherence to the policy of adequate protection, pointing out the dangers of opening the Canadian market to competition from the United States under unequal economic conditions, and urging that the Government would be well advised to let well enough alone in the matter of tariff relations with Washington.

"In accepting the proposal to negotiate with the U.S., we were not oblivious to the disparities which existed," said Sir Wilfrid in the course of his reply. "We were aware that the Americans had been longer in business, had a larger population to cater to, and that conditions in the two countries were not identical. I can assure you that Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson, our commissioners in the negotiations, have the fact constantly before them that there is not a parity between the two countries. At the same time I cannot, for my part, see that it is impossible to reach some trade arrangement which will not in any way interfere with the manufacturing community of Canada."

New License Board.

Kingston, Jan. 14.—H. W. Richardson, R. Easton Burns and J. P. Henley have been appointed license commissioners for Kingston. The old commissioners were: Andrew McMahon, George Hentig and James Mallen. It is hinted that people were dissatisfied with the action of the board, in cutting off the license of the Ottawa Hotel and demanded a change, and that the Ontario Government saw the necessity of making new appointments.

Pretty Hard Luck.

Kingston, Jan. 14.—With both hands frozen, feet almost frozen and suffering from hunger, Lawrence Perrin, a former batteryman, arrived in the city yesterday, having walked most of the way to Toronto with a car of horses, and says that when he got to Toronto the man who hired him skipped out without paying him, and left him penniless. He then started out to tramp home.

American Perfidy.

London, Jan. 14.—The Daily Graphic, in an editorial, assuming with regard to the fortification of the Panama Canal that President Taft "proposes to ignore other nations' treaty right," indignantly asks whether Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, has been dumb in the face "of this scandalous proposal to trample on solemn treaties."

Chairman of Interstate Commission.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Judson C. Clements of Georgia was elected chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to succeed Judge Martin A. Knapp of New York, at a special conference of the commission held yesterday. Mr. Clements is the senior member of the commission, and is a Democrat.

Rotten Eggs.

Montreal, Jan. 14.—Concerted efforts are being made by the Montreal Produce Merchants' Association and the Montreal Board of Trade with the Toronto Board of Trade to secure legislation making it a legal as well as a moral crime to sell rotten eggs.

A premature explosion of dynamite killed six men on the G. T. P. near Prince Rupert, B. C.

Want Earlier Elections.

Kingston, Jan. 16.—Ald. Given has raised the question of holding the municipal elections earlier in the year, holding that New Year's is a bad time to get the vote out, and the City Council will take up the matter tonight. The last week of November or the first week of December is suggested. If the council favors it, the Government will be petitioned for the necessary power.

New Ship for U.S. Fleet.

Philadelphia, Jan. 16.—The United States battleship Arkansas, the largest warship ever constructed in this country, was successfully launched Saturday afternoon from the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N.J.

"Night Watch" Is Damaged.

Amsterdam, Jan. 14.—Rembrandt's most famous picture, "The Night Watch," was badly damaged yesterday by a discharge naval cook named Sigrist, who entered the Rijks Museum, and with a knife deliberately slashed the masterpiece.

Sigrist, who was arrested, declared that his vandalism was an act of vengeance against the state, because of his discharge from service in the navy.

The cuts traverse the principal figures of Captain Frans Banning Cocqus' Company of Arquebusiers, but experts, who later viewed the work, expressed the opinion that the damage was not beyond repair.

Lost Season's Crops.

Markdale, Jan. 14.—The large barn belonging to F. Johnston was burned to the ground, with all the season's crops, three horses and a number of cattle and pigs, besides all his implements and rigs. There was no insurance, and the loss is probably $4,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The Traveling Triangle.

Kingston, Jan. 14.—Yesterday twenty members of the Ancient Frontenac Cataraqui Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, went to Montreal, to hand over the traveling triangle to Carnaivan Chapter. This triangle was sent out by St. Patrick's Chapter, Toronto, and is going around the world.

NEARLY DIED OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

GIN PILLS SAVED HIM

513 JAMES ST., HAMILTON, ONT.

"Five years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of The Bladder—intense pains in back and loins, and difficulty in urinating, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony. I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor.

My wife read in the papers about GIN PILLS and sent for a box. From the very first, I felt that GIN PILLS were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once and the attacks were less frequent.

In six weeks, the Stone in the Bladder came away. When I recall how I suffered and how now I am healthy and able to work, I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what GIN PILLS have done for me." JOHN HERMAN. 48

GIN PILLS are sold at 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. Sample box free if you write us, mentioning this paper. Money back, if GIN PILLS do not give full satisfaction. National Drug and Chemical Co., Dept. B., Toronto.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

Others See It

The Morning Post's Washington correspondent says that Americans are beginning to realize that reciprocity, so far as Canada is concerned, is an iridescent dream, and asserts that Canada can gain nothing, or, at best, very little, and that little purchased, at an enormous cost by adopting England's foolish policy and inviting the United States to make free of her profitable home market.

"This would," he adds, "in all probability, result in disaster for Canada, prostrate her manufactures, throw thousands out of work and dislocate trade generally, the only compensation being that possibly some people in Canada might make a few cents on their butter and eggs.

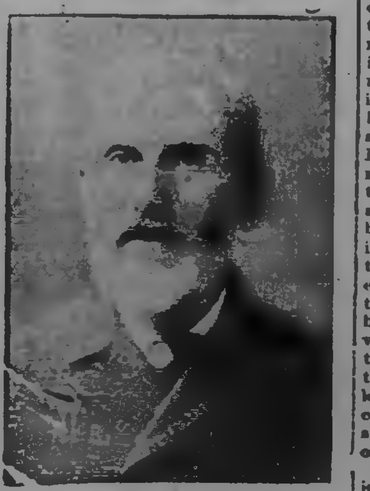
PROMINENT CITIZEN HAS PASSED AWAY

(Henry Best, ex-Mayor of Peterborough, Died This Afternoon.)

At one-thirty to-day, there passed away, one of the most highly respected and generally known citizens of Peterborough, in the person of Henry Best, ex-mayor of the city. Stricken with paralysis some months ago, the deceased maintained a tenacious grasp on life, and although the news of his death was not entirely a surprise, still it will cause sincere and wide-spread feelings of regret.



THE LATE HENRY BEST
Died This Afternoon in 75th Year of Age

The late Henry Best was the eldest son of the late Thomas Best, of Peterborough, and was born in Peterborough in 1836. He attended the public schools until sixteen years of age, when he was apprenticed to the tinsmith trade. Four years later he went to the Pacific coast via the Isthmus of Panama. After spending some time in San Francisco, he went to British Columbia, and spent nearly a year in the mountains, exploring and prospecting, after which he returned to San Francisco. Subsequently he sailed to Valparaiso, Chili; and was extensively engaged at that place in the manufacture of wooden cases for storing whale oil, his employes being mostly natives. This yielded encouraging profits; but, disliking the country, he returned to San Francisco. He was subsequently similarly engaged at Panama; but after carrying on business there for about a year, he began to yearn for the old Canadian home again; and in 1867 returned to Peterborough. Business chances, however, induced him to locate in Lindsay; but the year 1872 saw him again in Peterborough as a permanent home; and the following year he purchased the business of his old friend, James Stevenson, into whose shop he had entered as an apprentice to the trade twenty-one year previously. He did a long and prosperous business here; and counted among the enterprising and substantial merchants of Peterborough.

The deceased was one of the leading figures in city municipal affairs, and rendered most valuable services to the city both as councillor and mayor. He entered the council in 1892. He was a candidate in 1893, but was defeated. He was elected to the council the following year and occupied a seat on the Council Board until 1895, when he was made Mayor, and was Chief Magistrate of the city for 1905-6.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

OBITUARY

MRS. HUGH GORHAM

Word was received in the city today of the death of Mrs. Gorham, widow of the late Hugh Gorham, and mother of the late James G. Gorham, of Peterborough. Mrs. Gorham passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Weatherhead, 421 1-2 Yonge Street, Toronto.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning from the C. P. R. station on the arrival of the 11.28 train, and interment will take place in the St. Peter's Cemetery.

GEORGE WILLIAM FITZGERALD.

Death claimed another widely-known and respected citizen of this city at 2.30 this afternoon, when George William Fitzgerald, aged 59 years, residing at 174 London street, passed away very suddenly. The late Mr. Fitzgerald has had a career full of usefulness, and the news of his death will come as a severe shock to his numerous warm friends. About five years ago he suffered an attack of paralysis, but recovered sufficiently to be around and attend to his duties. Before coming to the city, seven years ago, he resided in Smith, and the wardenship of the county of Peterborough for a time. He was a prominent cheese buyer of the firm of A. Ayres & Company, of Montreal. In his business and municipal dealings he was always straightforward, and his sterling worth won for him the warm friendship of many whom he met in a business way.

Surviving him are his wife, four sons and four daughters, namely—Clarence, of Vancouver; Percy, Walter and Allie, at home; Mrs. Nelson, of Allen, Sask., Mrs. H. McConkey, of this city; Mrs Hannah, of Montreal, and Edna at home.

He was a faithful attendant at Murray St. Baptist church.

The funeral will leave the family residence at 2.30 Wednesday afternoon and proceed to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. R. Webb will officiate.

The "blind pig" cases at Cobalt have been adjourned till Thursday next.

Niagara-on-the-Lake town council has agreed to submit a local option by-law.

SPORTING NEWS

MACHINISTS WON 15-0

(A Cheerful Contribution)

The following was handed to the sporting editor by a meek looking youth, who, to judge by his general appearance, had been drawn through a small-sized steam pipe:

Tin Ribs Mahoney's aggregation of wood-slingers had their hockey ambition shattered in a game with the machine shop team Saturday night. It was simply a little work-out for the speedy bunch from the machine shop, who had it over their husky opponents at every stage of the game.

The game started at 10 o'clock with Orville Kenealey handling the bell. He did not have the game very well in hand as the players refused to observe a penalty when one was handed out and roughhouse tactics were often used, mostly by the followers of the Tin Ribs. The goal umpires behind the goal of the "Never Wins" had to work in relays. Hackenschmidt Hurtubise was practicing all his latest "holds" and pugilistic Spillsbury training for the coming battle with the world famous Jack Johnson. The referee had all he could do to look after the facing of the rubber off after each goal and did not bother much about the penalties.

The last account of the score, as remembered by the referee, was 15—0 in favor of the machine shop.

It is honed these "Has Beens" will hang up their sticks to remind them of the time when they were young.

THE GOTCH-HACK MATCH IS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION SAYS NEW YORK DESPATCH

(Special To The Review.)

New York Jan. 14th — It is rumored in wrestling circles throughout the Middle West that Frank Gotch's recent announcement, to the effect that he had permanently retired from the wrestling game, was only a big bluff on his part. It will be recalled that it was Farmer Burns who spoke for Gotch. The Burns announcement is to be shortly repudiated by the American champion, so the story goes.

When the time arrives for Gotch to publicly declare that Farmer Burns was not authorized to speak for him, he will at the same time declare himself ready to meet Hackenschmidt for the championship of the world. Up to the present time, the Hackenschmidt challenge and the Gotch announcement of retirement may be viewed as so much press-agent work.

That Gotch and Hackenschmidt will engage in another tussel for the championship may therefore be put down as a foregone conclusion.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE NEW HOPE OF THE WHITE RACE

Carl Morris, the Engineer Pug, Has Had a Winning Ring Career so Far—Is the Man Who Will Probably be Matched Against Jack Johnston.

A new hope of the white race has come to the front and those who have seen him in action declare that he is no false alarm. His name is Carl Morris and his home is in Sapulpa, Okla. He has been fighting professionally less than a year and during that time has beaten five men. The bout that brought him prominently before the pugilistic world was his defeat of Marvin Hart, of Louisville, not long ago in three rounds. Hart held the heavyweight championship of the world for a brief time, being presented with the title by Jeffries when the Louisville fighter beat Jack Root in 1905. Hart has gone back considerably since then, but can still go some, and the easy manner in which Morris beat him stamps the Oklahoma fistic artist as a performer of class.

Morris has physical advantages over every other heavy-weight in the world. He is 6 ft. 4 in. tall, has a reach of 80 1-2 inches and so far he has trained down to 235 pounds. He weighed 300 last June. He is 26 years old, has never indulged in liquor or tobacco in any form and is a stickler for health rules. He is married and owns a home in Sapulpa. Ever since he disposed of Hart with two broken ribs, a fractured nose and other injuries that put the former heavyweight champion a week in the house Morris has been discussed all over the United States. Sam Langford's manager, Joseph Woodman, and Wolgast's manager, Tom Jones, are trying to sign Morris to long term contracts, but the giant says he will not go back on Bill Stone, who threw up his job as train despatcher to handle Morris' affairs. Woodman wants to take Morris abroad, where he can fight Sam McVey, Joe Jeannette, Ian Hague or some other heavy, but Morris says in the first place that he will never fight a negro unless it is Johnson, and furthermore, he is anxious to do all of his fighting in America. Morris is not a braggart and is by no means in a hurry. When asked to tell something about his plans the other day he said:

"I have won five battles in a hurry, but I know that the quality of the men I've whipped isn't much. Marvin Hart was the best man I ever met and I stopped him in three rounds. He hit me good and hard several times, but I got him just the same. I've been lucky enough to fight men that have come to me. That's what I like. But I don't know what I would do if I had to go after a man who was strictly on the defensive. That is the one think I've got to learn if I'm going to be successful. I know that fighters are not made in a day, so that I'm not going to try to beat everybody before I learn how to box. From this time on I'm going to devote my time to learning what science means."

Morris was formerly a locomotive fireman. When Jack Johnson whipped JJeffries last July he decided that he would try his hand at pugilism and one day bring back the world's championship title to the white race. Oklahoma has gone wild over him. When he fought Hart 4,000 people saw the battle. The Tulsa, Okla., Athletic is willing to hang up a $15,000 purse for a fight between him and Tony Ross, Al Kubiak, Jim Flynn or Al Kaufman. The club figures that a tremendous crowd will be drawn to see Morris in his next bout, no matter who his opponent will be.

SHOOTING

At the Peterborough bowling alleys and shooting gallery, C. Gutterson won bowling honors in Class A, and W. B. Tully in Class B. Gutterson took the box of cigars and Tully the tie pin. In professional shooting W. L. Mitchell, S. Salmes and L. Yeotes, shot off a tie at 29. Yeotes winning the box of cigars. He, however, will not take part in future competitions. The other scores were;—C. Gutterson 26, J. W. Wylie 26, F. J. Pearson25.

In amateur shooting the fight was between H. Halpin, F. Pearson and J. Wilson, each having 28. Halpin won out and took the tie pin. Achison with a count of 28 did not show up. The other scores were;—A. Rew 22, H. Anderson 21, A. Parker 26, J. Fraser 27, M. Drysdale 23, H. Moncrief 26, C. Calaghan 24, F. McPherson 24.

Special prizes will be offered in the various competitions this week.

PARKDALE WON 8-2

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Parkdale gave St. Michael's College a very decisive beating at Mutual street rink on Saturday, night. The score was 8 to 2. Half-time, 5 to 2. The crowd was a record one for the rink and there were as many people turned away as there were in the building. Every available foot of space was occupied and many of those who managed to get in saw only a part of the play.

The result of the game leaves no question as to the superiority of the Parkdale team, under certain conditions, at least. The ice was slushy in the first half and watery in the second. Both teams had hoped for a cold night and keen ice. Parkdale had weight on their side and were equal to the champions in speed on bad going. The Paddlers had a much superior team over that of last season. The fine team play, which has always been a feature of St. Michael's games, was missing Saturday night, largely owing to the ice conditions. Both teams tried combination at times, but as a rule it was ineffective, although several of the goals were the result of combined rushes.

PUCKLAND

The Tool Room and Office teams of the C.G.E. played a Mercantile League game at Brock street rink Saturday night, the Toolmakers winning by a 2—1 score.

All Saints' team will practice Wednesday night on account of the Intermediate game Thursday night, Belleville playing here. The Bank League game is also called off for Wednesday.

The team to play in Lindsay tomorrow night will be—Goal, Patterson; point, Reynolds; cover, Heffernan; rover, Coughlin; centre, Hall; right, McMartin; left, Matthews

---

Montreals and Toronto-Nova Scotia Bank League teams battled to a tie, 1—1, Saturday evening between five and six. The Montreals had the better of the play, though they only used six men to their opponents' seven, and the extra player was replaced at half time by a fresh man.

Keep out Buck Irving.

CURLING

Tankard games will be played at the rink to-morrow, the draw being Port Hope vs. Campbellford at 4.30, with Lindsay playing the winner.

Peterborough is drawn against Cannington for 1.30 o'clock.

CON. MURPHY WITH THE LEAFS

Connie Murphy of the St. Mary's local City League team will be taken south with the Toronto Baseball Club next spring and given a trial. If he cannot make the team this year he may land with some smaller league for a year or so. — Globe.

The Curlers

Utica Globe,

William J. Orthwein, one of the great curlers of Switzerland, at a dinner in St. Louis, that preceded his departure for St. Moritz, told a number of curling stories.

"I am almost as devoted a curler," so Mr. Orthweins last story ran, "as Dougal McDonald.

"Dougal McDonald and his old crony, Donald MacDougal, were once opposed to each other in a famous match and the last two stones to finish the game were the two cronies.

"Donald McDougal, with enormous deliberation, threw his stone. He threw it well. He made what is called a 'pat lid,' and jumped for joy.

"Then it was Dougal McDonald's turn. His case seemed hopeless but such a splendid throw did he make that the pad lid was knocked off, and his own stone lay at the side of the tee, winning the game.

"In his joy the old fellow jumped sky high. He came down so hard that he broke right through the ice. He sank, but, bobbing up again, he shouted from the cold water.

"'Hi lads, we've won, and if I dinna come oot o' here alive, be sure ye pit that stone on my grave.'"

1,100 Miles by Dog Train.

Gimli, Man., Jan. 16.—Prof. J. L. Macoun, F.L.S., F.R.C.S., assistant director and naturalist of the Geological Survey Department, Ottawa; A. G. Bachand and party of the Dominion Hydrographical Bureau, together with Captain Harold Bartlett and crew of the schooner Jeanie, arrived here yesterday, having come all the way from Fort Churchill, 1,100 miles, by dog train.

Drove Miles to Surgeon.

Blenheim, Jan. 16.—John Milens of Raleigh had one hand terribly lacerated by the knives of a root pulper Saturday, and had to drive several miles to Blenheim for attendance by a surgeon. Thirty stitches were put in, Milens refusing to have an anaesthetic administered.

Lynched Three Negroes.

Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 16.—Fifty masked men early yesterday stormed the Shelby County jail, seized and lynched three negroes, two of whom were charged with insulting white women, while the third was sentenced to hang for the murder of a negro woman.

ENGLAND IS THE MECCA OF AMERICAN PRIZE FIGHTERS

London, Jan. 16.—London has become the Mecca of half the big fighting men of the world. From Australia and America those of the big fellows who have proved handy with their fists have made the journey to this country, so as to engage in what is likely to prove one of the biggest tournaments that England has yet known.

"The boom is in large part due to Hugh D. MacIntosh, the Australian promoter, who, in partnership with Jimmy Britt, the ex-American champion has already put forward a series of contests which are in themselves indicative of the fare to follow. In London, alone, it is estimated that there are nearly 10,000 men who are either directly or indirectly making a living out of the boxing game.

"The majority of the South London music halls run matinees once or twice a week; whilst at the Ring, King's hall, and Wonderland huge programs are arranged at least a couple of times a week. In no instances are the prices small, yet it is a remarkable fact that on almost every occasion the places are quite filled."

For the coming battles, however, something will be attempted which will be in the nature of a new introduction to England.

WILL ESTABLISH TRAINING CAMPS.

The Americans are bringing with them their own managers and sparring partners, and it is the intention to establish a number of training camps, which will be conducted on lines very similar to that which became such a feature of the preliminaries at Reno.

Small charges will be made for admission. In the afternoon the boxers will go through a performance with their partners; whilst each day bulletins will be issued giving the weights of the men and all the necessary details. People in general will be given an excellent idea how present day boxers get into shape for their big fights.

That much money is at present being made may be taken for granted, but there are two sides, for, as is usual, the number of small fry greatly outnumber those who have made their reputations.

In the small halls the participants in the minor bouts are engaged for a very few shillings, and, as a rule, they are much more battered than the men in the fights for the big purse. The anxiety of these youngsters to win supplies an almost pathetic side, for to them—as much as to the big men—a defeat is of consequence.

THE PEOPLE ARE GREATLY INTERESTED.

How long the boom will last is, of course, a matter of uncertainty, but it is at the moment very much bigger than the wrestling boom of a few years back. Crowded houses are the rule, especially in the afternoons, but it is a fact of interest that, in one or two neighborhoods of London, boxing has not proved an attraction. Hammersmith, for instance, does not at all take kindly to the introduction.

So far, no attempt has been made to stop the contests, but it would not create surprise if, by and by, some objections were raised. It need only be said, however, that the fights are invariably conducted in an excellent fashion, and at least in one case ladies are especially invited, and are provided with reserved seats, which, in addition, are screened.

There is an absence of brutality; the majority of the contests are distinguished by the extreme fairness of the men in the ring, and in many ways the sport is conducted in a much better fashion than several other kinds which could be mentioned.

So long as things continue as at present no possible objection could be made to the boom in a pastime which is at all for the betterment of the younger generation.

An Interesting Number

Variety, and plenty of it, is the keynote of the January number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, of Woodstock, Ont. The opening article deals with the outfit required for the backwoods and though sportsmen may differ on many of the trimmings, there will be a general agreement as to the essentials. This is followed by a number of personal experiences in hunting, fishing, canoeing and mountaineering throughout Canada, while a paper on the birds of Manitoba and some light verses add materially to the interest of the number and recommend it as one in which sportsmen of all tastes may find something which cannot fail to prove both pleasurable and profitable to themselves. The whole is redolent of the outdoors and must act like a tonic in the wintry weather, reminding sportsmen of the joys they have had and those which they are anticipating with the keenest of pleasures in the not far distant future.

Boy Drowned.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—While skating on the Ottawa River Saturday afternoon, two boys left the party, tempted to try the smooth ice where it has been cut. They got on to the thinner surface, climbing the wire to do so, and went through. Wilfrid Gauthier was pulled out by H. Plamondin, but Hermides Prot, 10-year-old son of a widow residing at 97 1-2 Water street, was drowned. Plamondin just caught his toque as he disappeared. There is little hope of recovering the body until spring.

STUDENTS WERE ON BAD BEHAVIOR

McGill Boys Make Merry in Montreal Vaudeville House

Montreal Gazette.

The McGill students vaudevillians, playing before a crowded house, displayed plenty of real talent at their second annual performance, which was held last night at His Majesty's Theatre. Eight acts made up a varied programme, which continued for over two hours, and, as every act was enthusiastically encored, it was difficult to pick out the "star" performers.

The McGill students attended the performance in force, upperclass men and their lady friends filling the orchestra seats and the parquette, while the younger men crowded the galleries. From beginning to end of the performance paper streamers and confetti showered down from the galleries, while peas and beans were much in evidence. The audience was with the players, however, and when some of the rowdy element began to send lemons flying towards the stage, cries of "Cut it out," "Put him out" came from many of the students, warning their less peaceable classmates to desist.

The students in the galleries introduced a new feature, which was not appreciated by the people downstairs. Several of them brought in a number of hens, which from time to time were released from the dress circle and fluttered downward, clapping their wings and clucking in terror, until caught and cared for by the ushers.

At the beginning of the performance Mr John Harrison, president of the Students' Council at McGill, appeared on the stage and warned the boys not to carry their fun-making too far, and, although the behavior of some of the men was not as decorous as might have been hoped for, nothing occurred to seriously interrupt the program.

The student performers took the interruptions, verbal as well as those of a more material nature, in good part and refused to be disturbed by the banter of would-be witty friends in the audience, more than once sending back crushing answers to some of the humorists who interrupted an act by shouted jests.

"Mushrooms" That Kill

That old saying, "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing," can be applied to the gathering of mushrooms, if it can be applied to anything. The totally ignorant on the subject seem to realize their ignorance and avoid every form of fungus.

A specialist on fungi and mushroom advises lovers to avoid all fungi in the button stage, and also all fungi having a milky juice unless the milk is reddish. These rules are not absolute, there being occasional exceptions to them, but it is safer for the novice to follow them. Several species have not been proved harmless. Another authority says any mushroom whose stem is set in a socket or has any suggestion of a socket should be labelled "poison," for though some of them are considered edible it is wiser to condemn the whole group. If among a mess of wild mushrooms that have been sold or given to you there are any with white gills or any buttons, reject them, for they may belong to the amanita species. Even a small quantity of this "toadstool" will kill.

Some Don'ts

Don't laugh at hysterical people with imaginary pains, says a physician. A "delusion" is reality to the sufferer. When one believes one has a pain one has the pain. All pain is in the brain, and to believe one has it is to have it. It matters not a whit whether the message is sent by one's toe that some kind friend is treading on or whether it is sent from one part of the brain to another.

A woman from her sex and character has claim to many things besides shelter, food and clothing. She is not less a woman for being wedded, the man who is fit to be trusted with a good wife recollects all which this implies, and shows himself perpetually chivalrous, sweet-spoken, considerate and deferential.

Try to keep your sympathies fresh and your interest in little things active. Remember that you were young once, and tolerate the crudities of youth. Do more than tolerate; try to understand and do not be impatient if young eyes cannot see things just as you see them.

Gray hairs and wrinkles you cannot escape, but you need not grow old unless you choose. And, so long as your age is on the outside, you will win confidence from the young, and find your life all the brighter from contact with theirs.

LARGE ENGLISH FIRM IS OPPOSED TO RECIPROCITY

The following interesting letter on the timely subject of reciprocity was written to the Montreal Star by V. Knowles, formerly of the Review advertising staff:

To the Editor of the Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—In a leading article published in a recent issue of the Star, entitled "Treaties and Treaty Making," the following stands out prominently as coinciding with the views expressed by leading British and Canadian manufacturers in connection with the projected reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States:—

"We ourselves, in that little matter of drawing up a reciprocity convention with the United States, will shortly have an experience of treaty-making with a nation which has acquired a universal reputation for getting more and giving less in this kind of negotiation than any of its competitors. Washington diplomats have especially lived up to this in their past dealings with Canada. Although we are willing to accept this philosophically, as being 'all in the game,' we cannot but feel that it is about time the rules were changed or we indulged our passion for treaty making at a less expensive market."

In connection with the foregoing, the following is a portion of a letter which I received from Messrs. J. S. Fry & Sons, Ltd., chocolate and cocoa manufacturers, of Bristol, England, in connection with an inquiry I made. It may be taken as characteristic of the opinion of manufacturers in Britain generally, and it is more interesting, and carries far greater weight because of the fact that Messrs. Fry & Sons are operating one of the very few protected industries in Great Britain, and under this protection have developed since the time they were established (1728), into an organization of mammoth proportions. Following the close of the British General elections in January, 1910, Canada entered into a trade treaty with Germany which placed that country on the same preferential footing as Great Britain, and it will be remembered that the opinion was freely expressed among Tariff Reformers and others in Britain that such was but an answer to the decision of the British people in favor of the retention of Free Trade, and that it might be taken to mean that, as Canada would receive no preference in the British market, the opinion of a certain few, namely, that we owe Britain nothing, was generally concurred in on this side.

Messrs. Fry & Sons, Ltd., say in their letter:—

With reference to the suggested reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States, we are of the opinion that its effect would be prejudicial to the British manufacturers, but to the Canadian manufacturers it would probably be disastrous."

It is generally conceded that the projected reciprocity is a step toward free trade, a step toward the destruction of our National Policy which has stood so long for the advancement of Canada and the welfare of our industries. In spite of the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier states that reciprocity is essentially a protectionist measure, yet it is well to sound the warning note that "reciprocity" may be carried too far, by recalling attention to the sensational admission of the Father of Free Trade—Cobden—who, when pressed for a direct reply to the question as to what would be the result of Free Trade in Britain should other countries fail to adopt it, after several evasions reluctantly delivered himself of the opinion that in such a case, to quote his own words: "Free Trade would ruin Britain within half a century."

CHINA IS ONLY A BIG BUBBLE

(Wall Street Journal.)

According to the Daily Consular Reports, "the Armory Advisory Board at Pekin is taking steps towards the making of a complete survey of the Chinese Empire, both for military and general purposes. At present nothing of the kind exists." This is the first confession of the truth about the Chinese census is more than a century.

Ever since Marco Polo boomed the Flowery Kingdom it has been the ambition of the maritime states of Europe to plunder its imaginary sources. When Columbus stumbled on America he was bound for "Cathay," the Portuguese followed by plundering Malacca and Macao and the Spaniards seized the Philippines. The Dutch doubted, and the English investigated the alleged populousness and wealth of the Celestial Empire.

But, as Sir George Staunton's humiliating recital freely confesses, they were defeated at every turn by the falsehood and cunning of the Mongolian. Lord Macartney came away in 1795 with a tumid account of China and a pretended census of 333,000,000, which subsequent wonder-mongers have amplified into 438,000,000. (U.S. Cons. Rep., Sept., 1908.) The Jesuit official census, taken but a few years before the arrival of Macartney's embassy, showed but 198,000,000, including China, Manchuria, Thibet, the Philippines, and all the dependencies. This number, instead of increasing, appears to have actually diminished, by loss of territory and frequent famines, until quite recently, when it began to pick up again.

At the present time, as estimated by the rough but trustworthy guidance of its food consumption, it is believed that the population can hardly exceed 130,000,000.

If the promised survey is ever made, a promise which some experience of Mongolian methods permits us to doubt, China and her supposedly boundless opportunities bid fair to resolve themselves into the will-o'-the-wisp which has already mired us in the Philippines, and may yet lead us into a worse mess.

PRESIDENT ELIOT ON IMMIGRATION

New York, Jan. 12.—"An Educational test to restrict immigration is both misdirected and untimely," according to Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University. The expression of this opinion is obtained in a letter from Dr. Eliot, which was read here to-day at a meeting of the National Liberal Immigration League.

"Ability to read is no proof of either health or character," wrote Dr. Eliot. "Many entirely illiterate persons are vigorous, honest and of sound judgment in affairs and in the conduct of life. It is untimely because the right moment to apply an educational test is on admission to the suffrage."

Dr. Eliot takes little stock in the fear which he says has been expressed by some people that the Catholic Church in this country would become "unduly powerful" if immigrants from Catholic races continued to pour in.

"Whatever gains the Catholic Church may make in this way under a regime of religious toleration, that church is fairly entitled to," he states. "To restrict immigration on that ground would be," he concludes, "public confession of lack of faith in the efficacy of religious toleration and the independence of Church and State as bulwarks of political freedom."

NOVELTIES AT A BANQUET

The revolution in modern life caused by the discovery and utilising of electricity was recounted at the second annual banquet of the Electrical Association of the Province of Quebec, held at Cooper's Cafe last night. And that Montreal has not been behind any other city in the world in the development of this wonderful force was the claim of all the speakers of the evening.

Table appointments and decorations were all suggestive of some phase of electricity, from the Mazda cocktail—an olive—enclosed in an incandescent globe, to a choice Perfector that emitted sparks.

AT JIMPSON'S

To-day I went to Jimpson's store to buy a sugar-coated pill. This Mr. Jimpson is a bore, whose tongue outclacks a coffee mill. All sorts of language then he tossed and bandied in his dismal haunt, for he was bound at any cost to sell me things I didn't want. "I've just received a splendid line of setting hens and spaniel pups, and safety spoons and binding twine, and boneless prunes and china cups." "I am," I said, "in frenzied haste, so don't detain me, I implore." But Jimpson grabbed me round the waist, and dragged me round his dingy store, and showed me divers kinds of junk, and filled me with his prices full, and everything I saw was punk, and I was madder than a bull. I bought an old stuffed crocodile for which I paid an iron yen, the which he added to his pile, and smiled and said: "Pray, come again!" I'll go again when pigs have horns, and not before, you bet your hat; my stately form no more adorns a blamed old robber's roost like that. I've always thought that merchants make an error when their goods they flaunt, insisting that their patrons take a lot of stuff they do not want.

ON GOOD TERMS.

Mrs. Thomas Finton Says There Was No Quarrel With Father-in-Law.

Hamilton, Jan. 14.—The Finton trial is attracting larger crowds every day. At the sessions yesterday morning, afternoon and evening the court room was jammed to suffocation. In the morning the crown concluded its case and the defence had put in several of its witnesses before the adjournment last evening.

Dr. Raspbery of Dundas, a veterinary surgeon, said he saw the pig-trough at the Finton farm, and thought it had not been repaired. There was only one half bright nail in it.

Dr. Thompson, recalled, said he did not notice a scar or a scab on prisoner's index finger. He would not swear there was not a scar.

Governor Ogilvie at the jail said the prisoner had $1,366 when searched. This concluded the case for the crown.

Miss Theresa Dena testified that she worked for the Fintons. On the morning of the tragedy she met Tom driving to Hamilton about 8.30 to 9. Later she saw someone open the door and cough. She identified the cough as that of Elijah Finton.

Mrs. Thomas Finton was then called. She noticed on the Sunday before the death of Mr. Finton that her husband had a rag wrapped around one of his fingers.

Dealing with the reason for her leaving the Finton farm, the witness said that she objected to Mrs. St. Johns being there. She had no quarrel with her father-in-law and never saw anything but the best of feeling exhibited by either Tom or his father towards one another. To Mr. Blackstock she said that she knew that by suddenly leaving the house she was inconveniencing her husband and her father-in-law, who would be left without a housekeeper.

"Now, Mrs. Finton, according to your reasoning, there cannot be any reason why your husband should say that his father treated him like a dog."

The witness hedged for a while and then said "No."

SERIOUS RUNAWAY ON FRIDAY; DRIVER SEVERELY INJURED

Thrown From Sleigh and Struck Pavement—Head Badly Cut.

As the result of a runaway which occured Friday afternoon, Mr. Arthur Ashworth, residing at 261 Water Street, is confined to his home suffering from serious injuries of a most painful character.

The unfortunate man, who delivers tea for the Ocean Blend Tea Co., on the afternoon in question about four o'clock was driving down Water Street just above the Lakefield track. A street car approaching startled his horse, which jumped back on its hindquarters, thus breaking the straps, and allowing the sleigh to run up on its locks. Mr. Ashworth managed with considerable difficulty to guide it down Water Street at a mad gallop. Turning the corner on the London St. the sleigh swung around with great speed, tipping it up on the side, and throwing the driver clean to the sidewalk. He landed heavily on his left shoulder and forehead, and became unconscious. The horse stopped immediately. Dr. Hammond was summoned and with his aid, the injured man was able to be conveyed home. The wound in the forehead was half an inch deep, and bled copiously. His shoulder is also swelled considerably.

It will be some days before he will be able to be around.

SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL FOR VAG WHO CAME BACK

Like the proverbial cat, John McIntyre came back.

He got a six months' term in the Central Prison.

John, with a pal named Patrick Harvey, appeared in police court ~~Saturday~~ morning, charged with vagrancy, but His Worship gave both men the remainder of the day to clear out.

They claimed to be plying the trade of umbrella repairers.

"Remember," said the magistrate, as they left the box, "if you come back it's Central Prison."

Business must have been good during the day, for John managed to imbibe freely, in fact to such an extent that while Patrick and he were hitting the ties with the best of intentions John lost his equilibrum and sank.

Generous hearted residents of East City telephoned to the police station. P.C. Newhall responded, and with the aid of an express outfit brought McIntyre to the cells.

"You are charged with being a vagrant, that is, you have no money, no employment, and no home," was what John heard this morning.

"It's not true," quoth Mac.

"This is one of the umbrella men," put in the chief.

In the witness box the prisoner claimed to have contracted asthma while handling a job as fireman on a steamboat. He had come to the city from Lindsay, and only once before had he been "copped." That was right here, some four years ago.

"Well, I never like to break a promise. It's six months in Central Prison." This from the magisterial chair.

THREE MORE CHILDREN PLACED IN THE SHELTER

Were Brought From Cobourg, Following Investigation by Inspector Miller—Boy of Fifteen Cannot Read or Write

O. R. Miller, of Berlin inspector for the Children's Aid Society, came up from Cobourg this morning, bringing with him three children, whom he placed in the Shelter here.

His investigation at Cobourg brought out a sad state of affairs in the family. Garrett Cook is the father's name, and he and his wife are apparently unfit to look after their children, the eldest of which is a boy aged fifteen years. He has only been at school one month, and cannot read or write. Another boy, aged nine, is a bright little fellow, and with his sister aged thirteen, years has had considerable schooling.

The family come originally from Peterborough county. The father deserted at Cobourg and the mother and children went to Fraserville, but after a short stay were sent back to Cobourg where they were taken care of by a relative. The older boy was placed in the Cobourg jail and remained in custody for three months.

E. L. Goodwill, secretary of the local branch of the society, was informed of the case and the visit and investigation by Inspector Miller followed.

The mother had only two light articles of wearing apparel. She gave the impression, as did also the father, of being weak-minded.

The children with several others from the Shelter, will in all probability, be distributed at western points.

BLACKLISTER FACED TWO CHARGES TO-DAY

Judgment Was Reserved—"Didn't Know Who He Was."

"As he lay drunk, in Nixon's stable he gave a man $1 to get him a bottle of whiskey. The man took the money and went away, but did not return."

So said License Inspector Stewart of a blacklister, who faced two charges at the police court session this morning.

The accused pleaded guilty in each case.

In answer to the Inspector, the lister said that a man whom he met in the yard of the Palace Hotel, Friday afternoon, purchased a fifty cent flask of whiskey at his request. Both had a drink from the flask, and the remainder served, for the drunk on Saturday.

He swore that the first liquor he drank on Friday, was found by him at his own home. This was in the morning.

"It would be a dear drink for that man if I knew who he was," commented the Magistrate.

An employee of the Nixon House who was present when the $1 was given to the man, was called but he could not give his name.

Judgment was reserved and an endeavor will be made to find the unknown.

The lister in question was in court several weeks ago, charged with two offences of the same nature and the case cost him over $50.00.

Stewart on the Map

Socially, at any rate, Stewart, B. C. is very much on the map. Monday evening last to celebrate the New Year the Fire Department of the northern town held their first annual ball, and a glance at the characteristic programme is evidence that Stewart is rapidly passing beyond the clapboard and tent stage. Among other numbers on the programme were Chief Smith's drill, hose schottische, spanner waltz, coupling two-step, hydrant lancers, nozzle waltz, tower twostep, chemical three step, alarm two step, bucket twostep, fireball lancers, ladder Schottische, Secretary Coates waltz, lineman's two step, power-house waltz, the hose reel triangle three-step, and fire-out waltz. The Committee in charge was composed of Messrs. W. L. Coates chairman; Walter Proud, Charles Metcalf, W. L. Esplin P. F. Godenrath and W. R. Smith, chief.—Vancouver Sunset.

Churches Get Grants.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—By an agreement reached between the Department of Indian Affairs and the four churches engaged in educational work among the Indians of Canada, the Roman Catholic Church will receive $165,905, the Anglican Church $61,360, Presbyterian Church $34,250, and the Methodist Church $23,500. According to the estimates submitted under the new arrangement, the Government appropriates $285,000 toward the maintenance of the boarding schools conducted under the auspices of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Anglican and Catholic Churches throughout the provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Burned by Carbolic.

London, Jan. 16.—Harry Slater was discovered roaming around the local market late Saturday night with his mouth badly burned by carbolic acid. A partly consumed bottle was found in his clothes. He denies that he attempted suicide. He is in the hospital, but will recover.

ROYAL BANK MAKES RECORD SHOWING

Net Profits Equal to 18,29 per cent on Average Capital; Increase of Over Twenty-Five Million on Aggregate Assets

The annual statement of the Royal Bank of Canada will this year receive special attention, owing to the absorption by it, towards the end of the year, of the Union Bank of Halifax. The consolidation explains, to some extent, the remarkable increases in the total deposits, as well as in the current loans and discounts, but the fact that the absorption only took place on November 1st, indicates that the record net profits shown were due almost entirely to the operations of the Royal Bank itself.

The net profits for the year ending December 31st, 1910, reached the total of $951,336.99, equal to 18.29 per cent on the average paid up caital for the year of $5,200,000. These earnings, compared with $838,306.51, show an increase of $113,030.48.

One of the outstanding features of the statement, viewed from the standpoint of conservatism, would seem to be the very large increase in the amount of the assets of the bank represented by specie and Dominion Government notes; the gold and silver coin now standing at $4,141,664.06, compared with $3,560,374.02 at the end of the previous year, while Dominion Government notes now total $8,540,488.25, against $4,993,532.25 at the end of 1909, showing an increase for the both accounts of approximately $4,118,000.00.

As indicating the very important position the Royal Bank of Canada now holds among the leading banks of the country, its aggregate assets now stand at $92,510,340.95, as against $67,051,102.62 at the end of the previous year. Of this amount $52,471,208.98 are represented in current loans and discounts against $33,644,705.10 at the end of the previous year. This big increase in current loans has been rendered possible by the growth of deposits, these now totalling $72,097,007.27, as against $50,822,129.31 at the end of the previous year. Of this amount deposits bearing interest amount to $51,799,181.96 as against $33,456,828.85 at the end of the previous year, while deposits not bearing interest amount to $19,737,130.43 against $16,955,930.07 at the end of 1909. An issue of new stock made during the course of the year was responsible for a big increase, both in the paid up capital and in the reserve fund, the capital now standing at $6,200,000.00 against $5,000,000.00 at the end of 1909. The average paid up capital during the year, however, was only $5,200,000.00. The reserve fund made a big advance from $5,700,000.00 to $7,000,000.00, the sum of $1,200,000.00 of this increase being from premium on new stock, and $100,000.00 being transferred from profit and loss account.

While the statement is sure to be particularly satisfactory to the shareholders, it would seem only natural to infer that the Royal, with the tremendous assets it now has, will make still greater strides in the next few years than it has in the past.

DON'T BE ICY SAYS CARDINAL

There is nothing more repulsive or chilly than the human icebergs who go about the world chilling those about them with their cold, haughty demeanor. There are many icebergs in the family circles, but it should not be so. Let your hearts be glad and radiate joy among others. Be not, my dear friends, I beseech you again, icebergs, but be charitable and happy, and do not chill those among whom you move.—Cardinal Gibbons in sermon at Baltimore.

MAMMOTH PROJECT OF C.N.R. IS RUMORED AT OTTAWA

It Is Said That In View of Their Difficulty of Securing a Surface Entrance Into Montreal, Mackenzie and Mann Are Considering Digging a Huge Underground Route to the Heart of the City.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—Railway men in the city yesterday were discussing a mammoth scheme for entrance into the heart of Montreal by the C.N.R. It is stated as a fact that the Canadian Northern has now under contemplation a proposal to tunnel right through from the back of Mount Royal at Sault de Recollet, all the way below the mountain and down below the streets of the city to the Old Hope Coffee House on Craig street, where the terminus will be.

When doubts were expressed as to the feasibility of such a mammoth scheme, if only from the point of view of expense, it was stated that the C.N.R. had been unable to effect an entrance to Montreal on the level, and, even if they could do so, the expense would be so enormous as to make the vast project of tunnelling to the heart of the city comparatively inexpensive.

Senator Lodge Nominated.

Boston, Jan. 17.—United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was nominated at the Republican caucus yesterday for a fourth term by 125 out of 153 Republican members of the Legislature, or 16 less than a majority of the House and Senate on joint ballot. As the absentees were nearly all from the House, it is anticipated that the majority of the Senate's votes will be cast for Mr. Lodge to-day, but that the House will be deadlocked. Whether his deadlock will continue to the joint convention on Wednesday was a mattar of interesting conjecture last night. While it was generally admitted that should Mr. Lodge be returned, he would have to seek some Democratic support.

COMPANIES MAKE ARRANGEMENTS WITH HUNGARY

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 17.—An arrangement to regulate emigrant traffic to America and to do away with some of the abuses now existing, has been concluded between the Hungarian Government and the Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, Holland-American, Red Star and the French Line steamship companies.

The companies agree to close the private agencies maintained throughout the country, which have at times been charged with holding out spurious inducements to immigrants, and transact their business through the general offices at Budapest and the frontier stations. They also bind themselves to restrict the business of Hungary to Hungarians, thus shutting out large numbers of Russians and other Slavs who heretofore have utilized this route.

The steamship people further contract to undertake an arrangement with the Cunard Line, which is now carrying emigrants from Fiume, that will obviate the possibility of a rate war.

THE LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

New York, Jan. 17.—The Callan automobile law which provides that a person who runs down another with an automobile must stop and give his name and address, is unconstitutional, according to a ruling of Justice Crain made yesterday afternoon in dismissing the indictment against Edward T. Rosenheim, the young millionaire, who was charged with speeding away after he ran down and killed Miss Grace Hough on the night of Aug. 18 last. Rosenheim was tried and acquitted on a charge of murder, but was promptly indicted again under the Callan law.

In his opinion, Justic Crain declares that this law is in violation of an articles of the state constitution, commonly called the "Bill of Rights," which provides among other things "that no person shall be compelled to be a witness against himself in any criminal case."

GOES TO CENTRAL

Six Months for Henry Hall Who Stole Fur Coat

Another six months' sentence to Central Prison was registered at the police court this morning when Henry Hall, who last week pleaded guilty to stealing a fur coat from Barries, Limited, was given this punishment.

Hall took the coat, which was valued at $85, as it hung on exhibition outside the store. The police were notified and P. C. Newhall, made the arrest at Foster's Temperance House, where Hall boarded.

Chief Thompson had him remanded to jail, while another case of theft was investigated, but it has been found that the prisoner had nothing to do with it.

He had nothing to say this morning.

"A young man like you can earn a living without being a thief," said his Worship in giving judgment.

THIS ITEM IS SIGNIFICANT

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—The fact that $3,000,000 is being included in supplementary Government estimates for deepening the back river at Montreal, Rivere des Prairies and the French River, are taken to indicate that the Government has at length decided to go ahead with the Georgian Bay Canal. The works mentioned would all be of utility in any event, but they are also on the proposed route of the canal, and in that the significant part of it lies.

The Minister of Public Work yesterday admitted the matter was under advisement, but said there was nothing definite about it.

Judge Johnston Dead.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 17.—Judge Johnston, the senior judge of the district of Algoma, died here yesterday, aged 62. He was born in Goderich, studied in the law office of the late Judge Snider of Hamilton and practiced in Goderich for twenty years with John Davidson, Q.C. In 1890 he was made junior judge for Algoma. Previously he served in Goderich as alderman, reeve, and warden of Huron, and unsuccessfully contested the riding of Huron for the Provincial House in 1882.

INVALIDITY INSURANCE

New York, Jan. 17.—A special cable to The Tribune yesterday says: It is doubtful whether the British nation has yet recognized the vast importance of the Government's scheme of invalidity insurance. Before many weeks are over it is likely, says The Daily News, to be the chief subject of criticism and discussion through the country.

This is entirely separate from the system of old age pensions. Five shillings a week will still be granted on a non-contributory basis to qualified persons over the age of 70, and there will be no overlapping contributions to invalidity insurance, which will begin at an age not lower than 16 and not higher than 18.

Rebuilding Messina.

Messina, Jan. 17.—The rebuilding of Messina in durable masonry was inaugurated yesterday, when the corner-stone of the group of public buildings to be erected by the municipality was laid by Signor Sacchi, Minister of Public Works; Signor Ciufelli, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and other members of the Government.

Fire Loss at the Capital.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—The total loss by fire in the City of Ottawa during 1910, according to the annual report of Fire Chief Graham, issued yesterday morning, was $138,420, a decrease of $142,099 as compared with the year before.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—Dr. U. Richambault was elected mayor of Hull yesterday. He had a majority of 632 over his opponent, Ald. Bourque.

Electric Smelter Near Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—American and English capital has been interested in the establishment of an electric smelting plant at Chats' Falls, on the Ottawa River, about 20 miles west of Ottawa, and active work preparatory to the erection of the plant will begin early in the spring. The surrounding country on the Quebec side is rich in iron ore, the only difficulty being that of transportation. It is proposed to build an electric line from the falls to the mines. There is an enormous amount of water power awaiting development at Chats' Falls, and the spot is looked upon as almost ideal for electric smelting purposes.

BIT OFF TONGUE, DIED

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Slipping on the icy sidewalk on Bridge street, Hull, and in so doing biting about half an inch off the tip of his tongue, O. Beaudin, of Wellington st., Hull succumbed to the loss of blood on Sunday morning.

The deceased was walking along the street about seven o'clock on Saturday evening, when he suddenly slipped and fell, his knee striking his chin and severing half an inch from the end of his tongue. Those who witnessed the accident hurried the man home, where death ensued in a few hours.

The late Mr. Beaudin who was 32 years of age, was unmarried and lived with his father and mother on Wellington street. He was a carpenter by trade, while his father is employed in Booths' Mills. He is survived by his parents and two sisters. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning to Notre Dame Church and cemetery.

WILLIAM BUNTON DIED IN TORONTO THIS MORNING

Passing of Popular and Highly Respected G.T.R. Ticket Agent—Was 52 Years of Age—A Former President of Canadian Tickat Agents' Association.

William Bunton, for the past fourteen years Grand Trunk City Ticket Agent, died at three o'clock in Toronto this morning. The deceased was 52 years of age.

The public generally were aware of his critical condition, and although little hope was held out by the attending physicians, his death nevertless awakened genuine feelings of regret.

The late Wm. Bunton was born in Burlington, Ont. He came to Peterborough in 1884 and was employed as bookkeeper for the old Thos. Bradburn Company. He went west after this and was engaged in the banking business in St. Louis, Mo., for several years. He returned to Peterborough in 1893, and since then, with the exception of one year spent in Hastings buying grain, he has been engaged continuously as Grand Trunk passenger ticket agent.

During his railroad career he has always been highly esteemed by his fellow agents and was one of the most popular members of the Canadian Ticket Agents' Association. In 1906 he was elected President of the Association and was a member of the executive up to last year.

The deceased of late had not been enjoying good health, and about two weeks ago was compelled to take to his bed and was later taken to Toronto, where his death occurred.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock to the Burlington Centre cemetery.

BIGGER AND BETTER AT ROYAL THEATRE

The Bill of Fare for To-night's Special Show

For to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday the Royal Theatre has secured absolutely, the best vaudeville ever shown in this city. You will see some fourteen actual performers on the stage. They include Prof. W. Rand's Musical, Dramatic, Mental and Acrobatic Dogs. The act opens with a pantomime before the trainer enters the stage. Dogs that play musical instruments in perfect tune and time. The only dog that spells any word. Also Mlle Reno, the Queen of Magic. The vaudeville also includes Nebur and Cacum in their dramatical, musical play entitled "The Last Dollar." Such a cast costs big money, but the Royal must have the best, however. No extra charge made for admission.

The Royal has arranged for special orchestra music for Mr. Nebur's dramatic musical playlet, which is the most pretentious one of its kind on the Griffin Circuit, and in it is introduced high-class operatic work.

ARRESTS PENDING

Berlin, Jan. 17.—Detectives Boyd and Huber are back in Berlin working on the Lobinski murder case, and although they are close-mouthed there is a general belief that they are working on clues that will result in arrests. They investigated the story of a Baden man having got money from Lobinski after getting him drunk but no arrests was made.

In searching the two barns on the Lobinski property the police yesterday found cans containing silver coins, one can in the hayloft of each barn. The amount of silver totals about $80. After the post-mortem in Wellesley, it was decided to forward the stomach to Toronto for examination, also the bottle containing a fluid mixed with Paris green.

JOSEPH MARTIN HANDS ROAST

Winnipeg, Jan. 17.—Hon. Joseph Martin, M.P. for East St. Prancras, in the Imperial Parliament, said in an interview here yesterday.

"In my opinion, Mr. Asquith is the poorest Parliamentary leader imaginable, except Mr. Balfour. Five-sixths of the present Liberal party consists of Radicals, and we are shedding Whigs at every election. While Mr. Asquith remains leader, he is still further away from the Radical point of view than he is from Mr. Balfour."

A Copper In His Throat.

Kingston, Jan. 17.—Gerald Leakey of Gananoque swallowed a cent, which stuck in his throat, and notwithstanding the efforts of the medical men in that town, could not be extracted. He was brought to the General Hospital here and the X-rays put on his neck, while one of the staff used a pair of forceps and got a grip on the copper. After the money had been secured the boy was able to go home.

To Protect British Interests.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 17.—The British protected cruiser Brilliant sailed yesterday from this port on hurry orders for Honduras. The Brilliant only recently returned here from Honduras waters, but the latest reports regarding the seriousness of the revolt made the presence of a British warship necessary for the protection of British interests in that republic.

Prominent Labor Man Dead.

Galt, Jan. 17.—John Wilson dropped dead at two minutes to seven yesterday morning in the moulding shop of the Goldie & McCullough Co.'s south works. He was prominent in the moulders' union here, holding the office of treasurer at the time of his death, and was president for several years.

GOVERNMENT AND VERVILLE JUGGLE EIGHT HOUR BILL

By a Process of Amendments, Scope of Measure Is Steadily Cut Down—Bill Gets Its Second Reading and Pugsley Gets It Applied to Day Labor Jobs—Other Bills Are Dealt With.

Ottawa, Jan. 17—The eight-hour bill, introduced by Alphonse Verville (Maisonneuve) had another troublesome time in the committee stage in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King made several attempts to explain away the obvious change in the principle of the bill, brought about by the amendments suggested by Mr. Verville. Finally the Opposition succeeded in having the Minister of Labor declare himself as opposed to the original bill, although a moment before he had accused the attitude of the Opposition as being the cause of the amendment.

Mr. Borden, however, pointed out that when these accepted the principle of the bill on the second reading, the Prime Minister intimated that certain amendments would be brought down in the committee stage. The mover of the bill was unable to say how many resolutions had been received supporting either the original or amended measure, but Mr. King finally admitted that the Dominion Trades and Labor Council had expressed a preference for the original, rather than the amended bill.

The chief objection to the amendments, A. C. Macdonnel (S. Toronto) pointed out was that, by the introduction of a number of exceptions, the bill would accomplish no more, excepting the proposed penalty of $200, than could be done by order-in-council. The wording of the clause that no man would be "required" to work more than eight hours a day provided a loophole for contractors.

Hon. Mackenzie King thought that the clause was not binding, and asked if the clause was changed that a man should not be permitted to work more than eight hours, if it would prevent him, after that amount of time had been served, from taking up any other work.

A. S. Goodeve (Kootenay) declared that the Government should declare its intention with regard to the amendments, and ascertain the opinion of labor bodies and those interested.

In reply to Major Currie (N. Simcoe) as to who on the Government side was responsible for the bill, Sir Wilfrid turned the question by saying that Mr. Verville introduced his amendments in order to insure the passage of the measure through the House in a moderate form. He thought the bill, as first introduced, would not be acceptable to the Opposition.

Mr. Borden claimed that the bill was virtually a Government measure, although they did not want to be responsible for it. Amendments were promised at the time of the second reading, and the subsequent discussion indicated the Government was well aware of the nature of the amendment and restriction. He challenged the Government to withdraw the amendments, and test the opinion of the House on the first question.

Claude Macdonnel said it was difficult to say whether or not the bill was being simply put forward to secure a party advantage, with no serious objections behind it.

Mr. Lancaster declared the Minister of Labor and Mr. Verville were playing a game upon the House. After the House had unanimously committed itself to the bill, the Minister now said he was not in favor of the bill, for which he had voted on the second reading, and supported the amended bill, which cut the whole thing down to public buildings and not public works.

Mr. Goodeve remarked that the original bill had been approved by the labor unions, and they had no right to amend it without sending it back to the unions. Take as an example the insurance bill. In this case the companies had been asked for their opinion. He declared himself in favor of the original bill, as did Mr. Rhodes of Cumberland.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that no doubt the labor unions would prefer the original bill, but the free Canadian people were not composed of labor unions only.

Mr. Macdonnel argued that a contractor, by the bill, might refuse to employ men who would not work more than eight hours a day.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson favored the original bill, and was opposed to the amendments because they discriminated.

An amendment by Mr. Macdonnel to pay overtime, time and a half, and on Sundays and holidays double time, was voted down. Later, however, the payment of time and a half for overtime was submitted for time and a quarter, as in the bill.

Then Mr. Pugsley moved another amendment, making the bill apply to all public buildings undertaken by the Government by day labor. This was accepted, and the bill now stands for third reading.

The chief interest at the opening of the House yesterday was a motion by H. B. Ames of Montreal, for correspondence, etc., between the liquidators of the Charing Cross Bank and any member or official of the Government in respect to the affairs of Atlantic, Quebec and Western Railway, the Quebec Oriental Railway and the New Canadian Co., Ltd.

When the motion was reached, Sir Wilfrid said: "If my honorable friend (Mr. Ames) were present, I would tell him there was no such correspondence at all, but in his absence I will let the motion go."

The first bill to receive a third reading this session was H. H. Miller's bill to amend the Interest Act. It was allowed to pass the final stage without discussion.

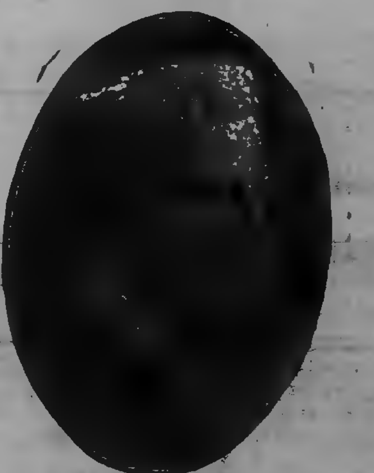
Second readings were given to several railway and other bills, which were referred to the various select committees for consideration. Amongst these was Major Beattie's bill respecting the McClary Manufacturing Co.

The great growth of the fisheries industry of the Canadian Maritime Provinces during the last forty years is shown by a return which was tabled in the Commons yesterday. The value of the catch by Canadian fishermen in 1909-10 was $11,887,899. In 1870 the total catch was $3,295,702. There has been less increase in the catch of cod than in any other class of fish. There is not very much more cod taken to-day than there was forty years ago.

In 1870, the catch was in detail: Cod, $2,258,993; haddock, hake and pollock, $97,077; halibut, $3,528; mackerel, $92,213; herring, $252,481; lobsters, $591,500. Total, $3,295,702.

In the twelve months of 1909-10 the catch was: Cod, $3,896,738; haddock, $829,553; hake, $338,244; pollock, $326,533; halibut, $155,161; mackerel, $948,071; herring, $1,037,453; lobsters, canned, $2,721,478; lobsters in shell, $935,668. Total, $11,887,899.

Lobsters were a poor catch last year. Oysters were not included in the return.



HON. WM. TEMPLEMAN.

TRADE TREATY MAY SOON BE ANNOUNCED

Washington, Jan. 17.—The trade negotiations between Canada and the United States are rapidly nearing a conclusion. They were advanced a further stage yesterday in a three-hour conference, attended by Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Paterson, Secretary of State Knox and their respective assistants. It is evident to observers that progress is being made toward an amicable arrangement; in fact, there is no doubt that events are shaping toward the early announcement of a treaty. The Cabinet meeting to-day will give the negotiators a day off and time to consult higher authorities, and another meeting will be held on Wednesday morning to receive reports and make up for lost time. The calling of a forenoon sitting indicates a desire to push the work as rapidly as possible, and it also shows that both sides have their way well cleared and know whither they are steering.

There is naturally anxiety on the part of the U. S. Cabinet to get the subject before Congress soon. The present session must close six weeks hence, on March 3, and there is a lot of business to be done before the Republicans lay down their control of the House of Representatives. A third of the Senators must also go, and the new members might do more bodily harm to President Taft's freer trade child than the reactionaries of his own party. The Senate devoted some time yesterday to discussing how they can finish all the business that remains. It developed that one whole week out of the six will be devoted to paying tributes to deceased Senators. There are six names entitled to this honor, and each one under the custom has a day set apart.

THE DUKE'S COMING

The official assurance that the Duke of Connaught will be the next Governor-General of Canada, will indeed be welcome news to Canadians generally. It marks a radical departure in imperialism, for this is the first time a prince of the royal blood has been called on to occupy a position representing the King in a colonial possession. Some of the newspapers of the Dominion have expressed the opinion that the appointment of a Royal Prince to the Governor-Generalship will interfere with Canadian ideas of democracy, but in the case of the Duke of Connaught these fears will not be well grounded. The Duke of Connaught as a military man, is a democrat of democrats himself, and there is no fear that he will as Governor-General transgress the limitations which custom and constitution have made for the nominal head of the Canadian Government.

At the same time, Canadians will do well, in their enthusiasm for the Duke, as a member of the Royal Family, to remember that he is to occupy his position only as the members of the English aristocracy, who have been Governor-Generals, have occupied it. With such a strict recognition of the duties and limitations of each side, there need be no fear that the Duke's tenure of office will result but pleasantly. Canadians, will not, we feel sure, do any "toadying" to His Royal Highness, but will treat him with respect and consideration such as his position both as Governor-General and as a Royal Prince, justify.

MARRIAGE SYSTEMS

How the French system of marriage works out offers a study to those who watch the result of haphazard mating. The French system differs so materially from the catch-as-catch-can American and Canadian system that one is bound to wonder, after consideration, whether our own methods are as good as they might be.

In France the young girl is kept in retirement, while her parents deliberate on the choice of her husband. He is introduced later on, and the parents of the two young people make the agreement; sign it, according to business agreement, and there the matter ends. That the parents will probably make fewer mistakes in choosing a mate for their son or daughter than blind, unreasoning youth, will be granted; but, of course, it is also true that there is far less opportunity for the heart to play a part in the affair.

The birth rate in France is very low—so low that the French Government has had to legislate to improve it. Whether this is a result from the loveless business marriages can only be surmised, although probably there is something in it. That the comparatively low standard of French morals, especially among married people, follows as a consequence of this system, also must be admitted. The freedom accorded to Canadian young men and women to unite for life with those to whom they take a fancy, whether it be passing or permanent, results in many sad mistakes which the counsels of parents might easily avoid. Young people are not always gifted with that insight into character, the discrimination which experience brings. They do not always sift good appearances from real character, and thus make mistakes which they regret for life.

The French system has some things to commend it. It does not provide for the scope of "la grande passion," but it saves many tragic mistakes. It settles the question of mating on a calm and business like basis. This cold blooded way of dealing with a question will never appeal to Canadians; but at the same time its merits must appeal to their reason.

The old saying that marriage is a lottery was never better exemplified than in Canada to-day. Yet the ordinary home life of Canadians, on the average, seems to be happy. The standard of morality is certainly very much higher than in France. The demand for divorce, the seeking after gayety after marriage is much less in Canada. In France a girl's real real life, the excitement of the social round, begins after she gets the gold band. If she meet her heart's ideal after—and what human being is free from this greatest of life's mystery—so much the worse for the husband. In Canada the girl gets sated with the social round while she is still free to pick and choose; and when she settles down with the man of her choice, she is much more content. On the whole, the results of the free and easy system seem to be more promising than the application of parental business principles.

Judge Robson has made his report on the segregation inquiry in Winnipeg and finds that Rev. Dr. Shearer's charges were all well founded, in part. He found that the police department had been knowingly permitting violations of the law, although Winnipeg did not "wallow in vice." The action which Winnipeg will take in the segregation matter will be watched with considerable interest.

An application has been made at Ottawa for a very ambitious canal charter. The company is called the Great Lakes and Atlantic Canal and Power Company, and it wants to construct a canal from Lake Huron to Lake Erie, from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, to deepen St. Lawrence channels, to construct a canal from Grenville to Ottawa, thence a channel in the Ottawa river to the St. Lawrence, below the island of Montreal. This is the most ambitious scheme yet proposed, and has the Georgian Bay scheme faded into air.

In his annual report Chief Thompson calls attention to the fact that the city police force is inadequate to the demands of a city of 18,000. A force of six men is rather small to patrol a city the size of Peterborough and is much less a number than most cities which are in the same class as Peterborough as regards population. The chief is asking for a considerable increase to the force, and for the efficient protection of the outlying districts, his requests are worth every consideration. While this city, fortunately, is free from much serious crime, it does not follow that police protection should be relaxed. The attention of the commissioners to this would be well placed consideration.

PETERBOROUGH AS A MARKET TOWN

Farmers living in the vicinity of Peterborough have been hard to complain that there is not a sufficient market for their produce in this city, and that those who send their stuff to Toronto or some other large centre obtain much better prices. They say that it is all right for those who produce some particular article in large quantities, such as those who make a specialty of eggs, or dressed poultry or butter, to send their produce away, but that on the mixed farm they do not produce sufficient of any one article to make this possible, and they are thus compelled to dispose of their produce in Peterborough.

We have taken the trouble to sift the matter a little bit, and we find that the very farmers who complain are doing absolutely nothing to make conditions better and, in fact, are doing considerable to make them worse. Many of them do a lot of shopping by mail, sending the cash away to Toronto or Montreal. They do not obtain any more for their money, quality being equal, and they do a lot of harm to themselves.

It would be very much better if those who are so positive in their complaints would co-operate with the residents of Peterborough in the endeavor to make this a better market. All that is necessary to accomplish this is to enable our merchants to increase their business. They would then increase their help and we would have a better and a busier town. That condition would attract outside capital and new enterprises and industries would follow in the natural order of events. As "nothing succeeds like success" the chain would be added to link by link.

The first step however, is for every farmer in the vicinity to realize that he has a personal and vital interest in the welfare of this city, just as much as any resident of the town itself, and the most reasonable way to show that interest is to confine his purchases, as far as possible, to the merchants of Peterborough.

Some of the townspeople also have been guilty of this fault of shopping by mail, but there is evidence of an awakening on this subject in our city, and most of the citizens are finding out by experience, if they have not previously found it out by the application of common sense, that it is neither profitable nor wise to send their cash to mail order houses. It is not profitable, because it costs the city stores more to do business than it costs our local merchants, and the prices are not as reasonable as those charged by local dealers for an equal quality of goods.

If it is not profitable, it is certainly not wise to purchase away from home, and there is the added reason that doing so is injurious to the town and every individual in the town.

And so we say to the farmer, be fair, be reasonable, be wise. Help us to build up our own city, and the benefit will be as much yours as ours. Your sons and daughters would not have to go to the cities and be subjected to all sorts of temptations, but could obtain employment at home, and both farmers and townspeople would have more opportunity to enjoy life. Peterborough would be a better market town and a better commercial and industrial centre. Again we say, "Do your shopping in Peterborough."

Suggests Uniform be Adopted

Peterborough, Jan. 17th

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—If I am not mistaken there is a resolution on the city books to the effect that inspectors of gas meters should wear uniforms. I should like to see this enforced.

How is the mistress of the house to know whether the man inspecting the meters is a servant of the gas company or a vandal unless he is in uniform? Owing to the liberties taken in other cities by "meter inspectors" at all but simply thieves and crooks who posed as employees of gas companies for the purpose of obtaining easy access to a house and lifting everything they could lay their hands on; it is no wonder that Peterborough householders are sometimes nervous and dubious when the meter inspector presents himself. The adoption of a standard uniform would do away with this. It would assure the lady of the house that the inspector was a bona fide officer of the company and would therefore also facilitate his work from his own standpoint.

Yours truly,
CONSUMER.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Higher Prices at East Buffalo—Hogs Active and Easier.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—London cattle market lower for American cattle, 13¼c to 14c, dressed weight; refrigerator beef easier, at 10¼c. Liverpool cattle, 10c to 11c, in addition to offal.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 82 carloads, consisting of 1579 cattle, 91 hogs, 1220 sheep and lambs and 13 calves.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought for Swift & Co.: 130 steers for export, 1200 lbs. each, at an average of $6.15 per cwt., or a range of prices of $6 to $6.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers sold at from $6 to $6.30, the highest point yet reached this season. Loads of good, $5.80 to $5.85; medium, $5.35 to $5.60; common, $4.90 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $5.10; canners, $2.50 to $2.75; bulls, $4 to $5.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Only a limited number of milkers and springers were on sale, and there were none of the "topper" class amongst them; consequently prices cannot be quoted as high. Prices ranged at from $40 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves were both scarce and dear. Prices ranged at from $3 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of 1229 sheep and lambs were on sale, and the wants of the trade having been comparatively well satisfied last week, prices were easier.

Wesley Dunn, who was the heaviest operator, reports prices as follows: Sheep, ewes, $4.25 to $4.75; rams, $3 to $3.50; lambs, $6 to $6.20; but one lot of about 200 sold at $6.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Select hogs, fed and watered at the market, are still $7.60 per cwt., and $7.25 to drovers for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 14 were 2000 cattle, 1860 sheep and lambs, 2200 hogs and 175 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 1250 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 100 calves.

In spite of the very cold weather which has prevailed thruout the country, the supply of cattle on the market this morning was much larger than a week ago, and in consequence a weaker feeling developed, which resulted in prices declining ¼c to ½c per lb., notwithstanding the fact that the quality of the stock was generally up to the standard. The gathering of buyers was fairly large, and, as they all wanted some beef, there was a good demand at the reduction, and an active trade was done. The top prices realised a week ago to-day for choice steers were 6¾c to 7c, which to-day sold at 6¼c to 6½c, with good at 5¾c to 6c, fairly good at 5¼c to 5½c, fair at 4¾c to 5c, and the lower grades at 4c to 4½c per lb. There were a number of good bulls offered, which brought from 5¼c to 5¾c, and the commoner grades sold at from that down to 4c per pound, while cows realised from 4c to 5½c per pound, as to quality.

The market for hogs was weaker, and prices, as compared with those paid last Wednesday, show a decline of 25c to 50c per 100 lbs., which was due to increased supplies; in fact, they were in excess of the requirements, as packers in some cases had more offered to them than they wanted. During the early part of the morning the demand was good and quite an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.10 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, but later trade became quiet, and drovers in some cases found it difficult in making sales.

Owing to the increased receipts of sheep and lambs, a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices for the former declined ¼c per lb., and the latter 10c to 25c per 100 lbs., and even at this reduction the demand was rather limited, as butchers generally are well supplied with stock which they bought some time ago, and put away in cold storage; consequently, drovers found it difficult in making sales, and the trade on the whole was slow. Sheep sold at 4c to 4½c per lb., and lambs at $6 to $6.40 per 100 lbs. The demand for calves was fair at prices ranging from $2 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 14 were 850 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 150 calves. The offerings on the market this morning consisted of 800 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 250 hogs and 50 calves.

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

His eyes roved over the craft, but all he saw were a uniformed officer upon the bridge and the bronzed faces of the watch staring over the rail. He saw close drawn curtains over the cabin windows, indicating that the passengers were still asleep. Then as he stood there heavy hearted, drooping with fatigue, his wet body chilled by the morning's breath, the Grande Dame glided past, and he found the shell beneath his feet rocking in her wake.

George Balt hailed him and brought his own launch alongside.

"What craft is that?" he inquired.

"She is the company's yacht with the N. A. P. A. officers aboard."

"Some of our boys is hurt pretty bad," he observed. "I've told them to take in their nets and go back to the plant."

"We all need breakfast."

"I don't want nothing. I'm going over to the trap."

Emerson shrugged his shoulders listlessly; he was very tired. "What is the use? It won't pay us to lift it."

"I've watched that point of land for five years, and I never seen fish act this way before," Balt growled stubbornly. "If they don't strike in today we better close down. Marsh's men cut half our nets and crippled more than half our crew last night." He began to rumble curses. "Say, we made a mistake the other day, didn't we? We'd ought to have put that feller away. It ain't too late yet."

"Wait. Wayne Wayland is aboard that yacht. I know him. He's a hard man, and I've heard strange stories about him, but I don't believe he knows all that Marsh has been doing. I'm going to see him and tell him everything."

"S'pose he turns you down?"

"Then there will be time enough to—to consider what you suggest. I don't like to think about it."

"You don't have to," said Balt, lowering his voice so that the helmsmen could not hear. "I've been thinking it over all night, and it looks like I'd ought to do it myself. Marsh is coming to me anyhow, and—I'm older than you be. It ain't right for a young feller like you to take a chance. If they get me you can run the business alone."

Boyd laid his hand on his companion's shoulder.

"No," he said. "Perhaps I wouldn't stick at murder—I don't know. But I won't profit by another man's crime, and if it comes to that I'll take my share of the risk and the guilt. Whatever you do, I stand with you. But we'll hope for better things. It's no easy thing for me to go to Mr. Wayland asking a favor. You see, his daughter is— Well, I—I want to see her very badly."

Balt eyed him shrewdly.

"I see! And that makes it dead wrong for you to take a hand. If it's necessary to get Marsh I'll do it alone. With him out of the way I think you can make a go of it. He's like a rattler—somebody's got to stomp on him. Now I'm off for the trap. Let me know what the old man says."

Boyd returned to the cannery with the old mood of self disgust and bitterness heavy upon him. He realized that George's offer to commit murder had not shocked him as much as upon its first mention. He knew that he had thought of shedding human blood with as little compunction as if the intended victim had been some noxious animal. He felt, indeed, that if his love for Mildred made him a criminal she, too, would be soiled by his dishonor, and for her sake he shrank from the idea of violence, yet he lacked the energy at that time to put it from him. Well, he would go to her father, humble himself and beg for protection. If he failed then Marsh must look out for himself. He could not find it in his heart to spare his enemy.

At the plant he found Alton Clyde tremendously excited at the arrival of the yacht and eager to visit his friends. He sent him to the launch and after a hasty breakfast joined him.

On their way out Boyd felt a return of that misgiving which had mastered him on his first meeting with Mildred in Chicago. For the second time he was bringing her failure instead of the promised victory.

Willis Marsh was ahead of him, standing with Mr. Wayland at the rail. Some one else was with them. Boyd's heart leaped wildly as he recognized her. He would have known that slim figure anywhere. And Mildred saw him, too, pointing him out to her companions.

With knees shaking under him he came stumbling up the landing ladder, a tall, gaunt figure of a man in rough clothing and boots stained with the sea salt. He looked older by five years than when the girl had last seen him. His cheeks were hollowed and his lips cracked by the wind, but his eyes were aflame with the old light. His smile was for her alone.

He never remembered the spoken greetings nor the looks the others gave him, for her soft, cool hands lay in his hard, feverish palms, and she was smiling up at him.

Alton Clyde was at his heels, and he felt Mildred disengage her hand. He tore his eyes away from her face long enough to nod at Marsh, who gave him a menacing look, then turned to Wayne Wayland. The old man was saying something, and Boyd answered him unintelligibly, after which he took Mildred's hands once more with such an air of unconscious proprietorship that Willis Marsh grew pale to the lips and turned his back. Other people whom Boyd had not noticed until now came down the deck—men and women with fieldglasses and cameras swung over their shoulders. He found that he was being introduced to them by Mildred, whose voice betrayed no tremor and whose manners were as collected as if this were her own drawing room and the man at her side a casual acquaintance. The strangers mingled with the little group, leveled their glasses and made senseless remarks after the manner of tourists the world over. Boyd gathered somehow that they were officers of the trust or heavy stockholders and their wives. He led Mildred to a deck chair and seated himself beside her.

"At last!" he breathed. "You are here, Mildred. You really came, after all?"

"Yes, Boyd."

"And are you glad?"

"Indeed I am. The trip has been wonderful."

"It doesn't seem possible. I can't believe that this is really you—that I am not dreaming, as usual."

"And you? How have you been?"

"I've been well—I guess I have. I haven't had time to think of myself. Oh, my lady!" His voice broke with tenderness, and he laid his hand gently upon hers.

She withdrew it quickly.

"Not here! Remember where we are. You are not looking well, Boyd. I don't know that I ever saw you look so bad. Perhaps it is your clothes."

"I am tired," he confessed, feeling anew the weariness of the past twenty-four hours. He covertly stroked a fold of her dress, murmuring: "You are here, after all. And you love me, Mildred? You haven't changed, have you?"

"Not at all. Have you?"

His deep breath and the light that flamed into his face was her answer. "I want to be alone with you," he cried huskily. "My arms ache for you. Come away from here; this is torture. I'm like a man dying of thirst."

No woman could have beheld his burning eagerness without an answering thrill, and, although Mildred sat motionless, her lids drooped slightly and a faint color tinged her cheeks. Her idle hands clasped themselves rigidly.

"You are always the same," she smiled. "You sweep me away from myself and from everything. I have never seen any one like you. There are people everywhere. Father is somewhere close by."

"I don't care"—

"I do."

"My launch is alongside. Let me take you ashore and show you what I have done. I want you to see."

"I can't. I promised to go ashore with the Berrys and Mr. Marsh."

"Marsh!"

"Now don't get tragic! We are all going to look over his plant and have lunch there. They are expecting me. Oh, dear!" she cried plaintively. "I have seen and heard nothing but canneries ever since we left Vancouver. The men talk nothing but fish and packs and markets and dividends. It's all deadly stupid, and I'm wretchedly tired of it. Father is the worst of the lot, of course."

Emerson's eyes shifted to his own cannery. "You haven't seen mine—ours," said he.

"Oh, yes, I have. Mr. Marsh pointed it out to father and me. It looks just like all the others." There was an instant's pause before she ran on. "Do you know, there is only one interesting feature about them, to my notion, and that is the way the Chinamen smoke. Those funny crooked pipes and those little wads of tobacco are too ridiculous." The lightness of her words damped his ardor and brought back the sense of failure.

"I was down with the fishing fleet at the mouth of the bay this morning when you came in. I thought I might see you," he said.

"At that hour? Heavens! I was sound asleep. It was hard enough to get up when we were called. Father might have instructed the captain not to steam so fast."

Boyd stared at her in hurt surprise, but she was smiling at Alton Clyde in the distance and did not observe his look.

"Don't you care even to hear what I have done?" he inquired.

"Of course," said Mildred, bringing her eyes back to him.

Hesitatingly he told her of his disappointments, the obstacles he had met and overcome, avoiding Marsh's name and refraining from placing the blame where it belonged. When he had concluded she shook her head.

TRAVERS GETS 6 YEARS

And Dr. Beattie Nesbitt Is a Fugitive From Justice.

Two More Warrants and Four Summonses Have Been Issued in Toronto Charging Implication in the Failure of the Farmers' Bank—Detectives Are In Pursuit of Dr Nesbitt.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Further charges arising out of the wreck of the Farmers' Bank and the confession of guilt of its former vice-president and general manager, W. R. Travers, who was yesterday sentenced to serve six years in Kingston Penitentiary, are coming with a rush. The financial structure of that institution is tumbling like a house of cards. Yesterday four additional charges were laid adding to the number which has not yet been made public. These are in addition to the warrant issued yesterday, charging Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, former president of the bank, with signing false returns to the Government. Two other men not named are said to be wanted by the police.

Summonses have been issued calling upon the four surviving members of the provisional board of directors to appear in the police court on Friday morning to answer to the charge of conspiring to obtain from the funds of the Farmers' Bank in 1906, the sum of $10,000, which sum, taken from the coffers of the then still to be born bank, is alleged to have been divided between them and the fifth member of the board, Gallagher, since deceased.

These summonses will be served today upon the following gentlemen:

Dr. John Ferguson, 284 College street, Toronto; Alex. Fraser, provincial archivist, "Kinerns," 67 Woodlawn avenue, Toronto; A. [illegible] Lown barrister-at-law, 175 Wallace avenue Toronto; John Watson, Listowel, Ont. ex-mayor of that town.

It is alleged that these men, on one occasion, voted to themselves $2,500 each out of the funds of the bank then in process of formation, and that Travers was forced to go out and supply the shortage in the $250,000 cash fund which was necessary to secure the charter for the bank at Ottawa, and that this was done, and other and further shortages made up by the hypothecation of notes turned in for subscriptions for bank stock, which went to make up the $500,000 in subscriptions for stock also necessary for the granting of the bank's charter.

It is said that this and other shortages then made in the fund was the initial burden laid upon Travers' shoulders, the struggle to cover up which led him further and further into the network of criminal acts which fairly led to his open downfall and disgrace.

The Bank Act provides that no one may deal with the funds of a bank in process of formation, and that not even the directors may dispense these funds until after the granting of the charter.

Fugitive from justice on at least one criminal charge bearing directly upon the wrecking of the Farmers' Bank is one more role added to the picturesque career of Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt. He is wanted by the police upon a warrant charging him with, while president of the bank, signing false returns to the Government at Ottawa, which he, when he signed them, knew to be false. The genial doctor, used to the last word in luxury, has fled the country after spending the time since the suspension of the bank in seclusion in the wilds of Muskoka, whence he fled Saturday last, just 24 hours before Inspector of Detective Duncan came upon his hide armed with the warrant for his arrest.

This warrant and probably others charging the doctor with still further offences was sworn out by Inspector Duncan Saturday noon upon information supplied by Travers and after the conference at the bank offices Saturday morning.

The bolt has fallen upon W. R. Travers. Yesterday morning before a record crowd in the dingy police court, Police Magistrate Denison sentenced him to serve six years in Kingston Penitentiary in three terms of six, six and five years each, the sentences to run concurrently. Travers took his medicine gamely, but showed in lessened flesh and color the strain that has been upon him.

After sentence he remarked, "I am very well pleased. I did not expect a day less than ten years." He was brought up from the jail in a street car by Detective Newton and waited in the detective office until he appeared for sentence. He was kept there afterwards until six o'clock, when he was sent back to jail to await removal to Kingston. It is understood that this will not be for some days, as he will be kept here to give assistance to the curator in further unravelling the bank's affairs and to the police in their prosecution of further alleged offenders and in their search for the fugitives for whom warrants are now held or may be issued.

Urge Investigation.

Kerwood, Ont., Jan. 17.—Creditors of the Farmers' Bank packed Cuttick Hall to the doors Saturday night at a meeting called to consider the situation, and a series of resolutions were passed, including one setting forth that "in view of the statements made by counsel for Mr. Travers in Toronto police court on Friday, we would respectfully urge the Attorney-General of this province to continue the investigation of the bank's affairs, in order that the associates of the general manager in the looting of this bank may be brought to justice.

Will Make Formal Demand.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—A formal demand for an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the organisation, operations, and failure of the Farmers' Bank of Canada will be made in the course of a few days by Major Sam Sharpe of North Ontario.

The exact form which such an investigation should take will only be decided upon after a conference of the M.P.'s whose constituents are most seriously affected, but at present it is felt that the best mode would be by means of a royal commission, which would probe the matter to the bottom, irrespective of the party politics of any of those connected with the bank from its inception to its failure.

Will Be Represented.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 17.—Both the Embro and the Burgessville districts, where the bulk of the Oxford stock is held in the defunct Farmers' Bank, will be represented at the meeting of creditors in Toronto to-day. In Embro and West Zorra no meeting of shareholders and depositors has been held, but a number of those interested will go down on their own account.

Four Points Urged.

St. Thomas, Jan. 17.—Rev. George Gilmore, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Fingal, who has been appointed to represent the depositors and stockholders of the defunct Farmers' Bank from this section, at the meeting in Toronto on Tuesday, will press for investigation and prosecution of the guilty.

General Ferdinand C. Latrobe, seven times Mayor of Baltimore, died at his home from pneumonia.

The "House Fly."

The reminiscent man suddenly found a gap in the conversation.

"I was in Kansas once," he began, "when one of those old time cyclones struck the town. I happened to be in my brother's house at the moment and heard the roar of the coming wind. I knew enough to run out in the street and lie down in the gutter with my arms clasped around a hitching post. The next moment the cyclone hit the town. Say, you ought to have seen the house fly."

"Did you swat it?" inquired the mean man on the soap box.

And the story promptly ended.—Denver News.

Proving His Contention.

"Jones is an optimist, even in the most discouraging circumstances, isn't he?"

"Why, no. His mother-in-law is slightly indisposed, and he thinks there's no hope for her recovery."

"Well, what did I tell you?"—Cleveland Leader.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

PACKED HOUSE AT THE GRAND

The Murray-Mackey Company a Strong Organization gave Excellent Performance — Dangers of a Great City Bill To-night

A packed house greeted the initial performance of the Murray-Mackey Stock Company, at the Grand, last night, and the members displayed exceptional ability in the presentation of "Beyond Pardon."

Florence Murray and J. M. Donavin in the leading roles, were strong in their respective parts and the support was excellent at all times. The performance was given with a dash and vim—that was pleasing throughout and permitted of no long tiresome stages.

The settings, particularly those of the second act, showing Lionel Rydall's studio, were never surpassed by a popular priced stock company, playing an engagement at the Grand.

The specialties were all good, the singing and effects in the illustrated song "Just Some One." making a big hit. Harry B Sherman, character impersonator, won favor with "Sweet Italian Love" and Smith and Smith and Towle in their comedy musical work caught the house.

The Company is here for one week giving a matinee on Wednesday and Saturday. The play to-night is "Dangers of a great City."

LIBRARY BOARD WANT THOUSAND DOLLAR GRANT

Money Required to Purchase New Books—$28871.44 Spent on Library to Date

A deputation from the Public Library Board consisting of E. H. D. Hall, chairman of the Library Board; D. Walker, chairman of the Library Committee, and T. F. Matthews, waiton the City Property Committee last night and asked the committee for $1,000 towards the replenishing of the the book shelves of the library.

Mr Walker was spokesman and called attention to the fact that many volumes at the old library were useless for library purposes owing to missing leaves and other mutilations. He quoted statistics to show that Peterborough compared unfavorably with other towns its size in the matter of the number and comprehensiveness of books in circulation. It would be necessary to purchase many books of reference and to replace hundreds of volumes that were worn out.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Bradburn, it was decided to recommend to the Council that the grant be made. It will not come out of the Finance Committee's appropriation, and will therefore have no effect on the tax rate, but will be granted from the funds on hand as a result of the sale of the former Nicholl's building, which is now St. Alphonse's Lyceum.

Mayor Morrow said a statement submitted by the city treasurer showed that $28,871.44 had been spent on the library to date.

DESTRUCTIVE LITTLE BLAZE AT ROLLER RINK

Fire Smouldered for Some Time Before Noticed

Fire broke out this morning about nine o'clock in the Auditorium Roller Rink. Before it was controlled a considerable portion of the wood-work behind the stove where the fire started had been burned, also a large area of flooring.

The heat from the stove at the north end of the rink ignited the wood work, which must have been smouldering some time, as the caretaker did not notice it until about six o'clock. He had been there about six o'clock and did not notice it then.

An alarm from box 18 was sent in and considerable water was necessary to extinguish the blaze. The damage will be considerable.

ANNEX CUSTOMERS NOTICE

An unaccountable error has occurred in the Red Dodger, which we wish to correct. The Big Factory Cotton Leader at 10½c, and the Embroideries at 9½c, have had the headings mixed and this gives the reader the idea that Factory Cotton is 9½c and Embroideries 10½c. The opposite of this is intended and should read: Factory Cotton 10½c and New Spring Embroideries 9½c.

HALLOWE'EN MERRYMAKERS WENT TOO FAR LAST YEAR

And a Plan of Adequate Police Protection Will be Adopted by Police Board—Applicant for Position on the Force—Police Commission Wants to Handle Its Own Finances.

The Police Commission met yesterday afternoon with Judge Huycke presiding. Commissioners Dumble and Morrow were present also was Chief Thompson.

EXPENSIVE PRANKS

A report from the City engineer, concerning vandalism on Hallowe'en, was read. The tearing up of sidewalks etc., has been carried on last Hallowe'en to a greater extent than ever before, and the city had been put to a great expense.

Chief Thompson thought a couple of constables in buggies would make an excellent patrol for Hallowe'en.

The matter was left in the hands of Chief Thompson and Judge Huycke the chairman, who will try to provide adequate police protection for next Hallowe'en.

S. Heinburg, applied for a license to open a second hand shop at Simcoe Street. The chief of police had investigated Heinburg's character and examined his premises. He recommended that the license be given and it was granted by the Board.

WANTS TO JOIN FORCE

John Brown, 641 Reid Street, applied for a position on the Police force. He is five feet ten inches in height, a teetotaler and non-smoker, and is 27 years of age. The application will be dealt with later.

Police Magistrate Dumble suggested the consolidation of the local bylaws for the benefit of the police force. This suggestion will be referred to the Council.

Magistrate Dumble asked the chief if he had done anything with regard to coasting. The chief replied that he had stopped it wherever possible.

BOARD WANTS TO FINANCE ITSELF

The chief called attention to the custom in other cities of the Police Commission looking after its own finances, instead of having the accounts handled by the Finance Committee of the Council, as they are in Peterboro.

On motion of Messrs Dumble and Morrow, the secretary of the Board, was instructed to write to the Council and ask that body, to authorize the city treasurer to pay the accounts of the Police Commission upon the instruction of the Commission.

The chief recommended the appointment of a Sergeant and plain clothes men at the earliest time possible.

NO CARETAKER WAS CHOSEN

E. Hickey asked the Property Committee last night that he be given permission to pile stone on the vacant lot on the corner of Stewart and Murray streets. No action was taken on the request as the city wants to clean up the lot.

Tenders were opened for the position of caretaker of the Isolation Hospital. Two tenders were submitted after the date limit, December 27th, were rejected. Several applicants didn't state what salary they would expect and their tenders were not considered.

The matter was left with the chairman for future consideration. He will report back to the committee.

FUNERAL OF LATE GEO. FITZGERALD

The funeral of the late George W. Fitzgerald will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, 174 London street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Service will be held at the house, commencing at two o'clock. Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray street church, will officiate.

PETERBOROUGH FORCE NEEDS FOUR MORE CONSTABLES

Is the Opinion of Chief of Police Thompson—His Annual Report Shows Decrease in Crime — Suggestion That Police Department be Relieved of Sanitary Inspection

At the meeting of the Police Commission yesterday afternoon Chief of Police Thompson presented his annual report for the year ending December 31st, 1910, as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Police Commissioners of the City of Peterborough, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to submit for your consideration and information my annual report of the Police Department of the City of Peterborough for 1910.

I regret very much to report that we have on our calendar for the past year, one of the most serious charges known in the laws of our country, that of murder.

However, apart from the above mentioned charge, it is very gratifying to report that crime is on the decrease. We had, during the month of August, a number of shops and stores broken into, and I am pleased to say that we have to our credit the conviction of the offender, who was sent to Kingston Penitentiary for seven years.

I also take this opportunity of complimenting and thanking the citizens of Peterborough for the kind assistance they have given the Police Department at all times during the year.

I also desire to thank the Board personally for the courtesy that they have shown me personally since I have taken charge of the Department.

It is also desired by your Chief to thank Chief Howard and his associates on the Peterborough Fire Department for their willingness to assist the police at any time.

The number of cases summoned or apprehended during the year were 460 as against 519 in 1909.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

During the year a number of juveniles, their ages ranging from nine to fourteen years, were brought before the magistrate for different offences, mostly of a petty nature, and were reprimanded and allowed to go. No entries were made on the police court record against them.

The total amount of fines and costs in connection with the police court for the year 1910 and paid over to the city treasurer, was $1,221.50.

STOLEN PROPERTY.

During the year there was reported to the police as stolen, property valued at $3,508.50 by the owners, and of this amount there was recovered by the police and returned to the owners, property to the value of $787.59.

LOST PROPERTY.

Property valued at $672.82 was reported lost, and afterwards found and returned to the owners by the police department, property valued at $656.82.

LODGERS.

During the year 150 persons were given lodging and shelter in the police cells and those who were considered deserving were provided with food.

VISITS MADE TO RESIDENCES WHOSE OCCUPANTS WERE AB-SENT FROM THE CITY.

During the warm season from July to September the police visited the homes of residents absent from the city, twice every night during the temporary absence of the owners or occupants. The above houses were under our care, and I am pleased to say that none of them were entered or anything stolen therefrom.

FIRES

The police attended fires to the number of 16 during the year.

LOST CHILDREN.

During the year 45 children who had strayed from their homes or parents, were cared for by the police department until their parents could be located and notified.

SANITARY INSPECTION.

The number of houses placarded for contagious diseases were—Diphtheria 2, scarlet fever 32. Total, 34.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The time has come when reasonable police protection must be given to our citizens and manufacturers, and the increasing population during the last few years, demands this.

The area of Peterborough is 2,807 3-4 acres, being two miles wide and two and three-quarters miles long. It is nearly half the size of London, Hamilton or Ottawa, and there are only five police constables here. There are streets in our city with thousands of people living on them, with valuable property, unpatrolled. Life is the most important thing; property comes next. In the event of fire, particularly at night, there should be police patrolling the above mentioned places to send in alarms to the fire department. This is only one of their numerous duties, and while Peterborough has been very fortunate so far as to serious fires, still it is always the unexpected that happens. We feel quite safe having such an efficient fire department, and at its head Chief Howard, who is a very able officer, but the police department has its responsibilities in the security of life and property.

I think that the above mentioned reasons are sufficient to warrant the increase that I am about to recommend, without taking into consideration the fact that the number of our police is far below the average, and as it is an established fact that a police officer in a district has a telling effect in the preventing of crime.

I therefore strongly recommend that a substantial increase be made to the force this year, viz., four men.

It is customary in other cities to reckon police officers' pay by the day. As you are aware the men work every

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

Mr. Richard Hall, chairman, then made the following remarks—

Gentlemen of the Board,—I am glad to again congratulate you on the successful year just terminated at the hospital.

In all departments the number treated has exceeded former years and the general satisfaction expressed by patients speaks well for the efficient conduct of the institution.

The lady superintendent, the assistant superintendent, nurses and medical staff are deserving of every praise for their excellent services and the kindly consideration of the sick placed in their care.

Considerable improvements have been carried out during the year, all with the object of making the wards attractive and homelike, and adding to the comfort of the patients.

The operating room has been remodelled and should be of greater service by reason of the improvements.

I have to record, with regret, the death of Mr. James Stevenson, a member of this Board for many years, and who gave of the best years of his life to the interest of the hospital.

I thank you for your continued interest in the work, and trust that the hospital may continue to grow in usefulness and popularity.

MAYOR CONGRATULATES BOARD

His Worship, the Mayor, addressed the Board and congratulated them upon the splendid statement presented and the excellent financial position of the hospital, which should be very gratifying to the citizens of Peterboro. He thought it was somewhat unique that a city should be endowed with such a splendid institution reaching upwards of 600 patients in the year, such a large number paying nothing and this without one cent of expense to the rate-payers. It is a standing monument to the late Mrs. Nicholls.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Madill, the efficient chairman of the Supervision Committee for his labors during the past year. A considerable number of improvements have been carried out under his supervision and the Board desire to recognize his faithful services.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows:

Chairman — Richard Hall, Esq.
Hon. Secretary — W. H. Hill, Esq.

A Nominating Committee was then appointed to strike the standing Committees for the year and reported as follows:

PAST YEAR A GOOD ONE AND 1911 LOOKS BETTER FOR 57TH REGIMENTAL BAND

Exactly forty members of the 57th Regimental Band attended the annual meeting which was held last night in the band hall, and it was without the slightest doubt the most enthusiastic meeting of the organization that has taken place in recent years.

The treasurer's report showed a most gratifying state of affairs. The gross receipts for 1910 amounted to nearly $4,000, and the balance on hand after the payment of all expenses is $843.

The prospects for the coming season are exceptionally bright, not only with regard to the band's prospective earnings, but also in the matter of its efficiency in a musical sense, a round dozen of new men with experience (recent arrivals in the city) being available for service. So the band this year will have the unique experience of being able to select its instrumentalists, instead of, as in past years, accepting members without reference to their ability.

TWO OLD MEMBERS RETIRE

Mr. Rupert Gliddon, the able conductor of the band, was re-engaged for the year at a salary of $600. A vote of thanks was tendered him for his splendid services during the past year.

It is a matter of regret to announce the retirement from the band of Messrs. Beach and Chambers, snare and bass drummers respectively, for 20 and 23 years. Their resignation was necessary owing to their connection with local theatres. Both Mr. Beach and Mr. Chambers were made honorary life members of the band, and a vote of thanks was extended them for their valuable services in the past.

Seven new members were received into the active membership of the band.

THE OFFICERS

The election of officers resulted as follows—

President—E. Cronk.
Vice-President—Angus McPherson.
Secretary—J. Harper.
Treasurer—R. Sheldon.
Executive Committee — R. Mein, chairman, O. Westbrook, F. C. Miller, C. Wesley and J. Beyette.

Ass't Librarians—Messrs. Miles and Hanrahan.

BELLEVILLE DEFAULTS BOTH GAMES TO LOCALS

R. M. Glover, secretary of the Peterborough Hockey Club, received a telegram to-day from the secretary of the Belleville club, stating that the intermediate team would default both games to the local club.

The Belleville intermediates were defeated in Cobourg last night 6—2, the contest being very strenuous in spots. Harry Sproule refereed and is in the city to-day reporting the ice races for the Toronto Star.

As a result of the action of the Belleville club the standing of the district is:

	W.	L.	Goals For.	Goals Against.
Trenton	2	0	25	10
Peterboro ...	3	1	13	25
Cobourg	1	2	17	21
Belleville ...	1	4	18	17

The next intermediate game here will be with Trenton on Tuesday, Jan. 24th. Cobourg goes to Trenton this Friday night and a win for the lakeshore seven would help Peterborough a whole lot.

FURIOSO BEATEN IN SIX HEAT RACE

Five Heats in 2.35 Class—Great Racing on Opening Day of Peterborough Ice Races — The Horses Stepped in Fast Time.

The first day of the Peterborough ice races yesterday afternoon afforded unusually keen sport and in spite of the fact that the mercury hovered below the zero mark the crowd was so interested that it hung on tenaciously to watch the exciting drivers and the spirited finishes.

Every heat saw a hard fight, the horses finished in a bunch every time and the winners stepped under the wire with no more to spare than the law allows.

2.18 A GREAT RACE

The 2.18 pace was especially interesting. It took six heats to decide the winner, Berlin Belle being finally returned for first money.

The celebrated Furioso shaped up like a winner in the early stages taking the first two heats. However, he was booked for his Waterloo and 4, 3 and 4 was the best he could do in the last three heats. He had to be satisfied with third money as Harry Mac captured the third heat and thus secured himself for second place.

LIVELY STEPPING.

The 2.35 class was also marked by sensational racing. Tom Tariff's stock advanced with each heat and he took the last three and the race.

The results given below will show excellent time was made:

STOP THE ROUGH WORK

The practice of using hockey stick, for purposes other than handling the puck, in local leagues, the games of which are played at Brock Street rink is becoming too prevalent and the situation calls for a firm hand.

It is not too much to say that some player or players will receive permanent if not fatal injuries, if these rough house tactics are allowed to continue.

There are cases where the spectators are to a large extent to blame. They call on the players to lay on the gad and a response on the part of the excited hockeyists comes quickly. It is not fair to the members of the teams who can play hockey, and who go on the ice for that purpose. If those in charge at the rink are not equal to the occasion, the police should be notified, and an example made.

PILLPOUNDERS WON OUT 6-1

Defeated Lock Works Septet, in Mercantile League Game

In a Mercantile League game at Brock Street rink last night, the Pill Pounders won from the Lock Works seven with a 6-1 score, the lock men taking their counter in the closing spasms of the contest.

While good hockey was played at times, there was too great an inclination at mixing, with the result that several of the players were fit candidates for a sojourn under the quilts, and a liberal treatment with Zam-Buk.

Fred. Heaslip handled the bell and had to work overtime in an endeavor to control the two teams. The line-up of which follows:

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

PETERBOROUGH FORCE NEEDS MORE CONSTABLES

day in the year, Sunday included. The highest paid men on our force to-day are receiving $700.00 per annum, which is equal to about $1.92 per day. The lowest paid men are receiving $600.00 per annum, which is equal to about $1.64 1-2 per day.

I would ask the board to consider the advisability of striking a scale of salaries for the department, viz., first, second and third class pay, and would recommend that the men receive an increase of ten cents per day.

I trust that your board will urge upon the council the necessity of going on with the work of remodelling the police station and police court room as early in the spring as possible, as it is at present in a deplorable condition, most uncomfortable, unsanitary and unfit for use.

I would also recommend that the police department be relieved of the duties of sanitary inspection. This work occupies the attention of one constable for at least three months in the year, and then the work is not thoroughly or systematically done. The constable, when he is on his rounds at this work, if he finds a yard in a dirty condition, the owner or occupant is served with a notice to have it cleaned within 48 hours. The constable then continues on his rounds, but never returns to see if his instructions have been carried out. We are, therefore, continually receiving complaints regarding this work. Secondly, this work is not considered as police duty, and I find that this work comes at a time when the police department is the busiest.

I would also recommend that the appointment of a sergeant and plain clothes man be made in connection with the department.

REMARKS.

You will notice in the report that there are a large number of cases under the breach of License Act. I desire to draw the attention of your board to the fact that none of those cases are for selling during prohibited hours, but the greater part of them are against people who are on the prohibitory list, and charges for selling liquor to minors.

HOUSES OF ILLFAME

There are no houses of illfame in the city at present, to my knowledge.

There are no known gambling resorts in the city at present that I am aware of.

The general health and conduct of the force since I have taken charge, I am pleased to report, has been good, and the members of the department are working in harmony together for the best interests of the city, which only goes to show the able manner in which the department was conducted under the leadership of the late Chief Rezael.

During the year as previously stated, we had a number of stores and shops broken into. On investigating the matter I found that those places were all entered between the hours of 4 a.m. and 6 a.m. During these hours there were no police on street duty. Owing to the fact of only having five men, I find it impossible to make a proper schedule of duty covering the 24 hours, with a continuous police service. The business section of our city should be patrolled by police officers every hour of the day and night in order to properly protect the lives and property of our citizens.

The Chief Constables' Convention of Canada meets this year in the city of Ottawa, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend, accompanied with the necessary appropriation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
D. THOMPSON,
Chief Constable.

SOME FACTS ABOUT CANCER

Lecture by Famous Surgeon, Explaining Its Peculiarities — Cause and Influence.

London Times.

Sir Alfred Pearce Gould, senior surgeon to the Middlesex Hospital, the other day delivered before the Royal College of Surgeons of England the 29th annual Bradshaw Lecture. He chose for his subject "Cancer."

Sir Alfred said that it has recently been discovered that the disease is not limited to man, but that it occurs in all vertebrate animals. It has been proved to occur in birds, reptiles and fishes. Thousands of experiments upon mice, rats and dogs have proved that cancer can be transferred from "host to host," but, towering above these facts, is the all-important one that cancer cannot be transferred to an animal of another species. A cancer cell is not an alien cell, but is influenced by its neighbors as a normal cell is. Cancer is cell life that is disorderly, irregular, with a minimum of development differentiation and function. It is not a disease attacking the body from without, it is the result of a breach or failure of fundamental cell law; a law so majestic that obedience to it results in direct development, perfect health, the full measure of days, and disobedience to it may slowly spell out all the inscrutable woes of cancer.

CAUSES OF IT.

Certain conditions which are known to exert an influence on the causation of cancer were next referred to. These include, (a) Age—by which it is fully established that cancer is greatly influenced; (b) sex—It is well known that cancer is more frequent in women than in men, and that its incidence increases earlier and attains its maximum sooner in them than in men, but that after the age of 70 the incidence is practically the same in the two sexes; (c) X-rays—prolonged exposure to X-rays may cause cancer in man, and the lecturer considered that evidence of the influence of X-rays upon cell life to be most important; the influence of (d) alcohol on the incidence of cancer was also considered by Sir Alfred to be very important. Statistics of the mortality of various occupations from certain diseases reveal the fact that cancer is twice as frequent among brewers and publicans as among clergymen, and that the cancer incidence in any trade varies with the attendant habits as regards alcohol. The lecturer quoted figures obtained from the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution, which show that the mortality from cancer among the insured in that institution, if represented by the figure 100 among the non-abstaining males, would be represented by 72 against the abstainers.

SOME HOPE.

With regard to these various conditions, Sir Alfred expressed the opinion that clinical experience and experimental pathology throw some ray of hope across the dark sea of malignant disease. The deep impress of the primal laws of development holds the cells of tissues in true and loyal infinite majority of individuals. The incidence of disease and immunity from its initial attack are, of course, complimentary, and the same fact can be expressed either in terms of disease or in terms of immunity. This is the great initial fact of cancer—immunity; that in spite of added years and of all unfavorable conditions which tend to wear down the obedience of cell life to its fundamental laws, 90 per cent of men and women who pass down the hill of life hold this dread enemy at bay.

With regard to the disappearance of cancerous growth, Sir Alfred reported that those who are studying the disease in mice report that in these animals it is quite a frequent occurrence for a grafted cancerous growth, after attaining some size, to shrink slowly and disappear, and in some series of experiments a large proportion of the grafts that have "taken" have, after a period of growth, spontaneously vanished.

MAY BE CURED.

In conclusion, the lecturer referred to various cases of cancer which he has treated at the Middlesex Hospital, and though in some of these cases the disease was not "cured" in the sense of being wholly and permanently removed, yet in several there was a strong reason for thinking that the word "cure" could be justly used in recording these cases he did not mention the treatment employed, because his present purpose is not to vaunt a remedy, but to state a fact—that cancer, even when advanced in degree and of long duration, may get better, and may even get well. There is, he said, cure of cancer, apart from operative removal. All therapeutic cures are obtainable only by the working of physiological forces, and the first hope of therapeutic success comes upon observation of the efficiency of unaided Nature to accomplish cure.

When the biologist shall know the laws that govern cell growth, with a knowledge akin in its sweep and accuracy to that of the astronomer, he will have power—the power to pre-

WILL WOMEN CUT THE TIE?

It is safe to predict that if a Divorce Court is established for Ontario, as the Bar Association recommends, there will be more divorces. This is not an argument for or against the court, because it might be in the interests of justice that there should be more divorces. If just grounds exist for divorce, it does not work for the public good to make legal separation so costly as to keep the mismated couple chained in mutual repugnance. The fact, is, however, that despite the extreme difficulty of securing a divorce in Canada divorces are increasing here. More than that, they are multiplying in almost every part of the world. Those who consider the family tie to be the real cement of civilization may well be alarmed, especially since in a rapidly increasing proportion of cases the wife is the petitioner.

A SOBERING QUESTION

Well may a writer in the Pittsburg Dispatch demand: "Is the time drawing near when marriage as mankind has known it throughout the ages is doomed to disappear, with women severing the tie as a thing to irksome to be borne under the new dispensation of labor, which makes her independent of her husband's support?" The recent United States census notes that 66.6 per cent. of the divorces in that country for the past two decades were granted on the petition of the wife; in other words, two women seek divorce to every man. The commonest ground of application is desertion, which accounted for almost 40 per cent. of the divorces granted in the twenty year period. This reason explained about half the divorces that were granted to husbands and one-third of the divorces granted to wives. The next most important grounds for husbands is unfaithfulness, and for wives cruelty. Only ten per cent. of the divorces granted women were explained by the unfaithfulness of their husbands.

THE CHILDREN INVOLVED

These figures must not be interpreted as pinning the white flower of comparative purity on the label of the husbands. The reason that unfaithfulness was so much more commonly charged against women than against men is that women forgive this sin more easily than men do. Moreover it is much easier to detect a woman than a man. Another curiosity of the American divorce statistics is that in 49 per cent. of the suits granted to wives there were children involved, while the husband's percentage in this respect was only 26. From that it might appear that children are a much stronger restraint upon suffering fathers desiring divorce than upon mothers in similar circumstances.

DESIRE FOR INDEPENDENCE.

That the existence of a family is the most potent influence in keeping mismated couples together is everywhere recognized and it is worth noting, that in France, where the birth rate is smallest, the divorce statistics have almost doubled in twenty years. This increase is most noticeable among the class of the community that enjoys the legal privilege of suing as paupers. One peculiar feature of divorce situation in both France and Switzerland is that a woman who has been married enjoys an improved legal status. She is in a better position than the girl who remains single, and both countries there appears to be hundreds of young women who marry with divorce in sight from the beginning. They live with their husbands for a few months then divorce them at the expense of the State, and as divorcees taste "freedom" and "independence" for the first time.

WORLD-WIDE INCREASE

In Switzerland the divorce rate is the highest in Europe, being 4 per cent. of all marriages. In Roumania the percentage is 2 1-2; in Denmark, 2; in Prussia and Sweden 1; in England 1 1-2 per cent. There is no legal divorce in Italy, but within thirty years the number of legal separations has doubled. In Holland there are three times as many divorces and separations as thirty years ago. In Belgium separations have increased 80 per cent. and divorces have quadrupled. In Norway divorces have multiplied by five. In Ireland and Russia alone there is no remarkable increase in divorce statistics, powerful religious influence being responsible.

ENNISMORE COUNCIL IN LENGTHY SESSION

The first re-installment meeting of the municipal council and township was held in the town hall, Ennismore, was held in the town hall, Ennismore, on January 9th, 1911. All members were present. Minutes of previous meeting read and signed. After complying with the statutory law of all municipal councillors, the members took their seats as follows, Samuel O'Connon, Cornelius O'Reilley, John Geary, Wm. H. Crough, councillors.

The reeve thought it would not be out of place to say a few words of instruction as the councillors are nearly all new men. He directed them Killen reeve, in the chair; Stephen H. to do all their municipal business in a lawful way, and to keep the words contained in the declaration of office, which bore their own signature as a guide in all public matters.

By-law No. 343, for the purpose of appointing a Board of Health and medical health officer and sanitary inspector for the year 1911, was read three times.

Under By-law No. 343 the following township officers were appointed, viz., John Moloney, clerk; Michael F. Crough, treasurer; Wm. F. Cavanagh, assessor; Michael Geary and Patrick G. Sullivan, auditors.

The auditors' report for the year 1910 was read by Michael Geary, auditor, and was received and adopted, and two hundred and fifty copies were ordered to be printed.

The following orders were drawn off the treasury—John Young and M. F. Crough, making out treasurer's statement, $2 each; P. J. Scollard, stationery, $2.34; G. J. Jopling, for gravel, $14.40; Wm. F. Cavanagh, poll clerk on election day, $2; Wm. D. Cavanagh, for wood to Mrs. D. Shanahan, $4; W. Carew, repairing grader, 50c; Daniel Hickson, constable on election day, $1.50; Municipal World, for Consolidated Municipal Act, 75c.; Richard Killen, expenses re business assessment and cost of repeal against the same, $2; Frank Cavanagh, for drawing stones on road, $13.50; Thomas Calbert, for gravel, $5; Kelly Bros., for gravel and lumber, $9.80; M. F. Crough, salary as treasurer for 1910, $30; John Moloney, secretary of Board of Health, $5, and $10 balance of salary as clerk for 1910; Eugene Murphy, salary by percentage, 1 1-3c on the dollar, $68.40.

Owing to the large amount of business presented on the said date, the Board of Health, medical health officer and sanitary inspector will not be appointed till Wednesday, January 18th.

The above was an exceptionally large meeting and there was the largest amount of municipal business transacted for a long time. This was owing to the absence of two of the councillors at the annual meeting held on December 15, 1910.

JOHN MOLONEY,
Township Clerk.

ULCERS AND SORES

Cannot Resist Zam-Buk's Healing Power.

An illustration of the way in which Zam-Buk cures even the most serious and chronic cases of ulcers, eruptions and sores is provided by Mr. R. H. Parker, of Glencairn, Ont. He says:

"I would not have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly and at the same so effectively, as Zam-Buk cured me.

"My face began to be covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. This rash then turned to sores which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and the eruption got worse and worse until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad,) my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when some one advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and, marvelous as it may sound, within a little under a month every sore on my face was healed. I was so amazed that I have told the facts to several persons, and I have no objection to your stating my experience for the benefit of other sufferers."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal in composition and is the ideal balm for babies and young children, for whose tender skin coarse ointments are so dangerous. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions, and chapped places, cuts, burns bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or postfree from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

Epworth League

At the meeting of the Epworth League of St. James' church last night, there were about seventy-five present. It was literary evening, conducted by the Vice-President, Miss Frost. The President, J. J. Goodwin, was in the chair, and E. Elcome gave an address on "Our Native Owls," showing specimens. Miss Lee gave a solo in pleasing fashion, and a quartette consisting of Messrs. Sandiford, Moore, Lee and Turner, sang, being heartily received.

An Ancient Steam Man.

There are a host of authorities on hydraulics and mechanics that could be quoted to support the assertion that the steam engine is not a modern invention. Carpini in the account of his travels, A. D. 1280, describes a species of aeophile, or steam, engine made in the form of a man. This contrivance was filled with "inflammable liquid" (probably petroleum) and made to do terrible work in the battles between the Mongols and the troops of Prester John.

Remarkable.

"He takes a cold bath every morning—a very remarkable man!"

"Plenty of men do that."

"But I knew him for five years before he ever mentioned the fact."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SPENCER'S NEW EARL.

Lord Althorp, Who Succeeds His Half Brother, Is Widely Known.

Spencer's new earl has been a member of the House of Lords for the last four years, having been raised to the peerage as Lord Althorp in 1906, on the occasion of his appointment to the office of Lord Chamberlain, which he still holds. He is a half-brother of the late earl and is widower of a sister of Lord Revelstoke and of Cecil and Hugo Baring, all three of whom are well konwn in America. Moreover, he is a man of very chivalrous instincts and of a sense of honor unfortunately rare in these modern days. For on the occasion of the troubles of the fire at Banking house of Baring, some fifteen years ago, he, although possessed of no fortune of his own, voluntarily came to the rescue of his father-in-law, the late Lord Revelstoke, and of the other Baring relatives of his wife, by surrendering to them her dowry. It was by sacrifices of this kind that the House of Baring was able to weather the storm. And now that it is once more on the high tide of prosperity, the money thus surrendered by the peer, familiarly known in the House of Commons as "Bobbie" Spencer, has been restored to him. But at the time when he turned it over to the committee of liquidation formed by the leading bankers of London it seemed doubtful whether he would see a penny of it again.

The new earl is noted for the perfection of his manners and of his attire, his collars in particular being as famous in their way as were those of the late Mr. Gladstone. It is this that caused his commencement of a speech in the House of Commons with the words, "I am not an agricultural laborer," to excite so much hilarity. Among the sobriquets which were applied to him in the lower House was that of "Bradlaugh's Baby," owing to his political connection with Northamptonshire, with which county the first professed atheist to occupy a seat in Parliament was identified. That he is a man of some pluck is shown by the fact that at the time his half-brother, the late earl, was Viceroy of Ireland and in constant danger of assassination, he made a point of accompanying him, in an unofficial capacity, everywhere in and around Dublin, no matter whether walking or riding, for the purpose of protecting him. He succeeds to the ownership of a very stately mansion in London, known as Spencer House, overlooking Green Park, and formerly leased to Mrs. Ogden Goelet, of New York, but now rented by Baron de Forest.

Althorp, his country seat in Northamptonshire, has been in the possession of the Spencers since long before the reign of Henry VIII., and although the celebrated library was sold by the late earl to Mrs. John Rylands for the Rylands Public Library at Manchester, yet the house remains full of treasures of every kind, including no fewer than twenty paintings by Sir Joshua Reynolds and thirty-two by Lely, in addition to masterpieces by Titian, Raphael, Rubens, Murillo, Holbein, Rembrandt, Kneller, Frans Hals, Gainsborough, Vandye and Guido. The Spencer plate is also extremely valuable. It comprises two pails which are the largest pieces of pure gold plate in any private collection, and a silver wine cistern as large as a bath, all three inherited from the first Duke of Marlborough. Perhaps the most cherished pieces in the collection of plate are, however, the gold casket in which the third earl received the freedom of London when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a beautiful silver-gilt jug, one of four provided by penny subscriptions from the nation for Lord Althorp, Lord Russell, Lord Grey and Lord Brougham, in recognition of their efforts in passing the Reform Bill, in the early part of the last century.

To save his life, Charles Deston, an Ohio farmer, cut off his arm with a pocket knife to release himself from the grip of a corn shredder.

Peterborough, Jan. 16, 1911.

To the President, Directors and Shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

Gentlemen,—Another year of work in your cemetery has closed, and I beg to report upon the progress made.

Owing to the old Receiving Vault and Chapel (two separate buildings) requiring considerable repairs, your directors resolved that one good building would be better than two separate ones, therefore, the old Receiving Vault was torn down and an excavation made beneath the chapel and a new vault built at a cost of about $865. The combining of these two buildings will be found very convenient, as the funeral service and the disposal of the remains can be accomplished under one roof. The ground where the old vault stood comprising about 1,400 superficial feet will make excellent burial plots. This ground, which is centrally situated and in a very desirable locality, has already been graded and is now for sale.

I graded and seeded another large block in section "O," situated in the eastern part of the cemetery. It will be found necessary in the near future to open this section for burials as this class of lots are all sold.

A concrete curb has been placed around a triangular plot in the north end of the cemetery, giving it a very neat appearance. I would advise that this permanent work be continued where necessary, as it not only adds to the appearance of the cemetery, but lessens the labor required to keep the roads and banks in condition.

Extensions have been made to the water system where found necessary, and all the taps that have been leaking have ben replaced with new ones. A new concrete wall to replace the old wooden one was built along the north side of the old greenhouse, a cellar built and a new furnace installed to heat the new greenhouse. We are now in a better condition than ever to supply the lot owners with the plants and flowers they may require for their plots.

The number of lot owners taking special interest in their lots is still on the increase, and it is gratifying to know that a general satisfaction of the care taken of them is continually expressed, and orders for discontinuance of work through not having obtained a satisfactory result is practically nil. Trusting that this work will still continue to increase,

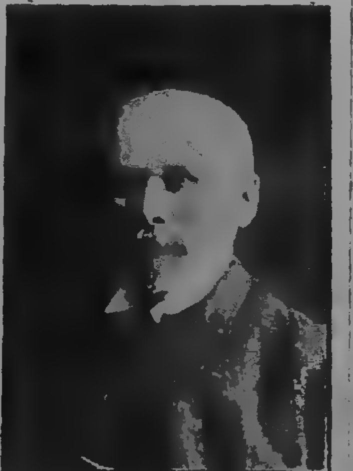
I am,
Your obedient servant.
FRANK WISE,
Superintendent.

DIRECTORS' STATEMENT.

To the shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company.

Your directors for the past year beg to report as follows:—

At the meeting of the Board held over a year ago, an examination of the receiving vault in the grounds was made, when it was found to be in a decaying condition and the stone work considerably cracked, requiring repairs. It was observed that the vault covered the whole or the most part of eleven lots, situated in a very desirable section, which if cleared of the vault would be in demand at good prices. It was therefore decided to excavate under the chapel for a new vault, and about twelve months ago the work was proceeded with and was completed early during the past summer. Your directors are able to state that the construction and finish of the valut is in every way most acceptable and satisfactory to them. It is nearly double the size of the old one; its walls, floors and ceiling are composed of concrete, and every way is completed in the most lasting manner. The cost was about eight hundred and sixty-five dollars, which will be met out of the proceeds of the sale of the lots that had been occupied by the old vault.



MR W. H. MOORE, K C,
Re elected President of the Little Lake Cemetery Co.

Your directors last year put a concrete curb around a triangular plot near the north-east corner of the grounds, most of which is reserved for flower plots, and this has had so improving an appearance that they recommend a similar curb being placed around the grounds enclosing the chapel; besides, it will protect the banks from being injured by carriage wheels. They have also repaired and improved the chapel foundations and the whole interior of it, and have placed a furnace in the new conservatory. The cost of the improvements to the chapel was one hundred and fifty dollars.

Your Board has purchased a city debenture for fifteen hundred dollars from surplus money, as an investment towards future maintenance. The fund for this purpose has now reached the sum of $14,417.31.

Your directors have endeavored, and they believe with some fair measure of success, to maintain the general condition of the cemetery, so that its attractiveness has not been surpassed in any former year.

Although the financial statement shows a small overdraft at the bank, since covered, yet it may be pointed out that accounts are owing to the company for various services to lot owners to the extent of $2,271.00, which will, it is expected, be paid within a short period.

Your directors have to record with deep regret the recent loss of one of their number, namely Mr. James Stevenson, who had been a member of the Board for nearly thirty-six years, and its president for a number of terms, and who always took a deep and active interest in everything affecting the improvement of the grounds, and whose good judgment is apparent in many ways in the cemetery, and in the financial condition in which the company now stands.

W. H. MOORE,
President.

REDUCED RATES CAMPAIGN DOESN'T AROUSE HOUSE

Member For South York Puts Forward First of His Resolutions In Favor of Making C.P.R. Divide Up Some of Its Profits, But Is Only One to Vote Aye—Mr. Borden Says Laws Should Be Enforced.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—W. F. Maclean of South York has fired the first gun in his artillery of radicalism, of the mounting of which he gave the House of Commons due warning last week. Mr. Maclean selected the Canadian Pacific Railway as his initial target, and availed himself of a Government proposal to go into supply to launch a resolution, under which the House declared its intention of "taking steps to ascertain the rights of the public to a general reduction of tariff, because of the provisions in the act ratifying the agreement with the company, or in any other act."

Mr. Maclean adduced evidence to establish the fact that the company was in a prosperous financial condition, and declared the present tariffs relative to freight, express, telegraph, telephone, electrical power, water charges on steamers, fares on sleepers, parlor cars and diners—a cosmopolitan arraignment—"a gross injustice to the people of Canada, and a reflection on the honor of the House."

Mr. Maclean argued for an enforcement of public rights under Federal law. "It is the duty of this Parliament to enforce its own laws," was his dictum.

The response of Hon. Mr. Graham, having complimented the mover on his energy, industry and force, reviewed the history of the railway, its association with the Government and the public, the various contracts and arrangements which had been concluded from time to time, and directed attention to the fact that the Government had created the Railway Commission and bestowed upon it the widest powers to investigate and deal with such charges as should be made. The Minister referred to the investigation made into the express rates, and the important public work being done by the commission. "This board," said he, "is composed of able men. No part of the Government does greater credit to it, and I do not believe Parliament would be well advised to take out of its hands any part of the complete jurisdiction we have given them."

"The Minister is right. Anyone can go to the Railway Commission with complaints and have them thoroughly investigated," was the comment of Hon. John Haggart, former Minister of Railways.

In submitting his resolution anent the C.P.R. tariffs Mr. Maclean pointed out that in the original agreement with the Government it was provided in recognition of concessions granted that when the income of the road exceeded 10 per cent. of the money invested in the undertaking the Government should have the right to obtain a reduction in rates.

The debate was continued at night. R. L. Borden in the course of his address pointed out that while the railway in question was at present subject to the jurisdiction of the Railway Board, it was a voluntary subjection, and the railway had, through its solicitors, reserved the right to withdraw.

Mr. Borden failed to understand why the mover of the resolution had singled out only one railway. There was no information to show that its rates were higher than those of other lines. In concluding Mr. Borden said he desired to serve notice on the Government that unless immediate action were taken along the lines he suggested he would submit a resolution calling upon Parliament to place upon the statute books legislation imposing upon the Government the obligation of seeing that all Federal laws passed for the benefit and advantage of the whole country, such as that of last session dealing with combines, are enforced in the interest of the public.

"Thank heaven I have made one convert," observed Mr. Maclean amid laughter, commenting on Mr. Borden's speech.

Mr. Maclean rejected the suggestion of Mr. E. M. Macdonald to withdraw his resolution at the conclusion of the debate, and the vote was taken. The member for South York alone voted aye.

THIS SOLDIER IS A SUICIDE

St. Stephen, N.B., Jan. 18.—Quartermaster Sergt. Loangille of the R.C.R., Fredericton, who had been detailed to instruct the public school teachers in the newly-introduced physical training, ended his life here last night by shooting.

No cause is given for the act. He was discovered lying upon the bed in his room. A Colt revolver of 45 calibre was clasped in his right hand, the bullet having entered the roof of his mouth and torn its way through the skull, lodging in the wall at the head of his bed. His remains are to be sent to Fredericton.

Change In Election Day.

Kingston, Jan. 18.—The City Council will ask the Ontario Legislature to change the date of the municipal election from New Year's Day to the first Monday in February.

Judge MacMahon Dead.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—Judge MacMahon died suddenly at two o'clock yesterday morning of heart disease. The judge, who was a native of Guelph, was in his seventy-fifth year.

M. ARISTIDE BRIAND.

An attempt to assassinate him was made in Paris Chamber of Deputies yesterday, two shots being fired.

MERCHANT IS MISSING

Sherbrooke, Que., Jan. 18.—There is great excitement here over the mysterious disappearance of W. F. Pope, a well-known merchant of Bromptonville, a small town six miles away. Pope left his house at seven o'clock Monday night to drive to Stoke, where he was going to collect some money. He never reached his destination, and at 10 o'clock at night his horse, cut and bleeding, was found on the lower Brompton road, near Sherbrooke.

Search was made yesterday morning by the local police, but no trace of Pope's body has been found. Last evening at a bend in the road just out of Bromptonville, his hat was found, saturated with blood, and there were indications that a terrible fight had taken place.

Pope took an active part in the municipal elections for mayor this year, supporting Fred Alger, who unsuccessfully opposed O. Lambert. He was known to have had nearly $500 in his possession, also a watch and other valuables. From the nature of a cut in his hat, it is thought he was struck with a club, and, not losing his senses, made a fight for life. He intended leaving for Boston to-day, where he was to open a branch office for the shipment of hay and grain.

WILL INVESTIGATE WINNIPEG FIRES

Winnipeg, Jan. 18—Heavy fire losses in this city's wholesale district have at last aroused concern in civic circles, and an investigation is likely to be made. A meeting of the City Council has been called for to-day, and the business will probably consist of the appointment of a commission to make full enquiry into the recent fires.

In spite of the installation of an expensive high-pressure water works plant and the purchase of much modern equipment for the fire brigade, little advance is to be seen in the results attained in efforts to check fires in large buildings. Insurance men are reported as saying that the losses sustained represent seven times the amount of the premiums received on that class of business.

To Become Branch of G.T.R.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—"The Grand Trunk Railway owns a controlling part of the of the stock of the Rideau Valley and Brockville Railway now, and it is altogether likely that the line will finally become a branch of the Grand Trunk Railway," said D. H. McLean, vice-president of the company that proposes to build between here and Brockville.

Reinstatement Ordered.

Stratford, Jan. 18.—The enquiry conducted here by Judge Barron into the cases of the G.T.R. strikers has already resulted in orders for reinstatement of some half dozen men. The judge will report fully to President Hays. His honor finished the Stratford enquiry yesterday and goes to London to-day.

THE PROGRAM AT QUEBEC

Quebec, Jan. 18.—The seventeenth annual meeting of the Quebe Board of Trade was held yesterday afternoon, when the officers for the past year were re-elected as follows: President, G. A. Vavdry; vice-presidents, Wm. A. Marsh and J. Picard; treasurer, A. E. Scott. The board is in a flourishing condition.

The program of the board for the coming year includes immediate construction of grain elevators and additional steamship berths to handle the grain trade of the west; the construction without further delay of a graving dock at Levis, to accommodate the largest steamers reaching the St. Lawrence; the necessity for a faster and more frequent Atlantic mail service, and the promotion of steel shipbuilding in Quebec, in connection with the construction of naval vessels.

WISHART AND LINDSAY ARE CHARGED IN BANK CASE

New York Broker and Toronto Promoter Are Subject of Warrants Issued in Connection With Bank Failure Shareholders and Creditors Meet and Demand Investigation.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—Exposing the fact that the now dead Farmers' Bank was based upon a fraud even before the granting of its charter from the Dominion Government, and that even that charter was obtained by a fraud, two more warrants are now known to be issued against those who had to do with the institution of the bank. Two new names are introduced and two further charges against Dr. Beattie Nesbitt are unearthed.

One warrant charges:

That George Wishart of New York, promoter; Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and W. R. Travers, did conspire, confederate and agree to steal from the Farmers' Bank of Canada the sum of $300,000.

The other charges:

That William J. Lindsay, with others, did in the year 1907 conspire, confederate and agree together to obtain the certificate of the Treasury Board under the Bank Act of Canada permitting the Farmers' Bank of Canada to commence banking in Canada.

The "others" mentioned in the last-mentioned warrant is said to refer to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and W. R. Travers. The first warrant was issued on Saturday last, when the other warrant charging the doctor with signing false returns to the Government was issued. The warrant against Lindsay was issued upon information supplied by Travers after his last arraignment before he pleaded guilty on Tuesday, Jan. 10. It was sworn out the following day. This Lindsay warrant, following on the curator's announcement that the whole bank was founded upon fraud from its inception, is portentious.

Lindsay was the man who was the prime agent in the sale of the subscription stock. At the organization meeting of the directors it was found that certain persons supposed to be actively connected with the formation of the bank withdrew, and this left the subscription list deficient in amount.

"To overcome this," says Curator Clarkson, "it is said that certain subscriptions were added to the list, particularly one of $50,000 and dated ahead so as to make this subscription list appear regular and permit the obtaining of the certificate to do business."

A further explanation of the method by which the $250,000 cash from subscriptions and $500,000 subscriptions to stock, which is necessary for the granting of the certificate of the Treasury Board was obtained, follows, as made by the curator:

The sum of $211,000 was collected by subscriptions, $41,000 was forthwith paid out for expenses, leaving just $170,000. The sum of $80,000 was then borrowed upon subscription notes handed to Travers, and the $250,000 cash necessary was then complete. This sum was turned over to the receiver-general, and, as is the custom, $245,000 was later returned. The sum was deposited in the Traders' Bank to the credit, and $80,000 was then drawn out by check and transferred to the Trusts & Guarantee Co. on deposit for the Farmers' Banks. This was turned over to the Trusts & Guarantee Co. by three checks and the notes upon which the money had been advanced by the trust company were then returned to the bank. This left the bank with $170,000, and the subscribers' notes as its original capital.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt still evades pursuit. If rumor had virtue the doctor would be a modern "Flying Dutchman," for he has been reported as being in widely different points both in Canada and the United States. It was said yesterday that Inspector of Detectives Walter Duncan had gone to Buffalo in search of him. But the inspector, when seen at his office, would not tell where he had been during the day nor would he make any statement as to the crown's action in the pursuit of the doctor or others.

It is known that Lindsay left his apartments in the Elliott House Annex and his office in the Canada Life Building very shortly after the suspension of the bank, and the police at first hoped to locate him in western Canada. This effort failed, and it is now thought that he is across the line.

Lindsay has been well-known in the city for a number of years. Some years ago he was associated with Herbert Capewell, recent mayoralty candidate, in a business in Church street, but that connection was severed long ago. Mrs. Lindsay is still in the city.

Lindsay is described by the police as from 40 to 45 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall, 180 pounds in weight, fresh or florid complexion, clean shaven, drooping mouth, round full face, slightly bald, square shoulders and a flashy dresser.

At the present time Lindsay has entered action against the bank for $10,000 and against Travers for $2,000 under the agreement by which he was engaged by Travers for the board of provisional directors to sell the stock of the bank. It was begun by his solicitor, J. R. L. Starr.

The usual quiet of the Farmers' Bank building was disturbed yesterday morning by the gathering of the creditors of the now defunct financial institution. The meeting was called for 11 a.m., but long before that time many creditors from all parts of Ontario, were present to obtain, if possible, some light in connection with the moneys they had placed in the bank.

The creditors listened attentively to the various items in the curator's lengthy interim report.

When Mr. Clarkson had concluded his statement, Mr. Hamilton Cassels moved "that the court be recommended to appoint Mr. Geoffrey Clarkson as permanent liquidator."

Mr. J. W. Gilmore, representing Elgin County creditors, seconded the motion, which carried unanimously.

The naming of a liquidator being the sole object of the meeting, a motion of adjournment was put and carried.

At a meeting of the Farmers' Bank shareholders yesterday afternoon, William Laidlaw, K.C., renewed his proposal made at the creditors' meeting in the morning, that a petition be sent to the Dominion Government, asking the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the bank's affairs.

It was decided to send Mr. Laidlaw and Mr. Elliott to Ottawa with the petition. The members of Parliament in the districts where there are branches of the bank will co-operate. In the meantime copies of the petition will be forwarded to each branch to obtain signatures.

Messrs. Laidlaw and Elliott refused to accept any money for expenses.

The sentiment of the meeting, which was well attended, seemed to be in favor of operating the Keeley mine, but no vote was taken.

Mr. Clarkson, who has been curator of the bank since its suspension, was appointed liquidator by unanimous vote of the shareholders. The statement of the bank's operations since its inception was again presented, but no discussion of its items occurred.

A NATIONAL ENTERPRISE

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 18.—The Halifax Board of Trade yesterday unanimously passed a resolution asking the Government of Nova Scotia to confer with the City Council of Halifax in regard to granting assistance to the drydock company, to enable it to enlarge the dock at this port to 800 feet. It is now about 500 feet long, and the company proposes extending it to 650 feet, but the board is anxious for the greater extension. A move was also made to have Halifax harbor and its terminals placed in the hands of a federal commission, the present railway and spring shipping terminals being spoken of as antiquated and inadequate, not only for the requirements of the near future, but also for the present.

DIVORCES SHOULD BE HARD TO GET, STATES SENATOR

HENRI BOURASSA

Nationalist Leader, is Planning a Renewal of his Campaign.

Second Thought Enters In, He Says, When It Is Necessary to Approach Parliament For a Separation—Senator Ross of Halifax Says the Divorce Committee of the Upper Chamber Is Too Expensive.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—A discussion upon divorce was the feature of the sitting of the Senate yesterday. On a motion for returns respecting divorce Senator Power said everyone, no doubt, felt that the ideal state of society would be one where there was no divorce, and all would agree that the less divorce the better. Prince Edward Island had never had a divorce, and the reason was that the divorce courts of that province was really the lieutenant-governor in council, and less accessible than the ordinary court, which some persons wished to have established throughout Canada.

Courts multiplied divorces. In England there had been great increase in divorce since 1857, when the divorce court was established. In the United States the increase had been phenomenal, so there was now one divorce for every 12 marriages, and at the present rate the proportion would soon be one to six. In France, since the establishment of divorce courts the increase had been so rapid that it looks as though the record of the United States would be exceeded.

No one would want Canadians to travel the same road and at the same speed as the United States and France, but that would follow the establishment of divorce courts throughout Canada.

In the provinces where there were divorce courts, divorces were more numerous in proportion to the population on the whole than in provinces which had to resort to Parliament for divorce.

There was a certain amount of deliberation in regard to approaching Parliament for divorce which gave sober second thought an opportunity to assert itself with people who felt aggrieved with each other. Perhaps the expense had something to do with it, though the cost of presenting a case to the Senate was not much more expensive than the process before a court.

Senator Cloran commended the views expressed by Senator Power. No question more affected the welfare of a nation than this question of the separation of man and wife, the breaking up of home, and the making of children orphans before their time. In his opinion the more difficult divorce was made the better. He advocated an enactment which would prevent the remarriage of the offending one of a divorce pair.

Senator Ross of Halifax criticised the Senate divorce committee as a rich man's court, where the cost of obtaining an act of Parliament prohibited the poor man from seeking relief. In the first place, there was a fee of $200, and that was only the beginning of the expense. The divorce judge of Nova Scotia had informed him that divorces had been obtained in that province at so low a cost as $40, and the cost had never been over $150.

Senator Wilson did not agree with Senator Ross, he did not think it a good policy to cheapen the process of obtaining divorce, and thereby make them more numerous.

IT LOOKS LIKE INCENDIARISM

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 18.—Yarmouth had a three-alarm fire last night in the heart of the town, but it was reached in time, and the damage will not amount to more than $2,000. It was in the large building, formerly the Yarmouth Hotel, which is now occupied by Jews. At the time of the fire almost all the Jews were attending a Jewish wedding.

Flames were first noticed in the rooms of Samuel Lynch. When the fire was out it was found his stock, valued at $2,000, had disappeared and that the fire had started in a case containing rags saturated with kerosene. The bottle was still there. The police are investigating.

A child and a young Jewess were taken out by the firemen, almost suffocated.

Close Squeeze For Lodge.

Boston, Jan. 18.—Although backed by eight majority in the upper branch of the Legislature, U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge failed by three votes to obtain a re-endorsement in the House yesterday, but if there is no shift during the night, the joint convention to-day will send him back to Washington for a fourth term, with just the vote necessary for a choice.

SIX MEMBERS WERE EJECTED

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 18.—Extraordinary scenes have marked the progress of a redistribution bill introduced in the State Parliament of West Australia. The measure incurred the hostility of the Labor members of the House, and they resorted to obstructive tactics. For 29 hours they kept the House sitting, deliverying speech after speech, and argument after argument until, from sheer exhaustion, they were obliged to give up.

During the progress of the sitting six members of the Labor party were ejected from the House, one of the Laborites showed fight, and the services of the police were requisitioned. Finally the Labor party withdrew in a body, and, progress having been made with the redistribution bill, the assembly arose.

The bill will be enacted into law in spite of the opposition of the Labor members.

To Have Grain Commission.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—There is a well-defined rumor to-day that the Government is about to introduce a bill covering certain of the demands made by the farmers who waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier last month. The report, which can be traced to no authoritative source, but which persists, nevertheless, has it that the bill will be introduced by either Frank Oliver or the Premier himself next week, that it will provide for a Grain Commission of three, for severe penalties for mixing different grades of grain, and empowering the commission to expropriate elevators when necessity arises.

ESTIMATES GIVEN ON ALL CONTRACT WORK.

Adam Hall

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 18, 1911.

EIGHT HOUR LABOR

Hon Mackenzie King is presenting a rather humorous spectacle in the House of Commons these days in trying to steer through the eight-hour-day labor bill. The bill is nominally fathered by Alphonse Verville, the Labor M.P., but it is said to be really a government measure, and certainly has the support of the Minister of Labor in its present much-mangled and mutilated form. As they have it now, the bill provides for an eight-hour day upon government building construction work, and means nothing to the cause of labor, even in the building trades. The fact that the government is willing to have eight-hour day labor on building construction will not alter the general labor rule.

When Mr. Verville first brought the bill in it provided for eight-hour labor on all government construction and work, except in the carrying of mails, in time of war, the works of urgency, etc. Now it merely provides that no workingman employed on government building construction shall be required to work more than eight hours, or 48 hours a week. There is no provision that a contractor may not refuse to employ a man who will not work more than this time.

As a labor bill, the measure now is neither a help to the labor cause, nor an example to any class of industry. It is a fine sample of a man trying to achieve something without knowing what it is he really intends securing.

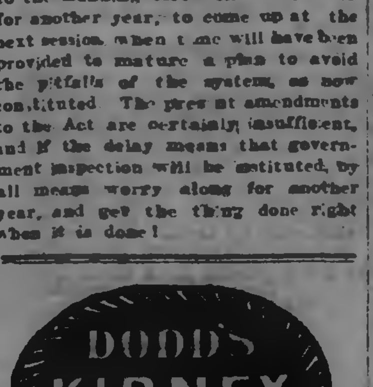
THE BANK PROBE

The probe into the Farmers' Bank affair will go right to the bottom of the sad mess. This is right, for the need of full publicity in exposing rotten conditions has never been demonstrated more strongly. There was crooked work in connection with the affairs of the Farmers' Bank from the day of the inception of the idea, and when the public was being solicited to buy shares at the organization stage.

The fact that the bank manager is headed for Portsmouth Penitentiary for six years, that Dr Beattie Nesbitt the first president of the bank, is a fugitive from justice; that four of the provisional directors have been summoned to appear in court, show that as far as the present revelations go there is no hesitation about applying the law strictly and to the letter.

In the interests of public justice, there must be no shielding of guilty parties, no consideration shown those responsible for the wrecking of the bank, other than what is right and just. The public weal must come before all else, and in this case the public weal demands that the arm of the law shall reach to the bottom-most depths of the sorry affair.

It is now stated that owing to the revelations the proposed amendments to the Banking Act will be laid over for another year, to come up at the next session, when time will have been provided to mature a plan to avoid the pitfalls of the system, as now constituted. The present amendments to the Act are certainly insufficient, and if the delay means that government inspection will be instituted, by all means worry along for another year, and get the thing done right when it is done!



PETERBOROUGH'S GROWTH

The Kingston Standard says:

The Peterboro Review is editorially chortling gleefully over that city's phenomenal growth in population during the past decade. Of course Peterboro has a perfect right to feel proud over this increase which, perhaps, is not quite so phenomenal as the Review pictures it. Was it not within the past ten years that the city limits of Peterboro' were extended so as to include the adjoining village of Ashburnham with its population of about 4,000 persons?

It is quite true that Ashburnham has been added to the city in the last ten years, but even without the addition Peterborough has grown faster than the other Ontario cities of its class. If the present rate of progress is kept up, we venture to predict that Peterborough will pass Kingston in point of population in the next decade. It is not that we want to boast particularly about what this city has been doing, but the fact that Peterborough heads the list in growth is one which ought to be impressed on our own people as well as outsiders. Kingston is unfortunate in having so little manufacturing activity. A more happy medium between culture and soot would be a great deal better for the old Limestone City.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The phrase, "Washington of the North," doesn't please the fastidious Ottawa residents. It should adopt Chicago's nickname, the Windy City.

An Ottawa man bit his tongue and died. The moral of this is never bite your tongue if there is anything else handy.

Rumors from Ottawa say that the Senate representation will be increased before the next general election. It will be further Reformed. Retired and discredited politicians will please accept this intimation.

The name of Hon. William Templeman is mentioned in the Vancouver Chinese immigration inquiry as trying to stifle the investigation. "It would hurt us too much," said the Honorable William. But even he hasn't got into the Pugsley class yet.

Hon. Jos. Martin, M.P. for East Pancras, has bobbed again into the limelight. He says that in his opinion Premier Asquith is the poorest parliamentary leader imaginable, except Mr. Balfour. As the leader of a great party, the Honorable Joseph will proceed to help Mr. Asquith in his own effective way.

The Kingston Whig, a died in the wool supporter of the Grit Government, says editorially: "Mr. Fielding and Mr. Patterson should get from Washington at once. They appear to be wasting their time, and there is so much for them to do at home." Surely the Whig will have patience until the Canadian commissioners get through with their wining and dining. What's the use of going to Washington unless you get your money's worth?

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT. 1909. BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"It is too bad. But Mr. Marsh told us all about it before you came, Boyd. I never thought well of this enterprise. Of course I didn't say anything against it, you were so enthusiastic, but you really ought to try something big. I am sure you have the ability. Why, the successful men I know at home have no more intelligence than you, and they haven't half your force As for this—well, I think you can accomplish more important things than catching fish."

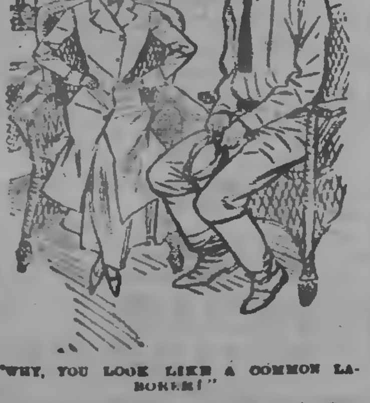
"Important!" he cried. "Why, the salmon industry is one of the most important on the coast. It employs 10,000 men in Alaska alone, and they produce $10,000,000 every year."

"Oh, let's not go into statistics," said Mildred lightly; "they make my head ache. What I mean is that a fisherman is nothing like—an attorney or a broker or an architect, for instance; he is more like a miner. Pardon me, Boyd, but look at your clothes." She began to laugh. "Why, you look like a common laborer!"

"I might have slicked up a bit," he acknowledged lamely, "but when you came I forgot everything else."

"I was dreadfully embarrassed when I introduced you to the Berrys and the rest. I daresay they thought you were one of Mr. Marsh's foremen."

Never before had Boyd known the least constraint in Mildred's presence, but now he felt the rebuke behind her careless manner, and it wounded him deeply. He did not speak, and after a moment she went on with an abrupt change of subject:



"WHY, YOU LOOK LIKE A COMMON LABORER!"

"So that funny little house over there against the hill is where the mysterious woman lives?"

"Who?"

"Cherry Malotte."

"Yes. How did you learn that?"

"Mr. Marsh pointed it out. He said she came up on the same ship with you."

"That is true."

"Why didn't you tell me? Why did not you write me that she was with you in Seattle?"

"I don't know; I didn't think of it." She regarded him coolly.

"Has anybody discovered who or what she is?"

"Why are you so curious about her?"

Mildred shrugged her shoulders. "Your discussion with Willis Marsh that night at our house interested me very much. I thought I would ask Mr. Marsh to bring her around when we went ashore. It would be rather amusing. She wouldn't come out to the yacht and return my call, would she?" Boyd smiled at her frank concern at this possibility.

"You don't know the kind of girl she is," he said. "She isn't at all what you think. I don't believe you would be able to meet her in the way you suggest."

"Indeed!" Mildred arched her brows. "Why?"

"She wouldn't fancy being 'brought around,' particularly by Marsh."

From her look of surprise he knew that he had touched on dangerous ground, and he made haste to lead the conversation back to its former channel. He wished to impress Mildred with the fact that if he had not quite succeeded he had by no means failed, but she listened indifferently, with the air of humoring an insistent child.

"I wish you would give it up and try something else," she said at last. "This is no place for you. Why, you are losing all your old wit and buoyancy; you are actually growing serious, and serious people are not at all amusing."

Just then Alton Clyde and a group of people, among whom was Willis Marsh, emerged from the cabin, talking and laughing. Mildred arose, saying:

"Here come the Berrys, ready to go ashore."

"When may I see you again?" he inquired quickly.

"You may come out this evening."

His eyes blazed as he answered, "I shall come!"

As the others came up she said:

"Mr. Emerson can't accompany us. He wishes to see father."

"I just left him in the cabin," said Marsh. He helped the ladies to the ladder, and a moment later Emerson waved the party adieu, then turned to the saloon in search of Wayne Wayland.

CHAPTER XVIII.

IN Mr. Wayland's stiff greeting there was no hint that the two men had ever been friendly, but Emerson was prepared for coolness and seated himself without waiting for an invitation, glad of the chance to rest his tired limbs.

"I have a great deal to say to you, sir," Emerson began, "and I would like you to hear me through."

"Go ahead."

"I am going to tell you some things about Mr. Marsh that I dare say you will disbelieve, but I can verify my statements. I think you are a just man, and I don't believe you know or would approve the methods he has used against me."

"If this is to be an arraignment of Mr Marsh I suggest that you wait until he can be present. He has gone ashore with the women folks."

"I prefer to talk to you first. We can call him in later if you wish."

"Before we begin may I inquire what you expect of me?"

"I expect relief."

"You remember our agreement?"

"I don't want assistance; I want relief."

"Whatever the distinction in the words, I understand that you are asking a favor?"

"I don't consider it so."

"Very well. Proceed."

"When you sent me out three years ago to make a fortune for Mildred it was understood that there should be fair play on both sides"—

"Have you played fair?" quickly interposed the old man.

"I have. When I came to Chicago I had no idea that you were interested in the Pacific coast fisheries. I had raised the money before I discovered that you even knew Willis Marsh. Then it was too late to retreat. When I reached Seattle all sorts of unexpected obstacles came up. I lost the ship I had chartered; machinery houses refused deliveries; shipments went astray; my bank finally refused its loan, and every other bank in the northwest followed suit. I was harassed in every possible way And it wasn't chance that caused it; it was Willis Marsh. He set spies upon me; he incited a dock strike that resulted in a riot and the death of at least one man; moreover, he tried to have me killed."

"How do you know he did that?"

"I have no legal proof, but I know it just the same."

Mr. Wayland smiled. "That is not a very definite charge. You surely don't hold him responsible for the death of that striker?"

"I do, and for the action of the police in trying to fix the crime upon me You know, perhaps, how I got away from Seattle. When Marsh arrived at Kalvik he first tried to sink my boilers; failing in that, he ruined my Iron Chinks; then he 'corked' my fish trap, not because he needed more fish, but purely to spoil my catch. The day the run started he bribed my fishermen to break their contracts, leaving me short handed. He didn't need more men, but did that simply to cripple me I got Indians to replace the white men, but he won them away by a miserable trick and by threats that I have no doubt he would make good if the poor devils dared to stand out.

"His men won't allow my fellows to work We have had our nets cut and our fish thrown out. Last night we had a bad time on the banks, and a number of people were hurt. The situation is growing worse every hour and there will be bloodshed unless this persecution stops All I want is a fair chance. There are fish enough for us all in the Kalvik, but that man has used the power of your organization to ruin me not for business reasons, but for personal spite. I have played the game squarely, Mr. Wayland, but unless this ceases I'm through."

"You are through?"

"Yes. The run is nearly a week old, and I haven't begun to pack my salmon. I have less than half a boat crew, and of those half are laid up."

The president of the trust stirred for the first time since Boyd had begun his recital. The grim lines about his mouth set themselves deeper, and, staring with cold gray eyes at the speaker, he said:

"Well, sir, what you have told me confirms my judgment that Willis Marsh is the right man in the right place."

Completely taken back by this unexpected reply, Boyd exclaimed:

"You don't mean to say that you approve of what he has done?"

"Yes, of what I know he has done Mr. Marsh is pursuing a definite policy laid down by his board of directors You have shown me that he has done his work well. You knew before you left the east that we intended to crush all opposition."

Emerson's voice was sharp as he cried, "I understand all that, but am I to understand also that the directors of the N. A. P. A. instructed him to kill me?"

"Tut, tut! Don't talk nonsense. You admit that you have no proof of Willis' connection with the attempt upon your life. You put yourself in the way of danger when you hired scab labor to break that strike. I think you got off very easily."

"If Marsh was instructed to crush the independents, why has he centered all his efforts on me alone? Why has he spent this summer in Kalvik and not among the other stations to the south?"

"That is our business. Different methods are required in different localities."

"Then you have no criticism to make—you uphold him?" Boyd's indignation was getting beyond control.

"None whatever. Your complaints do not appeal to me. Even granting your absurd assumption that Marsh tried to put you out of the way, it seems to me that you have more than evened the score."

"How?"

"He is still wearing bandages over that knife thrust you gave him."

Emerson leaped to his feet.

"He knows I didn't do that—everybody knows it!" he cried. "He lied to you."

"We won't discuss that," said Wayne Wayland curtly. "What do you want me to do?"

"I want you to end this persecution. I want you to call him off."

"In other words, you want me to save you."

Emerson swallowed. "I suppose it amounts to that. I want to be let alone. I want a square deal."

"Well, I wont." Wayland's voice hardened suddenly; his sound, white teeth snapped together. "You are getting exactly what you deserve. You betrayed me by spying upon me while you broke bread in my house. I see nothing reprehensible in Mr. Marsh's conduct, but even if I did I would not censure him. Any measures are justifiable against a traitor."

Boyd Emerson's face went gray beneath its coating of tan, and his voice threatened to break as he said:

"I am no traitor, and you know it. I thought you a man of honor, and I came to you not for help, but for justice. But I see I was mistaken. I am beginning to believe that Marsh acted under your instructions from the first."

"Believe what you choose."

"You think you've got me, but you haven't. I'll beat you yet."

"You can't beat me at anything." Mr. Wayland's jaws were set like iron.

"Not this year perhaps, but next. You and Marsh have whipped me this time, but the salmon will come again, and I'll run my plant in spite of hell!"

Wayne Wayland made as if to speak, but Boyd went on unheeding: "You've taken a dislike to me, but your conduct shows that you fear me. You are afraid I'll succeed, and I will."

"Brave talk!" said the older man. "But you owe $100,000, and your stockholders will learn of your mismanagement."

"Your persecution, you mean!" cried the other. "I can explain. They will wait another year. I will raise more money, and they will stand by me."

"Perhaps I know more about that than you do."

Emerson strode toward the desk menacingly, crying in a quivering voice:

"I warn you to keep your hands off them. Don't try any of your financial trickery with me, or I'll"—

Wayne Wayland leaped from his chair, his face purple and his eyes flashing savagely.

"Leave this yacht!" he thundered. "I won't allow you to insult me. I won't stand your threats. I've got you where I want you, and when the time comes you'll know it. Now, get out!" He stretched forth a great square hand and closed it so fiercely that the fingers cracked. "I'll crush you—like that!"

Boyd turned and strode from the cabin.

To be continued.

A DOUBLE CURE FOR DOUBLE TROUBLE

Father Morrisey's No. 26 Cures Catarrh by a Combined Treatment.

The sudden weather variations in our climate result in a great many cases of catarrh—a troublesome disease usually considered hard to cure, and one which often leads to serious pulmonary and intestinal troubles.

A neglected cold in the head weakens the nasal membranes, so that at every future exposure the trouble returns. At length these conditions are fastened onto the system, and the sufferer undergoes the annoyance and danger of chronic catarrh.

Some doctors confine themselves to prescribing external applications, and thus do not reach the seat of the trouble. Others give internal treatment exclusively, and thus do not promptly relieve the affected parts.

Father Morrisey, the skilled priest-physician, rightly regarded catarrh as a double trouble, consisting of unpleasant local effects and their fundamental causes, the latter having to do with impaired general vitality.

His famous remedy, No. 26, is a combined cure for catarrh. It consists of tablets to be taken three times a day, and an especially compounded salve.

The salve is antiseptic, and quickly heals the inflamed membranes of the nasal passages. The tablets go to the seat of the trouble and restore the system to its usual tone. Together, they cure.

Instead of neglecting a disease that is unpleasant to yourself and to others, and one which often leads to pneumonia and consumption, it is surely the part of wisdom to take timely steps to do away with the effects and at the same time remove the cause. No 26 does just that.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

SINGLE TAX AND WHAT IT MEANS

An Illustrative Treatment of the Subject at St. Paul's by A. B. Farmer, of Toronto—The Single Tax System Offered Solution to Many Economic and Business Problems, the Speaker Held.

A question that is looming large in the public eye at the present time, and a movement that is increasing in importance namely, the question of single tax, was discussed in a comprehensive and instructive manner in St. Paul's Sunday school room last evening. The lecturer was John Black Farmer, who was brought here by the Brotherhood of St. Paul, to speak on the operations of the Tax Reform League.

Mr. Farmer is only a young man, but is a university graduate and a specialist in science and his lecture last night was a treat, both in a scholarly and instructive sense. He is a convincing speaker and shows a grasp of the situation that gives authority to his statements. His abilities have placed him in the responsible position of leader of the Ontario campaign which is in progress for the single tax form of taxation.

Previous to the address Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of the Farm and Dairy, introduced the speaker and the subject with which he was to deal, in a few concise remarks.

JUSTICE IN TAXATION.

The pith of Mr. Farmer's address might be correctly summed up in the words, "Justice in Taxation." Just taxation would solve the social problem, the problem of the slums and would be the strongest factor in solving all public problems.

There had been more done within the past two years to educate the public in the matter of single tax, than ever before. In Great Britain it had attracted the attention of the world, and it is the opinion of prominent men that the principles advocated by Henry George offered the only solution to satisfactory and profitable taxation.

A. B. FARMER, B.A.

When we thought of ourselves as citizens, we thought of ourselves as having a say in the Government. An analysis showed that the people were supreme, and there was no power on earth could stand against them. If there were any people who were not receiving justice on having their wrongs righted, if it was true that some people would toil without receiving the fruits of their toil, then there was something wrong with the Government.

CONGESTION AND CRIME.

Toronto, as an example, contained thousands of people who were living in a state that was not conducive to the highest principles of humanity. Some of these people live forty and fifty in one house of their own accord. There was plenty of room for all there if it were properly divided. It was out of condition like that, that a large amount of crime ensued. When forty or fifty people were crowded together was not a wonder that there were not murders more often than there were.

Yet in Toronto as elsewhere there were any amount of people who were ready to build yet they were not doing it. There was a reason for it, as would be shown later.

SYSTEM IS WRONG.

The people in the slums as a rule were not lazy, they were the working class, and yet they didn't prosper. We who had much, however, did not mind this as long as we get rich. These facts were merely mentioned to point out that there was something wrong with our governing system. That raised the point whether we would like to live for ourselves or do something to ameliorate the condition of others.

Applying these facts to the subject of the evening, the speaker said it was the control of the tax power that had always been the object of those who sought to control the Government A study of governments showed the most important side of it to be, not the administrative, but the taxing side.

Every legal privilege that existed was a taxing power. A taxing power that was the source of the greatest income was that of the houses and land. This was evident. There was a great difference between the land and the building that rested upon it. The building and land might sell on the market at the same price, but as regards the land, you could not alter its first value. The ownership of the house was based on its worth, the ownership of the land is based on taxation. Every dollar that a man received for the use of land was a taxing power.

PEOPLE MUST BE EDUCATED.

The people of this country had to be educated to these conditions.

It was here that the Tax Reform League stepped in. What it stood for was a slight change, that taxes be taken off stores houses and buildings, and laid on the land alone.

A SIMPLE SCHEME.

The plan it suggested was simplicity in the extreme. In Great Britain the plan was being advocated by the Liberal party All that was necessary was to lower the taxes on houses, stores, etc., and increase them on land values.

The plan had been tried in New Zealand, New South Wales and Alberta with satisfactory results, even more satisfactory than many of its advocates foresaw In New Zealand one-fifth of the people had adopted the plan of removing taxes from houses and buildings and placed them all on land values. If we could judge by results at all, these places had increased largely in wealth and power as a consequence. In Vancouver the plan was tried. While that city had been going ahead in some respects it had been going behind in other ways. Investigation showed great differences in taxes between America and adjacent Canadian cities. The difference in taxes induced many families to move to where the taxes were more reasonable.

In viewing the question from a business standpoint it was business, or the exchange of service that had enabled man to attain to where he was. It was based on the exchange of service, the exchange of property demanded and the recognition of property rights. In all the ages down to the present men had never learned to discriminate in property rights. Property rights and human rights should be synonymous.

In our tax systems we did not discriminate. Why did people fear a high tax rate? Well, if high tax were put on doing work people were going to quit. If a heavy tax were put on buildings, people would quit building.

Many people tax houses very high It does not pay The tax should be put on land, and it would induce the people to build on it They would then take an interest in their houses.

The tendency of men to hold on, to not consider an offer, was strangling many of the towns and cities of our fair Dominion to-day. There were scores of them being undermined by holders of vacant land Industries were blocked by the same The owners would not sell They held on, because property seemed to be increasing If we would put our taxes on land values, as was being done in cities in the west, it would greatly increase land values and buildings

THE ADVANTAGE TO HUMANITY

Looking at it from a religious standpoint it meant a lot Look at the slums of Toronto, where there was high-priced real estate By adjusting the taxes it could be changed

In concluding his address, the speaker explained what the Tax Reform League was, and its objects It was following out the teachings of Henry George, whose book, written thirty years ago, was the best analysis of land taxing ever written Men who were prominent in nearly every movement had come under the influence of Henry George He was the originator of all tax reform improvements, and of a system for the general well-being of all classes of citizens

It offered a solution of social problems, and of the continuous struggling against poverty

In Ontario the Tax Reform League was organized about one year ago. Nearly all newspapers advocate the right of municipalities to carry out the single tax law.

Three hundred municipalities had petitioned the government for it; eighty-eight newspapers endorsed it. In summing up, it might be called the recognition of property rights and human rights, and solution to the slums problem and other great outstanding problems of a like nature.

MISS TENNANT'S CAREER IS OF MUCH INTEREST

She Possesses Great Magnetism in Addition to Ability—Will be Here on Feb, 7

The well known English woman writer whose nom-de-plume "Stella," is a household name, in describing Miss Barbara Tennant (Mrs. Harold Wadely), says in part:

Barbara Tennant, since she came to Canada, has certainly endorsed the reputation she had made for herself in England. We, who have been allowed the privilege of studying her and her work, know Miss Tennant to be a truly great artist, and as she tours Canada critics will write of her as such and the triumphs she will gain will be deserved. Her aim is to make the best use of the great gifts nature endowed her with—to educate —and her efforts in this respect certainly do elevate and make one forget the everyday cares of life. Her beautiful voice is always restful.

But it is of Miss Tennant, the woman—not the actress—I would speak, for recently I had the opportunity of studying this lady for a few days, having her entirely to myself. I had thought, from previous descriptions, that there must be something more than mere cleverness in this girl, to hold her audiences so enraptured, and carried quite away, and I was glad of the privilege of being able to know her myself, and I speedily found out what that something was—character. She has great personal charms, but character is the word. It may be that her acting influences her character or vice versa, but whichever way it is, I found in Barbara Tennant one of the sweetest girls it has been my lot to meet—quite unspoiled by previous victories, and unselfish; shy and retiring in disposition, and ever ready to give credit to others. I use the word unselfish advisedly, for many men and women I known upon reaching the pinnacle of fame to which they have attained, have become selfish and expecting—not altogether their fault—probably through the homage of the public, but this girl is utterly incapable of this failing. One trait in her character which struck me more than any other was the reverence she has for all things spiritual, and this I take to be the keynote of her public work, as it certainly permeates her private life, for she has an absolute disgust for anything irreverent, either in expression or action. Her sense of humor is keen and delightful and her kindly disposition makes her laugh with, not at one

Her early training was strict, which no doubt was a great factor in the moulding of Miss Tennant. The English hope with its strict teachings on the one hand, and on the other, the hard work of the theatre have helped to build up a splendid personality, with a character which will do much to elevate our life in the Dominion. I can safely predict for Barbara Tennant as great a career in Canada as she had over in England, depending entirely for my verdict upon the capabilities of the Canadian people to discriminate and appreciate true greatness. To me, however, Miss Barbara Tennant will always be the sweet English girl whose presence brightened for a short seven days my little home.

The recital, which will be a focal event of very great interest, will be given in the Grand Opera House on the evening of February 7th.

WEDDING BELLS

STARK — MILLER

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jno Miller of Otonabee, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 11th, when their daughter, Francis, Mabel, was united in marriage to William E. Stark of Otonabee, in the presence of about sixty guests. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. D. McDonald, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Keene.

At seven o'clock the bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played very artistically by Miss Lilian Campbell, cousin of the bride, and took her place beside the groom under an arch of evergreen. The bride looked charming dressed in a very becoming gown of aeroplane Duchess satin prettily trimmed with embroidered chiffon and crystal, and wearing the customary bride veil. The only ornament the bride wore was a beautiful sunburst of pearls, which with a handsome bouquet of white roses, were gifts of the groom. Miss Mary Armstrong, cousin of the bride, assisted as flower girl, and looked very pretty in a dress of white mulle and carrying white and pink carnations.

After the congratulations had been received the bride led the way to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served. The tables were artistically decorated with white and pink carnations and smilax, a beautiful silver candelabrum being in the centre of the table.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held. Among them was a fur-lined coat, the gift of her parents. The groom's gift to the flower girl was a pretty gold bracelet, and to the pianist, a dainty star and crescent of pearls.

Guests were present from Port Hope, Peterborough, Norwood, Bensfort and Keene. After the evening had been pleasantly spent, the happy couple left for their future home in Otonabee amid a shower of confetti and good wishes.

WILL GIVE IMPORTANT ADDRESS

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, late of Boston, but now a resident of his native city, Peterborough, has gone to Denver by invitation of the Chamber of Commerce of that city to give an address on "The building of a great Chamber of Commerce," at the banquet to celebrate the opening of Denvers' new Chamber of Commerce building. The occasion is one of almost national interest, as nearly all of the great American Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade will be represented by deputations.

Mr. Ritchie has been engaged in organization work since he went to the States nearly 30 years ago. He started in Cincinnati, and was secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, and rose to the highest attainable position in the country as expert. In 1886 Mr. Ritchie removed from Cincinnatti to become secretary of the Commercial Club in Kansas City. In 1892 he was selected from the country at large and became the secretary of the Cleveland Board of Trade. Under his guidance the Board was reorganized as the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, and became a model of efficiency and influence. Upon his retirement to become president of the American Trust Company he was also elected President of the Chamber of Commerce. In 1903 the business men of Detroit took advantage of Mr. Ritchie's reputation for organization work and induced him to take charge and remove to consolidate the several associations in that city. The now famous Detroit Board of Commerce is the result of his efforts. Detroit has triplicated its industrial strength and almost doubled its population since the Board of Commerce was established in 1893. While resident in Detroit Mr Ritchie planned the construction and laid out the work of the new Chicago Association of Commerce, but he declined to accept the tender of a permanent position with it. In 1908 Boston sought the services of Mr Ritchie, and he undertook to unite the Board of Trade, Merchants' Association, Chamber of Commerce and other trade bodies into one institution the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the largest and locally the most influential body in the United States. After affecting consolidation, Mr Ritchie retired from the position of executive director and settled in Peterborough, where he intends to spend a large part of his time. It is an interesting inference that the five most efficient and notable commercial organizations in the United States are those with which Mr Ritchie has been identified officially, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Commercial Club, of Kansas City.

IS BLACKLISTED AT EIGHTEEN

(Police Court Cases)

Blacklisted at eighteen.

That was what befell a young man from the country at the police court this morning.

His case is only similar to hundreds of others, where "booze" has the upper hand, and his widowed mother is the greatest sufferer. He has on different occasions come to the city and spent money for drink which should have been exchanged for a receipt.

On the last Saturday of the old year he came here and after being served with several drinks in a hotel, called the bartender a vile name because he would not continue to serve the liquor. The bartender retaliated with a blow.

His brother, aged 26, was also present in the bar. He had nothing much to say to the Crown Attorney, who asked why he stood by and saw his brother struck; neither could he offer nay explanation as to why he permitted his brother to drink and the bartender to break the law.

His worship will make an order blacklisting the young man.

No penalty was imposed on the bartender, the Magistrate contending that the circumstances did not call for such.

THE UNKNOWN.

Chief Thompson had an information charging the young man with being the person who took the $1 from another lister last Saturday and did not return.

He pleaded not guilty and stated that he had nothing to do with the affair.

The case was enlarged till next Monday.

TWO VAGRANTS.

The chief is right after the vags.

John Newton and George Lillie admitted the corn when questioned by the Magistrate.

"They have been in the cells four or five nights and I ordered them to leave the city," said the chief. "They went out about five miles last Sunday and came back again."

"Well we're not going to take care of all the people who float in here, where do they come from?" inquired the Magistrate. "Toronto," was the reply. It was a week's remand for the purpose of securing some information.

GOVERNOR BANDALA OF TABASCO

Finds Peruna To Be An Efficacious Remedy.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes from San Juan Bantista concerning Peruna.

ABRAHAM BANDALA.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes as follows:

San Juan Bautista, 6th Sept. 1906.

The Peruna Drug M'f'g Co.

Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used the preparation Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious cure worthy of being recommended.

You can make such use of this letter as you consider most adapted to your interests, and I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

Abraham Bandala.

Other distinguished personages from Mexico have given similar statements concerning the benefit of Peruna. Prominent among these men of world-wide reputation is Dr. Augustin Rivera.

Silao, Guanajuato, Mexico.

The Peruna Drug Co.

Gentlemen:—Because of the magnificent results which I have obtained from the use of your praiseworthy remedy, "Peruna," in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh, I take pleasure in writing you a testimonial recommending it as the best medicine discovered for such cases.

I congratulate you for such a splendid preparation, and offer to you my services as the first to recommend it to my numerous customers.

Accept my most sincere testimonial, and use it as you think best for those who suffer from the disease which I have mentioned, and I am glad to sign myself as your friend. Respectfully,

Dr. Augustin Rivera.

As soon as an impartial doctor becomes acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, he finds catarrh not to be so formidable a disease.

Gratifying Reports Presented at Annual Meeting—Physical Work Has Progressed Most Encouragingly—The Officers Chosen for 1911.

In this report the General Secretary summarized the aims of the association to be;—1 To organize and concentrate the efforts of the Christian young men of the city for the winning of young men and boys to Christ, and to bring the Word of God into vital contact with the hearts and the minds of those young men and boys who are indifferent to its value and claims. 2. To bring to those who have a need for further education and appreciation of their need and to give them an opportunity to correct deficiencies. 3. To enable men to recognize the importance of good health and to give them an opportunity under expert direction to correct defects and to build the body scientifically to its utmost capacity. To centralize the social life of the men of Peterborough with the object of elevating social influences. He mentioned the work being carried on in three of the large shops of the city. Bible study classes are held in these shops and the life of Jesus is taught to about 60 men every week.

With a very encouraging outlook ahead and with reason to feel grateful and cheered by the past, the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association has started upon another year of service to the City of Peterborough.

Mr. J. C. Shook, the retiring President, was in the chair last evening when the members met in their annual meeting and heard the various reports of work done during 1910.

The meeting was opened in the usual way with the reading of a scripture lesson, after which Mr. F. G. Hassard led in prayer.

CONSIDERABLE BUILDING.

The Property Committee reported, through the chairman, Mr. A. McFarlane, that there had been considerable work done on the building during the past year, with the object of making the place more attractive and to better adapt the building to the needs of the work. All this work had been done by the officers of the Association during their spare time, thus saving the Association a large expense at a time when the saving was appreciated. There still remains a good deal of repair work to be done before the building is in the condition which it ought to be to carry on an effective work. This committee also reported the purchase of 100 new lockers, this making a total of 200 lockers in two locker rooms.

MANY NEW MEMBERS.

The membership committee reported a year of progress in membership work. The roll at the first of the year was 396, while at the close of the year there were 496 paid up members on the roll. Of this number 226 are full privilege members and 84 are limited, with 185 boy members. There are 114 active members and 197 associate seniors.

GREAT ACTIVITY HERE.

The Physical Department made a very extensive report, in which the various activities were enlarged upon and which revealed a work which is second to none in Canada.

The report commenced by paying tribute to the Leaders' Corps, which has rendered such valuable help in the conducting of the gymnasium work. Without this corps of men it would have been quite impossible to carry on the work. Then the Tennis Club was mentioned as one of the live branches of the Physical Department. Not only had this club carried off the coveted "Kerr" cup, the token of City Championship, but some of the members of the club had won honors in the city singles. The Penman games were mentioned, the Howden and Eastwood Trophies Athletic Competitions, the Early Morning Swimming Club, the swimming classes, Basketball Leagues, wrestling class, First Aid class and bowling alley competitions. Thanks were tendered to Messrs. Wm. Leech, Sandford Hall, J. I. Allin and John Laing, for trophies which they had presented for competitions.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

Dr. Middleton gave the report of Boys' Department. He referred to the improvements which had been made early in the year to the rooms, and the addition of new furniture, making the Boys' Department more attractive for the boys. A banquet held early in the year had been a great success, the camp had been the most satisfactory ever held. Hikes and outdoor athletics for boys had been well patronized, while the Bible classes and boys' meetings had also been well attended by the boys. The Scouts came in for mention and satisfaction expressed at the growth and satisfactory adjustment of the Scout movement in the city, which had been brought about by the fusion of all the forces into one Peterborough Boys' Scouts. The boys had done good service at Christmas in collecting and distributing presents to the poor and in selling stamps to aid the Muskoka Free Hospital.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The General Secretar's report showed a splendid representation of members in all the departments for the men and boys.

STRENGTHENED MIDGETS WON FROM GRILLERS 7-5

Count at Half Time Was 3-3—Locals Could Not Get Working Together—Strong Checking a Feature of the Midgets' Play.

We woke up Sleepy Hollow, call it Lindsay if you like, and the folks and fans in bunches beat it down the lonesome pike 'Round the corner to the ice works, where the Midgets had full sway, went the crowds and seven Grillers, to be present for the fray. In the rink, the Scugog rooters, white with fear, and dewey eyes, sat and watched us —not one hollered "Here they come, those porridge guys"—for that fateful Friday evening, when the score was 17—3, had the sports and fanettes guessing, what this time the count would be. Shortly after eight it started, "What a cinch," cried "Toothpick" Rae, "let them have a few to start with; ease up, let them get away." So the Grillers took a tumble, but, alas! some took a dive, and the finish saw the Midgets to the front with 7 to 5. Now, it doesn't make no difference, with the boomless town up north, whether Thomas hides forever, or with factories sallies forth, and in years to come the story will be told to youth and dame, of the way the Petes were humbled, and the MIDGETS WON A GAME.

You can't always sometimes tell. It was 7—5 at Lindsay last night, with the Midgets taking the seven. And there was no fluke about the win. The pride of Scugogville had the better of the play just so surely as the Grillers had it when the count was 17—3 on local ice.

But it was a different team that brought Lindsay its first victory, and while that same outfit would never leave Brock street rink, with the medals, they were too big a proposition on their own ice. The half-time figures were 3—3, the Midgets finding the nets for the first two tallies. Capt. Reynolds and his followers were always behind in the second period, but when the score stood 6—5, Peterborough looked likely, even to the redhot rooters of the home team. But it was not to be for work as they would, the Grillers were unable to land the rubber behind Primeau, while another goal was registered at the Patterson end. The struggle in the dying stages of the game was a hard one, and time was called, not any too soon, for the leading team.

The Grillers could not get going, with the small ice and fierce checking against them. Only snatches of combination play were in evidence. Their shooting too was not up to the mark. Patterson had a busy night and got in front of a lot of hot ones, particularly in the second half. Reynolds and Hefferman were marked men, and received strict attention whenever on the puck. The line worked hard at all stages of the game, but with the style of play, could not get working together.

Hall was always looking for an opportunity at his position and made a good showing. Matthews was there strong and gave his check a merry race, while McMartin slipped the rubber out to centre at every chance. Coughlin handled himself well and contributed two tallies.

The Midgets are much stronger than when they played here, the line having been changed by the addition of Callaghan, Begg and Dennison. Primeau, a new man between the nets, was not overworked, but looked good. His support in Norton and Henley was effective throughout the game, the former blocking and rushing nicely. One of his contributions last night was a rink end jaunt and score. Begg and Dennison were the pick of the forwards. Begg doing great work in centre ice.

Two hundred supporters accompanied the Grillers on the special and made up about half of the attendance at the rink. The teams were:

PETERBOROUGH.
Patterson,
Reynolds,
Hefferman,
Coughlin,
McMartin Hall Matthews.
O
Begg, Dennison McConnell,
Callaghan,

LINDSAY.

THE SCORING.

The game commenced in good time and the players in the excitement bunched. The play alternated with Coughlin and Matthews combining, followed with a long shot by Norton. Matthews found the nets, but it was offside. Lindsay drew first blood, Denison counting on a shot following a face-off.

McMartin passed to Coughlin, who shot wide. The play, while exciting, was not the best hockey. Very little open play was on the slate. Individual efforts of both sevens were attempted, but fell by the way. Norton unloaded another of his long shots, Patterson handling it as it turned into a hard roller. McMartin was chased for slashing. Begg rushed the boards and shot wide. In 22 minutes McConnell handed the rubber to Denison and the score was

Lindsay 2, Peterborough 0.

The Grillers' first tally came on a board jaunt and pretty shot by Coughlin in two minutes. Denison got it back in 1.30, and in the same time Matthews made it a brace for his team, shooting in a pass from Hall, who received from Hefferman, who rushed.

Lindsay 3, Peterborough 2.

Mahttews evened up, wiggling through from centre ice and beating Primeau. Time was called with Patterson stopping a hot shot from Denison.

SECOND HALF.

It was up and down after the breathing spell. Dennison, for the Midgets, and Hefferman for the locals, were working hard. Denison went through for a count in 5 minutes and repeated in 4 minutes, from a scramble at the nets, and after which he managed to land on Patterson with his stick. For the offence he was sent to the fence.

Lindsay 5, Peterborough 3.

The next score came on a beautiful rink end rush by Norton, followed by an accurate shot. With the score against them the Grillers still stuck and were going strong. With a slight edge on the play several chances to score went to the bad, but at last Coughlin accepted a pass from McMartin, and it was

Lindsay 6, Peterborough 4.

With Begg and McConnell resting in the penalty box, the Grillers failed to tally. Hall took the next from Hefferman and made the count 6—5.

The 200 or more rooters called for a tieing score, and while the Grillers put up a hard fight, they were unable to respond, and Denison took the seventh goal for his team, and the last of the game.

The summary:—

1—Midgets, Dennison—1.10.
2—Midgets, Dennison—22.00
3—Grillers, Coughlin—2.00
4—Midgets, Dennison—1.30.
5—Grillers, Matthews—1.30
6—Grillers, Matthews—1.03

SECOND HALF.

7—Midgets, Dennison—5.00.
8—Midgets, Dennison—4.00.
9—Midgets, Norton—30 sec.
10—Grillers, Coughlin—4.00
11—Grillers, Hall—3.00.
12—Midgets, Dennison—3.00.

HAL DIRECT AND LEW JEAN IN STRAIGHT HEATS

The second day's program of the winter meet held by the local Turf Club yesterday afternoon, drew a large attendance, and while the racing was not as exciting as on the previous day, the events were interesting. In the free-for-all Hal Direct had little trouble finding the wire for three straights, and in the 2.28 race Lew Jean won in the same manner.

In the second heat of the first race Eddie Jones was thrown to the track, Lulu Chimes finishing the race and two extra laps before being caught.

The first heat saw Orillia Belle and Jones' horse fighting for second place, the latter getting the wire by a close margin. Holland Boy trailed, but went into third place in the second heat. Lulu Chimes started again in the third, but was in no shape.

The standing—

FREE-FOR-ALL

Hal Direct (McPhee, Toronto)	1	1	1
Orillia Belle (Montgomery)	3	2	2
Lulu Chimes (Jones, Peterborough)	2	x	4
Holland Boy (Leach, Peterborough)	4	3	3

Time—2.29, 2.30, 2.30 1-2.

2.28 CLASS.

It was Lew Jean all the time in this event, the Orillia horse leading at all stages. Tom Tariff hanging on closely, apparently satisfied to take second money. Major Direct looked likely in the second heat, but fell back in the stretch.

The standing—

Lew Jean (Powell, Orillia)	1	1	1
Tom Tariff, (Fife, Keene)	2	2	2
Major Direct (Shepherd, Toronto)	3	3	3

Time—2.30, 2.34, 2.26.

KEEN DEBATE LAST NIGHT

At Open Meeting of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild

The Young Men's Guild of St Andrew's church held an open meeting in the Sunday school room last night which was well attended and full of interest.

The president of the Guild, Mr. Wm. Langford, occupied the chair. One of the most appreciated and exciting numbers on the splendid program was a keen debate, two men on a side, or rather, two against one, as one of the negative speakers was ill and could not take part. The subject of the debate was "Resolved, that organized labor has been a benefit to the classes it represents." The battlers for the affirmative were Geo. McDonald and W. A. Richardson, and for the negative W. A. Campbell. Peter Kerr was unable to assist the negative owing to illness. The debate was hotly contested, the judges finally giving the decision to the affirmative.

A splendid musical program was given, including the following numbers—Instrumental duet, Miss Garvin and Miss Shearer; reading, Miss Ballings; instrumental duet, Mrs. P. A. Kerr and Miss King.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the debate by the Daughters of Erin, and the pleasant evening was most enjoyably closed.

Quaint Horoscopes of King George and Queen Mary.

The stars are favorable to a glorious reign by King George and Queen Mary. At least, that is the conclusion come to by the editor of "Modern Astrology," who has been casting the horoscopes of their Majesties. Apparently King George has one defect, however. This is his lack of diplomacy.

"He loves the straight and direct road," says the astrological expert, "and can rely sufficiently upon his own judgment, but this necessary quality of diplomacy will need to be supplied by his admirable wife, whose gift in this direction is shown by the moon in conjunction with Jupiter at her birth. He will suffer from severe headaches at times, also stomachic troubles, but have no real organic disease. He loves temperance, is passionately fond of his children, and firmly believes in spiritual things."

Queen Mary will make an ideal queen. Here is her character and future as indicated by the stars: "The Queen has a strong will and decided opinions, with a quiet, firm, and determined nature. In disposition she lies open, frank, truthful, and self-contained. She is very faithful in all her friendships, constant in her attachments, a shrewd judge of human nature, and rarely deceived in her estimate of the character of others. The poor and all who suffer will be glad to know that Queen Mary's chief concern will be the welfare of her people. A good nurse and an excellent mother, she is sympathetic towards the sorrows of others.

"Queen Mary will in many respects be a remarkable Queen, and the nation is fortunate in having one so capable and competent to help the King through his great responsibilities."

Regarding the young Prince of Wales, it is prophesied that his marriage will take place in his twenty-third year. "He will thus marry under the most favorable auspices," says the same authority, "and will be blessed with a beautiful and good wife. The horoscope denotes exceptional ability, and the mind being so very intuitive and receptive he will absorb knowledge quickly, turning his attention to original and unconventional thought, and cultivating a love of music and the fine arts, also metaphysics and mysticism."

NEWSBOY PROFITS.

A Good London "Pitch" Brings Its Owner Big Returns.

The smart street newspaper-seller usually earns more money than the average clerk or mechanic. This surprising statement was made recently by the head of the publishing department of a well-known London newspaper, who furnished some remarkable figures concerning the profits made by street newsboys, and incidentally revealed a curious feature of the newspaper-selling business.

While there are hundreds of youths who obtain copies of the morning and evening papers direct from the offices and secure the full profits, there are hundreds of others who are supplied by middlemen. That is to say, one man will go down to the office, buy enough papers to supply, say, a dozen youths, jump on his bicycle, and take them to the particular locality in which he has taken a stand or worked up a connection.

A short distance from a certain railway station every morning will be seen a man with piles of the various London newspapers busily engaged in supplying over a dozen boys who stand outside the station to sell the papers. These boys are actually employed by the news vendor, who pays them salaries ranging from $2.50 to $5 a week; and after all expenses are paid he makes a profit of over $15 a week for himself.

"Is it surprising," the publisher remarked, "that youths avoid shop and factory life when, by working from 5 a.m. until 9 p.m., and again, say from 4 or 5 p.m. until 8 or 9 p.m., they can earn between $10 and $15 a week. I am referring now more particularly to the boys who are lucky enough to get pitches outside stations. Of course, there are hundreds of other boys who do not make anything like that amount, but even the youngest reckons on making $2.50 to $3 a week.

"Pitches outside stations are exceedingly valuable, and it is no uncommon thing for a man to pay anything from $100 to $500 for the privilege of selling his papers there. Many of these middlemen scarcely do any work at all. They secure a good pitch, employ an assistant for about $6 a week, and leave the running of the concern to him, and a very profitable business it is, too."

Six prominent suffragettes of Seattle, Wash., formed a jury to try Mrs. Ida Anderson, accused of interfering with a gas meter.

Charged with robbing many post offices in New England, "Count" Otto F. Von Wonstrom, has been arrested by the Philadelphia police.

CANNOT BE ARRESTED.

Ambassadors and Their Servants Are Immune.

Except on felony charges peers of the realm are immune from arrest. If they are arrested for treason or felony they can demand to be tried by their fellow nobles, and should they have the misfortune to be sentenced to death they can exact the use of a silken cord instead of the hempen rope commonly used by the public hangman.

The members and servants of every one of the foreign embassies to the Court of St. James's cannot be touched by British laws, even if they commit murder. The official headquarters of the representatives of foreign powers in London are the territory of the particular country or state which the embassy in question represents. This being so, the laws passed by Parliament and the judges, being operative only in the dominions of the King, have no effect upon the persons residing in the little foreign "countries."

The reason why ambassadors and their servants have this advantage over the average Britisher is that during the reign of Queen Anne a statute was passed by the law makers owing to an imbroglio arising from the seizure of a Russian envoy's effects for debt. This law, which was passed for "the preserving of the privileges of Ambassadors and other public Ministers of foreign Princes and States," has it that any person "presuming to prosecute any writ or process for the arrest or imprisonment of an Ambassador or his domestics shall be deemed a violator of the law of nations."

Though exemption from criminal courts is granted to foreign diplomats and their servants, there is no written law declaring the fact. It is merely a privilege of international law. Immunity from criminal jurisdiction was not always granted to these persons, for it is on record that a secretary of the Portuguese Legation, who was arrested for killing a man in the Royal Exchange, was tried by jury, found guilty, and sentenced to death.

Although it is generally known that the laws of Britain cannot affect in any way the King or any member of his family, most people are not aware that no civil action can possibly lie against the servants of His Majesty, including lords of the bedchamber and other officers of the household. The employes of the King while being immune from arrest, cannot go free if they commit a crime, however. All misdeeds committed within the precincts of the royal palaces and residences are tried by special courts presided over by the Lord Steward, Treasurer, Comptroller, and Master of the Household.

Any crimes committed by the servants at Buckingham Palace are adjudicated on by the Board of Green Cloth, whose powers are limited to a circuit of twelve miles from Whitehall; while the Court of Marshalsea, which dates from the reign of Henry VIII., administers justice between the King's servants at Windsor and elsewhere. Both courts are ruled over by the high officials stated.

Members of Parliament cannot be arrested while actually within the precincts of the Commons, and they are immune while Parliament is in session and for forty days before and after. It will be remembered that in 1888 a Metropolitan police officer made an attempt to arrest a member of the Irish Parliamentary party in Palace Yard. His colleagues were greatly upset at the incident, and the adjournment of the House was moved, a committee being appointed to consider the alleged breach of privilege. The breach was finally affirmed, and the unfortunate officer was severely censured by Parliament.

Barristers on circuit, solicitors engaged on a case, and witnesses in any case are temporarily protected from arrest, and clergymen enjoy the same privilege while actually conducting divine service.

Indian Sedition Trials.

The activity of the Calcutta police in the search for arms continues. One night recently the authorities raided a house in Northern Calcutta, and found two revolvers, some gun barrels, and a quantity of cartridges. The occupants of the house are two Bengali youths, who, however, succeeded in effecting their escape. Information received by the police pointed to this house being the centre of a new conspiracy. Meanwhile the special tribunal is engaged upon the trial of thirteen respectable Bengalis from Khulna, whom the Government charge with conspiracy to wage war against the King. When these proceedings are over, the tribunal will try the sensational Howrah conspiracy case. There are forty-five accused, some of whom are men of wealth and position. All the preliminary hearings will be held in camera. The nature of the charges and also the evidence is unknown.

Dr. Johnson's Fruit Appetite.

No man ever welcomed the return of the fruit season more heartily than did Dr. Johnson. Of strawberries and cream he declared that he could never have enough, though in his later years he devoured enormous quantities of them. A voracious eater at any time, Johnson's appetite for fruits was limitless. Mrs. Thrale says that he used to eat seven or eight peaches before he began his breakfast. Lucy Porter, at Litchfield, used always to keep the best gooseberries on the bushes in her garden until Johnson came down to pick them.

Using Left-Over Apples.

There is money even in poor quality apples, and Australian growers are deriving considerable profit from apples formerly thrown away. An apple-evaporating plant has been introduced, and a new industry started, which last year yielded profit of over $5,000,000. The machines pare and core the apples, which are then sliced into chips and dried. Even the cores and skin peelings are utilised, being exported to France for the manufacture of vinegar, sauces, etc.

GREAT BRITAIN HAS PLENTY OF WEALTH WITH WHICH TO ASSIST HER COLONIES

A splendid and exhaustive review of Great Britain's investments abroad is given in the "Statist" of London, which reads as follows:

"The inhabitants of Great Britain, notwithstanding the limited extent of the natural resources of their own country, and their need to purchase from other lands, and to transport from distant parts of the earth the greater portion of their supplies of food and raw materials have been so successful in overcoming the obstacles placed in their path by nature that they have not only had the means of purchasing all the food, raw materials, and manufactured goods they have needed for their own consumption and maintenance, but they had been able to create so much surplus wealth that they have supplied other nations with visible capital to the extent of nearly $16,000,000,000, as well as with a large amount of private capital, so that the total sum provided is estimated to be upwards of $17,500,000,000. The days of miracles are supposed to have passed, but had anyone predicted two generations ago that in 1910 Great Britain would possess this great wealth abroad, over and above the vastly increased wealth of her people at home, the prediction would have been regarded as beyond the possibility of realization.

THE BRITISH INVESTOR READY WITH FUNDS

That Great Britain has been so successful is undoubtedly due to the enterprize, courage, hard work, and thrift of her people, which have caused them to save money in the first place; and in the second to use it wherever the best results were to be obtained, whether in their own country or in other lands. In fact, wherever capital has been urgently needed and likely to obtain profitable employment, the British investor has been ready to find a large part of the sums required.

Sometimes new railways were urgently needed, sometimes the production of coal required to be expanded, sometimes the copper supply had to be largely increased, sometimes tin, or nitrate, or gold, or silver, or lead or tea, or rubber or oil, or electric power — in fact, British capital was available for producing anything that the world urgently required for its use. The result of this attitude of our investors, has been an increase not only in the wealth of Great Britain beyond the dreams of the most sanguine, but an expansion in the prosperity of the whole world at a rate and in a measure never previously witnessed or possible. The greatness of the work accomplished by the investors of Great Britain cannot fail to impress every impartial person.

WHAT BRITAIN HAS DONE FOR WORLD'S DEVELOPMENT

The lecturer in weighing up the advantages which have occurred from Great Britain's policy of investing capital wherever it was urgently needed said: "In ascertaining the large amounts of capital that Great Britain has supplied to individual colonial and foreign countries one is compelled to recognize the powerful influence which Great Britain has exerted in developing the world's resources by supplying other countries freely with the funds for railway construction for mining, and for the production of every kind of natural wealth. It is no exaggeration to state that Great Britain's enterprise in placing her supplies of new capital wherever they could be profitably employed has been one of the great forces which has made for the increased prosperity of the human race in modern times.

The income directly derived by the British people from their investments abroad now reaches a very large sum. In the paper it is shown that the investment of about $13,500,000,000, of British capital up to the end of 1907 in other lands, gave a direct income of $700,000,000 a year to this country, and it is fair to assume that the investment of nearly $16,000,000,000 gives a return of about $830,000,000 a year, a sum which comes to us in the produce of the countries in which we have invested capital and thus provides us with no inconsiderable part of the supplies of food and raw materials we obtain from abroad.

THE DIRECT AND INDIRECT ADVANTAGES

But the indirect advantages of the capital investments are quite as important as the direct advantages. By means of the capital which our investors have supplied, the young countries and India have so greatly expanded their productions of food and raw materials that they have had the means not only of paying the interest due by them to Great Britain, but of purchasing greatly increased quantities of British goods. The prosperity of Great Britain, which has provided the capital, has been stimulated in three ways.

First, the remittance of capital to other lands has created a greatly increased demands for British goods.

Second, the remittance of the interest upon the capital has increased Great Britain's purchasing power, and has given her the means of paying for a large part of her supplies of food and raw materials.

Third the investment of British capital abroad has greatly increased the production of other countries and given them the means of purchasing additional quantities of British goods.

Mutiny on Italian Ship.

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 18.—Mutiny reigned aboard the Italian ship Cort in Pensacola harbor from Monday noon until two o'clock yesterday afternoon, when peace was restored. It was reported that one of the officers was killed, but this was later denied. An Italian sailor, however, is known to have suffered a fractured skull, and several others were less seriously injured. The mutiny resulted from efforts of the first mate to stop a free for all fight among the sailors. Hatchets and belaying pins were used freely.

A Regiment of Giants.

The awe-inspiring stature of Winnipeg's Highland regiment, which was recently presented with a stand of colors, is not only the subject of pardonable pride on the part of the citizens of the western metropolis, but the provocation of amazement among visitors.

When Gen. Sir John French made his inspection of the battalion, he was accompanied by the most distinguished officers of Canada's militia. Thereby hangs a tale.

Major-General Lessard, each time the companies came swinging by, could not suppress an exclamation of astonishment at their height. Another member of the staff, himself a six-footer, sought to make light of the apparent height of the Highlanders by claiming that their feather bonnets made them look so tall. Captain Ketchen, one of the local officers, however, asked the seventy-two inched visitor to stand up against one of the men. The visiting officer did, and he found himself fully four inches below the gigantic soldier, quite apart from the bonnet, which, to use his own words: "Seemed to be far away above the snow line."

They grow big men on the western plains. "A" company of this regiment does not possess a man less than six feet tall, and there is a liberal sprinkling of giants from six feet three and upwards. This recalls Frederick the Great's regiment of giants.

Crashed Into Bridge.

St. Catharines, Jan. 18.—As the result of a coasting accident which occurred at Thorold, Vincent Battle, son of Matthew Battle of that town, is at the General Hospital suffering from serious internal injuries. He, together with his cousin, Miss Tillie Battle and Miss Alice Dooley of Buffalo, and Leonard Battle, were coasting on the hill, which is quite steep, and had gained good speed, and when a wagon was noticed approaching, the sleigh ran out of its course and crashed into the side of the canal bridge. Battle, who was steering, was rendered unconscious. Miss Dooley sustained a sprained ankle.

MARRIED BY DIVINE WHO BAPTISED THEM

Young Couple Meet at Local Hotel And Are Made Man and Wife —A Unique Ceremony

The parlor of the National Hotel was the scene of a rather unusual wedding ceremony last evening, unusual in the sense that the parties to the event came from different cities and meeting by appointment here. The bride is described as possessed of remarkable beauty, she is the daughter of Mr. Robert Blair, a retired gentleman of Perth, Ont. The groom was Mr. W. H. Roberts, of Kingston, and is a civil engineer, one of the profession so often found figuring as one of the leading figures in popular romance.

As far as is known the contracting parties were unattended. The officiating clergyman was Rev. T. Austin Smith, of Lynn ,Ont., and his presence at the ceremony is more unique, owing to him having baptized the now happy couple when they were wee tots.

The groom is at present connected with a C.P.R. constructing company at Grass Hill.

The couple left on the 8.30 G.T.R. train last night on their wedding tour.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM HUSTLING HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Jan. 17.—After an illness of but brief duration, one of our most highly and respected citizens, Mrs. Matheson, passed away on Sunday morning at three o'clock. The news of her death came as a great shock to the citizens, who were deeply grieved, as deceased had resided in Havelock for many years, during which time she won the love and esteem of a host of friends. She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind, loving mother and devoted wife, her husband, Mr. Wm. Matheson, and six children, Mrs. Davidson and William, of West Toronto; Beatrice and Archie, at home, and George and Harold, residing in the West.

The funeral takes place on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m., services being held at the family residence by the Rev. Jas. Skene, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of which deceased was a lifelong member, and proceed to Pine Grove cemetery for interment.

The floral tributes received were many and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held in this village.

Mr. D. G. Ross and men, of the C.P.R. bridge and building department, West Toronto, have commenced to make the alterations on the station building necessary to the company's interest. The restaurant, with present waiting room, is being moved and placed at the east end of the building, where it will be put in first-class shape with a kitchen adjoining. Since the restaurant has been opened up it has been greatly patronized by the Company's passengers. Other changes are to be made in the building in the way of office for the staff and local officials. The Company's new freight shed, which is indeed a credit to our village, is now open and carrying on business.

Several of our town people attended the public installation of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Royal Lodge, No. 256, on the evening of the 13th, and an enjoyable time was spent by all present.

NEWS ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM NORWOOD VILLAGE

Special to The Review.

Norwood, Jan. 16.—On Thursday afternoon last Mr. Richard Leeper, a well known and highly respected farmer in Asphodel, about two miles east of Norwood, dropped dead of heart failure. Mr. Leeper, assisted by some of his neighbors, had been engaged in killing pigs, and while in the act of stooping over, suddenly reeled and fell forward, and expired instantly. His people, hoping it was only a faint, speedily dispatched one of the boys to bring the doctor. Dr. Pettigrew was soon obtained but when he arrived he pronounced that death must have been almost instantaneous.

Mr Leeper, who had lived in this locality all his life, was well and favorably known. He had followed up the business of threshing for a number of years. He was about 54 years of age.

He leaves a wife and a family of children, the eldest being about 20 years of age.

Mr. Leeper who had been almost a lifelong member of the Orange Order, and a member of the Norwood Lodge, was buried under the auspices of the order. On his bier was placed the sword and emblems of the order.

The funeral on Saturday afternoon to the Norwood cemetery was one of the largest seen in this neighborhood for several years. About 140 vehicles formed the cortege.

COUNCIL MEETING.

At the meeting of the village council last Wednesday evening Village Clerk Jas. Calder laid his resignation on the table. No definite action was taken in the matter, the council requesting Mr. Calder to reconsider his action. He was offered an increase in salary, but Mr. Calder considers he has too much to attend to, and would prefer to sever his connections with the village council. It is hoped, however that Mr. Calder will decide to accept the council's proposal to retain the clerkship at the increase in salary offered. Mr. Calder has been a very valued official, having discharged his duties in a capable and painstaking manner. At the same meeting Mr A. Davidson was appointed village assessor at a salary of $35.

The council also decided to advertise for a village constable and caretaker of the town hall. It is expected the position will be filled at a salary of in the neighborhood of $100 a year.

RINK OPENED.

After considerable delay the Norwood skating rink has been opened under the management of Mr. George McLean. The ice is in good condition and is being enjoyed by the young folks of the village.

Mr Will Puffer, who has been in Havelock, undergoing an operation for appendicitis, has returned to Norwood, and is at the home of his father, Mr. I. Puffer, where he is recovering rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Knox are both very ill at their home in Norwood, and very little hope is entertained for their recovery.

Mr. Hugh Drain, who has been a member of the Norwood School Board for the past few years by appointment of the Asphodel council, has resigned and has been succeeded by Mr. J. R. McKelvie, of Asphodel.

CAVAN AND BETHANY

Cavan, Jan. 17.—The directors of the Cavanville cheese factory met Tuesday, Jan 10th, for the purpose of clearing up the business that was left over from the last session. Despite the various drawbacks that originated during the past year the directors decided to keep the factory open and to endeavor to attain greater efficiency in the production of the manufacturing of both cheese and butter.

The feminine element of Cavanville and district displayed its usual interest in bargain sales on Monday, when in spite of a forty mile gale, that threatened to destroy all within reach, made a pilgrimage down to Millbrook.

Mr. Robt Morton, who recently sold his fine driving mare, has purchased a colt from Mr. Norman McGill.

Norman Lamb, who sold his young mare out of the country last week, and a few days later another mare of his died and now he is bemoaning his of being left with only one horse in the stable.

A moving picture show will visit Cavanville on Jan. 20th, and will give an excellent display of pictures, and as a side line a display of club swinging to all who are inclined to invest ten cents towards an evening's entertainment.

We are not hearing very much of late about this telephone project which was to enable all the farmers around Cavanville to get into direct communication with Millbrook, Peterborough and Toronto. Is the boom dying out? Surely the progressive inhabitants of Cavan township will not allow such a thing to occur.

Mrs. Chris. Sisson called on Mrs. A. B. Kennedy on Wednesday.

Mr. J. W. Gardiner was in Millbrook Thursday and on Saturday he paid a visit to friends in Peterborough.

Miss A. Kennedy visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy on Monday and also on Saturday.

SHORT COURSE IN STOCK AND SEED JUDGING WILL BE HELD HERE JAN. 24-26

The stock and seed judging course to be held in this city on Jan. 24, 25, and 26, promises to be much superior to the one that proved so popular last year. The seed judging session will be conducted in the Market hall on Tuesday morning, by Mr. C. R. Klinck, B. S. A., of the Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. Klinck who is one of Professor Zavitz's most able associates, is bringing specially prepared samples of grain.

Those who attended last year will not soon forget the experience they had in judging oats, and it may be safely predicted that those farmers will bring many others with them to receive instruction from Mr. Klinck.

The judging of Dairy cattle on Tuesday afternoon will be in charge of C. F. Briley, of the Department of Agriculture, and Mr. F. R. Millroy of Frankford. Mr. MacRae of the Live Stock Department of Agriculture, Ottawa will conduct the horse judging classes on Wednesday. Roadsters, single, 15.2 and under, and carriage, single, over 15.2, will be shown on the halter, in the morning. Heavy horses, consisting of brood and two-year-old mares and geldings will be placed before the farmers for judging in the afternoon.

SHEEP JUDGING.

A class of Cotswold sheep, illustrating the long wools, and a class of Shropshires, representing the short wools, will be in the judging ring on Thursday morning. Great interest is being taken in the sheep industry, and Mr. McRae will undoubtedly make this particular session exceedingly valuable.

For the beef cattle, on Thursday, afternoon, a class of Aberdeen-Ayers in addition to shorthorns is expected.

Many farmers drove long distances into the city last year and remained for every session. Each session will be too valuable to miss and no one should neglect the opportunity to take advantage of the excellent free training that may be obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Spalding of Guelph, have celebrated their golden wedding. They have thirteen grand children.

Andrew and Lutzen Finger, brothers, aged 11 and 8, broke through the ice at Matteawan and were drowned.

THE FORESTRY CONVENTION IS OPENED BY EARL GREY

Many Prominent Canadians Present at Congress of Delegates From All Over Canada—Addresses Are Delivered by Premier, Governor-General, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Sir L. Gouin, and Others.

Quebec, Jan. 19.—Hon. Clifford Sifton, whose work as the head of the Conservation Commission has aroused such widespread interest, delivered an excellent address at the afternoon session of the Forestry Association. He chose for his subject the question of "Forestry Problems and Forest Fires." At the outset he pointed out the early difficulties which beset the pioneers in forestry work. Despite the indifference on the part of the public. Mr. Sifton contended that no movement in modern times had made such genuine progress as the conservation of our forests. He told of the early struggles he had to obtain a vote of $15,000 for the establishment of a forestry school in connection with the Department of the Interior. Since the establishment of that school no less than 15,000,000 trees had been planted in the western provinces.

His Excellency, Earl Grey, in opening the meeting dwelt on the beneficial results which had flowed from previous conventions and from the establishment of the Commision of Conservation and from the work of the Canadian Forestry Association. Earl Grey held that as pioneer conditions were now past, wasteful methods of handling forests which were allowable in early times should now be changed; that effort should now be directed to protection of existing forests and to the reproduction of desirable species of trees on lands cut or burned over.

He urged Canadians to be up and doing in order to save this great national heritage. He drew from his own observations in various parts of the world a picture of the dangers which confronted Canada if deforestation was allowed to go on unchecked, while on the other hand he pointed to some of the older countries which are now deriving a permanent and increasing revenue from their forests.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, and Mayor Drouin. Other addresses were delivered by representatives of the various provinces, the United States, the churches, universities, chambers of commerce, manufacturers, etc.

Hon. Clifford Sifton, in his address in his usual vigorous style, said the time for talking was past and that now there should be action. He referred particularly to the loss from fires and the danger of waterpowers being alienated from the people. He pressed for the extending of the fire protection system throughout Canada, and told what had been done in various provinces in this respect.

Hon. Jules Allard, Minister of Lands and Forests for Quebec, dealt with the improvements made in the regulations in the last few years, which had resulted both in increased care of the forest and increased revenue. He took occasion to refute a statement going about that the developed waterpowers of Quebec did not exceed 50,000 horse-power, and showed how large an asset the waterpowers of Quebec were.

R. H. Campbell, Dominion superintendent of forestry, who has charge of all the forest land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and in the 40-mile belt along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia, told of the areas and purposes of the forest reserves in providing timber and fuel for settlers and in protecting the headwaters of streams. This latter was the main purpose of the great reserve formed last year covering the eastern slope of the Rockies. He emphasized the point that the aim was to conserve the benefits of the reserves for all the people, and to this end he said it was necessary to reserve timber lands from settlement, so that the timber might be managed for the benefit of the people generally, and that a permanent policy of management might be carried out.

At the last moment H. S. Graves, chief forester of the United States, was unable to come, but sent one of his lieutenants, J. G. Peters, to take his place.

A letter of regret was also received from Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines for Ontario, spoke of the present conditions in regard to lumbering in Ontario and the change in the methods of sale from the bonus system to the plan of selling at so much per thousand feet on the stump. He also spoke of the reorganization of the fire-fighting service of the province and what had been done in regard to making permanent forest reserves and in extending Algonquin National Park.

Hon. A. K. Maclean, Attorney-General and Commissioner of Lands of Nova Scotia, dealt chiefly with the results of the forest survey of the province during the past two years under the direction of Dr. B. E. Fernow, dean of the faculty of forestry of Toronto University. The purpose of this survey is to show just where the province stands, that measures may be taken to conserve what is left.

Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer, Surveyor-General of New Brunswick, told of the importance of the forests as revenue-producers and the measures that are being taken to protect them, especially from fire.

In the evening the delegates were banqueted by the Government.

The Hand Fireworks Co., of Hamilton, failed in a suit for $656 against individual members of the Montreal carnival Committee, which had been incorporated. [illegible]

WANT LOCAL OPTION ENFORCED

Toronto, Jan. 19.—A local option deputation waited upon Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday afternoon with requests for more rigid enforcement clauses in the law.

Among those present were Rev. G. A. Woodside, Rev. W. J. Cadman, R. D. Little, Wm. Leggett and T. Jameson of Owen Sound; Rev. J. McKenzie and N. B. Allan, Shelburne; Rev. Henry Harper, Orangeville; Rev. J. Buchanan, North Dundalk.

The deputation from Owen Sound asked that the lessee be held responsible for the illegal sale of liquor on his premises. It was stated that an elaborate system of subletting had been evolved there.

Hon. Mr. Hanna said that if the deputation could submit a more effective clause than the present one the Government would adopt it.

Another request was that the right of search be extended to the person of the bartender.

Would the deputation favor going to the extent of the Manitoba Act and endorse unlimited search? asked the Provincial Secretary. The question was not answered.

The deputation asked that all persons providing accommodation for travelers in local option municipalities should be licensed.

Hon. Mr. Hanna pointed out that this might be a hardship, as some residents might be willing to receive acquaintances but not strangers, as they would be compelled to if licensed.

An increased in the penalties was also requested.

EAST PITTED AGAINST WEST

Montreal, Jan. 19.—At its closing meeting here yesterday afternoon the retiring council of the Montreal Board of Trade instructed its transportation officers to appear before the Railway Commission and oppose the application of the Vancouver Board of Trade for a reduction in the rate charged by the C.P.R. from British Columbia coast points to points east of the Rockies in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, so as to place them on an equality with the rates charged to the same points from Montreal, Toronto and eastern points, from which the actual rail haul is longer.

The board bases its opposition on the ground that it is unfair to expect the railway to haul freight across the Rockies for the same money as it receives for the haul across the level prairies.

Want All Night Cars.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19.—The City Council will proceed to pass a bylaw requiring the Winnipeg Electric Railway Co. to operate an all-night service and a full service on Sundays. It is also proposed to build a tunnel route across the town to relieve the congestion of traffic on central city lines.

Queen's Professor Resigns.

Kingston, Jan. 19.—The resignation of Dr. Fred Etherington of Queen's medical staff has been accepted by the faculty. He will take up private practice in Kingston.

PREPARE FOR HOME RULE

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 18.—To-day's Independent says that the government will appoint a committee to investigate Irish finances with a view to establishing a form of home rule, and will appoint a committee of the Cabinet to frame a home rule measure.

Lord Courtney of Denwith, has written to Thomas Sexton, chairman of the Freeman's Journal Company, saying that the time has come to recognize the facts of the matter and prepare for home rule. The write, though a Liberal, has been a Unionist in Irish matters, and heretofore opposed to home rule. In his letter he describes himself as a Unionist in Irish matters, and heretofore opposed to home rule. In his letter he describes himself as a Unionist. He proposes a plan to insure the representation of all elements in the assembly by dividing the country between two or three constituencies each electing five members, and a group of constituencies each returning three members.

WANTS TO HAVE TARIFF LOWERED

Meighen of Portage La Prairie Expounds Policy—N.P. Was Intend For Infant Industries, But Agricultural Implements Can Now Stand Alone, He Says.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—Arthur Meighen (Portage la Prairie) introduced his resolution calling for a reduction in the duties on agricultural implements in the House of Commons yesterday, thereby discounting the attitude of W. E. Knowles (Moose Jaw), a Liberal, whose notice on the order paper last year prevented other members from bringing up this question. Mr. Meighen made a careful and well-thought-out speech. His arguments were conclusive, and the statistics he offered were from Government returns.

Mr. Knowles, on the other hand, made a weak, almost apologetic reply. It is interesting to note that after Mr. Meighen had concluded his remarks, Hon. John Haggart, one of the Conservative old guard, left his place in the front, and went to Mr. Meighen's desk, congratulating him with the words, "Well done, old boy, well done." There was no division, and the subject will probably go to the foot of the order paper. It is doubtful when it will come up for final disposition.

In his opening sentences Mr. Meighen said there was no member on either side of the House who would not be compelled to admit the necessity for a sane protective scheme in Canada. The one exception, he remarked facetiously, was the member for Red Deer, Dr. Michael Clarke, an exotic plant, who by assiduous care was able to keep alive his free trade beliefs.

After referring to the policy of the Government on trade matters, Mr. Meighen said: "The gravest charge which I will always hold against this Government is that they preach a doctrine in which they have no real belief."

A second charge was that in attempting to continue the national policy, they had overlooked the guiding principle that, as the manufacturing industries developed and acquired a hold on the home market, it was essential that duties should be reduced in order to meet changed conditions. The Government, he thought, had become a slave to those who placed it in power and maintained it there.

Taking history for witness Mr. Meighen quoted from speeches of Sir John Macdonald and Hon. Geo. E. Foster to show that it was the intention of the founders of the national policy to give Canadian manufacturers a reasonable hold upon the home market before reducing the tariff. When in 1894 the tariff on agricultural implements was reduced from 35 to 20 per cent., Mr. Foster contended that the intention of the then Government was to create a condition that would tax the ingenuity of the manufacturers to retain the home market.

Mr. Meighen contended that one reason for the reduction of duties was that the manufacturers of agricultural implements were in a unique position, the exports being five to one, compared with the imports, and with one exception the exports exceeded the imports of any industry in Canada.

Proceeding, Mr. Meighen showed that the tariff on agricultural implements was not a revenue tariff. The revenue from that source was trifling in relation to the total customs revenue, and to that collected on other and much less important manufactures, it being only $283,633, or if plows were excepted, which represented the largest import item of agricultural implements, the duty under this head was only $92,974. Then, if the relation of imports to exports was the same throughout, the revenue from customs from this class, instead of being $61,000,000, would be under $19,000,000 which was obviously no tariff for revenue.

W. E. Knowles (Lib., Moose Jaw), replied to Mr. Meighen. He advanced the argument that binders, for instance, had increased in value since 1896, which accounted for the increased valuation.

Mr. Knowles said that, like Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he was a believer in free trade ideas as they have it in England. It would be impossible to have such a policy in Canada. He preferred the Government's policy in regard to the tariff to that of the Opposition. He had no quarrel with the present resolution, but why did Mr. Meighen ask for a reduction on duties on all commodities which the agriculturists required?

He then proceeded to deal with the question generally. It was about time, he said, that the infant industries of the country were able to stand by themselves. One of the infant industries was able to go to the United States and spend three million dollars in the purchase of a factory. This would indicate that the time had arrived when they should be able to go out and meet the competition of the world. But the manufacturers seemed to regard protection as a divine right.

Mr. Knowles, continuing, believed that the best policy for Canada at the present time was a tariff for revenue. A lower tariff would bring a larger revenue. The Government in the past had made considerable reductions in the tariff, and he hoped for further reductions in the future.

R. S. Lake (Qu'Appelle) said that, while Mr. Knowles had made a free trade speech, he had been careful to refrain from saying that he would support Mr. Meighen's motion.

It was almost six o'clock, but John Herron (Macleod) was able to place himself on record in favor of the resolution. He would have been pleased if it had gone farther, because he was of the opinion that the time had arrived when all the duty should be taken off binders, mowers and such articles, which are successfully sold in foreign countries against competition."

JOHN REDMOND IS PRESIDENT

Dublin, Jan. 19.—John E. Redmond, who was yesterday unanimously re-elected president of the United Irish League; T. P. O'Connor, Joseph Devlin and Daniel Boyle, the Irish members of Parliament who visited the United States and Canada last October for the purpose of arousing interest in the cause of home rule, were the guests of honor last evening at a dinner at the Mansion House, arranged as a compliment for the success of their mission across the sea.

During the course of his speech Mr. Redmond declared that the veto power of the House of Lords would be abolished before the coronation, without the creation of the new peers. He said that so long as the Liberals abided by their pledges on the veto and home rule questions, the Irish party would support them, without regard to any minor issues, but, he added, the smallest deviation would mean instant change in the party's attitude. He did not object to the home rule bill being so drafted as to fit in with a larger plan.

THE DEATH OF BARRIE GIANT

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Arthur Thomson, one of the tallest men in America, and well-known in Ontario, his parents residing at 40 Stafford street, Toronto, is dead as a result of a fall on an icy pavement in Buffalo. His skull was fractured.

Mr. Thomson, who was 7 feet 4 inches high and weighed 280 pounds, was born in Barrie in 1882, and was known professionally as "Col. William Baker" and "Texas Baker."

Both his father and mother are of ordinary size, and when he was six years of age he was like any other child. But after six he grew steadily, and during the 14th year he broke the record by growing 11 inches in seven months.

He did not stop growing until he reached the height of 7 feet and 4 inches, and at the time of his death weighed in the neighborhood of 280 pounds. He was in his 30th year.

Praised By Jews.

New York, Jan. 19.—The delegates to the 22nd council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in session here, voted unanimously yesterday afternoon to hold the next conference at Cincinnati in 1913.

At the dinner last night the delegates listened to addresses by Theodore Roosevelt, Mayor Gaynor, Oscar Straus, Dr. David Phillipson of Cincinnati and Jacob H. Schiff, who also acted as toastmaster. Governor Dix sent a telegram of greeting.

Col. Roosevelt, as the guest of honor, was praised by the toastmaster as "one who more than any other American, living or dead, has taught the world the lesson that, equally with any other citizen of this country, the Jew is entitled to the square deal."

THE FOLDED PAPER FRAUD WAS USED, SAYS TRAVERS

Revelations of Convicted Manager of Farmers' Bank Are to the Effect That W. J. Lindsay Got People to Sign What They Believed to Be a Petition for Formation of Bank—Further Warrants Expected.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—For the first time in days there were no public developments in the Farmers' Bank case yesterday. This does not mean that there was nothing doing for all day long the bank offices was busy with the preparation of facts which will to-day be formulated into further charges in connection with the dissipation of the funds of the bank. Whether these informations which are to be laid will be followed by warrants or summonses is not known, but it is understood that at least one man prominent in the city's business affairs will be charged with implication in the crash.

For days it has been known that the former general manager, W. R. Travers, has stood ready to make a full and exhaustive disclosure of the doings of himself and co-conspirators since the bank's beginning and last night it became known that he had already made many statements involving W. J. Lindsay and others.

Travers declares that many of the subscriptions to stock which were obtained by Lindsay, were secured by a direct fraud. He says that one of the methods of doing this was to secure signatures to a paper which purported to be merely a petition for the formation of a bank, but which was folded in such a way that the unwitting signer bound himself to take quantities of the stock of the bank. Travers declares that in his desk at the bank's office are many complaints from those who were thus fooled and that some were bluffed into carrying [illegible] contract to purchase shares so fraudulently secured while others who were prepared to make a finish fight of it were allowed to withdraw.

IS WANTED IN NEW YORK CITY

Montreal, Jan. 19.—At the request of William Horwitz and furriers of New York, William Sorea was arrested here Tuesday night by Detective Le Huquet, charged with obtaining, under false pretences, goods valued at about $20,000.

The Superior Court has been appealed to for a writ of seizure against Sorea, naming the Royal Bank and the Montreal Auction Store as Tiers-Saisis. The contention is that under the assumed names of William McKeen and William Goldberg, the accused deposited moneys in the bank, and consigned some of the goods obtained by him fraudulently.

WOMEN BARRED FROM THIS TRIAL

Wheeling, W.Va., Jan. 19.—All women and children will be barred hereafter from the trial of Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk. This was announced by Judge Jordan in court yesterday after a great deal of testimony unfit to print had been given in examination by medical witnesses.

Among those excluded from the court room by order of Judge Jordan was a fifteen-year-old girl, who had stood before the court room door nearly an hour waiting admission before court convened. Three boys were also banished from the room despite their protests that they were old enough to attend.

There was an imposing line-up of medical and scientific men upon the prosecution's side of the counsel tables when the trial was resumed, six doctors and chemical experts being seated beside Prosecuting Attorney Handlan.

Mrs. Schenk showed few traces of worry over blows of the day before against the defence when she hurried into the room. She engaged in a ten-minute conference with her attorneys and seemed cheerful over the day's outlook.

Dr. L. E. Burns, an expert diagnostician, who answered a 1,500 word hypothetical question on Tuesday by declaring under oath that Schenk had been poisoned, was the first witness called to the stand.

His cross examination was immediately commenced by counsel for Mrs. Schenk, and the testimony adduced was mostly of a technical nature.

"In your opinion was the blue line on Schenk's gums caused by lead poison in the system?" Dr. Ackermann was asked.

"Yes."

"Why did you instruct Mr. Schenk to take meals only at the hospital and none from his home?"

"I reasoned that lead poison could only come from his home."

SOME CHURCH UNION

The Presbyterians and Methodists in Alberta have held a meeting, and have arranged to prevent overlapping in the missionary field in the province In villages of two or three hundred people, where there is not population enough to support churches of each denomination, the interdenominational committee will arrange to have but one church, which can be properly supported. This economising of missionary effort cannot but be helpful, since the usual overlapping is but a waste of energy and money. In things practical and concrete the Methodists and Presbyterians are not far apart. It is only in the theoretical, the dogmatic aspects of the creeds, that there is real difference, and, perhaps, in a disposition on the part of the Methodists to be more democratic. But in aim and purpose the two denominations are one. Such a consolidation of labor is a little bit of church union in advance, and, from economic value, should be generally adopted. This is an age of saving in labor in wiping out useless overlapping, except where important principles make it necessary. The western movement means the lessening of missions continually needing money from older Canada for support, and will enable that money to be used in extending the work into virgin territory.

The scheme provides for the division of the province into nine districts, and joint local committees, composed of two laymen from each denomination, two ministers and two superintendents. All plans for work in any district must be submitted to the committee of that district, and wherever desirable the work of the two churches will be amalgamated. A provincial body is provided for, to have the power to veto the action of any district committee.

THE TARIFF DICKER

The reports emanating from Washington these days speak of an agreement practically reached with regard to certain items intended for the free list. While no information has been allowed to leak out, and none will be given for some time, as to what these articles are, it is assumed that they include free entry for some Canadian farm produce into the United States. This is about the only kind of a reciprocity treaty that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government can put through and hope to retain its existence. It has recognised all along that to remove the tariff wall that enables Canadian manufacturers to retain the home market very largely, would be a disastrous move for Canada's welfare, and it is too much to expect that even the Laurier Cabinet—foolish as it may appear to many Canadians in its business policies—would knowingly injure the prosperity of Canada.

The intimation given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier when the manufacturers presented their memorial, that there would be very little change affecting them, makes it certain that the negotiations at Washington have had to deal with natural products. The United States desires, not so much to get at the Canadian market of eight million people—which after all, is a comparatively small thing with them—but to get our raw material with which to keep the home factories moving for the home market. The clamor against the high cost of living has made it desirable that there should be admitted from Canada, free of duty, much farm produce, except, possibly some of the grains, and such a move would be popular with all but some of the border farmers of the west.

New England desires to get Nova Scotia coal, while Ontario wants Pennsylvania coal. These two items may be set off against each other. The newspaper publishers will force the United States sooner or later, to take off all restrictions against the free entry of wood pulp and, possibly, paper, and it is likely that the United States negotiators have done this, although trying to present it in the guise of a concession. It is no concession to Canada particularly, but a move in the interests solely and purely, of the great publishing concerns of the United States. The fact that the control of pulp lands is entirely within the control of the province, ties the hands of the Canadian commissioners in making any concessions in this item, but Canada may have given a concession in the reduction of duty on something not manufactured here, and which has to be imported. This hurts no one; interferes only with revenue.

For the good of the Canadian people it is to be hoped that the happy disposition exhibited by the Washington negotiators does not portend a victory for American sharpness at making a deal. The result of the negotiations will not be made known until it is presented simultaneously to the Senate and to Parliament, and plenty of opportunity will be afforded for free discussion before the ratification of the agreement, if it is ratified by the American Senate.

CANTEEN FOR NAVY

The Halifax Herald is authority for the statement that a canteen is to be opened in Halifax navy yard, in connection with the "temperance" navy. If this is so, the temperance people of the Dominion will have some vigorous things to say.

When the navy scheme was held forth for the admiring gaze of the world, it was proclaimed that the "Niobe was a temperance ship with a temperance crew." The temperance people patted their backs with a great deal of satisfaction, and thought that having a navy wasn't such a bad idea after all, when it was a temperance affair.

The establishment of the canteen in one of the buildings of the navy yard means that the crew of the Niobe, as well as the crews of any other great "leviathans of war" that Canada purchases second-hand, can get their booze just as if a saloon were around the corner.

Sad but it's a fact! Now, will the temperance people arise in their wrath, or will they figure out that as far as the navy's sailors are concerned it is a case of having either the booze or the blues.

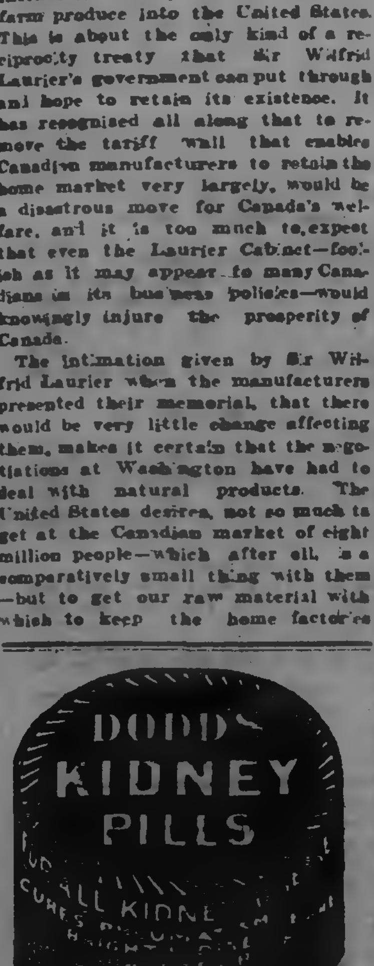
Twenty-five Japanese are sentenced to die for conspiring against the life of the emperor. Didn't we read a lot of slush a few years ago about the intense loyalty, the idol worship of the Japanese for their emperor!

Henry Bourassa approves of the choice of the Duke of Connaught as Governor General, saying that it will please the French-Canadians. Of course, since that seems to be the chief object in politics these days, the move must be regarded as very diplomatic.

A British court has declared it slanderous to say of a society woman that she was extravagant. It's rather a queer ruling. Extravagance is spending more money than your circumstances will warrant. As a rule being in society means going the pace in appearances, which is certainly often extravagance. It's rather hard for a layman to figure out where the slander comes in. Most people would rather be called extravagant than be called miserly.

Figures on divorce given in the Senate show that since divorce courts were established in England in 1857, the increase in marriage annulments has been tremendous; that in the United States it has been phenomenal, being one divorce for every twelve marriages; that in France since the establishment of divorce courts, the decrees granted threatened to outstrip the United States in number. In Canada the divorce court will come. Human nature is becoming less prone to put up with disagreeable things. The marriage vows are taken more lightly. But in Canada let the evil day be postponed as long as possible.

The Toronto Star wonders why the Canadian manufacturers have not made attempts to get at the American market, why they do not seek to sell to 90,000,000 people, instead of 8,000,000. Has the Star man ever tried to pass Canadian money in Chicago, or even Detroit and Buffalo, situated right on the border? If Canadians have trouble passing their good money to United States merchants, would it be easy to sell Canadian goods in competition with United States manufacturers? As a rule the Americans will buy Canadian goods only when they have to, and Canadian manufacturers would have to undersell the American manufacturers considerably to make any impression on the American market. Canadians will be able to sell farm products, natural products to the United States, but the day when Canadian manufactures will be bought by Americans under equal conditions, in preference to their own, is a long way off. Canada has little to hope for in this line of business at present.



WORKED WONDERS IN THIS CASE

Rheumatism And Weak Heart Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

The Doctor Helped Mrs. Stephen Roy, But There Was no Complete Cure Till She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills

Rock Mills, Grey Co., Ont., Jan. 18—(Special)—"I must say Dodd's Kidney Pills worked wonders in my case," says Mrs. Stephen Roy of this place. "I suffered with Inflammatory Rheumatism in my right arm, and though I tried several remedies the swelling increased and was very painful. My hands and limbs were also badly swollen.

"I got a doctor and he helped me, but the swelling never entirely left. He said it was because my heart was weak. Then I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and, as I said before, they worked wonders."

Rheumatism of any kind is caused by disordered Kidneys failing to strain the uric acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it by curing the Kidneys. They also cure the weak heart by making pure blood and lessening that organ's work of propelling the blood through the body.

Dodd's Kidney Pills only cure the Kidneys, but they always do that. And with healthy Kidneys you can't have Rheumatism, Lumbago, Heart Disease, Dropsy or Bright Disease.

Her Gain—His Loss.

"Lady," said the fortune-teller, shuffling the cards for the fifteenth time, "in addition to there being something for the house, a little money, a letter, and something better, the Fates decree that you will visit foreign lands, that you will mingle in the court life of kings and queens, and that, conquering all rivals, you will marry the man of your choice—a tall, dark, handsome gent, of distinguished ancestry—in fact, a peer of the realm."

"Will he be young?" queried the fair visitor, clasping her hands together eagerly.

"Young," fawned the fortune-teller, "and rich."

Excitedly, the fair visitor clutched the seer's arm.

"But how," she cried, "am I to get rid of my present husband?"

A True Gift For Fiction.

In a New Brunswick village a town character who preferred emphasis to the verities was a witness in a petty trial involving an auger. He positively identified it as the property of the parties to the suit.

"But," asked the attorney for the other side, "do you swear that you know this auger?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" he continued.

"I have known that auger," said the witness, impressively, "ever since it was a gimlet."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will make a statement in Parliament to-day concerning the fisheries regulations.

Hudson Bay Railway Offers to Run.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—A telegram was received Tuesday by Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, from Charles M. Hays, president of the G.T.R., containing an offer to negotiate with the Government respecting the Hudson Bay Railway. While no terms were mentioned, it is surmised that the Grand Trunk Pacific would desire a lease similar to the one under which it will operate the National Transcontinental.

A similar offer, it is said, has already been received from the C.N.R., and it is hoped that these terms may be received from one of the other companies. The present proposition contemplates the construction of a line by the G.T.R. from Saskatoon to the Pas Mission.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

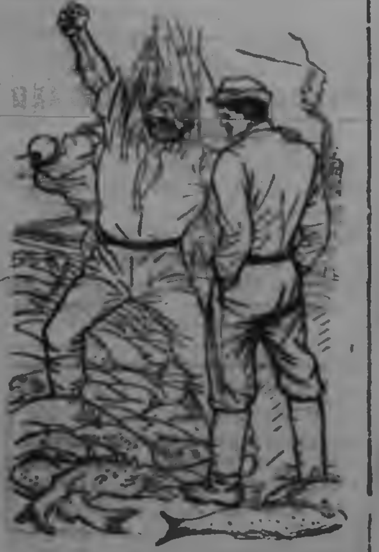
COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Half blinded with anger, he stumbled down the ladder to his launch.

"Back to the plant!" he ordered, then gazed with lowering brows and defiant eyes at the Grande Dame as she rested swanlike and serene at her moorings. His anger against Mildred's father destroyed for the time all thought of his disappointment at her own lack of understanding and her cool acceptance of his failure. He saw only that his affairs had reached a final climax when he must bow to the inevitable or—Big George's parting words came to him—strike one last blow in reprisal.

It was the hour of his darkest despair—the real crisis in his life. There are times when it rests with fate to make a strong man stronger or turn him altogether to evil. Such a man will not accept misfortune tamely. He is the reverse of those who are good through weakness. It is his nature to sin strongly.

But the unexpected happened, and Boyd's black mood vanished in amazement at the sight which met his eyes. Moored to the fish dock was a lighter awash with a cargo that made him stare and doubt his vision. He had seen his scanty crew of gill netters return empty handed with the rising sun, exhausted, disheartened, depleted in numbers, yet there before him were thousands of salmon. They were strewn in a great mass upon the dock and inside the shed, while from the scow beneath they came in showers as the handlers tossed them upward from their "pues." Through the wide doors he saw the backs of the butchers busily at work over their tables and heard the uproar of his cannery running full for the first time.



"WE'VE WON, MY BOY! WE'VE WON!"

Before the launch had touched he had leaped to the ladder and swung himself upon the dock. He stumbled into the arms of Big George.

"Where—did those—fish come from?" he cried breathlessly.

"From the trap." George smiled as he had not smiled in many weeks. "They're struck in like I knew they would, and they're running now by the thousands. I've fished these waters for years, but I never seen the likes of it. They'll tear that trap to pieces. They're smothering in the pot, tons and tons of 'em, with millions more milling below the leads because they can't get in. It's a sight you'll not see once in a lifetime."

"That means that we can run the plant—that we'll get all we can use?"

"Say, we've got fish enough to run two canneries. They've struck their gait, I tell you, and they'll never stop now, night or day, till they're through. We don't need no gill netters. What we need is butchers and slimers and handlers. There never was a trap site in the north till this one. I told Willis Marsh that years ago." He flung out a long, hairy arm, bared half to the shoulder, and waved it exultantly. "We built this plant to cook 40,000 salmon a day, but I'll bring you 3,000 every hour, and you're got to cook 'em. Do you hear?"

"And they couldn't cork us after all!" Emerson leaned unsteadily against a pile, for his head was whirling.

"No! We'll show that gang what a cannery can do. Marsh's traps will rot where they stand." Big George shook his tight clinched fist again. "We've won, my boy! We've won!"

"Then don't let us stand here talking!" cried Emerson sharply. "Hurry! Hurry!" He turned and sped up the dock.

He had come into his own at last, and he vowed with tight shut teeth that no wheel should stop, no belt should slacken, no man should leave his duty, till the run had passed. At the entrance to the throbbing, clanging building he paused an instant and with a smile looked toward the yacht floating lazily in the distance. Then, with knees sagging beneath him from weariness, he entered.

CHAPTER XIX.

"I'VE heard the news!" cried Cherry later that afternoon, shrieking to make herself heard above the rattle and jar of the machinery.

"There seems to be a Providence that watches over fishermen," said Boyd.

"I am happy, for your sake, and I want to apologize for my display of temper. Come away where I won't have to scream so. I want to talk to you."

"It is music to my ears," he answered as he led her past the rows of Chinamen bowed before their soldering torches as if busied with some heathen rites. "But I'm glad to sit down just the same. I've been on my feet for thirty-six hours."

"It's too much for one man," she declared.

"Oh, I'll sleep tomorrow."

"Did you see—her?" questioned Cherry.

"Yes!"

"She must be very proud of you," she said wistfully.

"I—I—don't think she understands what I am trying to do or what it means. Our talk was not very satisfactory."

"She surely must have understood what Marsh is doing."

"I didn't tell her that."

"Why not?"

"What good would it have done?"

"Why"—Cherry seemed bewildered—"she could put a stop to it; she could use her influence with her father against Marsh. I expected to see your old crew back at work again. Oh, I wish I had her power!"

"She wouldn't take a hand under any circumstances—it wouldn't occur to her—and naturally I couldn't ask her." Boyd flushed uncomfortably. "Thanks to George's trap, there is no need." He went on to tell Cherry of the scene with Mr. Wayland and its stormy ending.

"They have used all their resources to down you," she said, "but luck is with you, and you mustn't let them succeed. Now is the time to show them what is in you. Go in and win her now against all of them."

He was grateful for her sympathy, yet somehow it made him uncomfortable.

"What was it you wished to see me about?" he asked.

"Oh! Have you seen Chakawana?"

"No."

"She disappeared early this morning soon after the yacht came in. I can't find her anywhere. She took the baby with her, and—I'm worried."

"Doesn't Constantine know where she is?"

"Why, Constantine is down here, isn't he?"

"He hasn't been here since yesterday."

Cherry rose nervously. "There is something wrong, Boyd. They have been acting queerly for a long time."

Just then Constantine came sauntering round the corner of the building.

"Thank heaven!" cried Cherry. "He will know where the others are."

But when his mistress questioned him Constantine merely replied: "I don' know. I no see Chakawana."

"There is something queer about this," said Emerson. "Where have you been all day?"

"I go sleep. I tired from fighting last night. I come back now and go work. Bime'by Chakawana come back, too, I guess."

"Well, I don't need you tonight, so you'd better go back to Cherry's house and stay there till I send for you."

As she passed Marsh's cannery Cherry saw a tender moored to the dock and noticed strangers among the buildings. They stared at her curiously, as if the sight of a white girl attended by a copper hued giant were part of the picturesqueness they expected. As she drew near her own house she saw a woman approaching, and while yet a stone's throw distant she recognized her. A jealous tightening of her throat and a flutter at her breast told her that this was Mildred Wayland.

Cherry would have passed on silently, but Miss Wayland checked her.

"Pardon me," she said. "Will you tell me what that odd looking building is used for?" She pointed to the village church.

"That is the Greek church."

"How interesting! Are there many Greeks here?"

"No. It is a relic of the Russian days. The natives worship there."

"Do you live here?"

"Yes. In the log house yonder."

"Indeed! I tried to find some one there, but—you were out, of course. You have it arranged very cozily, I see." Mildred's manner was faintly patronizing. She was vexed at the beauty and evident refinement of this woman whom she had thought to find so different.

"If you will go back I will show it to you from the inside, Miss Wayland." Cherry enjoyed her start at the name and the look of cold hostility that followed.

"You have the advantage of me," said Mildred. "I did not think we had met. You are"— She raised her brows inquiringly.

"Cherry Malotte, of course."

"I remember. Mr. Marsh spoke of you."

"I am sorry."

"I beg your pardon?"

"I say I am sorry Mr. Marsh ever spoke of me."

Mildred smiled frigidly. "Evidently you do not like him."

"Nobody in Alaska likes him. Do you?"

"You see, I am not an Alaskan."

"Do you know that Mr. Marsh is to blame for all of Boyd's misfortunes?"

"Boyd's?"

"Yes, Boyd's, of course. Oh, let us not pretend. I call him by his first name. I think you ought to know the truth about this business, even if Boyd is too chivalrous to tell you."

"If Mr. Emerson blames any one but himself for his failure I am sure he would have told me."

"Then you don't know him."

"I never knew him to ask another to defend him."

"He never asked me to defend him. I merely thought that if you knew the truth you might help him."

"I? How?"

"It is for you to find a way. He has met with opposition and treachery at every step. I think it is time some one came to his aid."

"He has had your assistance at all times, has he not?"

"I have tried to help wherever I could, but—I haven't your power."

Mildred shrugged her shoulders. "You even went to Seattle to help him, did you not?"

"I went there on my own business."

"Why do you take such an interest in Mr. Emerson's affairs, may I ask?"

"It was I who induced him to take up this venture," said Cherry proudly. "I found him discouraged, ready to give up. I helped to put new heart into him. I have something at stake in the enterprise, too—but that's nothing. I hate to see a good man driven to the wall by a scoundrel like Marsh."

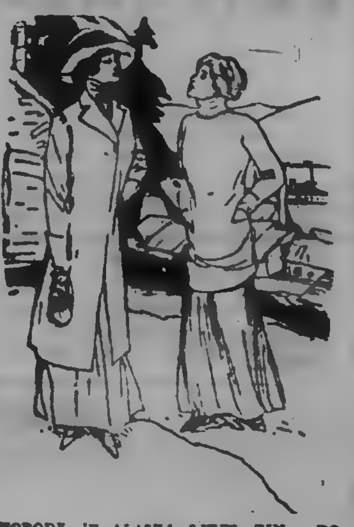
"Wait! There is something to be said on both sides. Mr. Marsh was magnanimous enough to overlook that attempt upon his life."

"What attempt?"

"You must have heard. He was wounded in the shoulder."

"Didn't Boyd tell you the truth about that?"

"He told me everything," said Mildred coldly. This woman's attitude was unbearable. It would seem that she even dared to criticise her, Mildred Wayland, for her treatment of Boyd.



"NOBODY IN ALASKA LIKES HIM. DO YOU?"

"I shall ask him about it again this evening," she continued. "If there has really been persecution, as you suggest, I shall tell my father."

"You won't see Boyd this evening," said Cherry.

"Oh, yes, I shall."

"He is very busy, and—I don't think he can see you."

"You don't understand. I told him to come out to the yacht!" Mildred's temper rose at the light she saw in the other woman's face.

"But if he should disappoint you?" Cherry insisted. "Remember that the fish are running, and you have no time to lose if you are going to help."

Mildred tossed her head. "To be frank with you, I never liked this enterprise of Boyd's. Now that I have seen the place and the people—well, I can't say that I like it better."

"The country is a bit different, but the people are much the same in Kalvik and in Chicago. You will find unscrupulous men and unselfish women everywhere."

Zam-Buk Will Give Ease in One Night

For badly chapped hands, cold cracks, frost bite, etc., Zam-Buk is the best known balm. Wash the hands or part affected in water as hot as can be borne. Dry with a soft towel, and then smear the Zam-Buk well over the part. If it is the hands, wear a pair of old gloves overnight by morning the pain will be gone. Then use Zam-Buk a few more times and the cracks will be healed. Mrs. A. P. Phillips, of Ayers Cliff, Que., says: "I suffered terribly from chapped hands. At times my hands were so sore that I could almost have cried with the pain. I thought I would try Zam-Buk and see what that wonderful healing balm would do for me. I obtained a supply, and in a very short time my hands were cured."

Mrs. W. M. Patient, of Port Hawkesbury, N. S., writes: "Some time ago my hands were very badly chapped. Ordinary ointments did not heal them, and I was advised to try Zam-Buk. To my great delight, it healed my hands in a remarkably short time."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co. on receipt of price.

The "House Fly."

The reminiscent man suddenly found a gap in the conversation.

"I was in Kansas once," he began, "when one of those old time cyclones struck the town. I happened to be in my brother's house at the moment and heard the roar of the coming wind. I knew enough to run out in the street and lie down in the gutter with my arms clasped around a hitching post. The next moment the cyclone hit the town. Say, you ought to have seen the house fly."

"Did you swat it?" inquired the mean man on the soap box.

And the story promptly ended.—Denver News.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision; and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

IMPROVEMENTS TO PUMP HOUSE ROOF SUGGESTED

At the Expense of the Water Commission—City Water is Pure Reports Medical Health Officer—Accounts Certified

The Water Commission met yesterday afternoon. T. F. Matthews presided and W. H. Hill and W. H. Moore were also present.

The secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Kennedy, C.E., for particulars of an item in the Bishop Construction Company's account of $1,832.14 for lumber.

WATER NOT INFECTED.

A report of the condition of the city water for November and December was presented by Dr. McPherson, M.H.O. He stated that the water was free from infection during those months.

A letter was read from R. B. Rice and Sons, offering for sale the residence of the late John Carnegie, adjoining the power house.

THAT TROUBLESOME ROOF.

A short time ago the commission wrote the Bishop Construction Co. that the leaking roof of the pump house at the dam would have to be repaired. A reply was read from the company that the fault was with the design of the roof, which was secured from a reputable firm. The company thought improvements should be made to the roof, and that a special order would have to be issued for these, as the roofing had been done according to contract.

ACCOUNTS CERTIFIED.

The following accounts will be paid:—

G.N.W. Telegraph Co.	73
Trebilcock Bros.	11.55
H. T. Millard	2.75
A. Hall	75
Jones Bros.	3.50
Bell Telephone Co.	47.00
R. Gibbs	9.00
Peterborough Examiner	18.50
George Mitchell	28.33
John Halpin	202.60

Waterworks Superintendent Henderson was instructed to make a bill of the material taken from the old dam with an estimate of the value of the material removed.

THE REPLY WAS COURTEOUS SAYS REV. CANON DAVIDSON

(Denies That Rev. Father McColl Wrote Unfriendly Letter)

The following article appeared in the "Times" this morning—

That the world-wide disturbance in religious circles is having its effect on Peterborough is made plain from the tenor of a reply of which "The Times" has heard, made by the Rev. Father McColl to the Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's. It appears that a few days ago the Canon invited the Ministerial Association of this city to dine with him. He had also sent a courteous and well-meant note of invitation to Father McColl to be his guest, but instead of accepting or declining the invitation to dine in the way customary on such occasions, the worthy priest "came back at him" in a letter that left no doubt of what he meant in the minds of those present. Among other things the Rev Father McColl said that "There can be no compromise between the men in the Church and those outside of it. The warfare between the two will be one also in which kid gloves will play no part."

This attitude of attack was considered to show what we "may expect." The attack on Modernism is evidently extending to Peterborough.

Rev. Canon Davidson, on being spoken to by the Review, said he had not read the article in the "Times," but he stated it was evident that a very great mistake had been made. He had received a most courteous reply from Father McColl, he said, and he was at a loss to understand how such information as that which was published in the "Times" had reached the paper.

LIGHT WINTER FOR THE RELIEF DEPARTMENT

The demands upon the relief department of the city, continue to remain light, and the indications are that this winter will go down on the books of the Charity Board as a record one.

Practically all the cases before the Relief Officer other than the regulars, are local, that is, the city is not being called upon to support families who have come here to make a home. The majority of the new comers learned their lessons in the first winter, and it is rarely the relief officer is called upon for assistance.

He receives some funny requests, one of recent date coming from a home, where the father and mother are working. They wanted a doctor and really thought the department ought to send one. Another request is from a man, employed in a factory, who asks for assistance as his wages must go towards the payment of debts.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

At Miss Blodgett's Classes at the Y. W. C. A.

The Bible character study classes being conducted at the Y.W.C.A. are growing daily in number and interest. Miss Blodgett has a most attractive and impressive personality, and her words are spoken with deep earnestness and power. Miss Blodgett spoke on "Ruth" yesterday afternoon before a large audience of men and women.

The character to be studied to-morrow will be "Hannah." All who have not yet heard Miss Blodgett should hear her to-morrow.

The Public School Work Class will meet at 7.30 this evening at the Y.W.C.A. Miss Woo will be pleased to welcome new pupils.

Dr. M. McCulloch will meet with his "Home Nursing Class" to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, when new members may enroll.

NO. 5 COMPANY MADE MERRY

Officers and Men Held Social Evening at Their Quarters

No. 5 Company held a social evening at the Armouries last evening when plans, etc., for the coming drill season were discussed. After spending some time bowling and in the shooting gallery, the men and officers adjourned to the company quarters and spent the remainder of the evening in a social way. After refreshments had been served, speeches were made by the company officers, Capt. Langford and Lieut. Hodgson also Col.-Sergt. Dummitt, Corp. Sharp and others. Some musical selections were given and a couple of songs contributed by Quarter-Master-Sgt. Edwards were much appreciated.

The evening having proved so enjoyable it was decided the company should meet the 3rd Wednesday in each month. The programme concluded with singing God Save the King.

There is still room for a few more recruits in No. 5 company.

A. Buck, aged 18 of Vancouver, claims to have been bound and robbed by two men while in charge at noon of a downtown office, and robbed of $150.

The Zion Farmers' Club will meet on Thursday, Jan. 26, at Zion Hall. Everyone welcome.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in hair goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Good styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel on Thursday, Jan. 26.

SOCIETY TAKING TO THE STAGE

English Nobility Responding to the Lure of the Footlights

London, Jan. 16.—Never was there a time when the stage exercised so great a fascination upon society as at present. Princes and princesses, earls, countesses and marquises take to the boards on the slightest excuse, and many well known society people are amateurs only in name. The doings in the amateur theatrical world are duly chronicled in the daily papers, and it is an open secret that hosts of society women apply for a "walk on" every time a new piece is produced at any of the more fashionable London theatres.

Lady Angela Forbes, Lord Rosslyn, Countess Russell and the earl of Yarmouth are a few aristocratic names that have figured on the playbills. Lady Angela Forbes is a sister of Lord Rosslyn, whose stage name is James Erskine. The earl of Yarmouth has acted both in this country and America.

Miss Aimee Lowther, daughter of the late Captain Francis Lowther, is a clever amateur actress and the author of several plays. The duchess of Sutherland, the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Luttelton, Lady Trouuridge, Claude Lowther, and Cosmo Gordon-Lennox have also contributed plays to the London stage. The latter, of course, is the husband of the charming and talented Miss Marie Tempest.

Several members of the royal family have taken part in amateur theatricals, and Princess Louise, duchess of Argyll, is an amateur actress of considerable ability. Princess Henry of Battenburg also possesses no mean histronic talent. Naturally, with the court in mourning, no theatricals are indulged in at Windsor or Sandingham; but for some years after King Edward came to the throne a week used to be set apart every January for these entertainments. They were quite free from ceremony, and were always a time of fun and brightness. Lady Ponsonby usually acted as stage manager.

"SWEET LAVENDER" A DAINTY COMEDY

A DAINTY COMEDY

On Friday, Jan. 27th, the distinguished English actor, Mr. Edward Terry, will be seen as Richard Phenyl in Sir Arthur Pinere's charming comedy, "Sweet Lavender." Of all the plays in Mr. Terry's repetoire none is more admirably calculated to show to advantage his quaint humor.

Poor Dick Phenyl, the eccentric here, is a barrister, briefless, bankrupt in purse and reputation, a slave to the whiskey bottle, yet with it all, so frank, so tender-hearted, so unselfish, so witty, so whimsical, that he is absolutely irresistible and we love him while we laugh at him. With the keenest sympathy and amusement, one follows the eccentric vagaries of this poor waif of the law who is so pathetically conscious of his own weakness, so humorous in excusing his frequent lapses and in whose case the surface sparkling with whimsical whit, only hides a depth of self contempt which is almost tragic.

Poor Dick Phenyl, one laughs at him but one loves him as well, there is a touch of genius about him which redeems much and a manly power of self sacrifice which would cover more. One forgets his failings in the quaint charm of his humor and forgives them for the sake of the noble qualities hidden away under his comical exterior.

Mr. Terry's "Richard Phenyl" is a figure which lingers lovingly in the memory as one of his cleverest creations. It will be a rare opportunity for the theatregoers of Peterboro to see this famous comedian in the character which more than any other of his many successful creations has endeared him to the English public.

AN APOLOGY

In the Review yesterday appeared a cut labeled that of Henri Bourassa the Nationalist leader in Quebec. This picture was not that of Mr. Bourassa, but that of Rev. J. A. Mac-editor of the Globe. It had no name attached, and resembling in a general way, a likeness of Mr. Bourassa was mistaken in the hurry incidental to getting out a daily paper. The Review desires to apologise for the mistake in using the cut of Mr. Macdonald, which was done innocently and in good faith. Such a mistake is not common, fortunately, but under the special circumstances it is no pleasure for Mr. Macdonald to be labeled Mr. Bourassa, and the Review hopes that this reparation will atone for the error.

Andrew and Lutzen Finger, brothers, aged 11 and 8, broke through the ice at Matteawan and were drowned.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

RELIGION IN SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The following is from the editorial columns of the Roman Catholic official journal, the Catholic Register;

"The fanatics say that there should be no religious teaching in Otonabee. With such a name as that on the place, lessons in the use of the aboriginal tomahawk are no doubt more suitable."

This comment by the Register is not true. The people of P. S.S. No. 8, Otonabee want no cause of trouble in the school and therefore they ask for the abolition of the teaching of religion in mixed Roman Catholic and Protestant (public) schools. They do do not want the abolition of religious teaching in Otonabee. But the churches are the proper place for that or at any rate not the public schools. The epithet "fanatics," is characteristic also.

Yours, etc.,

THE POLICE REPORT.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—When the citizens in general wonder how our half dozen policemen put in their spare time, it is refreshing to read the chief's report recommending the appointment of four more, with an increase of salary all round and not forgetting himself. His report covers other gounds as well, which comes peculiarly within the province of the Police Commissioners, and to that extent is a usurpation of its powers. His endorsation of Chief Howard of the fire department, will, no doubt, receive reciprocal consideration. when bouquets will be in order. No doubt they are both good officers, but the latter keeps himself well within his limits.

Yours, etc.,

SANITARY INSPECTION.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The suggestion made by the Chief of Police that the police department be relieved of sanitary inspection, is a good one, providing the whole Board of Health is dismissed with its Medical Health Officer, and thereby save useless expenditure. Let us try and inaugurate some effective system whereby the health and lives of our citizens may be protected from the germ producing filth and dust in the good old summer time.

LETTER OF THANKS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—With your kind permission I wish to express to the citizen of Peterborough the most sincere thanks of the Salvation Army Band, for their generous response in connection with our Christmas serenading.

When a few remaining donations reach us the amount received will considerably exceed the returns from any previous year's serenading, and the band boys are naturally elated over this practical evidence of the appreciation of their efforts on the part of our friends and well-wishers. It will certainly be a great encouragement to the band, as well as to the corps in general and a strong incentive to renewed energy in the work in which we are engaged.

While thanking our friends, I must not omit a word of appreciation of the hearty co-operation accorded by the Review and its evening contemporary. The press of this city are certainly kind and generous in the support given by them to our work; and we greatly acknowledge such assistance as a strong factor in our success.

INJURIOUS TAXATION METHODS.

To the Editor of the Review.

A fund of illuminating information on injurious systems of taxation was furnished Tuesday evening by Mr. A. B. Farmer, B.A., of Toronto, the secretary of the League for Taxation Reform, at the meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Paul in St. Paul's church. Mr. Farmer showed that all over the world there is unrest with the systems of taxation that are commonly in vogue and claimed that this is due to the fact that that it is practically all based on an unjust principle. He claimed that this dissatisfaction would continue as long as men are penalized for every improvement they make. The imposition of a heavy tax on bachelors tended to make them marry, a heavy tax on dogs leads to less dogs being kept, a tax on a frame or roughcast bilding resulted in less of such buildings and improvements led to less buildings being erected and improvement sbeing made. There were municipalities where the taxes on buildings were so high men refrained from erecting such buildings.

Mr. Farmer then showed that there there is a fundamental difference between a building and the land on which it is standing. The foemer was constructed by man and can be destroyed at the whim of its owner. Land was created by God and cannot be destroyed. No individual can increase the value of land, no matter what they might do to it. Its value was increased solely by the demand for that land and this demand was in proportion to the number of people living in the community. Therefore, as long as men had the power to hold land idle in sections where the population was increasing they would have the right to appropriate the increased value given to it by the community.

Mr. Farmer claimed that the best system of taxation was to tax land according to its value. In Vancouver of the tax on buildings had so encourag- the buildings trade it had led to a greater demand for land, with the result that although land was being taxed more than formerly, it was in even greater demand. The success the principle is meeting with in some other districts where it is being tried was mentioned. It was shown that many of the foremost public men in the world are strong advocates of this system. The subject proved very interesting to those present, so much so, that a number remained afterwards and discussed the matter more fully with Mr Farmer. The next speaker for the Brotherhood of St. Paul will be Dr Shearer, the secretary of the Social and Moral Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who has recently been through the big fight in Winnipeg.

BUILT A ROAD IN ONE HOUR

How 380 Mile Roadway Was Constructed

The people in Montgomery county, Kan., by volunteer work, built a modern highway, 20 miles long. That record is outclassed by something that has been done by citizens of Iowa. The greatest piece of road building on record was accomplished in that state recently when in the space of one single hour a line of road 380 miles in length and stretching entirely across the state was put in the most perfect condition of any road west of the Mississip river. Weeks and months were spent in preparation for the work, but not a pick or shovel was used until the designated second was ticked off. Then, as if by magic, 10,000 workmen swarmed out on to the roadway, and when they ceased work 60 minutes later Iowa had one of the finest long-distance roads in the entire West.

And not the least interesting thing in connection with the tremendous piece of work is the fact that not a man of the entire 10,000 engaged on the work, received one cent of wages. Good will and patriotism alone are responsible for the splendid showing. Last winter the Iowa roads became so fearfully bad that traffic was practically killed and farmers were simply compelled to remain in their homes. Finally the matter became a political question and both parties got behind the movement. Gov. Carroll called a "good roads meeting" at Des Moines, early last March, and out of this meeting was evolved the plan of a "river to river road, stretching from Council Bluffs, on the Missouri River, to Davenport, on the Mississip, a distance of 380 miles straight across the state from east to west. "Make the river-to-river road as near perfect as is possible to make just common dirt," was the sense of the good roads convention.

Instead of appointing new committees to handle the work, the regular republican and democratic committees in each country through which the road would pass were appealed to. The chairman of the committee of each party was asked to get in thhe game and work for the road. Everybody agreed to do so, and soon a rivalry was created between republicans and democrats, each to see which party would have the most workmen "on the job" when the time for work arrived.

A Saturday was selected as the day and from 9 to 10 o'clock the hour of work. Every farmer along the was personally seen by them agreed to give the one hour that was asked for. Farmers were asked to bring their plows, scrapers and road drags, and an organization equal to those employed in professional railroad building was worked out. In the weeks preceding the work all bridges and culverts along the road were repaired and put in first-class order, that no delay might come to the road builders when once this latter started working.

The result of the organization was shown on the appointed Saturday. Shortly before 9 o'clock in the morning, farmers began getting out in the road. Hundreds and thousands of plows, picks, shovels, scrapers, road drags, grading machines and other implements were brought along. Every farmer brought his team with him. Superintendents and overseers has been appointed in readiness when, promptly at 9 o'clock the order was issued to "fall to." And 10,000 determined men "fell to." For an hour they continued, working with might and main. At 10 o'clock the job was finished, and the farmers went back tother fields, leaving Iowa the possessor of the finest piece of long distance roadway in the West.

Ordeman, gave Hackenschmidt a Hard Tussle—Second Fall in 2½ Minutes

DAN CUPID WAS PRESENT AT THE FIRST MEETING

It was this way. She was playing the town of Alpena, Mich., two years ago with a theatrical company. He was in the same town with another company. They met. It was a case of love at first sight. They commenced corresponding and kept it up. Under the circumstances there could have been only one result and the wedding bells will ring on Saturday morning.

The above is a scenario of an interesting romance in which there are only two parts. They are filled by Mr.

W. S ROBERTSON, the Groom to Be.

W. S Robertson, character actor and stage manager of the Murray Mackey Repertoire Company, now appearing for a local engagement at the Grand, and Miss Vivian Laidlaw, daughter of Mr. S. B. Laidlaw, of Lindsay. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Mr. Marsh, of Lindsay, at the home of the bride's parents. With these few words the story is briefly, but comprehensively told and all that remains now are the Mendelssohn tune and congratulations.

It will be of interest to know that Mr. Robertson attended the Grove school, Lakefield, some fifteen years ago, when Mr. S. Sheldrake was the principal. He is a son of the late Duncan Robertson, who was manager of the Ottawa branch of the Bank of British North America.

THEATRICAL FOLK MADE MERRY

(THE PLAYER.)

A pleasant party was given to the artists playing Kingston, Can., by Thenault Brothers, proprietors of the Iroquois Hotel, that city, when about thirty-seven artists from all of the theatres sat down to a banquet at the hotel after the evening performances. Toasts were drank to the host and hostess, the King, the President of the United States and to the White Rats. Songs and recitations were rendered by the different artists, and the festivities came to an end in the morning by the assemblage singing. "Auld Lang Syne," "God Save the King," and "the Star Spangled Banner." John J. Murray acted as chairman for the evening. Among those present were the Murray, Mackey Dramatic Company and artists from the Orpheum Wonderland and Princess Theatres. The artists are loud in their praise for the Thenault Brothers for the courtesies shown them when in Kingston.

PLAYED "UNDER SEALED ORDERS"

"Under Sealed Orders" a sensational melo'drama of a military nature, was presented to another crowded house at the Grand last night by the Murray Mackay Company. The scenery and acting was as good as has ever been seen here with any stock company.

Miss Florence Murray gave a fine representation of her part in the plot and her work was frequently applauded. The specialties were lively and entertaining and some of the musical numbers were new to local audiences. "I'm the Man," was something decidedly funny.

The company will present this evening the remarkable play "Why He Divorced Her."

SPORTING NEWS

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR

(How It Looked to Lindsay)

A crowd of about 220 hockey fans from Peterborough took advantage of the special and came to Lindsay with their Grillers, filled with confidence that without the least trouble Lindsay would be taken into camp, and by a good margin.

Peterborough believe they have two good teams, one in the junior and one in the intermediate. In order to keep both teams in the running the Grillers sacrifices Sarels to strengthen the intermediates, and expected to still have a good chance with the Midgets.

Just to show the crowd that Lindsay can still produce a bunch of hockey players, the management wisely changed their forward line, and trotted out a team last night that had the same men played against Cobourg, would have given them a trimming.

Of course the management were a little doubtful as to the team's ability, and this was likely the cause of there being no restoratives in the way of oranges, lemons or liniment at half time. The boys went to the room at the interval, after a hard fight to be rubbed with nothing until the necessaries were sent for.

First half ended 3—3, and oh, how the Grillers did work in the final period, with their supporters howling for more goals that were not forthcoming.

Hefferman, as usual, played a strong game at cover, and was ably assisted by Reynolds. Coughlin, at rover, worked hard and showed class at times. Matthews and Hall were checked too closely to be effective. The Grillers generally were handicapped by not being accustomed to the smaller ice, and bunched together frequently.

Will Lindsay beat Cobourg at Cobourg? It will certainly be some game.

ROYAL-COMMERCE SCORED TWICE IN SECOND HALF

Montreal and Royal-Commerce sevens, in a Bank League game at Brick street rink, yesterday afternoon, furnished a lively exhibition for the large number of spectators on hand. The finish saw the Hunter street money men to the front with a 2—0 score.

Montreals with a clean sheet and Sawers between the nets, were railing favorites and looked good to win, they having a slight advantage in the first half. Their performance, however, was made up of a shot through the side of the nets, and one which rested just outside the goal line. Neither netting was bulged in the first period, but two came in quick succession for Royal-Commerce after the rest, McClellan and Cole placing the rubber behind Sawers.

Cole was the strong man for the winners. The play was fast at all times, and not rough, the players of both sevens showing an inclination to play the puck.

The teams meet again Saturday afternoon from five to six, owing to a re-arrangement of dates.

MARRIED AND SINGLE MEN EACH SCORED ONE

A Fray in Which the Boys of 82 Showed their Class

While the weather moderated considerably last night it had nothing to do with the watery appearance of the ice at the Sacred Heart rink on Lock street, after the married men had finished with their single brethren. From the moment "Nerveless" Ranger hopped off the sleigh which brought him to the scene of the combat, up to the call of full time, when "Two-Step" Dwyer stopped the last of a hundred shots on a pet corn, the three hundred or less spectators were treated to an exhibition of hockey such as is seldom put up, even when the tickets sell at 25, 35 and 50 cents. The score was 1—1, but under ordinary circumstances the parental seven would have won by at least 20—1. What luck the goaltender for the single outfit didn't have wasn't worth wishing for. Despite the fact that the team was composed of junior O.H.A. and Mercantile League stars, the forward line of the kids of '82 made up W. "Foxy" Meagher, "Wild Bill" Deannard, "Nerveless" Ranger, and "What-Happened-To" Jones, had them stopped at all stages, the tally, which was scored by Keneally, being about 75 feet off-side. In justice to Referee Picard, it should be stated that at the time he was ditched into the corner by one of the singles.

For the married men the foot-work of "Tiny" McDonald in goal was superb his one failing being a tendency to leave his nets and take long jaunts down the ice. In front of him, with the coolness of forty summers' experience in the sporting world, stood "Euchre" Grady, and his were hand-winning stunts. "Foxy" Meagher took the only score.

SPORT TALK

The indoor baseball schedule, which commences to-night at the armories with a double-header, calls for a good program of sport, to which the public are invited.

No. 2 and No. 3 Companies play at 7.30, and No. 7 and No. 8 at 8.45, with the experience gained last year in the game, in addition to the practices that have been held for some time, the players should put up a fast exhibition of the indoor game.

The schedule is not a long one, and will, therefore, mean keen competition, as the loss of one game means considerable to a team.

The diamond has been marked out in the armories.

PUCKLAND

The Prudential Insurance Co. hereby challenge the Pill Pounders' hockey team to an exhibition match to be played some evening next week, Graeco-Roman or Marquis of Queensbury rules to predominate.

A. R. GRAHAM,
Sec. P.H.A.

It will be the Prudentials' first appearance on the ice this season, and as everyone knows, they are a bunch of live wires anyway. The Pill Pounders had better beware.

A Galt despatch says:—Fred Doherty having accepted a good offer from Renfrew, leaves Galt in the morning for that place. The local manager has secured Billy Baird, of Ottawa, to take his place.

Twenty-Six Carnegie Heroes.

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—Twenty-six awards in recognition of acts of heroism were made yesterday by the Carnegie hero fund commission, 16 bronze and 10 silver medals, besides cash awards being authorized. Nineteen of the awards were made in rescues or attempted rescues from drowning, three from fire, two from suffocation in wells, and one each from trains and shooting. In nine instances the heroes lost their lives, and the award is made to a member of the family.

One of the recipients of a silver medal is New York's street cleaning commissioner, W. H. Edwards, who figured in the incidents in connection with the shooting of W. J. Gaynor on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse on Aug. 9 last.

A Brutal Assault.

Galt, Jan. 16.—One of the most brutal assaults and highway robberies in the history of the town was perpetrated here Saturday evening, when Miss Sadie McLellan, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McLellan, Stone road, and a prominent young lady, was accosted on North Water street about 9.15 o'clock by a man who offered to accompany her home. On her refusal he seized her by the throat and choked her, striking her in the face and inflicting a very nasty wound, from which blood poured profusely. He seized her purse, which contained $2 and some change, and then decamped.

The injured girl was picked up on the roadside by women who heard her screams and a doctor summoned. She was removed to her home and is a little better to-day. The police could get no description of the villain.

G.T.R. Wreck In London Yards.

London, Jan. 16.—Two Mimico trainmen, W. Armstrong and W. A. Murray, were injured and four cabooses demolished in a wreck which occurred yesterday morning in the local Grand Trunk Railway yards.

A freight train, in charge of Engineer Balfry and Conductor Drury of Mimico, backed into the line of cabooses in which the train crews were sleeping. Murray and Armstrong were pinned down by the wreckage, and, it was with difficulty that they were released. Armstrong's legs were badly smashed and his face lacerated. He is suffering greatly from the shock. Murray's feet were jammed, and it was necessary to amputate the toes of one foot. Two other Mimico trainmen were slightly hurt.

Sewing Room Suggestions.

An applique of small velvet flowers on a net scarf is pretty. A scarf and flowers—the latter in a border, narrow at the sides, wide at the ends—were both of deep terra cotta.

When the piercer for embroidery is missing or broken, try sharpening down an orange wood manicure stick and using that instead. It makes a nice, clean hole and does not tear the material jaggedly. Many needleworkers prefer to use it all the time instead of the steel or ivory implement. It is cheap enough and readily replaced when broken or blunted.

Often in padding a buttonhole edge or a design for solid embroidery the white padding shows through the color that is afterward stitched under it. This is especially noticeable and disagreeable in a dark shade. One woman solved the problem by doing her padding in cotton as near the shade of the silk as she could get. The result was eminently satisfactory. It may seem extravagant, but the cotton was only 3 cents a spool, and the extra expense was worth while.

A Word In Time.

To Clean White Kid Boot Linings.—The best method of cleaning white kid and white sheepskin linings of boots is to sponge with benzine. Superficial dirt can be cleaned off with a piece of india rubber such as is used for removing lead pencil marks.

For Baked Custard.—When making baked custard, if the milk is warmed before adding the eggs no water will settle in the bottom of the baking dish.

When sweeping turkey, axminster or any thick piled carpet, always brush the way of the pile, and it will look fresh and bright for years.

There are a host of authorities on hydraulics and mechanics that could be quoted to support the assertion that the steam engine is not a modern invention. Carpini in the account of his travels, A. D. 1286, describes a species of aeophile, or steam, engine made in the form of a man. This contrivance was filled with "inflammable liquid" (probably petroleum) and made to do terrible work in the battles between the Mongols and the troops of Prester John.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

NO STRANGER DID IT.

Slayer of Lobinski Knew Him, Say the Police.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The inquest on the body of Frans Lobinski, murdered last week in his little cottage near the village of Wellesley, was not finished yesterday. When it is resumed on Monday, Jan. 30, there are likely to be developments of a sensational nature, as a result of the work of Detective Boyd and High Constable Huber. The officers are at work on important clues, and so informed Coroner Glaister at yesterday's session.

In the meantime the feeling in the neighborhood is that the crime was committed by persons sufficiently well known to the old miser as to gain admittance to his house on a friendly call. It seems more than likely that they asked the loan of some money, and a quarrel followed the old man's refusal. It is known that the hammer with which the deed was done was kept ordinarily in a cupboard in the house.

Dr. Marty of New Hamburg and Dr. McEachren of Linwood, the physicians who conducted the post-mortem on Monday, agreed in testifying that Lobinski's skull was fractured by the hammer found at the rear of the house. Three wounds were deep enough to penetrate the brain, any one of which would have caused instant death.

Rudy Lais, the neighbor who discovered the body, swore that the old man had shown him what money he had in the house. There was $130 in gold in the little tin box which was later found with the hammer and bottle containing paris green. He testified also that Lobinski carried $100 in bills in his possession. The deceased had told the witness that he possessed $1,200 in addition to his other property.

Simon Huber, a neighbor, swore that on last Wednesday evening, between eight and nine o'clock, he heard a sleigh going past his place down the lane towards Lobinski's, and he said he heard the bells as far as Lobinski's house, and then did not hear them any more.

Four Children Burned.

Halifax, Jan. 19.—A disastrous fire, in which four of Gabriel Levy's children met their doom, took place on Tuesday on Little Tussock Island, near the eastern boundary of Halifax County. Little Tussock is inhabited solely by fishermen, the entire population consisting of about twenty families. At the time of the outbreak the thermometer registered 12 below zero, and as there is no fire brigade in the village, or adequate appliances for fighting the flames, the rescue party, which gathered from the neighboring cottages, experienced great difficulty in their efforts to assist the sufferers.

Lucky Orphans.

Kingston, Jan. 19.—While hundreds lost money through the failure of the Farmers' Bank, there are those who have been fortunate enough to draw money beforehand. A citizen quotes the instance of two orphans in Sharbot Lake, who had $1,100 on deposit. They drew the money ten days before the bank closed its doors.

Aviator Lit on Cruiser.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Eugene B. Ely yesterday flew thirteen miles in an aeroplane, made a successful landing on the cruiser Pennsylvania and an hour later rose from the cruiser and flew back to Selfridge Field, 12 miles south of San Francisco.

The feat was accomplished without a mishap.

Death of Former Kingston Man.

Brockville, Jan. 19.—Word was received here yesterday of the death at Hornell, N.Y., of Dr Frank H. Koyle, for a number of years a prominent resident of Athens and later of Brockville. He was a graduate of Queen's College, Kingston.

On a Southern Pacific Ferry boat at San Francisco, an unknown man blew himself to pieces with dynamite in the midst of 2,000 passengers.

Cookery Points

Pommes Parisennes.—Pare some firm cooking apples and cook them gently in a thin sirup of sugar and water to which several thin strips of lemon rind have been added. Remove the apples and set them aside to drain and cool. When required for table arrange them in a deep glass dish surrounded by abundance of broken lemon jelly piled between and around the fruit. Cover each apple with a cone of stiffly whipped sweetened cream. Serve very cold.

Apple Cutlets.—Make a stiff apple puree, sweeten to taste and stir in a little softened gelatin. Set aside to cool. Meanwhile cut some slices of sponge cake, trim them neatly and lay them on a flat dish. Moisten each with a little fruit juice, and when the apple puree is partly cool cover each sponge slice with a layer of puree, keeping the whole shapely. When quite cold arrange on lace paper doilies or in an ornamental dish. Ornament with cut angelica and crystallized violets.

Pommes Polaires.—Peel, core and quarter some good cooking apples. Cook them gently till tender and set aside till quite cold. Arrange them in a deep glass dish, cover with Devonshire cream, scatter chopped pistachio nuts over all and serve as cold as possible with water biscuits or sponge fingers.

Apple Salad.—Peel and core some eating apples of good flavor. Cut the fruit into thin slices. Arrange these in a pretty glass dish, sprinkle among the fruit some finely chopped nuts and shredded pineapple, dust with caster sugar, moisten with a little fruit juice and serve very cold.

Good Things to Know.

Watercress mixed with two or three tablespoonfuls of minced crisply fried bacon and dressed with vinegar, salt and pepper makes a tasty supper salad.

Boiled rice dropped by tablespoonfuls around fried chicken or meat ragout makes a dainty border. But the rice should not be pressed down into a solid mass, as many cooks unthinkingly do it. It is as important to lovers of rice that it be light and fluffy as it is that bread should be of such a quality.

For a cheese rice custard for a substantial dish or an entree, mash a cupful of boiled rice to a paste, add an egg and a cupful of milk, season with a teaspoonful of butter, a tablespoonful or two of grated cheese, a little salt and pepper and turn into a baking dish or custard cups. Bake until the custard sets and the top is brown.

After Dinner Coffee.

Cafe noir is a strong decoction of black coffee which is served in small cups and is often partaken of unsweetened or merely flavored with a teaspoonful of brandy, or it may be sweetened with a spoonful of stiffly whipped cream on the top of each cup.

To produce Turkish coffee the coffee is put into its little metal pot in the proportion of two large tablespoonfuls of coffee, two lumps of sugar and half a pint of boiling water. Allow it to boil and bring it to a boil three times, after which pour it off into hot cups. This coffee should be served without milk or cream.

Bird's Nest Pudding.

Pare and core six large, sound apples, then put them into your well buttered biscuit pan; now mix together five heaping teaspoonfuls of flour, one scant teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of milk into a smooth paste, then add the yolks of three well beaten eggs; add the whites and another cup of milk; pour this over the apples, bake one hour; serve hot with hard sauce or sweetened whipped cream flavored with lemon extract.

Peanut Cookies.

Shell and rub off the inner skin of sufficient roasted peanuts to measure one pint when chopped fine. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and one cupful of sugar; add three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of milk, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, the chopped nuts and sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Roll out, cut in circles and bake in a moderate oven.

Cream of Celery Soup.

To two stalks of grated celery and one-half cupful of boiled rice add one pint of new milk and simmer all together gently until the celery and rice can be pressed through a sieve. Season to taste after adding one quart of hot milk thickened with a little cornstarch dissolved in cold water. Serve hot with toasted bread sticks.

To Whip Cream.

If the bowl of cream is kept in a pan of ice water during beating there will not be the embarrassment of seeing it come to butter when butter is the last thing that is wanted. The cream should be very cold before the work begins.

Michael Sullivan, Kingston, will build the new $250,000 armouries at St. John N. B.

MEMORIES OF GREAT MEN.

Some of the Late Goldwin Smith's Reminiscences of Celebrities.

In his short paper of reminiscences of "My Social Life in London," in the November Atlantic Monthly, the late Prof. Goldwin Smith manages to introduce his impressions of an astonishing number of the notable personages with whom he was more or less intimately associated. It was an epoch of his social life, he says, when, at the dinner table of Sir R. H. Inglis, he first met Macaulay. "Of all English talkers that I ever heard, Macaulay seemed to me the first in brilliancy." The historian's characteristic habit of monopolizing the talk was, to Prof. Smith, "all exuberance, and not assumption or ostentation."

One could understand how he was a bore to other talkers. He evidently was to a great talker who sat next to me. He would seize upon a theme and dilate, with copious illustration, from a marvellous memory. Mention of the exclusive respect of the ritualists for churches in the Gothic style led to an enumeration of the fathers of the early church who had ministered in churches which were not Gothic. A question about the rules of equestrian statuary led to a copious dissertation proving that nature was the only rule. I have seen a whole evening party kept listening in a ring to an essay on final causes and the limits of their recognition, with numerous illustrations.

Prof. Smith recalls, too, the brilliant society which gathered at the salon of Lady Ashburton, for whom he had the greatest respect and admiration. Of Carlyle and Tennyson he writes:

Carlyle was always there. He was a great favorite of Lady Ashburton. His talk was like his books, but wilder; in truth, his pessimism was monotonous and sometimes wearisome, though he could not fail to say striking things, still less to use striking words. One summer evening we came out after dinner on the terrace. There was a bright moon, and for a few minutes we all looked at it in silence, each probably having his own thought. At last a voice was heard: "Puir auld creature!" Whether the moon was an object of pity in herself, or because she was doomed to look down on human affairs, I failed to divine. Tennyson was there. I adored the poet, and should have liked to be able to worship the man. His self-consciousness and sensitiveness to criticism were extreme. They asked Tennyson to read some of his own poetry aloud. This he was understood to be fond of doing. But to the general disappointment he refused. At his side was sitting Carlyle, who had been publishing his contempt of poetry. Immolating myself to the public cause, I went over to Carlyle and asked him to come for a walk in the grounds. While we were gone the reading came off.

Melton Prior's Brusqueness.

The late Melton Prior, for many years artist and war correspondent of The Illustrated London News, was well-known to many Canadian newspaper men. As was stated in the despatches after his death on Nov. 2, he had reported with pen and pencil twenty-four wars and revolutions, and had worked in almost every part of the habitable globe. In girdling the earth he frequently crossed Canada, east and west, his last journey having been made at the time of the Russo-Japanese war. In addition he had filled two important assignments in this country, which were fortunately missions of peace. The first of these was in 1878, when he came to Canada with the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise to sketch and write about the receptions accorded the first royal personage sent to Rideau Hall. When the present King, then the Duke of Cornwall and York, made his official visit to Canada in 1901 he came on a similar mission. As an artist he did not possess the highly finished style of the modern pictorial expert who seemingly tries to make his work look as photographic as possible. His pictures were sketchy, vivid and racy of the events depicted. His writing was like a series of verbal snap shots. Personally he was what is colloquially known as a "character." Probably there never was a man so absolutely free from the restraints which convention imposes on more timorous souls. He had deliberately cultivated a certain brusqueness of manner which he alternated with a Falstaffian joviality. If a man bored him he would tell him so. The writer has heard him address an ancient and fat-headed person who was pressing unwelcome attentions on him in this wise: "Condemn your soul, sir; you bore me, sir. Go away from me, sir." Yet withal he was the kindest hearted man alive, and felt it keenly if the object of his brusqueness took umbrage and failed to see that no offence was intended.

The New Wizard of the Soo.

William Charles Franz of the Soo—is a new name in Canada; and Franz at the Canadian Soo is a remarkable man. Recently a gathering of notable public men, both Canadian and English, did honor to Mr. Franz in a banquet at the city that was founded by Clergue the wizard; the city that now has 15,000 people, seven thousand of whom are employed in the consolidated works of the Lake Superior Corporation, financed by British capital.

Mr. Franz is the general manager of the works; which in their astonishing variety and range of output are among the marvels of modern Canada. The wizard era of F. H. Clergue who, looking for cheap water power, discovered the great plexus of raw materials that makes the Soo the most remarkable industrial small city in Canada, was followed by a series of lapses and reorganizations; later by a great fire. But the Soo works of 1910 are greater even than were dreamed of in the days of Clergue. Mr. Franz is the most powerful man in the Canadian Soo. When a youth he had a dog, a rooster and a gun; also a pocketful of rusty nails. He is now manager of a corporation whose property is valued at $35,000,000.

NA-DRU-CO

Toilet and Medicinal Preparations Are Compounded by Expert Chemists

Who Compounds Your Medicines?

When your physician gives you a prescription you would scarcely risk having it compounded by a grocer or a baker, even if you were sure they had the right drugs. You insist on your druggist's skillful dispensing.

If you did not protect yourself in this way the laws of the country would protect you, for they demand that physicians' prescriptions be dispensed by physicians or qualified druggists only.

Is it not equally important to know that the household remedies, such as laxatives, cough syrups and tonics, and the toilet preparations such as tooth paste, which you use so frequently, are also compounded by expert chemists?

When you use NA-DRU-CO medicinal or toilet preparations you have the positive guarantee of one of the largest wholesale drug firms in the world, the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, that each one has been compounded by expert chemists only.

This is just where NA-DRU-CO Cascara Laxatives, NA-DRU-CO Liquorice, Linseed, and Chlorodyne Cough Syrup, NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound and everything else on the NA-DRU-CO list are pre-eminently better than mixtures at present flooding the market. They are compounded by men who know.

NA-DRU-CO Formulae, Ingredients and Compounding Are Best

Your own druggist could not be more careful or more accurate in compounding one of your physician's prescriptions than are our chemists in compounding every NA-DRU-CO preparation. Add to this the facts that only the best and purest materials that money can buy are used in NA-DRU-CO articles, and that each NA-DRU-CO formula has been thoroughly tested in actual use, and you have the solid grounds for the implicit confidence we want you to feel in NA-DRU-CO preparations.

We are prepared to furnish to any physician or druggist in Canada, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article. Ask these men, who are men of standing in your community, and best qualified to tell you, all about NA-DRU-CO preparations.

If any NA-DRU-CO article you buy does not prove entirely satisfactory return it to your druggist. He has our authority to refund the full purchase price and charge it to us.

You can get any NA-DRU-CO preparation anywhere in Canada, for if your druggist should not have it in stock he can get it within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

WINTER WINDOW GARDENS.

What Plants to Depend Upon Through Cold Weather.

This is the time to stock the winter house garden. Some plants are to be saved from the garden and some ordered from the florist.

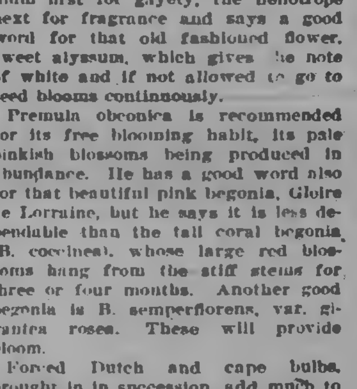
Benjamin Goodrich tells the readers of Country Life that no window garden plant is more dependable than the common geranium, especially in the single varieties, which are handsomest for the purpose. He names the geranium first for gayety, the heliotrope next for fragrance and says a good word for that old fashioned flower, sweet alyssum, which gives the note of white and if not allowed to go to seed blooms continuously.

Premula obconica is recommended for its free blooming habit, its pale pinkish blossoms being produced in abundance. He has a good word also for that beautiful pink begonia, Gloire de Lorraine, but he says it is less dependable than the tall coral begonia (B. coccinea), whose large red blossoms hang from the stiff stems for three or four months. Another good begonia is B. semperflorens, var. gigantea rosea. These will provide bloom.

Forced Dutch and cape bulbs, brought in in succession, add much to the interest of the winter garden. The so called Chinese lily, double Roman, Von Sion, Grand Soleil d'Or narcissi, crocus and Princess Marianne tulip will "make a string of blooms from Christmas to early April." Hyacinths, single and Roman freesia, ixia, snowdrop and scilla are also favorably mentioned.

It's a Velvet Season.

Long slender lines dominate the street costume, as evidenced by the smart little suit of dark wine velutina illustrated, which is cut with a narrow skirt. The coat follows the lines of the figure, producing a long, slender waisted effect. There are double lapping fronts button trimmed both on the skirt and on the jacket. The collar facing is of Australian blue opossum. The satin swathed turban is a natty French creation.



SUIT OF DARK WINE VELUTINA.

The inquest at Picton into the death of John Bongard has been adjourned till January 27, owing to the analyst's report not being ready.

Mutiny on Italian Ship.

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 18.—Mutiny reigned aboard the Italian ship Chill in Pensacola harbor from Monday noon until two o'clock yesterday afternoon, when peace was restored. It was reported that one of the officers was killed, but this was later denied. An Italian sailor, however, is known to have suffered a fractured skull, and several others were less seriously injured. The mutiny resulted from efforts of the first mate to stop a free for all fight among the sailors. Hatchets and belaying pins were used freely.

A Regiment of Giants.

The awe-inspiring stature of Winnipeg's Highland regiment, which was recently presented with a stand of colors, is not only the subject of pardonable pride on the part of the citizens of the western metropolis, but the provocation of amazement among visitors.

When Gen. Sir John French made his inspection of the battalion, he was accompanied by the most distinguished officers of Canada's militia. Thereby hangs a tale.

Major-General Lessard, each time the companies came swinging by, could not suppress an exclamation of astonishment at their height. Another member of the staff, himself a six-footer, sought to make light of the apparent height of the Highlanders by claiming that their feather bonnets made them look so tall. Captain Ketchen, one of the local officers, however, asked the seventy-two inched visitor to stand up against one of the men. The visiting officer did, and he found himself fully four inches below the gigantic soldier, quite apart from the bonnet, which, to use his own words: "Seemed to be far away above the snow line."

They grow big men on the western plains. "A" company of this regiment does not possess a man less than six feet tall, and there is a liberal sprinkling of giants from six feet three and upwards. This recalls Frederick the Great's regiment of giants.

Crashed Into Bridge.

St. Catharines, Jan. 18.—As the result of a coasting accident which occurred at Thorold, Vincent Battle, son of Matthew Battle of that town, is at the General Hospital suffering from serious internal injuries. He, together with his cousin, Miss Tillie Battle and Miss Alice Dooley of Buffalo, and Leonard Battle, were coasting on the hill, which is quite steep, and had gained good speed, and when a wagon was noticed approaching, the sleigh ran out of its course and crashed into the side of the canal bridge. Battle, who was steering, was rendered unconscious. Miss Dooley sustained a sprained ankle.

PETERBORO'S DEBENTURE DEBT

According to the latest edition of the Financial Post, Peterborough has a debenture debt of $1,219,003. In discussing the matter in the Post, H. C. Carson, F.S.S., states that the law governing the borrowing possibilities of municipalities is very vague where it concerns the debt which should be charged to general taxes. He contends that local improvements, school and utility debentures should not be included in a municipality's limit in borrowing, but that the ratio of general debt to a city's borrowing limit should be determined by the amount of debentures redeemed by the general municipal tax. The gross debenture debt of the various cities in Ontario is as follows:

THE EIGHT HOUR DAY BILL

Ottawa, Jan. 13 — The Government is endeavouring to deceive the Labour Unions by putting through an Eight Hour Day Bill as a Government measure. The Eight Hour Day Bill was first introduced by Mr. Verville, shortly after he entered the House in 1906. Mr. Verville had been elected as the member from Maisonneuve to succeed the Late Hon. Raymond Prefontaine. He was not the choice of the Liberal machine and came to Parliament ostensibly as a Labour member. It soon became evident that Mr. Verville knew which side his bread was buttered on. He voted with the Government consistently and persistently and came back as an out-and-out Liberal in 1908. His bill to establish an eight hour day was not looked upon with favour by the Government and he was careful not to press it although, he introduced it session after session. On one occasion, when the Bill could have come up for second reading, Mr. Verville left the Chamber just before it was reached on the Orders of the day. At the same time, he lead the Labour Unionists to believe that he was doing all in his power to promote the desired legislation and that it was not being opposed by the Government. Finally during the session of 1909-10, the bill was sent to a special Committee. Now in 1911 it bids fair to pass and the impression will be given out that the Laurier Government has done some wonderful thing for the benefit of the toiling masses.

It will be found, however, upon examination that the Bill now adopted by the Government, bears no resemblance to the Bill endorsed by the Labour Unions, and introduced by Mr. Verville at six sessions of Parliament. The original Bill, if it became law would have practically enforced an Eight Hour work day throughout Canada. It provided that all work done for the Government should be upon this basis, and that all work done by contractors for the Government should also be upon the basis of an eight hour day. The present Bill provides merely that carpenters, stonemasons, brick layers; and others artisans employed in the construction of public buildings must be paid for over time if they are required to work more than 8 hours a day. All these classes already enjoy the eight hour a day through trade agreements. The passing of this bill will therefore not benefit organized labour in the slightest degree.

Several Conservative members when the Bill was up for discussion pointed out that the farmers and men employed on farms worked longer hours, and that the eight hour a day legislation, applied to farm labour would prove impracticable. They also contended that for the Government to arbitrarily fix the hours of labour in certain occupations would emphasise the hardships of the farm and would have the tendency to increase the drain on the country to the city, which is already a disquieting symptom in our Canadian life, especially in Ontario. At the same time they criticized the attitude of the Government as utterly illogical and absurd. Upon what principle should men who work upon public buildings be favoured at the expense of men who work upon railways and canals. Mr. R. L. Borden was very happy in his comments upon Hon. MacKenzie's speech on the second reading of the Bill in December, contrasting with his action in supporting the emasculated Bill a month later. Mr. Borden read extracts from the speech of Mr. King which were eloquent to the point of being sloppy; he had fairly wept over the woes of the workingman, yet by a stroke of the pen he took from under the protection of the Bill thousands of men who labour upon the construction and upkeep of bridges, railroads, canals, piers, breakwaters, arsenals, navy yards, etc.

Mr. Borden quoting from Mr. King's December speech reads as follows:

"If we stop to consider what is the life of the average workingman, we will see how all important it is that every man who has at heart the welfare of humanity should use what little influence he may have, whether in connection with the Government or out of it, to help bring about a condition of affairs which, in the course of time, will bring to every man, whether working on a farm or in a workshop, a condition that will permit him to do eight hours work, and have part of the balance of the day for enjoyment, and for the necessary development of his faculties, one way or another."

Commenting upon it Mr. Borden said: "Well, if that be a good principle, and one to which my Hon. friend, the Minister of Labour, was willing to commit himself, why does he desire to deny an opportunity for the reasonable exercise of his faculties, their reasonable development and a reasonable enjoyment to the man who is working upon a wharf, or pier, or breakwater, or railroad, or canal, or dredge, or navy yard, or arsenal? Why should he restrict it entirely to men employed on public buildings?

Mr. Borden then proceeded to read further extracts from the Minister of Labour's speech with comments upon the same which highly delighted all who heard him and discomfitted that budding statesman in no small degree.

"Take the cases of a workingman," said the Minister of Labour, working eight or ten hours a day. Supposing he starts work at seven o'clock in the morning, he must rise at five, for workingmen have to start their own fires, to assist their wives to prepare their own breakfasts, so that five o'clock is as late as any man who is going to work at seven can afford to rise."

Why are not all these considerations so eloquently put forward by the Minister of Labour, said Mr. Borden, applicable to the man who is working upon wharfs, or piers, or breakwaters, or canals, or dredges, or navy yards, or arsenals? That is the problem that presents itself to my mind at the moment, and it is one as to which I hope we may have an answer from the Minister of Labour. He continues as follows:

"He leaves his home before seven o'clock, having seen nothing of his children."

Why is not the man who is working upon a pier entitled to see his children before he leaves his home? Is the man who happens to be engaged upon a breakwater to be denied all access to his family while the man who works upon an ordinary public building is to have some such opportunity? Then he went on further;

"He works from 7 until 12, which is 5 hours. He goes back to his home, he has one hour for rest in the middle of the day, part of which is lost going to and from work. Some times he does not even get that. Sometimes he is obliged to take his dinner can and eat his cold meal at the workshop, and can see nothing of his home during that hour."

Why are not all these considerations cogent with respect to the man who works upon a pier or breakwater? Why should they be simply taken into consideration with the man who works upon an ordinary public building?

"Then he is obliged to work again from one to six o'clock; and if he is to have eight hours' sleep, which is the least he requires after a hard days labour that leaves him only from six to nine to enjoy, the comforts of his home. It was never intended by the Creator that the great mass of men should live in that way."

Yet my hon. friend is perfectly willing that a man who works upon a pier or breakwater should live in that way although he is in the employ of the Government, while apparently he has some consideration for the feelings and interests of the man who works upon an ordinary public building. The hon. Minister continues;

"It was intended that every man should do his share of work and have opportunity to partake of legitimate enjoyment and develop the latent powers and talent with which he is endowed by nature. The working classes have as much love for their families, as great regard for domestic happiness as the rich. They also require a little enjoyment now and then."

I would respectfully point out to my hon. friend the Minister of Labor that the man who works upon a pier or breakwater, a railroad, navy yard or arsenal, has feelings and desires with respect to all these matters just the same as a man who works upon upon an ordinary public building.

SOME NOTABLE HANGMEN

In spite of his gruesome calling, John Ellis, who hanged Crippen, has earned the esteem of a very wide circle of acquaintances in Rochdale, England, where he carries on very successfully a hairdressing and news agent's business. Ellis is a quiet, unassuming man, who rarely betrays his interest in crime. He would much rather talk to you about football, of which game he is an enthusiastic follower, or discuss musical entertainments. In his early days he earned his living by singing, while on a tour through Lancashire, and still possesses a good baritone voice. And privileged visitors are allowed to make the acquaintance of his dogs, cats and chickens, the pets of his four children.

Ellis has assisted in over sixty executions and has personally carried out seven, among others who met death at his hands being Dougal, the Moat Farm murderer. It was through acting as assistant to Billington that Ellis became chief executioner, and it is an extraordinary fact that when the post becomes vacant the Home Office is inundated with applications for the appointment.

Indeed when Marwood, who succeeded Calcraft in 1883, retired no fewer than 12,000 persons sought the post, Berry being appointed.

Calcraft, who retired in 1874, was paid one guinea a week by the corporation of London as a retaining fee, and an extra one guinea for each execution. He had besides, from the county of Surrey, five guineas annual retaining fee, one guinea for each execution and ten guineas for an execution in the country.

Nowadays about £10 is paid to the hangman for every execution he carries out. Berry, who succeeded Marwood, was engaged in over 200 executions in nine years, and carried 134 sentences into effect. According to his own statement he earned over £100 in the first four months of 1890. At one time, it might be mentioned, the hangman received as perquisites the convict's clothes, which he usually sold for a good price to showmen. These, however, are now burned.

It was quite by accident that Marwood became Calcraft's successor. The story goes that he met Calcraft one morning as the latter was going to an execution and seeing that the old man was ill undertook to do that particular job for him. The offer was accepted, and so Marwood first obtained an introduction to his future calling. When Calcraft retired Marwood was retained by the London sheriffs at a fee of £20 a year, and on the strength of this engagement he contracted with provincial sheriffs to carry out any execution for which they might be responsible. Calcraft has been described as a mild-mannered man, devoted to fishing, while Marwood was not without repute as a local preacher.

By the way, Major Griffiths has told a strange story apropos of the rule laid down by the Home Office that the executioner must sleep in the prison on the night preceding the execution. Some wags in Scotland seized Calcraft the night before an execution and kept him locked up. Meanwhile the sheriff was in despair, expecting that he would have to do the job himself. At the last moment, however, Calcraft turned up.

Perhaps the most extraordinary executioner of all, however, was the celebrated "Lady Betty"—what her real name was no one seems to know—who at the beginning of last century officiated as hangwoman for a number of years in Ireland.

What a Young Man Says:

"My education has been interfered with and my eyes have been my handicap all my life long. My parents did not realize this and I did not myself until too late, but I see now that if I could have had suitable glasses in my boyhood, life would have been very different today."

Many a child is considered slow at school, when suitable glasses is all that interferes with his or her education.

WAS FOOLED ON THIS MASTERPIECE

Paris, January 16. — "The Angelus" of the Chauchard Collection of masterpieces, just turned over to the French Government and installed in the Louvre Museum is said to be a counterfeit. Chauchard, the eccentric millionaire, who recently died and astounded the world by his freakish funeral in Paris, paid $138,130 for the picture to an American named Sutton, of the American Art Association. Negotiations were carried on through a Frenchman named Garnier, who, after purchasing the painting, it is said, had it "restored." Garnier is not to be found.

"L'Angelus," painted by Milet, at Barbizon, France was originally ordered by an American. The price was to be $300. He refused the picture which was then sold by Milet to Baron Papalleur, a Belgian, for $200. Artists do not consider it Milet's masterpiece, saying that only ordinary work it has become popular by reason of its romance. The general opinion is that if the Chauchard "Angelus" is genuine, it was ruined by the "restoration."

Joe. Martin, M.P., for East St. Pancras, interviewed at Winnipeg said Asquith as "the poorest parliamentary leader imaginable, except Mr. Balfour."

PINKERTON OFFICERS SOLD LIQUOR THAT WAS SEIZED

In Trial of Cases of Illicit Traffic In Alcohol Private Officers Employed by Provincial Police Say They Confiscated Liquor and Then Sold It Rather Than Destroy-Fine "Wet Goods."

Haileybury, Jan. 20.—Pinkerton detectives, employed by Supt. Joseph Rogers of the provincial police, and acting, as they swore upon oath, upon the instruction of Supt. Wilcock of the Toronto office of the detective agency, have been selling whisky in the neighborhood of Haileybury. This oath was pledged in the Police Court here yesterday.

The evidence was drawn out by James Haverson, K.C., acting for the defence, while Supt. Rogers and Supt. Wilcock sat in the courtroom and did not deny the statement.

The above startling facts were brought out in the prosecution of local hotelkeepers for selling liquor in quantities larger than permitted under the act. The Pinkerton men, Otto C. Weller and Charles Tupper, swore, in the case of James J. Doyle, proprietor of the Mattabar Hotel, that when they found Doyle would not sell they laid siege to his bartender, and finally persuaded him to make the sale and violate the law. A conviction was made in this case, and a fine of $20 and costs imposed. A second charge against Doyle for a like offence upon another day was dropped.

The case of Charles Eagan of the Vendome Hotel, who was charged with a similar offence, was then heard, and, as in the previous case, the same detectives swore that when Eagan refused to violate the law, they went after the bartender, and succeeded in making a purchase from him. The same fine was imposed in this case, and a second charge was dropped.

The case of Otto Krupp of the Maple Leaf Hotel was next taken up, and two charges were sustained where the bartender had sold. Fines were imposed, and the court came to the case of Henry I. Kert of Englehart, upon a like charge. Here the same detectives swore that a sale had been made to them by Philip Kert, at 11 o'clock in the morning. The case was adjourned till to-day, when charges against Mrs. Anna Kennedy of Englehart will also be heard.

Asked by Mr. Haverson if it were true that they had brought whisky with them into this part of the country and sold it to unlicensed persons, the detectives explained that they had not brought any liquor with them, but that the whisky which they had brought from Doyle and the others, something over 20 bottles, purchased at $1.25 per quart, they had sold to a man named Crawford at Kelso, Ont., for $1.75 per quart. They did not say what became of the profits, but swore that their instructions from Supt. Wilcock were that, after they had purchased the whisky from prospective lawbreakers, they might then either sell it or destroy it, as they pleased. Asked why they had chosen to sell it, they explained that they had done so because it was too much trouble to carry it about with them.

CANNED EGGS ARE DANGEROUS

Montreal Authorities Order Their Destruction.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—A condition of affairs like unto that revealed by the food investigations made in the United States some time ago, was brought to light at the City Hall yesterday morning, when the Board of Control announced that canned eggs worth $100,000 must be removed from the Gould Cold Storage, where they were brought from Hankow, China. The intention is not to have the eggs destroyed. The board does not know whether it has power to take this step.

"We must see that the market at Montreal is not flooded with stuff which is unhealthy," said Dr. Lachapelie. "If your analysists are able to find a few good cans of eggs, all right. We have found on careful examination by experts that they are bad. If the eggs were only suspicious, we would have refused to permit their sale, but they are more than suspicious. You'll have to take all these eggs from the province, or we'll apply the law, confiscate and destroy them. If you are not satisfied, you can take any legal action you like."

"Our analysists have found that the eggs are not wholesome, and they cannot be used with safety by the public. As far as we are concerned, the case is settled, and settled for good. The city experts and the experts of the Provincial Health Department have decided that they are unfit for consumption."

MEASLES IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Jan. 19.—That the epidemic of measles in Montreal is a serious one and that steps should be taken immediately to prevent the further spread of the disease, is the declaration made to a local paper by a number of prominent doctors to-day. The medical men indignantly deny the charge brought by some of the civic health officials that the rapid spread of the disease during the past few weeks was due largely to the carelessness of so many doctors in not reporting cases properly. They declare that careless parents have helped to increase the number of cases by not taking proper precautions to prevent infection.

DR. BEATTIE NESBITT WAS SEEN AT THE SOO ON MONDAY

He Left for Chicago, According to the Story of a Hotel Clerk—Conferred With a Lawyer for Three or Four Hours.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 20.—That Dr. Nesbitt was in the Michigan Soo on Sunday and part of Monday is now assured. He registered at the Park Hotel there and during the day conversed with a prominent lawyer of the Canadian side whom he had called across the river for consultation.

While at the Park Hotel, Nesbitt sent telegrams to the Chicago Automobile Club, Charles McEachran, Toronto, and K. H. McCasserty, Toronto, saying that he had arrived safely and that his trip was a pleasant one. He left on Monday afternoon, presumably for Chicago.

Arrived in the Soo Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, on a freight train which was stopped so he could alight at Pim street, and catch the ferry for the Michigan side, where he registered at the Park Hotel. On his way over on the ferry, he enquired for Uriah McFadden, a prominent lawyer of the Canadian Soo, and later 'phoned for him from the Park Hotel, Soo, Mich. McFadden, who is a friend of Nesbitt, was in conference with him till four in the afternoon.

The fugitive banker had abundance of money with him, according to the story told by Chief Clerk Worth of the hotel, who changed $200 in Canadian currency for him, giving him in exchange American bills. Worth also engaged a berth over the Soo line for the doctor, whose immediate destination was Chicago, although it is believed he is bound for Mexico.

He had considerable excess baggage, which included two coats, one an elegant fur-lined garment, several hats, and a trunk full of clothing and other articles. His wallet fairly bulged with currency, the amount of American bills being but a small part of what he had with him.

"Yes, it is true that I was in consultation with Dr. Beattie Nesbitt of Toronto on Sunday," said Attorney McFadden of the Canadian Soo yesterday. "I received a long distance call from him, stating that he wished to see me, and my visit was a professional one. I cannot inform you as to what transpired, for it would be unprofessional. I remained with him from 11 o'clock Sunday morning until between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon."

CURATOR CLARKSON TAKEN ILL, DELAY IN BANK CASE

Toronto, Jan. 20.—There were no further developments in the Farmers' Bank case here yesterday.

Owing to the absence through illness of G. T. Clarkson, curator, none of the proposed new informations were laid in the Farmers' Bank case yesterday. Mr. Clarkson was reported ill at his home last night and was not at the bank offices all day yesterday. He may not be down till to-morrow, and until he is able to be about again, it is unlikely that there will be any further criminal proceedings taken, unless further evidence arises out of the hearing of the charges against Messrs. Alex. Fraser, A. S. Lown and Wilson, the provisional directors, who appear in the police court to-day to answer a charge of conspiring to secure $10,000 of the bank's funds.

It is reported that Mr. Clarkson has broken down under the heavy strain of his rapid and exhaustive enquiry into the tangled affairs of the bank, together with the heavy responsibility placed upon his shoulders, and he was confined to his bed yesterday.

Dr. Ferguson, one of those to appear to-day, declared yesterday that he will be ready to go on with his case to-day should the crown find itself equally ready. Travers will be used as a crown witness in these cases and has been held at the jail pending use in this and other cases, when he will be sent on to [illegible] to serve out his six years' sentence. He has not been interviewed by the crown since the day of his sentence.

It was positively stated yesterday that George Wishart of New York, charged jointly with Dr. Nesbitt with conspiring to steal $300,000 of the bank's funds, had arranged for bail in the event of his giving himself up, and Crown Attorney Corley declared that he would receive bail should he so surrender. "It has always been the custom to admit to bail any man who comes from a distance to surrender himself," said he.

Masten, Starr & Spence have served notice on behalf of W. R. Wood, a noteholder, that motion will be made before Mr. Justice Britton to-day at Osgoode Hall to have an order winding up the Farmers' Bank. Mr. Wood is the holder of the bank's notes to the extent of $1,050, and also holds $100 stock. He alleges that the dealings with the Keeley mines have impaired the bank's capital and asks that the matter be referred to George Kapelle, K.C.

Seized Travers' Yacht.

BLIZZARD IN WEST

Another One Hits the Suffering Towns

Special to the Review.

Winnipeg, Jan. 20.—Another blizzard has struck the west, and the towns and villages are again in a semi-isolated condition. The train service is badly demoralized. The C.N.R. express is snowed up between Brandon and Regina, and auxiliaries have been dispatched to dig it out.

Better inspection of scaffolding on buildings will be asked for and the appointment of competent inspectors.

Herring Fisheries a Failure.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 20.—The annual meeting of the Charlotte County Weir Owners and Fishermen's Union will be held in St. George, N.B., today and the report of the executive will show a very poor season. The herring fisheries of the Bay of Fundy have been a failure, and conditions among the men dependent on the industry are not such as to cause joy. The president said yesterday that he figured that there were a thousand people directly and indirectly depending on these fisheries.

QUEEN'S MEN TO ARGUE CASE

Will Visit Cabinet Ministers in Toronto.

Kingston, Jan. 20.—In all probability the authorities of Queen's Medical College will pay a visit to Toronto next week, to give the Government their reason for being opposed to the request of the Toronto Medical College that it be allowed to license its graduates and any who have passed since 1904 without taking the examinations prescribed by the Ontario Medical Council.

It is held by the Queen's authorities that this would be unfair treatment, and that the people would not stand for it. While the council exists, and the standards are higher than any medical school in the province, they say, graduates of all colleges should pass the council before being licensed. It is held that the Government cannot give exclusive powers to one college, and if the privilege were given to all, it would not tend to the best qualifications being demanded from medical men who are practicing.

Prof. S. W. Dyde of Queen's University, who has accepted the position of principal of the Theological College at Strathcona, applied for a license to preach at Kingston presbytery today. He was appointed professor of philosophy at Queen's when in his final year of theology at the university.

France Objects to Fortifications.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The French press is much exercised over the Netherlands Government's proposal to fortify Flushing, generally supporting what is assumed to be an objection on the part of the French Government. Whether Holland's reported intention to modify the fortification bill as originally drawn will be satisfactory to both France and Germany, is a matter concerning which there is a difference of opinion.

THE FISHING DIFFICULTIES ARE HAPPILY SETTLED NOW

Sir Alan Aylesworth In House of Commons Reports on Recent Conference In Washington—Hon. W. L. M. King's Resolution Regarding Phosphorus Is Passed — No One Wants Commissionership.

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Alan Aylesworth announced the result of his recent negotiations with United States authorities which practically constitutes a clearing up of the final outstanding issues with that country over the subject of the North Atlantic fisheries.

The agreement, which is in the form of a minute of the conference at Washington, signed by all parties present, applies only to Canada. Newfoundland could not reach an understanding with the United States, and in the agreement the republic reserves the right to re-open the questions involved, pending a final disposition.

In the place of referring the matter to a subordinate board of the arbitral court, Sir Alan said the different method of "diplomatic negotiations" had been adopted, which was considered by all parties as the most desirable method of getting rid of the differences, and in the event of a further reference being required, independent commissions are suggested.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's resolutions concerning the prohibition of the sale of manufacture of opium, cocaine, morphine, and matches made from white phosphorus, were passed.

When the orders of the day were called, Sir Alan Aylesworth rose to give a statement to the House regarding his recent visit to Washington to adjust the final differences in The Hague tribunal.

As a result of the recent conference at Washington, at which a dozen meetings were held, the existing difficulties had been satisfactorily cleared away. In default of this method being successful, it was suggested that a better way of settling the difficulties than that outlined by The Hague tribunal was to constitute two independent boards, one for Canada and one for Newfoundland, on each of which should be a representative of the United States, and a third, who would not be a native of either interested country.

As far as Newfoundland was concerned, it was seen early in the negotiations that no great progress could be made at the present time, and the representative of the island colony left Washington on Jan. 12. It was agreed, however, that the Canadian Ministers should remain, and continue their negotiations, in the hope of reaching an amicable agreement for Canada alone.

The conference was renewed last Friday and Saturday. Four meetings were held, and an agreement was reached, which could be classified under four heads: (1) Purse seining; (2) prohibition against Sunday fishing; (3) the system of issuing licenses to fishermen; (4) exercising the right to board United States fishing vessels that were suspected of infractions of the regulations.

Finally, it was agreed to amend the existing regulations in three respects: (1) It should not be necessary for fishermen to take out licenses for trap nets for cod or herring set 1,000 yards from the shore, or from any other trap net in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. (2) That fishery inspectors should determine the length of the leaders of the net stretching shoreward from the entrance of the trap. (3) It was agreed that the fishery regulations should contain a clause recognizing the right of United States fishermen to secure licenses. On this point, Sir Alan, in reply to a subsequent question, gave it as his opinion that United States fishermen had a right, under the treaty, to demand licenses.

Concluding, Sir Alan, said that although the United States representatives were not able to come to a final agreement, reserving the right to open the question again, if necessary, owing to an inability to reach an understanding with Newfoundland, the U.S., will not press its objection to the fishing laws of Canada at the present time.

"If the objections were renewed, Canada would be no worse off then than if the agreement had not been entered into. The probability that such a thing would take place was very remote.

"The attitude of the representatives of the United States throughout was of a most friendly character. I am satisfied that each man honestly desired to reach, if it could be possible, a final settlement of these prolonged difficulties, and on each side there was the desire manifested to put an end to these century-long troubles; to make concessions where concessions were necessary; and to settle by friendly conference matters which otherwise would have to be litigated at great expense."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed F. D. Monk that no one had applied to the Government for the position of Canadian commissioner for Canada in France, which became vacant in September last.

Replying to Dr. Daniel, the Minister of Labor said that it was not possible to get exact figures as to the number of employes of match factories in the City of Hull and elsewhere, who have been affected with disease of bone due to phosphorous. The Government had information to the effect that men engaged in the making of matches in Canada had suffered from this cause, however.

FINED $1,000

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 19.—A fine of $1,000 and four months in the Erie county penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Judge Taylor in the county court late yesterday in the case of William B. Picard, the New York Central railroad detective, who was found guilty of manslaughter, second degree, in killing Edward J. Cheney, of Springfield, Mass., last July. Cheney was walking along the tracks, in the town of Checktowaga, when he was shot.

CONFESSED TO AN OLD CRIME

After Thirty Years Silence Murder is Out.

Berlin, Ont., Jan. 20.—Additional color and sensation was given the Lobinski murder case of Wellesley on Wednesday through the statement of an aged Berlin resident, Michael Krumshinski, to the effect that Lobinski, at thirty years of age, had confessed to him of a crime that he had committed over thirty years ago.

Krumshinski told a reporter positively that Lobinski had informed him that he had deliberately shot down an officer of the law while hunting on the forbidden grounds of the German Government. He then fled to Canada to escape the clutches of the law.

Settling in Berlin, and being a neighbor of Krumshinski, the two became intimate, when Lobinski confided to his neighbor the story of the crime. It will, however, have no bearing on the present case.

A New Armory for Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Jan. 20.—It is understood that work will be started in the spring on a handsome new armory building, which will be capable of accommodating not only the present rifle corps, but what is even more important at this point, a battery of field artillery.

It is also likely that a cavalry troop will be organised in the spring, and accommodations for this branch of the militia will be taken care of in the new armory, which will cost in the neighborhood of $125,000.

Rabbits a Pest.

Chatham, Jan. 20.—The Chatham Hunt Club, made up of farmers and others interested, have drawn up a largely signed petition asking the Legislature to amend the rabbit laws, so that rabbits may be shot from Oct. 1 to Feb. 1. The farmers claim that the rabbits are destroying their trees and shrubs, but that under the present laws, they are not allowed to kill them.

DIVORCE QUESTION

The consideration of the divorce court question by the senators a few days ago brought out a fine exposition of the generally held view that to establish divorce courts, and facilitate the securing of decrees would generally tend to increase the number of cases. There are a few features of the divorce situation in Canada, however, that call for attention. The maritime provinces have a divorce court. So has British Columbia. If these sections of Canada have courts, are not the other residents of Canada entitled to equal privileges and facilities for securing divorce?

We are not arguing the merits of divorce itself, but surely in Canada there should be equal treatment for all. To provide a much lessened cost for divorce proceedings, to bring it within reach of rich and poor alike, might increase the number of applications, and decrees considerably. But if there is to be a divorce tribunal, surely judges with legal training, with the ability to weigh and balance evidence and give a just decision thereon, would be a much more competent court than a bunch of semi-superannuated politicians. Let the grounds on which divorce may be obtained be strictly limited by law, making the range of causes as narrow as it is today. This will prevent the application for divorce on any but the most serious grounds, and would avoid the scandal which has made divorce a subject of ribald jest in the United States.

There is no reason why divorce should be limited to the wealthy class, because it is only ordinary justice that anyone with proper grievance should have the right to be heard. The law makes no distinctions of people or position. Why should the law in this case make it impossible for any but the wealthy to have their cases considered?

We do not believe that the people of moderate means, the ordinary masses, want divorce, or would avail themselves of such a privilege. But the right must be there, if justice is to be meted out to all alike.

It is eminently desirable that divorce shall be reduced to a minimum in Canada, and experience in other countries has shown that the establishment of courts has facilitated the procuring of it. But in Canada, with a strict legal ground on which divorce may be obtained, and with no laxity in the laws to permit of frivolous reasons for securing such decrees, there probably would not be the unfortunate result marking the establishment of courts in other countries.

FARM IMPLEMENTS

The resolution in support of a reduction of the tariff on agricultural implements, introduced by Arthur Meighen, Conservative member for Portage la Prairie, marks a rather radical change of policy for the party in the West. Mr. Meighen devoted two hours to showing that there was need of a reduction in the duty on agricultural implements; that such a reduction was only a part of the National policy; and that the Liberal government in its years of office had not only not followed out the free trade platform on which it had gone into office, but was actually levying more duty on the farmer's implements in 1910 than it was in 1907, through increased valuation.

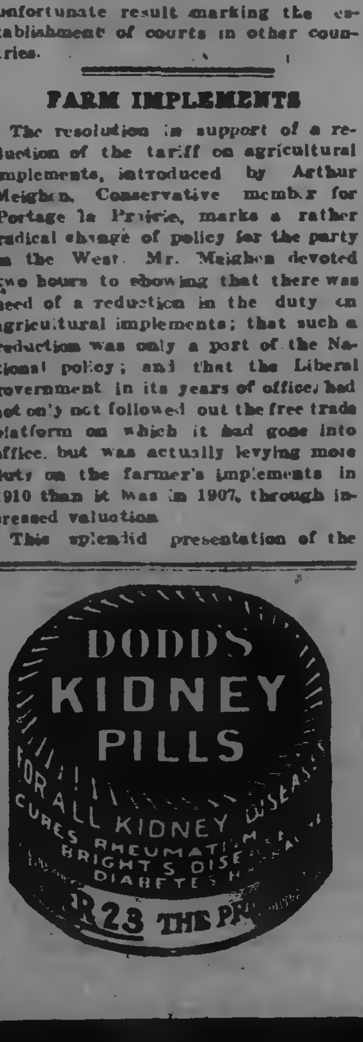
This splendid presentation of the western argument by Mr. Meighen will cause considerable discussion throughout the country. Mr. Meighen argues that the National policy was originated with a view to protecting infant industries, but that it was the intention to reduce the tariff when they had grown strong and lusty, and self-supporting. He points, in support of this fact, to the reduction of the duty made by the Conservative government from 35 per cent. to 20 per cent., before the 1896 term of the Liberal government.

This contention of Mr. Meighen's will not be agreeable to many of the high tariff Conservatives, but it is a view of matters that will enter more and more into practical politics as time goes on and the west becomes a stronger factor in it. Mr. Borden has, in referring to tariff matters, said more than once that he stood for adequate protection. This has been variously interpreted, and may be construed to almost any tariff creed. But what Mr. Borden intended to convey by this phase is evident to those who will construe it fairly. The Conservative party to-day believes in the principle of protecting the home market for the home manufacturers, in forcing the production in this country of all goods which can be reasonably produced here, without burdening the consumer with exorbitant rates.

We do not believe that the Conservative party, staunch though it may be in the support of the protective system as the only one which is feasible in Canada's case, would be content to boost the tariff to the scale of the United States tariff, thereby breeding opulent trusts and monopolies more powerful than the government itself. We believe it a sound and true principle of Conservatism, whether in the east or in the west—and that it is a common ground on which Conservatives of east and west can unite—that the tariff shall be maintained at such a level that Canadian manufacturers are not forced into ruinous competition with the United States or foreign manufacturers; that they are secured the home market, which is important for the general prosperity and development of Canada; but that the tariff shall not be advanced to a rate which enables them to exact more than a reasonable return on the capital and labor employed. To do this, it is admitted, would almost provide for the appointment of a permanent Tariff Board, to apply the principle intelligently and systematically. But it is only right that the manufacturer, in securing possession of the home market—which is his all—should not be permitted to exact from the consumer exorbitant prices under the protection of a great tariff wall.

Mr. Meighen's argument is advanced argument in its class. He has declared that the Canadian farmer pays ten per cent. more for his implements than the United States farmer, and that it has been demonstrated that the cost of manufacture in Canada is just as low as in the United States. The fact that the Canadian branches of the great American implement trust are able to supply foreign markets in competition with all other countries would seem to point to this. A ten per cent. margin is not to be regarded as excessive, yet with the cost of manufacture just as low in Canada as in the United States, it is reasonable for the western agricultural interests to assume that they ought to get as good prices as their American brethren. But the fact that with a 17 per cent. duty—working out practically at 22 or 23 per cent.—Canadian prices are within ten per cent of the American prices, would seem to indicate that the implement manufacturers are not taking full advantage of the duty to boost prices, that they are content to have a preference in the home market without "robbing the consumer to the extent of the tariff."

Mr. Meighen's discussion, from the Conservative standpoint, showing the western members of the party in line with the "progressive" movement, has done one good thing. It may be ineffectual in securing for his constituents what they seem to regard as justice, but it will act as a restrainer on the extremists. It has also demonstrated that Laurier has, instead of fulfilling his pre-election campaign promises actually advanced the protection on this farmers' necessity; that the man who in 1893 declared the tariff to be "a delusion, a snare and a robbery," has in office done more against the principle of low tariff than the Conservatives themselves would have done.



EDITORIAL NOTES

Vancouver wants Ottawa's city engineer, and is prepared to let him name his own price. The Ottawa salary is $4,000 and Vancouver has been paying $12,000. Engineering seems to be worth while in Vancouver.

The Ottawa Free Press says that the Farmers' Bank was a Conservative bank. Let us hasten to add that it was mighty Liberal in the use of its funds.

The milling interests in the west fear the result of the removal of the Canadian duty on wheat, saying it will ruin the industry. It seems scarcely possible to make tariff changes without treading on somebody's tender toes.

Inspector Duncan says that more prominent citizens are to be accused in the Farmers' Bank affair. The exposures certainly will be startling, as to where the money went.

It's rather hard luck to pay for an orchestra seat at the theatre, and then be the victim of a sword breaking loose from its stand on the stage. That was the fate of a Hamilton man.

In the coronation ceremony there will be representatives of Canada, Australia, South Africa and India. It is proposed to have them assist in holding the canopy while the anointing is proceeded with. This is another step towards imperialism.

The Grain Growers' Grain Company is appealing to the western public for support to build and operate the Hudson Bay line. That won't frighten any but those who try to foot the bill.

A WESTERN EXAMPLE

A gentleman from a Saskatchewan town was recently on a business trip to Toronto, and in company with a Toronto friend, went out to make some small purchases of personal necessities. The Torontonian suggested that while in the city the Westerner should make larger and more elaborate purchases, in fact should supply his needs for some time to come. The Westerner refused emphatically to buy more than sufficient for his immediate needs. He said they had merchants in his home town who had been induced to invest capital by the prospect for local business; that he himself was holding a position there (in an educational institution) that was made possible only by the settling in the immediate vicinity of a number of business men and farmers and that he would be unjust to the interests of his neighbors, his town and himself, unless he confined his purchases as far as possible, to his own locality.

If that is the Western spirit, it is not difficult to understand the phenomenal growth of the country and the enthusiasm the Westerners feel for their towns. It is refreshing to hear one of them expatiate on the merits of his place of residence. Possibly, we have not heard the name before, for they are making towns rapidly out that way just now; but we shall not be likely to forget it in the future, after listening to his rapid fire eloquence and seeing his infectious enthusiasm. You can smile at his volubility, but we can tell you, friends, that in the intense local patriotism, of the Westerners, lies the secret of the country's marvelous growth and prosperity.

What a change there would be in Peterborough if all our citizens were imbued with a similar spirit. How the place would thrive if all the residents of Peterborough would take as much interest in the welfare of our town as that Westerner does in his. But as a matter of fact what do we find? It is not only that many citizens of Peterborough spend money when away from home for things they might have obtained here before leaving, but they deliberately defer supplying their wants until they go away. Some indeed send their money by mail and receive the goods by express, under the mistaken impression that they can save a few cents by so doing. How our Westerner would scorn such sordid parsimony.

Now, is it not possible for each one of us to emulate that spirit of solidarity—that wholesome loyalty to our own people, to our own town and to ourselves? Can we not see that in doing so we will not only help our neighbors, but will materially help ourselves. It would enlarge our business and our social life. It would also increase our self-respect. It is a mistake to think you save anything by acting in a contrary way. As a matter of fact you can supply your needs in Peterborough just as economically as in any place in Canada, even in the large places, where it costs more to do business, where taxes are greater and where the cost of living is higher with consequent higher prices for labor and help of all kinds.

Let us get together and see if we cannot give this city a new impetus. It would mean a new expansion to our town if each individual member of the community would resolve to henceforth do all his or her shopping right here in Peterborough.

The Famous Rayo

Does Not Strain the Eyes

Don't use a small, concentrated light over one shoulder. It puts an unequal strain on your eyes. Use a diffused, soft, mellow light that cannot flicker, that equalizes the work of the eyes, such as the Rayo Lamp gives, and avoid eye strain.

The Rayo is designed to give the best light, and it does.

It has a strong, durable shade-holder that is held firm and true. A new burner gives added strength. Made of solid brass and finished in nickel. Easy to keep polished. The Rayo is low priced, but no other lamp gives a better light at any price.

Mildred gave her a cool glance that took her in from head to foot.

"And vice versa, I dare say. You speak from a wider experience than I." With a careless nod she picked her way toward the launch, where her friends were already assembling. She was angry and suspicious. Her pride was hurt because she had not been able to feel superior to the other woman. Instead she had descended to the weak resource of innuendo, while Cherry had been simple and direct. She had expected to recognize instantly the type of person with whom she had to deal, but she found herself baffled. Who was this woman? What was she doing here? Why had Boyd never told her of this extraordinary intimacy? Boyd must either give up Cherry or—

During the talk between the two young women Constantine had kept at a respectful distance, but when Mildred had gone he came up to Cherry with the question:

"Who is that?"

"That is Miss Wayland. That is the richest girl in the world, Constantine."

"Humph!"

"And the pity of it is she doesn't understand how very rich she is. Her father owns all these canneries and many more besides and lots of railroads. But you don't know what a railroad is, do you?"

"Mebbe him rich as Mr. Marsh, eh?"

"A thousand time richer. Mr. Marsh works for him the way you work for me."

"She more han'somer than you be," he added with reluctant candor. "Mebbe that's lie 'bout Mr. Marsh, eh? White men all work for Mr. Marsh. He no work for nobody."

"No; it is true. Mr. Marsh knows how rich she is, and that is why he wants to marry her."

The breed wheeled swiftly, his soft soles crunching the gravel.

"Mr. Marsh want marry her?" he repeated, as if doubting his ears.

"Yes. That is why he has fought Mr. Emerson. They both want to marry her. That is why Marsh broke Mr. Emerson's machinery and hired his men away from him and cut his nets. They hate each other. Do you understand?"

"Me savvy!" said Constantine shortly, then strode on beside the girl. "Me think all the time Mr. Emerson goin' marry you."

Cherry gasped. "No, no! Why, he is in love with Miss Wayland."

"S'pose he don' marry her?"

"Then Mr. Marsh will get her, I dare say."

After a moment Constantine announced with conviction, "I guess Mr. Marsh is bad man."

"I'm glad you have discovered that. He has even tried to kill Mr. Emerson. That shows the sort of man he is."

"It's good thing—get marry!" said Constantine vaguely. "The father say if woman don' marry she go to hell."

"I'd hate to think that," laughed the girl.

"That's true," the other affirmed stoutly. "The pries' he say so, and pries' don' lie. He say man takes a woman and don' get marry they both go to hell and burn forever. Bimeby little baby come, and he go to hell too."

"Oh, I understand! The father wants to make sure of his people, and he is quite right. You natives haven't observed the law very carefully."

"He say Indian woman stop with white man, she never see Jesus' house no more. She go to hell sure, and baby go too. You s'pose that's true?"

"I dare say it is, in a way."

"By gosh! That's tough on little baby!" exclaimed Constantine fervently.

CHAPTER XX.

ALL that night Boyd stayed at his post, while the cavernous building shuddered and hissed to the straining toil of the machines and the gasping breath of the furnaces. As the darkness gathered he had gone out upon the dock to look regretfully toward the twinkling lights on the Grande Dame, then turned doggedly back to his labors. He would have sent Mildred word, but he had not a single man to spare.

At 10 o'clock the next morning he staggered into his quarters more dead than alive. In his heart was a great thankfulness that Big George had not found him wanting. The last defective machine was mended, the last weakness strengthened, and the plant had reached its fullest stride. The fish might come now in any quantity; the rest was but a matter of coal and iron and human endurance. Meanwhile he would sleep.

He met "Fingerless" Fraser emerging, decked royally in all the splendor of new clothes and spotless linen.

"Where are you going?" Boyd asked him.

"I'm going out into society."

"Clyde is taking you to the yacht, eh?"

"No. He's afraid of my work, so I'm going out on my own. He told me all about the swell quilts at Marsh's place, so I thought I'd lam up there and look them over. I may cop an heiress." He winked wisely. "If I see one that looks gentle I'm liable to grab me some bride. He says there ain't one that's got less than a couple of millions in her kick."

Boyd was too weary to do more than wish him success, but it seemed that fortune favored Fraser, for before he had gone far he saw a young woman seated in a patch of wild flowers, plucking the blooms with careless hand while she drank in the beauty of the bright arctic morning. She was simply dressed, yet looked so prosperous that Fraser instantly decided:

"That's her! I'll spread my checks with this one. Good morning!" he began.

The girl gave him an indifferent glance from two fearless eyes and nodded slightly.

"If you don't mind, I'll rest a minute. I'm out for my morning walk. It's a nice day, isn't it?" As she did not answer he ran on glibly: "My name is De Benville. I'm one of the New Orleans branch. That's my cannery down yonder." He pointed in the direction from which he had just come.

"I thought that was Mr. Emerson's cannery," she said.

"Oh, the idea! He only runs it for me. I put up the money. You know him, eh?"

The girl nodded. "Yes. I know Mr. Clyde also."

"Who—Alton?" he queried with reassuring warmth. "Why, you and I have got mutual friends. Alton and me is pals." He shook his head solemnly. "Ain't he a scourge?"

"I beg your pardon."

"I say, ain't he an awful thing? He ain't anything like Emerson. There's a ring tailed swallow all right, all right! I like him."

"Are you very intimate with him?"

"Am I? I'm closer to him than a porous plaster. When Boyd ain't around I'm him, that's all. Is that your yacht?"

"No. My father and I are merely passengers."

"So you trailed the old skeezicks along with you? Well, that's right. Make the most of your father while you've got him. If I'd paid more attention to mine I'd have been better off now. But I was wild." Fraser winked in a manner to inform his listener that all worldly wisdom was his. "I wanted to be a jockey, and the old party cut me off. What I've got now I made all by myself, but if I'd stayed in Bloomington I might have been president of the bank by this time."

"Bloomington! I understood you to say New Orleans."

"My old man had a whole string of banks," Fraser averred hastily.

"Tell me—is Mr. Emerson ill?" asked the girl.

"Ill enough to lick a den of wildcats."

"He intended coming out to the yacht last night, but he disappointed us."

"He's as busy as an ant hill. I met him turning in just as I came out for my constitutional."

"Where had he been all night?" Her voice betrayed an interest that Fraser was quick to detect. He answered cannily:

"You can search me! I don't keep cases on him. As long as he does his work I don't care where he goes at quitting time." He resolved that this girl should learn nothing from him.

"There seem to be very few white women in this place," she said after a pause.

"Only one, till you people came. Maybe you've crossed her trail?"

"Mr. Emerson told me about her. He seems quite fond of her."

"I've always said they'd make a swell looking pair."

"One can hardly blame her for trying to catch him."

"Oh, you can make book that she didn't start no lovemaking. She ain't the kind to curl up in a man's ear and whisper. She don't have to. All she needs to do is look natural. The men will fall like ripe persimmons."

"They have been together a great deal, I suppose."

"Every hour of the day, and the days are long," said Fraser cheerfully. "But he ain't crippled. He could have walked away if he'd wanted to. It's a good thing he didn't, though, because she's done more to win this bet for us than we've done ourselves."

"She's unusually pretty," the girl remarked coldly.

"Yes, and she's just as bright as she is good looking. But I don't care for blonds." Fraser gazed admiringly at the brown hair before him and rolled his eyes eloquently. "I'm strong for brunettes, I am. It's the creole blood in me."

She gathered up her wild flowers and rose, saying:

"I must be going."

"I'll go with you." He jumped to his feet with alacrity.

"Thank you. I prefer to walk alone."

"Declined with thanks!" he murmured. "I'd need ear muffs and mittens to handle her. I think I'll build me some bonfire and thaw out. She must own the mint."

At the upper cannery Mildred found Alton Clyde with the younger Berry girl. She called him aside and talked earnestly with him for several minutes.

"All right," he said at length. "I'm glad to get out, of course. The rest is up to you."

Mildred's lips were white and her voice hard as she cried:

"I am thoroughly sick of it all! I have played the fool long enough!"

"Now, look here," Clyde objected weakly, "you may be mistaken, and it doesn't look like quite the square thing to do." But she silenced him with an angry gesture.

"Leave that to me. I'm through with him."

"All right. Let's hunt up the governor." Together they went to the office in search of Wayne Wayland.

A half hour later when Clyde rejoined Miss Berry she noticed that he seemed ill at ease, gazing down the bay with a worried, speculative look in his colorless eyes.

Boyd Emerson roused from his deathlike slumber late in the afternoon, still worn from his long strain and aching in every muscle. He was in wretched plight physically, but his heart was aglow with gladness. Big George was still at the trap, and the unceasing rumble from across the way told him that the fish were still coming in. As he was finishing his breakfast a watchman appeared in the doorway.

"There's a launch at the dock with some people from above," he announced. "I stopped them, according to orders, but they want to see you."

"Show them to the office." Boyd rose and went into the other building, where a moment later he was confronted by Wayne Wayland and Willis Marsh. The old man nodded to him shortly. Marsh began:

"We heard about your good fortune. Mr. Wayland has come to look over your plant."

"It is not for sale."

"How many fish are you getting?"

"That is my business." He turned to Mr. Wayland. "I hardly expected to see you here. Haven't you insulted me enough?"

"Just a moment before you order me out. I'm a stockholder in this company, and I am within my rights."

"You a stockholder? How much stock do you own? Where did you get it?"

"I own 35,000 shares outright." Mr Wayland tossed a packet of certificates upon the table. "And I have options on all the stock you placed in Chicago. I said you would hear from me when the time came."

"So you think the time has come to crush me, eh?" said Emerson. "Well, you've been swindled. Only one-third of the capital stock has been sold, and Alton Clyde holds 35,000 shares of that."

The old man smiled grimly. "I have not been swindled."

"Then Clyde sold out!" exploded Boyd.

"Yes. I paid him back the $10,000 he put in, and I took over the 25,000 shares you got Mildred to take."

"Mildred!" Emerson started as if he had been struck. "Are you insane? Mildred doesn't own— Why, Alton never told me who put up that money!"

"Don't tell me you didn't know!" cried Wayne Wayland. "You knew all the time. You worked your friends out and then sent that whipper snapper to my daughter when you saw you were about to fail. You managed well. You knew she couldn't refuse."

"How did you find out that she held the stock?"

"She told me, of course."

"Don't ask me to believe that. If she hadn't told you before she wouldn't tell you now. All I can say is that she acted of her own free will. I never dreamed she put up that $25,000. What do you intend to do now that you have taken over these holdings?"

TOILING AWAY

Toiling away when the year is new; toiling away when its journey's through, that is the way that we pilgrims do, toiling away, away; toiling away on the wind-swept hill, doing our tasks in the noisy mill, hoping for rest when the looms are still, toiling away, away. Toiling away at the fertile loam; guiding our ships o'er the spray and foam, saying a prayer for the ones at home, toiling away, away; toiling away in our humble sphere, all through the long, long weary year; smiling a bit when the night is near, toiling away, away. Toiling away for our daily bread, toiling away when our hopes are dead; toiling away till we go to bed, toiling away, away; toiling away for our wages slim, toiling away when our eyes are dim, toiling away, away. Toiling away! 'Tis our end and aim! Toiling away for an honored name. Toiling away is the human game, toiling away, away! Here on the vessel the ropes we coil; here on the meadow we plow the soil, thankful that we have the strength to toil, toiling away, away!

GRATEFUL MOTHERS!

What Zam-Buk Did For Their Little Ones

Thousands of mothers in Canada owe a debt of gratitude to Zam-Buk for its cure of their children, and hundreds of them are not slow to recognize the claim.

Mrs. J. Quigley, of Ninette, Man., says, "My little boy was suffering very badly from a form of skin disease over his eyes. I applied Zam-Buk to the affected part and in a very short time, I am pleased to say, the sores were completely healed."

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk St., Guelph Ont., says, "My little daughter Lorinda (6), contracted a skin disease. This first broke out like tiny water blisters afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time, and then reappear worse than ever. We tried Zam-Buk, and with each application the irritation and soreness were greatly relieved and the child rested easier. Perseverance with Zam-Buk worked a complete cure."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, upon receipt of price.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

SPOKE TO THE STUDENTS OF I.C.S.

In the Parlor of the Oriental Last Evening

A number of the students of the International Correspondence Schools assembled in the parlor of the Oriental last evening, and heard an explanatory address by R. T. Francis, of Toronto, representing the International Educational Publishing Company, of London, England. Messrs. F. J. McDonnell, of Belleville, division superintendent of the schools, and Mr. Willa, the recently appointed local representative from Kingston, were also present.

The address by Mr. Francis was most interesting. He explained the benefit it would be to students to hold stock in the company, which he represented, and also gave some very interesting figures regarding the strength and value of the O.E.P. Company, and its rapidly increasing strength.

The information given out was of great interest to the students and his address was greatly appreciated by those present.

FRACTURED HIP JOINT

Painful Accident to Aged Lakefield Lady — Now in Nichols Hospital

Mrs. Henry Masters, of Lakefield, aged about sixty, was brought to Nicholls Hospital on the 12th of this month, from Lakefield in Comstock's Ambulance. About the first of the year she had the misfortune to fracture her hip joint by falling on the steps of her home in Lakefield. The break was rather peculiar, and as the fracture was not healing as fast as it was thought it should she was accordingly brought to the local hospital. Dr. Caldwell is attending her and while it will be some time before she is able to walk, still her eventual recovery is assured.

THE UNITY OF THE HUMAN RACE

This High Standard Should Guide Us in Our Business, Political and Religous Sphere of Activity—A Lofty Ideal, But Not Beyond Realization, Says Rev. Dr. Symonds in Masterful Address Before Canadian Club.

The Peterborough Canadian Club has always been particularly happy in the selection of speakers who have appeared before it on various occasions but it is reasonable to state that no more brilliant or graceful address was ever given under its auspices than the one made last night by Rev. Dr Symonds, rector of Christ Church Cathedral Montreal, and late rector of St. Luke's, Ashburnham. His subject "The Unity of the Human Race," was naturally very broad and idealistic,but but the speaker said the attainment was not merely a visionary hope while it might not be accomplished in our time, perhaps not completely realised for centuries, we could be factors in the achievement of this splendid humanitarian ideal.

His was indeed a very great privilege as well as a pleasure to be present in the city of Peterborough and to have the pleasure of addressing the Canadian Club, Dr. Symonds stated.

CANADIAN CLUBS.

He spoke in high eulogy of the Canadian Club, a branch of which had not been formed here when he left Petrborough. He had the honor to be a member of the Canadian Club in Montreal, however.

It was surprising what an opportunity the Canadian Clubs afforded both to those who were interested in conveying knowledge and those who were interested in receiving the knowledge conveyed.

Men of politics, music, literature and art from this country and the old country, spoke before Canadian Clubs. They were a remarkably well organized and very useful invention.

A THEORETICAL TOPIC.

"I want to speak to you this evening on a theoretical topic," stated Dr. Symonds. "I want to approach it on a very high ideal point of view."

Hon. Clifford Sifton's address was very practical. Dr. Symonds' address would be a discourse on ideals which in their realization lay a very long way before us.

TORCH-BEARERS FOR THE ACE.

In this very practical life it was well to get away from time to time that which was purely immediate and to look into ideals of the future which could only be realized through the efforts of the human race even if those ideals were generations ahead. But each generation was a torch bearer for the generations to come.

In referring to the significance of his subject, "The Unity of the Human Race," the speaker said it was admitted by us all in the first place that there was a human race.

There ought to be such a thing as unity. The goal and ideal of the human race should be such that it would be one in its interests and destiny.

OLD PHILOSOPHIES TEACH HUMAN UNITY.

If we consulted the writings of the Greeks we found towards the end of their philosopical period a very clear conception of the unity of the human man race. Amongst the Greek philosophers there came an ideal which entertained the thought, not of a great intellectual people, but of a great human race. Severa, the Greek philosopher, conceived of a society within a society. His conception was of a common wealth of a human race whose duties were human duties which were owed to everyone.

The Roman Empire have the same ideal merged in thought of the later life of that great country. Virgil apostrophising the Roman people saw they were not great in arts like the Greeks were, but said ,"Do thou Romans rule the nation with authority." He also admonished them to be charitable, to be kind to the vanquished and to trample on the proud.

This same idea came to like and birth and form amongst the Hebrew people. There was a unity of thought amongst the Hebrews that they were God's chosen people. Later when that thought was developed it branched off in two directions. One branch of the Hebrews said they were God's chosen people and all the others were under the ban of the Almighty, the other section maintained that they were God's people and were to work for the rest of the world.

Amongst these great peoples of ancient times there emerged under some guidance of Providence of some sort or another an ideal for the uplift and unity of the whole race.

THE IDEAL OF TO-DAY.

Now we came to the period of the modern world and there was scarcely a time in which this magnificent ideal hadn't been advocated in some form or another. It was continually before Paul. St. Augustine experienced it in the "City of God." Later, between the Pope as the head of the religious and the emperor as the head of the secular, there was a magnificent conception of this ideal.

NARROW NATIONALISM GIVING AWAY.

In the 16th century there was a movement which tended to stay this idealistic movement. It was the rise of the European nations. But that narrow nationalism was largely giving away to-day in favor of the universal idea, the idea of each nation contributing something for the benefit and development of the others.

The material things of the age were accomplishing great things in the realization of this ideal. The ulterior effect of steam and electricity was to bring every part of the world into closer contact.

We were deeply, for instance, interested in China. If there was a revolution there we knew it would affect our trade and other interests.

It was essential for the thoughtful men to teach these people of the necessity of establishing a high ideal of the good relations that should exist between nation and nation.

THESE KNOW NO NATION.

Was it not the case that science knew no nation or country? When there was a scientific invention we were not concerned where it was originated. In the realms of art and literature there was a catholicity that was universal. We knew that there were great movements to-day, as, for instance, the peace movement. This was one that knew no country. Then there was the mission movement, which was in the same class. Then there were conventions and congresses of all kinds which met in various cities of the world. All of these had a tendency toward the bringing together of the scattered elements of hte human race.

It was likely to be many centuries before there would be accomplished what Tennyson called "the federation of the world."

By exalting the universal idea we would not depress the national any more than the family ideal would. The family ideal should apply in national affairs. So then the sum and substance of what the speaker had to say was that, while being as deeply loyal as possible to our own country, we should look at questions that arose from a large and liberal point of view, and to remember that whilst we were Canadians that people of other countries were men, and while there were different ideals which bound together the ideals of a nation there were certain to be some such ideals which would bind together the elements of a race.

An eloquent vote of thanks was given Dr. Symonds by Rev. Canon Davidson, Mr. T. F. Matthews seconding the motion.

PETERBOROUGH POULTRYMEN MADE GOOD IN LINDSAY

Peterborough poultry exhibitors made an excellent showing at the Lindsay poultry show, which closed last night. Mr. Frank Head did especially well with his barred Plymouth rocks, letting 1st and 2nd in cocks; 1st, 2nd and 3rd in hens; 1st and 2nd in cockerels and 3rd in pullets. He also for the second year won the "Breeders' Advocate" cup for the greatest number of points won in the Plymouth Rocks' exhibit. The competition was stiff in the "Rocks" class, as there were 32 entries. In the Tolouse geese class his winnings were excellent also. He obtained 1st in graders and 2nd in geese.

Fred. Dunnitt, William Mein and Tommy Tucker also made splendid winnings, the two former in Black Orpingtons, and the latter in Brahmas.

Confirmation Class

Rev. Canon Davidson will conduct a confirmation class in the Guild Room to-night at 8 o'clock.

SPORTING NEWS

INDOOR BALL GAMES WON BY NO. 2 AND 8

The Indoor Baseball League schedule opened with a bang at the Armories last night, the players of the four teams displaying great interest, and while the class of ball was not of the top-notch variety, there was plenty of excitement for a goodly number of fans.

In the first contest No. 2 put it all over No. 3 by a 42-27 score, and in the second No. 8 came out on the long end of the 40—33 count, with No. 7.

Martin Connors umpired on both ends of the double-header, and got away with both in a satisfactory manner.

FIRST GAME.

No. 3 with Col.-Sergt. Sucee on the coaching line, broke away for a good start, hammering Halpin for eight runs, and kept No. 2 working overtime in their half to gather three. In the second Skates replaced Drummond behind the bat, the latter having taken one of Halpin's upshoots in the nose. The change did not stop No. 2, who came right back with a baker's dozen. There, however, they stopped taking tallies in big bunches. In their next No. 2 sent nine men across the plate and held their opponents to one in the third, after which they went after Drummond for fourteen, and kept up the pace for the remainder of the game.

Score by innings:—

No. 3	8	13	1	3	2—27
No. 2	3	9	14	16	x—42

Batteries—No. 3, Drummond, Garside and Faux; No. 2, Halpin, Simmons and Skates.

SECOND GAME.

No. 8 had to keep moving all the time to land a win from No. 7. This contest was the better played of the two, the batteries being much stronger and their support steadier. The losers had a triple play to their credit, Coughlin handling a line drive, getting the man off third and throwing out the runner off first. No. 8 started off with a brace and No. 7 with eight. Capt. McPherson's team took eight in their next and played safe for the next three innings. In the fifth Ecclestone, who had been putting up a strong exhibition on the receiving end, took the box and handled himself well. Fulker got the medals at first base.

Score by innings:—

No. 8	2	9	10	7	12—40
No. 7	8	4	5	10	6—33

Batteries—No. 8, McPherson and Ecclestone; No. 7, Coughlin, Thompson and Lightheart.

GLOVER OUT AT PRACTICE; TRENTON HERE TUESDAY

Juniors, and Intermediates worked out together at the rink last night, with Rollie Glover on the defence for the latter. Trainer Preen-gee, was there, and frowned on any cases of "ease up" or attempt to get away with that "this is a cinch."

The youthless ex-point of the blue and white, will in all probability play against Trenton Tuesday night. Rumour has it that one or two more of the old guard will be called into service, but in all respect to them and in fairness to the younger players whose record so far for the season (won and lost away from home with the two games in the week, it is hoped that the Executive will not fall down.

This game next Tuesday will be without doubt one of the hardest struggles ever pulled off on local ice, and the occasion calls for a packhouse. It is to be the first home game for the Intermediates, and while that 18-4 looks bad, the dope is "get out and be a sticker." Fred. Denison will be working on the defence and if he and the remainder of the team, put up the game they did in Cobourg, the win will surely be on this side of the fence.

LINDSAY CURLERS WON THREE AND TIED ONE

Lindsay curlers returned home last night, with wins on three rinks and a tie with the fourth, Skip Tiley being unable to get away with a victory from Skip Sturgeon. All games were warmly contested and the northern town knights of the stane had a pleasant visit. The rinks and scores:

PIRATES WON HALL TROPHY

(Sports at the Y.M.C.A.)

The Intermediate Basketball League was brought to a most successful conclusion last night, when the Pirates defeated the Shamrocks in a hard fought, close checking contest. By winning last night's game the Pirates have gone through the entire schedule without a defeat, and will now hold the handsome trophy presented by Sandford Hall for the intermediate championship for one year. The Pirates lined up as follows:—W. Hastie, captain; H. Taylor, forwards; F. Barry, centre; N. Taylor and W. White, defence.

In the junior Basketball League the Ramblers rambled off with the J. J. Allen basketball trophy, the Ramblers going through with only one defeat and will hold the handsome trophy for one year. This is a very creditable showing when you consider that there were eight teams in this league, and every team was out after the trophy.

Commencing Saturday morning the junior class all round contest will start, with four teams of ten men each. Every boy should make an effort to be on the job and help his team to score points.

Athletic work will start for the intermediate class next Thursday night. Members of the intermediate class will meet at the Association Monday and will go in a body out to the toboggan slide for the evening, returning to the building, where refreshments will be served.

COLLEGIATE HOCKEY CLUB "AT HOME" ON FEBRUARY THE 3RD

The patronesses are Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. L. M. Hayes, Mrs. J. F. Harvey, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, Mrs. T. H. G. Denne.

J. K. Harstone is secretary.

ABOUT REAL CANADIAN HOCKEY

(NEW YORK TELEGRAPH)

Real Canadian hockey, with its spectacular features, speedy rushes, accurate shooting, good stickwork and brilliant skating, has become so popular that the announcement of the appearance of a team of players enjoying championship prestige across the border is always a source of enjoyable expectation to the local hockey enthusiasts. Much is expected of the representatives of McGill University in Montreal, who will meet the Crescent Athletic Club team to-morrow night at St. Nicholas Rink.

This team of little puck chasers has a record in Canada second only to the St. Michael's players, amateur champions of the Dominion, who distinguished themselves here two weeks ago by defeating the New York Athletic Club team, champions of America, in one of the most brilliant exhibitions of the game, eve seen in this city. Six of the seven men who comprise the team, who will play to-morrow night figured on last season's team which tied Queen's University for the Intercollegiate championship of Canada, and were beaten in the play-off.

KENNEDY HARD WORKER

Capt. Sars Kennedy of the Crescents has worked hard to get the Crescents into championship form, and his efforts have been rewarded, for he has a team that is unquestionably stronger than any of the teams which previously carried the New Moon to victory, in contests for the amateur league trophy. Not alone has Kennedy been satisfied with the practice periods which have afforded the team opportunity to get into condition for the cup tournament but he has taken the team to Cleveland for a number of practice games and also took Yale on for a practice game at the outset of the season, when the Crescents were so ragged in their work that it looked like courting inevitable defeat to go against the Blues.

The disorganization of the famous Wanderers gave the Crescents a chance to corral Ernie Dufresne, who is probably the best coverpoint playing the position of any American team. He is a valuable acquisition to the team, but not more so than Jimmy Shireff who played rover on the Crescent team, when it won the championship three years ago, and then joined the New York Athletic Club seven and helped them defeat his old clubmates. He has rejoined the latter and is playing his position better than ever.

CRESCENTS WELL BALANCED

Captain Kennedy will back up Dufresne and with Doc Thomas, one of the best amateur goal tenders that ever came out of Canada, in the net, the team on the whole is one of the finest balanced hockey organizations ever seen in the local rink. Every man on the team is a fast skater and able to keep up with the puck at every stage of the play.

Recalling how decisively the New York Athletic Club team was beaten by the St. Michael's team from Toronto, the Crescents will make a determined effort to beat the McGill players.

PUCKLAND

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—Had not Belleville's junior hockeyist had a first-class goal tender in their games with the Frontenacs at Kingston last night, the score might have been such as to stagger humanity.

The Intelligencer is probably correct. Too often the poor goaltender is blamed for a big score, when he was really playing a star game and the men in front of him were all to the bad.

Cobourg will make a strong bid for the game at Trenton to-night. On the respective showings however, the Lake shore crew will be about a dozen goals behind at the finish.

The Railroaders will play the Pill pounders to-night from 10 to 11.

THE PETERBOROUGH COUNTY FARMERS ARE SATISFIED

They Ask the Government Not to Seek Reciprocity in a Delegation to Ottawa—Differ from the West

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 19 — A delegation of farmers from Lincoln, Kent and Peterboro counties interviewed Sir Wilfrid Laurier this afternoon and presented a resolution opposing reciprocity. They declared emphatically that the recent delegation of farmers from the West did not represent the Canadian farmer's views on the tariff and urged that no reciprocity treaty be entered into without a mandate from the people. Further, it was stated that the language of the Westerners had been extravagant and of such a tendency as to bring farming into disrepute. They expressed belief in a mixed community in the country and disavowed the idea of the manufacturer's heel being on their neck or that they were ground down by oppression. "We are against commercial union in any guise," concluded the memorial. It was presented by David Jackson, of Grimsby, Lincoln County.

Another petition was presented by Bruce Johnson of Peterboro County. It was on behalf of farmers of Monaghan Township. It was against any reciprocity treaty bringing in products more freely than at present and asked that the tariff be so raised as to keep out American produce. If the Americans wanted to enter the Canadian market they should build branch factories. The principle of British preference and of protection of home industries was affirmed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reply was noncommittal. While this delegation was satisfied, he said, others were not. He would bear in mind the representations and endeavor to harmonize all the interests. The reciprocity negotiations were in progress at Washington and he did not wish to interfere with them at this stage.

MAKING HIM AN HONEST MAN

Surgeon's Knife Turns Criminal to Righeous Path

Turning a criminal into an upright man by means of a surgeon's knife is what the newspapers tell us was recently accomplished at Clinton Prison, Dannemora, N. Y. Edward E. Grimmell, who is a member of a respectable Buffalo family, is now 34 years of age, and since a boy of 14 has been criminally inclined. Four terms Grimmell served for various crimes, ranging from theft to forgery. He seemed to be a man so dangerous to the community that there was nothing left but to send him where he could do the least harm — behind walls and bars of the grim prison at Dannemora.

In the course of time the man's family and boyhood friends became convinced that he was not an ordinary criminal. They remembered that up to the time young Grimmell had received a skull fracture, thereby injuring his brain, that he had been a normal boy, but thereafter immediately began to show symptoms of criminality. In what may be termed his sane moments, Grimmell also became convinced that there was something wrong with his brain, and in 1909 Dr. DeWitt G. Wilcox, of Boston University was prevailed upon to operate upon him, after the surgeons at Clinton Prison had declined to do so.

The change in the man after the operation was such that the prison officials and others who were closely associated with Grimmell, and who had the opportunity of observing him with care, became convinced that the injury to the skull was primarily the cause of the man's criminal eccentricities. The particulars of the case finally came before the Buffalo Judge who had sentenced Grimmell in 1898 on two forgery charges, and it was through Judge Wheeler that the matter was brought to the attention of the Governor of the State, who has now pardoned the man.

Grimmell's future conduct, now that he is again a free man, will naturally be watched with a good deal of interest. Should it prove that by relieving a pressure on the brain this man has been elevated from criminality to upright, decent citizenship, there is work ahead of the skilful surgeon that we wot not of in this generation.

Then there is "Pall Mall" and a number of other good ones that will please everybody. Since the reading room has been re-decorated, it looks like a new place. Everything is kept sweet and clean, and the room is always bright, both night and day. Just a little visit will convince you that you cannot afford to stay away from the Y. M. C. A. Reading Room.

The executive of the Debating Society will meet in the office of the General Secretary at 7.30 to-night. The executive consists of Messr. F. E. Ellis, W. O. Taylor, W. A. Logan and W. Shiner. Plans will be drawn up for the work during the balance of the season.

The Teacher Training Class for Male Sunday School Teachers held a good session last night. The lesson was "The Teacher's Qualifi at ons." It is hoped that in the near future there will be something done to meet the demand for a similar class for all the teachers.

HAD HIS TOE AMPUTATED

Horse Trod Heavily on Foot of Oriental Groom

One of the employees of the Oriental Hotel livery stable, named Fred. Chotters, had the large toe of his right foot so severely injured on Wednesday afternoon, that it was found necessary to amputate it. He was leading one of the horses around the yard, exercising it, and the horse stepped heavily on one of his feet, injuring the toe so severely that medical attendance showed that amputation was necessary. The operation was performed in Nicholl's Hosp'tal.

LOCAL IRON-MOLDERS MADE MERRY LAST EVENING

A Splendid Banquet and a Varied Programme Evening Was a Decided Success.

A gathering of a very informal nature, in which songs, speeches, instrumental numbers and step-dances intermingled, composed the program, was held in the C.O.F. Hall last night. The Iron-Moulders Union of the city had assembled for a good time and they most decidedly carried out their purpose.

A generous and elaborate spread, to which about eighty or ninety sat down was served between nine and ten o'clock. This concluded, the program then commenced. Mr. Hugh Robinson presided and called the audience to order. On the platform were representatives of the Trades and Labor Council, the Barbers' Union, Printers' Union, and the Iron-Moulders' Association. They were Mr Fred Dobbin, Mr. A. Sharpe and H. Gainey, Mr. J. H. Barnet, of Toronto, travelling business agent of the Iron Moulders Union, was also present.

Each of the above-mentioned gentlemen made short speeches advocating patriotism to the unions of which they represented and their words met with hearty approval and were loudly applauded.

The following was the program run off;

Chairman's address—H. Robinson.
Toast—The King.
Song—Harold Lees.
Toast—Our Guests—Mr. H. Gainey, A. Sharoe and Fred Dobbin.
Toast—The International Union and Ontario Conference Board.
Instrumental—Frank Clarke.
Song—Mr Perry.
Toast—The Charter Members
Step Dance—Sam Hoolihan.
Song—Harold Hatcher.
Toast—The Ladies.
Instrumental—Messrs. Hatrick and Perry, violin and piano.
Song—Bro. Stewart.
Toast—The Press.
Song—Brother Readhouse.
Song—Brother Raymond.
Song—Harold Lee.
Mouth-organ solo—Teddy Andrews.
Step dance—George N. Graham.
Song—J. H. Barnet.
Accompanists—Messrs. Hatrick and Clarke.

There was not a dull moment during the entire program. Each number was given with spirit and the applause was very loud at times and most appreciative. Mr. Andrews on the mouth organ is some performer, and he was heartily encored. Mr. F. Clarke on the banjo would be hard to beat and gave a good coon song with banjo accompaniment. He was in constant demand as accompanist for various other selections. The step-dancing of Sam Hoolihan and George Gragam raised hilarious auplause and these two gentlemen by their numble foot-work evoked probably the most delighted encores of the entire evening.

Harold Hatcher's song, "Rosenbaum," was also given in a stirring manner and he was given hearty applause.

Viewing the evening from every stand-point it was easily superior to any of a like nature yet held and to say that those present had their fill of enjoyment is putting it lightly.

Mr. J. H. Barnet's address was quite lengthy. He urged the members of the union to be loyal, patriotic and earnest and his words were convincing and helpful to all.

WAS GLAD HE CAME

(Chicago News.)

"I have come," said the large man who had entered the law office and bolted the door after him, "to give you the worst whipping you ever had in your life. I've just served three months in jail and you sent me there, and I'm going to make soup bones of you if I swing for it."

"Have you considered the consequences my friend?" asked the small, pallid lawyer, as he put down the large book he had been reading. "You shouldn't undertake a contract of such a character without being familiar with all the legal phases of the matter. In an action for assault and battery, such as would certainly be brought against you, malice aforethought would be easily shown. Where an assault occurs, under stress of great excitement or provocation, judges and juries regard the defendant leniently, but where the attack has been deliberately planned, as in this case, and where threats of extreme bodily violence have been uttered, the verdict is bound to be severe. I am trying to present the case to you in non-technical terms, purely for your own good."

HE WOULD SMASH

"Lots you care about my own good," grumbled the billigerent visitor. "I dont' want any of your advice. I am going to smash you the best I know how, so come from behind that desk."

"Have you considered" asked the lawyer, "that when inflicting punishment upon me you are liable to sustain severe injuries yourself? Not that I would resist, for that would be hopeless. But the human head is largely composed of bone and the fist that hits it is apt to be broken. You surely have read of the numerous prize fighters who have broken their arms in the ring? If a prize fighter sustains such injuries, what can an ordinary citizen hope for!

HEAD WAS BONY

"Moreover, my head is unusually bony and many of the bones are angular, and I feel sure that you would break your wrist or some of your fingers, at least. There was an interesting case chronicled in the South eastern Law Reporter a few weeks ago. A citizen whose name I have forgotten assaulted his family attorney and broke his arm. He was sent to the penitentiary for the assault and his arm had to be amputated. Think of spending years in the penitentiary minus an arm!"

"I'm willing to take the chances. Here goes—"

When the visitor recovered his faculties he was curled up on the floor and the lawyer was seated upon his bosom, holding a piece of lead pipe in one hand.

"The next time you contemplate an attack upon a learned and eloquent attorney," said the lawyer, "be sure to commit the assault first and discuss your grievances afterward. I knew I had this length of lead pipe somewhere in my desk, but I couldn't remember in which drawer I had placed it. However, you gave me plenty of time to find it, and here we are, having an excellent, comfortable time, and merry men are we. I can't tell you how glad I am that you came up to see me. The chief drawback of a lawyers' life is the intolerable monotony. Think, my dear sir, of the dreary round of duties which make up his existence!"

LET ME UP!

"Let me up," begged the formerly beligerent visitor. "I've had enough."

"All in good season, my friend. So many hours a day in his dingy office! So many hours in the sepulchral court room! That is the story of the lawyer's day. He loses track of human emotions, human passions, human ambitions, save as he encounters them in dreary books. None but a lawyer can understand what a blessing it is to see a man come in, as you came in, looking for trouble! You have made me a man again, when I was becoming a machine! Rise up, Wm. Riley, or whatever your name is, and kindly permit me to kick you all the way down stairs!"

THE HIGHER CRITICS

The following letter is written by John Carlisle, of Peterborough, in answer to the higher critics—

Sir,—Please allow me to give your many thousand intelligent readers another instalment of the re-stated faith of the higher critics (?), which Prof. Jackson, of Victoria University, has carefully copied down in his little book, misnamed 'Studies in the Old Testament,' and compare said new faith with the faith once for all delivered to the saints. In my previous letter I quoted the findings of these critics, and showed that they regard the Bible largely as a work of romance, myth, etc. Now these writers ask the public to accept their lump-sum conclusions without giving the least evidence of the truthfulness of their findings. They make statements and give nothing to prove said statements, absolutely nothing. In fact, they say that their findings or conclusions are arrived at by shady, doubtful and uncertain ways. Every court demands proof, judges and juries demand evidence.

These critical analysis of Holy Writ remind one of the merchant who bills his customer with a lump sum account for goods purchased—no details. The customer thinks the account looks suspiciously large and asks his merchant for a detailed statement of his account. The merchant answers 'Over many of the details of your account there is, of course, much uncertainty; in fact there is a great number of the items in your account we are not sure that you ever received them or not, and owing to the peculiar mode of bookkeeping in this house, it must probably always be; so you will therefore please accept your account as a whole and pay it forthwith.' That is the way the higher critics talk to their customers. Allow me to repeat what Prof. Jackson says on page 22 of his book—

'Over many of the details of the critical analysis there is, of course, much uncertainty. In the very nature of the case it must probably always be so.' Thank the good Lord for that confession. And yet they ask us to accept their lump-sum conclusions, their scientific exegesis of God's Word, after such a confession. Do these intellectual emancipators take the people for fools?

On page 118 Prof. Jackson tells us how to discover the false from the true when we read the Bible. He says, 'But cries some timerous soul, if some part of my Bible is mythical, how do I know that any of it is historical?' To which once more the answer is 'We must use our common sense.' When Prof. Jackson read the early chapters of Genesis his common sense declared these chapters were myth, etc. That is how he and his critics arrived at their conclusions. When he read in the book of Daniel how God revealed to Daniel the King's forgotten dream, and that that same Daniel, for praying three times a day to his God, was cast into a den of hungry lions, and they hurt him not, for God sent His angel and shut the lions' mouths, etc., this is far too much a strain on Prof. Jackson's weak faith to believe any such records, so his common sense pronounces all this story a 'romance.' The story of the three Hebrews being cast alive into a fiery furnace for being true to the God of heaven, and escaping without even the smell of smoke upon them, is also pronounced a romance, or an imaginary tale, by Prof. Jackson's common sense, and the professor would have us all do the same. The story also of good Queen Esther being used by the God of Israel to deliver her people from death, etc., is also too much for our professor's faith. His common sense pronounces this whole book (the book of Esther) a romance.' I wonder how the Methodists take to this new re-stated faith. The story of the great fish in the book of Jonah, and the repentance of the men of Nineveh, etc., is also pronounced by Prof. Jackson's common sense a romance.

On page 138 he declares the author of the book of Jonah is a romancer. He declares further, on page 145, 'The interpretation of the book of Jonah is really a literary question, to be determined by the ordinary laws that apply to such matters, and we 'must steadfastly refuse' to allow it to be exalted into a question of faith.' No Holy Ghost in this new faith; none. These critics ask us to accept their findings by faith and abandon our common sense while reading God's Word. How does it look, reader? St. Paul speaks of those whom 'the Word preached did not profit, not being mixed with faith.' Common sense is a good thing, and one must be absolutely destitute of that commodity who cannot see that instead of the 'Father of Lights' sending these apostles of the new faith they are sent by the 'father of lies.'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION AND PROF. GEORGE JACKSON,

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is with the greatest surprise to scores of people that the Ministerial Association of Peterborough have invited Prof. Jackson, of Victoria College, Toronto, to give an address on Friday evening in the Y.M.C. A. Hall.

Now Prof. Jackson is a well-known higher critic, and through his public utterances, as well as through a little book which he has published, discredits the authority of the Word of God as well the authority of Jesus Christ.

In one of his latest addresses before the Presbyterian Ministerial Association, as reported in the Globe, of December 21, 1910, his subject was "Demons of the Bible." Prof. Jackson summed up a somewhat lengthy treatment of the subject in the following words: "On the whole, therefore, the conclusions most consonant with the facts of modern knowledge and of scripture seems to be these, that the Demoniacs of the New Testament were really cases of epilepsy, lunacy or other nervous disorders that the writers of the New Testament in speaking of them naturally diagnosed their sufferings according to the common conception of their time, and that Jesus Himself, too, shared this common belief."

Well, if I believed this rubbish, I would burn my Bible. I would have no more of it. If Jesus Christ, my Saviour and Redeemer, was such a deceiver as Prof. Jackson put it, we may say, away with the whole thing.

No doubt the simple address to be given before the Association, and their wives is not the real address for which he was invited, but more of a semi-private nature and more sensational.

Now, if the members of the Ministerial Association were in the dark and did not know their man, they might have some excuse for their action, but there was no need to be in ignorance. Prof. Jackson's addresses have all been reported in the public press, and he certainly has not tried to hide his light under a bushel, "so that he who runneth may read."

In his public utterances, as well as in his book, "Studies in the Old Testament," his views have been and are set forth discrediting the authenticity of the five books of Moses, the books of Daniel, Esther, etc.

It may be asked why he is retained as one of the Professors in Victoria College. No doubt this is one of the signs of the times, and any thoughtful mind can easily see where we are drifting. Oh that the sleeping Christians in all the churches could be aroused to see the terrible danger we are in, by allowing this thing to go on without a strong, determined protest being made.

Yours,
FRANCIS MASON.

A Stampede of Horses

While a consignment of eleven horses were waiting to be entrained in stock cars at the C. P. R. station about four o'clock last evening, they took fright at the passing yard engine, jumped the platform railing, and ran away. The horses were being shipped to the West by "Ted" Cavanagh. After clearing the platform railing at the rear of the freight sheds, the frightened animals scattered, going in different directions on reaching Aylmer Street.

It called forth some strenuous efforts on the part of the men in charge before they were finally captured. One of the horses failed to clear the railing clearly, and sustained a slight injury on the knee.

They were shipped last night however in three cars, having a man in charge of each car.

Because of the lack of street railway connection for freight purposes the Penman Manufacturing Company may not complete their factory at Brantford.

ST. PAUL CITY MUCH AROUSED

Over Segregation Problem—Religous Bodies Condemn Plan

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—A resolution emphatically condemning the position taken by a committee of the civic league at a recent conference with Mayor Keller in favor of the plan of segregating the social evil was adopted at the all-day conference of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ramsey county, held yesterday in the First German M.E. church, Olive street and Van Slyke court.

That committee consisted of Rev. A. D. Harmon, Rev. David Morgan and Frank J. Clemans. A letter addressed to each member of this committee by Arthur Burridge Farwell, president the Law and Order League, of Chicago, was read at the W.C.T.U. meeting, and its sentiments were heartily endorsed. One passage in the letter read as follows: "I have been in Chicago over 40 years, interested in public matters, off and on, during these years, and believe the worst thing that the cities and the nation and the world has to meet to-day is the social evil and its necessary incidents, the white slave traffic and the terrible diseases. I would no more segregate the social evil than I would segregate murder, burglary, arson, scarlet fever and diphtheria, because the social evil is as bad in its effects on humanity as all of them combined. You and I may not be able to cleanse St. Paul or Chicago, but, thank God, we can keep our own skirts clean of consenting to the murder of the innocents under the guise of segregation."

Another resolution was passed condemning the bill recently introduced the state legislature by Senator J. D. Denegre, the effect of which, it is claimed, would be to enable a married man to sell his homestead and all other real estate without his wife's signature to the transfer. The resolution declares that such a law would be a gross injustice to both wives and children.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Henri Best took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery, the service at the house and the grave being conducted by Rev. R. Pogue, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Members of the City Council and other Civic officials attended the obsequies, besides a large number of citizens.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Adam Hall, E. H. D. Hall, Wm. Haller, H. C. Winch, E. F. Mason and H. Rush.

D. O'CONNELL IS NAMED AS POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR OF LATE JUSTICE McMAHON

Special to The Review.

Ottawa, January 20.—Apparently a Peterborough barrister is one of the possibilities for the Provincial High Court judgeship that is vacant. The Ottawa 'Citizen' says—"The vacancy on the High Court bench of Ontario, resulting from the death of Mr. Justice McMahon, brings up the question of French-Canadian claims to have a member of the judiciary. It will be recalled that this was discussed at the French-Canadian congress a year ago.

"'We feel strongly in the matter,' stated a prominent French-Canadian, 'but I do not think we will press our claims in this instance. Judge McMahon was an Irish-Catholic and I presume his successor will be. But two extra judgeships have been created though not proclaimed. When they are one of them should go to us. We should have it on the basis of population.'

"It is said that there are seven mentioned for the position to succeed Judge McMahon. They include Mr. O'Connell, of Peterborough; Mr. Brady, Mr. Lees and Mr. O'Donoghue, of Toronto; Mr. McEvoy, of London, and a couple of others.

THE LETTER THAT REVEREND FATHER McCOLL WROTE IN ANSWER TO INVITATION

Much Discussed Communication is Given to Local Press

Father McColl's reply to Rev. Canon Davidson's invitation to the tea given by Canon Davidson, to which the local clergy were invited, is given below, with the concurrence of both Father McColl and Canon Davidson.

NOT RECEIVED TILL AFTER TEA.

Canon Davidson said—

"The letter was received and interpreted in the most friendly way as was natural. It was not received until the day following the Ministerial tea, and was not shown, being treated as a private communication. It is to be hoped that the supposed extract was not intended as a quotation. It would seem to have been built up from the kid-gloves phrase, which was quoted merely as a spicy expression in a private conversation with a friend."

THE LETTER.

The letter was as follows—

Peterborough, Jan. 12, 1911.

The Very Rev. Canon Davidson,
The Rectory,
Peterborough.

My Dear Canon—

I received your kind invitation to take tea with you this evening. I must say that I appreciate your good will very much indeed, and deeply regret that circumstances will not permit me to take advantage of the pleasure of your hospitality. I have always had a very high opinion of you personally, as I am convinced you do your work ably and conscientiously, and in a manner that can give no offence to any person, however sensitive, who may differ from you in religious belief. I am gratified, therefore, to have this opportunity of expressing to you my sentiments of sincere appreciation. It is our desire to live in peace and harmony with our separated brethren, and I have never consciously done anything to disturb such relationship.

I have never been the aggressor, though it is true I am always ready to defend our Church and people against unjust attacks and misrepresentation. That I look upon as a duty. We love our religion and we love our King and country, and are loyal to both the one and the other. It is, therefore, a deadly insult to us, especially in this enlightened age, to have our religious belief misrepresented or our fidelity to the principles of British liberty impugned. Against all such, who are worth noticing, we are ever ready to use the lawful weapon of self-defence, and when we do so, kid gloves form no part of our accoutrements.

But as regards yourself, dear Canon, we have not the slightest reason to complain. On the contrary, we have every reason to be grateful for the kind consideration we have always received from one, we know to be not only a cultured gentleman, but a man with a kind and generous heart as well.

Thanking you for your remembrance of me when inviting your guests, believe me

Very sincerely yours,
W. J. McCOLL.

FRAME HOUSE IN NORTH MONAGHAN DESTROYED

A frame house in North Monaghan, and occupied by George Sexsmith, was destroyed by a fire which started about 10.30 o'clock this morning, and while considerable of the contents were saved, the loss will be heavy. The house was situated at the corner of the Gravel Road, and the continuation of Sherbrooke street, and was known as the old Lundy property.

Mrs. Sexsmith was alone in the house at the time and the blaze started in the kitchen.

Neighbors came quickly to give assistance, and through their efforts much of the furniture was saved. While other property was in danger no further damage was done. Mr. Sexsmith is employed at the Canadian General Electric Co.

Albert Barnard, a neighbor, threw open his large house to the unfortunate family.

SCHOLARLY ADDRESS ON "DANTE"

Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, gave a scholarly address on Dante at the Armories yesterday afternoon.

The speaker referred to the wonderful ideas of morality as outlined in the poet's "Inferno," which was Dante's conception of hell. He put in it the people of the day he thought ought to go there, and in his opinion among these were many of the men of Florence. He gave hell grades or ranks and placed Judas Iscariot in the lowest of these ranks. Next to him were those whom our Saviour said were to be "spewed from the mouth," those who were neither cold or warm. Dante considered such as parasites, who fed on the activities of others.

He conceived purgatory as a mountain, was an entirely original view.

The lecturer said he would not take up Dante's conception of Paradise, as he did not feel sure to discuss it comprehensively.

THE THANKS OF THE MEETING.

Mrs. Kendrey very neatly proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. Symonds, and this was seconded by Mrs. R. R. Hall. Sheriff Hall made acknowledgement on behalf of the South Circle to the North Circle for the lecture, which was given under the auspices of the latter society.

J. H. Burnham, the chairman, in putting the motion, said that one of the pleasures of old age was reflection and the people of Peterborough who had been fortunate enough to hear Dr. Symonds' lectures would recall them with real pleasure.

AMPUTATION WAS NECESSARY

To Save Life of Man Who Broke His Leg in Smith

William Clysdale, who resides on the ninth line of Smith, was brought to Nicholls Hospital in Comstock's ambulance on Friday, to have his leg amputated. The operation was performed successfully, although his condition is still rather critical. Mr. Clysdale met with the accident in a peculiar manner. Some six years ago it appears he had had the same leg broken. While out driving recently his cutter struck a limb of a tree on the road, and Mr Clysdale in jumping out broke the leg again. A medical man of Lakefield attended the injury, but the sufferer objected to having the limb amputated. On being brought to the city however, it was immediately seen that to save his life it would be necessary. He is still in the hospital.

CROMPTON RETURNS $10,700 HE GOT FROM TRAVERS

Head of Corset Company Makes Restitution of Cash Irregularly Given by ex-Manager of Farmers Bank—Four Provisional Directors Are Forced to Go Before a Jury—Clarkson Will Be Round on Monday.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Restitutions have begun in the Farmers' Bank case, and $10,700 has been returned by F. Crompton of the Crompton Corset Co. This is the first amount to be so returned, but it is understood that other sums have been tentatively offered by those who got money irregularly from the bank. Prosecutions may follow in some of these cases even after any restitution may be made.

The money returned by Mr. Crompton is the $10,000 received by him for $100,000 Keeley Mines, Ltd., stock which was given him by Travers to induce him to deposit $190,000 in the bank. The deposit was made and the stock transferred. When the deposit was withdrawn, Travers asked for the return of the stock, and Mr. Crompton agreed to return it upon payment of $10,000, which was paid him by Travers. The balance of the restitution is for moneys wrongfully paid out by the bank to Mr. Crompton as interest.

It was also learned yesterday that Messrs. J. M. Godfrey and T. N. Phelan of the legal firm of Robinette, Godfrey & Phelan, are now in New York advising with George Wishart, the Gotham broker, with regard to his possible return to Canada to give himself up to face the charge of conspiring with Dr. Beattie Nesbitt to steal $200,000 from the bank.

"They want to see him about the titles of certain mining properties in Porcupine," said Mr. Robinette, K.C., when asked about the mission of his partners to Wishart. "I do not know that we have been retained to act for Mr. Wishart in connection with the charge made against him. He may have retained both or either of them, and they may have seen Mr. Corley with regard to bail for him, which I understand will be granted, as is usual, should he return. But I do not know anything about it more than this."

The four provisional directors of the bank, Dr. John Ferguson, Provincial Archivist Alex. Fraser, A. S. Lown, barrister, and John Watson, ex-mayor of Listowel, Ont., were arraigned in the Police Court yesterday. All pleaded not guilty to the charge of conspiring to obtain $10,000 to answer which they were summoned. Magistrate Denison declared that he would not try this case, but that it must be sent to a jury. He gave as his reason that there was not time to properly investigate the case in the Police Court. Mr. Hugh E. Rose, representing the defendants, declared that as "the public mind is in such a state that every man mentioned in connection with this case is presumed be guilty until innocent," his clients were anxious for a speedy trial. The case was adjourned till Thursday morning. There was a great crowd in the court room to see these prominent gentlemen arraigned, and many were disappointed at the brief hearing.

As soon as they left the court room all four of the defendants were closeted with Inspector Duncan in his office for a short time. What was the nature of the conference could not be learned. Travers was not brought up from the jail to be used as a witness, but will be on Thursday next, when the hearing is continued.

Curator G. T. Clarkson is still confined to his house, and will not likely be at his office in the bank building until Monday, and may be away even longer than that.

IS NESBITT IN MEXICO?

Washington Police Have Inside Information.

Special to the Review.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 21.—The police authorities have reason to believe that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt is in Monterey, Mexico, and that he intends sailing for either Europe or South America, to be safely out of the reach of the law. The police refuse to divulge the basis for this theory, but they are firmly convinced that they are right.

A Third Trial.

Montreal, Jan. 21.—It was learned yesterday morning at the office of the crown prosecutors here that the attorney-general has ordered that a third trial of Aime and Omer Houle, brothers, accused of the murder of their brother-in-law, Domina Pelletier, at St. Timothee, Beauharnois County, over a year ago.

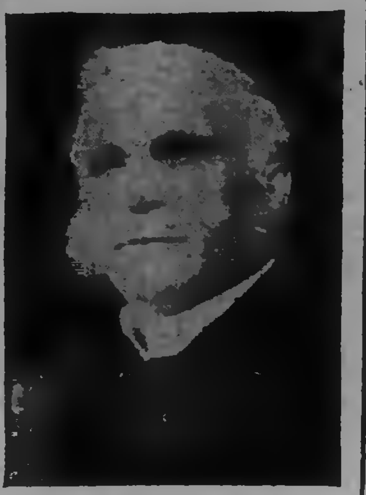
A change of venue has been granted, and this time the trial will take place here at the March term of the Court of King's Bench. At the two previous trials, held in Valleyfield, the jury disagreed.

SUFFRAGETTES PLANNING COUP

Will Demonstrate in Force at Coronation.

Special to the Review.

London Eng., Jan. 21.—The authorities in London here fear that the Suffragettes are planning a big demonstration at the time of the coronation. They recognize that such a demonstration would be a very difficult matter to handle, and plans will be made on an extensive scale to prevent any disturbance of the magnificent spectacle.



SIR FREDERICK BORDEN
Who has been attacked because of "fuss and feathers" in his department.

POSTMASTERS WILL RECRUIT

They Will Enlist Candidates For Canadian Navy.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—In the Senate yesterday Senator Landry was informed that complaint had been made as to the quality of the food served by Jacques Dery, restaurant keeper in the immigration building at Quebec. However, it was impossible to please everybody, and there were many patrons of the place who had made complaint. This matter would be investigated.

Hon. Mr. Landry was told the Naval Department proposes to post advertisements for the purpose of informing persons who desire to enter the navy of a means by which they can do so. Postmasters of several of the largest cities will be the recruiting officers, and will be paid $2 for each man they enlist for the navy.

Senator Landry asked if the Government had been informed that at the time of the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec, Americans disguised as English sailors were able to visit the Beaumont forts, and to become acquainted with the details of their construction and their armaments.

Sir Richard Cartwright replied, "No special instructions were given to guard against the admission of strangers to defence works at Quebec during the Tercentenary. The district officer commanding at Quebec has been asked to report on this matter."

Senator Thompson moved the second reading of the bill fixing the weight of a barrel of potatoes at 160 pounds. He explained that a weight standard for a barrel of potatoes had become necessary by the development of export trade to the West Indies.

Senator Cloran said that flour barrels were used for apples and potatoes, and they would not hold more than 150 pounds.

Senator Thompson replied that there was nothing in the bill requiring 160 pounds of potatoes to be put into a barrel, but the bill was designed to provide for the measurement of carloads or cargo lots in bulk.

Sir Richard Cartwright stated that in committee he would have some amendments which would make the bill clearer. The bill was given its second reading.

Champagne Going to Waste.

Paris, Jan. 21.—Mediation conferences began yesterday to settle the dispute between discontented employes and the vineyard owners and champagne makers, which has resulted in the destruction of much property and the loss of thousands of gallons of wine and champagne.

It is believed that the Government will soon be able to establish the former good feeling between employers and employed.

The troops will remain until the trouble is settled.

AN INTERESTING STORY

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

An interesting sidelight on the manner in which the Farmers' Bank was originally financed is thrown by a story told the other day by a prominent banker which has not hitherto appeared in print. As is generally known, it was necessary after the bank was organized to deposit $250,000 with the Finance Department at Ottawa before it could obtain a certificate enabling it to do business. The sum had not been subscribed by the shareholders, and the promoters were anxious to obtain the certificate to further their stock-selling operations. An arrangement was made whereby the concern was to borrow this sum from the Trusts and Guarantee Company of Toronto, the latter taking a blanket mortgage on its assts. The Trusts and Guarantee Company carried a very heavy deposit with the Traders' Bank, and Mr. Stratton, who is connected with both institutions, requested the manager of the Traders to forward a quarter of a million dollars to Ottawa as a deposit for the Farmers' Bank and charge it against his account. This the bank refused to do, as it considered this method of raising the Government deposit an unsound one. The Trusts and Guarantee Company then withdrew the deposit, placed it in the Union Bank, and a cheque on that institution was forwarded to Ottawa. It is not generally known that the Traders' Bank wrote to Sir Edward Clouston, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, notifying him that the Farmers' Bank was proposing to start business on borrowed money, and suggesting that he request Hon. Mr. Fielding to withhold the certificate. Sir Edward wrote at once to the Finance Minister, but in the meantime three days had elapsed. His letter to Mr. Fielding reached the latter just half an hour after the certificate had been granted—such was the speed with which the transaction had been carried out. Some such warning had obviously been anticipated. An hour's delay in the delivery of a single letter was therefore responsible for a tale of crime and ruin hardly paralleled in the annals of Canadian banking.

DEFENCE COSTS DOMINION MORE THAN AGRICULTURE

Mr. Edwards, of Kingston, Makes a Sharp Attack on the Minister of Public Works and Minister of Militia—Athens Postoffice to Cost $5,000.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Astonishing figures showing not only the enormous expenditures made by the Laurier Government since 1906 for militia and defence, as compared with the parsimonious policy pursued with respect to encouraging the agricultural industry, were submitted to the House last night by J. W. Edwards, member for Frontenac, in a speech which savagely attacked the Department and Minister of Public Works Pugsley and drew from the Government gentlemen a vehement denial, until Mr. Edwards proved that the figures had been supplied by the Ministers of his own Department, and were consequently official.

The House was in supply on the estimates of the Department of Public Works.

Dr. Edwards referred again to the report published in The Kingston Standard concerning the inhuman treatment of a prisoner who had been discharged from the penitentiary without sufficient clothing to withstand the cold of winter, or sufficient money to purchase necessaries. Dr. Edwards noted that the Minister of Justice in his remarks on Thursday had dealt with only one case, but The Kingston Standard had declared that more than one prisoner had been released without sufficient clothing.

Sir Alan Aylesworth replied that he was endeavoring in satisfying the House that, so far as the warden and officials of the institution were concerned, they had obeyed the rules of the Department. But he thought the Penitentiaries Act had in mind the low temperature of Canadian winter for prisoners had the option of remaining in the penitentiary during the winter months after the sentence had expired. The clothing which the prisoner had when he entered the penitentiary was returned to him, also the regulation suit and a sum of money.

Dr. Sproule did not think much of the privilege which allowed a prisoner to stay longer in jail until the winter cold had passed. He thought it was only natural that they would want to get out as soon as possible.

R. S. Lake (Qu'Appelle), introduced a discussion upon the new departmental building on Sussex street, which is to cost $3,500,000. He said the archives building was in no way worthy of the country. He urged that the design of the new building should be a credit to the country.

He considered that the architects of the present day were on just as high a level as those of the past, and they had a pretty good example of modern architecture in the splendid building which was being erected by the Grand Trunk Railway in Ottawa. He could not help thinking that if a proper effort were made the new departmental buildings would be made just as worthy to occupy the situation they will occupy in the capital as the Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Pugsley said that prizes had been awarded for the design of the new building, but the Department of Public Works had decided not to accept any of the plans. New plans had been prepared by the architects of the Department. Referring to changes which had been made in the departmental plans subsequently, the Minister stated that these had been rendered necessary by an arrangement with the Improvement Commission.

George H. Perley asked the Premier if the report from Washington, that the draft reciprocity treaty had been forwarded to Ottawa for the approval of the Ottawa Government, was correct.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "It is certainly premature."

Ontario estimates were reached on going to supply, and the first item to be dealt with was $5,000 for a postoffice and customs house at Athens. Athens is in Leeds, and the members of the Opposition arrived at the conclusion that it was in the constituency of Brockville, represented by Hon. George P. Graham. There was a cry that the vote was intended to help the Minister of Railways.

Mr. Pugsley did not know whether Athens was in the constituency of the Minister, or of Mr. Taylor, the Conservative whip.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster criticized the policy of the Government in maintaining a public building at the expense of the Public Works Department after it was completed. He contended that after it had been turned over to the postoffice and customs departments they should be charged with the cost of maintenance, which would show more clearly on the administrative statements of these branches of the Government.

Ship Subsidies.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Discussing Senator Gallinger's bill for subsidies to mail steamships, Senator Burton asserted that not five per cent. of the shipping of Great Britain is subsidised, and added that the aggregate of subventions in that country is nothing like as great as is contemplated in this bill.

Mr. Gallinger challenged the statement, saying while over $9,000,000 a year is paid out of the British treasury in aid of British shipping, not more than $3,360,000 possibly could be paid out under his bill.

They May Withdraw.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 21.—The United Mine Workers of America yesterday adopted a resolution withdrawing from the American Federation of Labor if the latter does not admit the Western Federation of Miners into the American Federation of Labor without restrictions.

Authorities Expectations in the Nesbitt Affair.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—It is reported here that the only charge the authorities expect to prove against Beattie Nesbitt, in the event of his capture and trial is that of making false returns. It is said that Travers' statement says of Nesbitt that he knew that false returns were being made.

Special to the Review.

London, Eng., Jan. 21.—A maniac gained access to the residence of Sir Thomas Lipton here to-day and demanded one thousand pounds, or he would finish the baronet with a razor, which he flourished.

Sir Thomas offered to 'phone to the bank to get the money, and got the police station instead, calling the detectives. He was in the room alone with the crazy man and coolly offered him a cigar. When the detectives arrived the man put up a desperate fight before being overpowered.

That's What Physicians in That City Think.

Montreal, Jan. 21.—Dr. Lachapelle of the Board of Control and Dr. McCarrey, chief of the civic pure food department think that there is danger of Montreal being made a dumping ground for the foodstuffs rejected by New York and other neighboring cities.

"I am convinced," said Dr. Lachapelle yesterday, "that those eggs which we ordered removed on Thursday were rejected in New York before they came here. The people exporting this stuff are after money. They would not care if half the people in the city were made sick if they made a few thousand dollars. They must be shown that Montreal is closed against their improper food. And to accomplish this we have given instructions to Dr. McCarrey to report every case which seems to him to be at all suspicious."

The representatives of the owners of the frozen eggs, being interviewed yesterday, stated that the eggs complained of were perfectly wholesome and pure, and that the city had acted in a very arbitrary and unjust manner in regard to the affair.

"The city now proposes to confiscate the shipment on the strength of a single representative," he said, "although it has a contradictory report in its possession, without giving the owners any chance whatever to be heard.

"The owners of the shipment certainly will not submit to any such action on the part of the city."

Officers joining the reserve of medical officers will be required to serve in the naval service in the time of war or emergency. They will be required to bind themselves for five years, receiving $150 per annum.

Fire Breaks Out In Home on Indian Road While Father Is Away In Chicago, and Only Maid Escapes Death by Jumping From the Window—Fire Started at Furnace—Wire Sent to Father.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Percy C. Brooks and her three children were burned to death in an early morning fire here.

The eldest child was five years of age. Two were girls and one a boy.

A fire that partially destroyed the frame house, 435 Indian Road, at an early hour this morning was responsible for the deaths. The fire apparently started near the furnace and worked its way into the upper part of the house, cutting off all escape for the family. The maid jumped from a rear window and escaped.

Mr. Brooks, manager and treasurer of the Fairbanks-Morris Manufacturing Co., is in Chicago on business. He was telegraphed to by neighbors immediately on the tragedy becoming known. At 2.30 the fire was under control.

THREE KILLED IN THE WRECK

Further Details of "Parisiana" Conflagration.

Albany, West Australia, Jan. 21.—The steamer Parisiana has been destroyed by fire at sea. Three of the passengers on board were killed, and the remainder, ninety-four in number, together with the crew, were landed here yesterday by a steamer which took them off after a five days' fight with the flames. The flames broke out on the seventh of December.

The battle against the flames was fought until the 13th, the crew working in relays. The fire gradually ate its way through the cargo to the wooden structure. Attention was attracted to the burning vessel by the flames, which were visible for more than 150 miles at sea.

The Parisiana was due at Melbourne about the first of January and fears for her safety led to orders being posted in maritime circles for ships to keep a keen watch for her.

The passengers, many of whom were taken on at Port Said, were in a state of complete exhaustion from exertion and fright when they were taken off the vessel. They had worked night and day helping the members of the crew fight the growing fire, but the progress of the flames was so rapid that it became apparent that all on board would have to take to the boats in open sea. The boats were being lowered when the rescuing steamer came along from New York.

The Parisiana was built at Newcastle, Eng., in 1909, being a comparatively new vessel. She was steel built and with screw propellers and of modern type.

FERRY DRIFTED TWELVE HOURS

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 20.—Nearly twelve hours late, the passengers who left Sydney at 11.30 Wednesday night arrived in the city late last night, after a thrilling experience. The night express from Sydney arrived at Point Tupper yesterday morning about 4.30 and the train was immediately shunted on the Intercolonial ferry steamer 'Scotia,' for transportation across the Strait of Mulgrave. Hardly had the 'Scotia' cleared the dock, when a break occurred in her machinery and for eight hours the ferry steamer drifted around the Strait, at the mercy of the sweeping tide, until she finally reached Mulgrave.

PETERBOROUGH FARMERS

The delegation of Ontario farmers, who visited Sir Wilfrid Laurier Thursday, to present their views on the matter of trade relations with the United States, was unheralded and unannounced, but it was very important. It demonstrates conclusively that there is a large section of the agricultural community of Canada which is not leavened with the free trade idea, as preached by the Farmers' Sun. It shows that there are farmers who recognize that the maintainence of the home market in its present prosperous and stable condition is worth a good deal more than the opportunity to buy a few articles from American manufacturers' duty free, to the detriment of Canadian workmen.

This delegation was composed of Monaghan farmers, of Kent and Lincoln farmers. They asked for protection against fruits and allied commodities of the United States, just as the manufacturers want protection against the vastly more injurious inroads of American manufacturers.

These farmers told the Premier that they were perfectly satisfied with the present tariff, and that they did not desire to have it lowered. They are mixed farmers, of course not men who are "mining" the soil as extravagantly as they can, with successive crops of wheat. Bruce Johnston, of Peterborough County, said that he had made a canvass of the farmers of the county, and he found that EIGHTY per cent. of them were in favor of maintaining the tariff as at present. This announcement, as representing the opinion of the Ontario mixed farmers, is very important, though coming late to offset the demands of the western grain growers, with their spectacular excursion.

MOVING PICTURES

The moving picture men of the province have asked the government for several changes and modifications in the provincial regulations governing moving picture films and shows. The deputation asked for a censor board of three to supervise all pictures shown in the province, and that there be no age limit for children attending the theatoriums.

There is reason in the request of the theatorium men. It is undoubtedly a hardship to them that there should be a different standard of moral tone required of the pictures in each place, and a central censorship has many advantages over the hit-and-miss method now in vogue. With such a board properly constituted in children's aid work, it would be a decided guarantee that there would be a safe standard.

More can be said on the question of an age limit for children. With a proper censorship, the necessity for age restrictions is lessened, but the argument of the men in the business that their places are an offset to the pool room and other youthful resorts, cannot be applied to the children whom the restrictions would keep out. We do not believe that the ordinary moving picture, even of wild west shows, is harmful to the children, although the nickleodeon habit is one that sticks with a child. There are stage productions, dealing with the sex question, or pandering to the sensual in man, that are far more worthy of condemnation than the moving pictures. The chief responsibility of the latter lies in the fact that they serve a class of people who do not ordinarily see the high-priced shows. There ought to be a central censorship, and an age restriction of about fourteen years, unless the child is accompanied by parent or guardian, would serve that need of public precaution in the other.

EDITORIAL ADVERTISING

The custom in Canadian newspaper circles to print editorial comments on the annual reports of banks is one which should be dropped. The banks are entitled to free reading notices along with their advertising, the same as any other class of advertisers, but editorial advertising is reprehensible. In basing their remarks on the annual reports, and upon the general reputation of a bank, newspapers are taking chances, just as newspapers did in praising the Farmers' Bank a year ago, because it was customary. On January 30, 1910, the Toronto World published the following. In the light of subsequent events, isn't it judicrous:

> The annual statement of the Farmers' Bank of Canada was published yesterday, and the result of the year's operations IS ANOTHER TRIBUTE to the CAREFUL MANAGEMENT given this, one of the youthful members of the Canadian chartered banks.
>
> "Net profits for the year were $41,107.86 on a paid-up capital of $567,357.
>
> "The steady growth of the bank is undeniably attributed to CAREFUL MANAGEMENT. The policy of the management has been to TAKE NO CHANCES, but to grow steadily. The aim has not been large profits, but a gradual increase of returns WITHOUT ASSUMING ANY UNNECESSARY RISKS. GENERAL MANAGER TRAVERS HAS COME TO BE LOOKED UPON AS ONE OF THE MOST INFORMED AND MOST CONSERVATIVE BANKERS IN CANADA. His large experience has added to the stability of the Farmers' Bank of Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We know what the Fielding average of the Canadian tariff battery is, but it's guesswork as to what kind of a hit they will make.

Thousands of gallons of champagne are going to waste in French vineyards. There are other places where champagne is going to waist with more effect.

The Parliamentary indicator will show full steam ahead, when Messrs. Fielding and Paterson get back from Washington with the reciprocity treaty in their pockets.

They taught us at school that if you tried to please everybody, you would end in pleasing nobody. But Fielding and Paterson on one side, and Knox and Taft on the other are highly pleased, and say everyone else will be pleased. It can't be much of an agreement.

In 1910 Peterborough was fourth of all Ontario cities in building permit increases over 1909, having a 51 per cent increase. Hamilton, Brantford and Port Arthur are ahead of it. Peterborough's progress, judged by any standard, seems to be very satisfactory indeed.

Many of the Eastern Ontario and Quebec dairy manufactories are already suffering heavy loss through the exporting to the United States of cream. The suffering won't be alleviated by the new trade arrangements with the United States, either.

The mention of the name of Mr. O'Connell for the Ontario high court judgeship made vacant by the death of Justice McMahon leads to the hope by Mr. O'Connell's many friends that the honor will fall on him. There will be many good names to be considered, but the good old name of O'Connell lives forever.

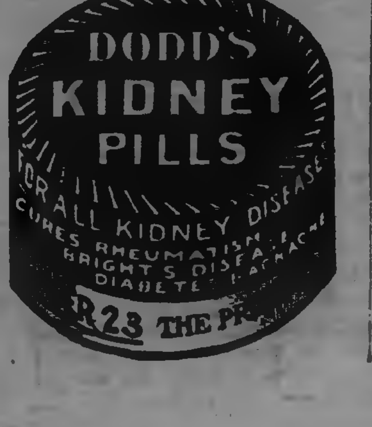
Now that the actual letter which Rev. Father McColl wrote to Rev. Canon Davidson has been published, that all may see the extent of its assertions, let us hope that the matter will be dropped, since no good can come to anyone from a continuance of the controversy.

Couldn't See For Church.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—At a meeting of the members and board of trustees held Wednesday night, it was decided, on the advice of George Hood, to accept the offer made by the Canadian Pacific Railway for the Calvary Congregational Church property.

The church has been considered as a disadvantage to the locomotive engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as it obstructed their view of the tracks and the block signals.

On the other hand, the passing of trains during the time of service, has been very annoying to pastor and congregation alike. The Canadian Pacific Railway's offer for the entire property was $28,000.



TEA DRINKING IS ON THE INCREASE

(New York Times.)

The increasing popularity of the English custom of drinking afternoon tea among New York women has forced the big hotels one after another to devote special rooms to that purpose. The new Hotel Martinique has announced that one room with a seating capacity for 250 persons will be open for tea from 4 to 6 o'clock every afternoon.

It has been said by some of those opposed to the custom that the popularity of afternoon tea was due to the fact that it enables those who prefer something stronger to have the insidious cocktail or the popular highball served in a cup instead of attracting attention by taking the liquor out of the ordinary glass. However that may be, the big hotels serve hundreds of their patrons with tea daily, and especially on Saturday afternoons after the matinee.

Many of the large hotels, like the Waldorf-Astoria, Plaza, Astor, Knickerbocker, and Manhattan, have music from 4 to 6, but others, notably the St. Regis, the Gotham and the Ritz-Carlton, dispense with music as their patrons seem to prefer social conversation.

Mr. Barse, of the Waldorf-Astoria, said yesterday that more women really came to drink tea, and that it was a libel on the sex to say that they preferred the highball disguised in a china cup.

"When the old Waldorf hotel was opened by Mr. Boldt sixteen years ago," said Mr. Barse, "the palm room was turned into a tearoom to accommodate guests who had contracted the tea-drinking habit in Europe.

"Since that time the demand has grown from year to year, until now several rooms are devoted to afternoon tea. The reason why the women predominate so largely at the Waldorf is because men are not admitted to a tea room unaccompanied by women, and no smoking is permitted."

The Plaza, Knickerbocker and Astor Hotels have had to enlarge their tearoom accommodation, as it has become the fashion more this season than before for women to give tea parties at hotels instead of inviting their friends to their own homes.

BOOTH'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED

What Doctors Called Bright's Disease

Mrs. M. Lewis, 13 St. David Place, Toronto, Ont., says: "I had doctored for over two years with many different specialists, but could find little relief for what they termed Bright's disease. I was so weak, and run down that I could not get up from a chair without supporting myself with both hands. My whole system had become so weakened and run down that I could scarcely walk. I was advised by a friend to try Booth's Kidney Pills. They gave me quick relief and I was soon rid of my suffering. I will always gladly recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and speak a good word for them."

Booth's Kidney Pills

Plague In Harbin.

Harbin, Manchuria, Jan. 20.—The first serious rioting marking the ravaging spread of the bubonic plague in Manchuria and China broke out here yesterday when persons who attempted to flee from the city were driven back by soldiers. Troops patrolled the streets with orders to shoot down any members of mobs who resisted order to disperse to their homes. The terrified people, stricken with horror and panic, fought with the troops, women taking part in the violence.

Martial law was declared in the suburb of Fudziadian, where the pestilence has taken its heaviest toll of human life.

Some of the streets of the suburb are clustered with dead bodies. It is a common sight to see men and women topple over in the streets and lie in their tracks. The air is laden with the germs of decaying human flesh.

Paris, Jan. 21.—At a largely attended meeting of the Liberals of Brant, held in Brantford yesterday, J. Rufus Lawton, barrister, of Paris, was the unanimous choice of the convention to contest the riding as the Liberal standard bearer for the local Legislature in the coming election against John H. Fisher, M.P.P.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"What do you think? I would spend ten times the money to save my daughter!" The old man was quivering.

"You are only a minority stock holder. The control of this enterprise still rests with me and my friends."

"Your friends!" cried Mr. Wayland. "That's what brings me here—you and your friends! I'll break you and your friends if it takes my fortune."

"I can understand your dislike of me, but my associates have never harmed you."

"Your associates! And who are they? A lawless ruffian, who openly threatened Willis Marsh's murder, and a loose woman from the dance halls."

"Take care!" cried Emerson in a sharp voice.

The old man waved his hands as if at a loss for words. "Look here! You can't be an utter idiot. You must know who she is."

"Do you? Then tell me."

Wayne Wayland turned his back in disgust. "Do you really wish to know?" Marsh's smooth voice questioned.

"I do."

"She is a very common sort," said Willis Marsh. "I am surprised that you never heard of her while you were in the 'upper country.' She followed the mining camps and lived as such women do. She is an expert with cards. She even dealt faro in some of the camps."

"How do you know?"

"I looked up her history in Seattle. She is very—well, notorious."

"People talk like that about nearly every woman in Alaska."

"I didn't come here to argue about that woman's character," broke in Mr. Wayland.

"You have said enough now, so that you will either prove your words or apologize."

"If you want proof, take your own relation with her. It's notorious. Even Mildred has heard of it."

"I can explain to her in a word."

"Perhaps you can also explain that affair with Hilliard. If so you had better do it. I suppose you didn't know anything about that either. I suppose you don't know why he advanced that loan after once refusing it. They have a name for men like you who take money from women of her sort."

Emerson uttered a terrible cry, and his face blanched to a gray pallor.

"Do you mean to say—I sent—her—to Hilliard?"

"Hilliard as good as told me so himself. Do you wonder that I am willing to spend a fortune to protect my girl from a man like you? I'm going to break you. I've got a foothold in this enterprise of yours, and I'll root you out if it takes a million. I'll kick you back into the gutter where you belong."

Boyd stood appalled at the violence of this outburst. The man seemed insane. He could not find words to answer him.

"You did not come down here to tell me that," he said at last.

"No. I came here with a message from Mildred. She has told me to dismiss you once and for all."

"I shall take my dismissal from no one but her. I can explain everything."

"I expected you to say that. If you want her own words read this." With shaking fingers he thrust a letter before Emerson's eyes. "Read it!"

The young man opened the envelope and read in a handwriting he knew only too well:

> Dear Boyd—The conviction has been growing on me for some time that you and I have made a serious mistake. It is not necessary to go into details. Let us spare each other that unpleasantness. I am familiar with all that father will say to you, and his feelings are mine; hence there is no necessity for further explanations. Believe me, this is much the simplest way. MILDRED.

Boyd crushed the note in his palm and tossed it away carelessly.

"You dictate well," he said quietly, "but I shall tell her the truth, and she will"—

"Oh, no, you won't. You won't see her again. I have seen to that. Mildred is engaged to Willis Marsh. It's all settled. I warn you to keep away. Her engagement has been announced to all our friends on the yacht."

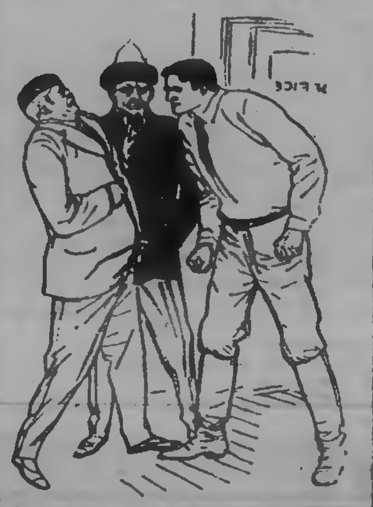
"I tell you I won't take my dismissal from any one but her. I shall come aboard the Grande Dame tonight."

"Mr. Marsh and I may have something to say to that."

Boyd wheeled upon Marsh with a look that made him recoil.

"If you try to cross me I'll strip your back and lash you till you howl like a dog."

Marsh's florid face went pale. His tongue became suddenly too dry for speech. But Wayne Wayland was not to be cowed.



"I'LL STRIP YOUR BACK AND LASH YOU TILL YOU HOWL LIKE A DOG."

"I warn you again to keep away from my daughter!" he cried furiously.

"And I warn you that I shall come aboard the yacht tonight alone."

The president of the trust turned and, followed by his lieutenant, left the room without another word.

* * * * * * *

Cherry Malotte, coming down to the cannery on her daily visit, saw Willis Marsh and Mr. Wayland leaving it. Wondering, she hurried into the main building in search of Boyd. The place was as busy as when she had left it on the afternoon before, and she saw that the men had been at work all night. Many of them were sprawled in corners, where they had sunk from weariness, snatching a moment's rest before the boss kicked them back to their posts. The Chinese hands were stoically performing their tasks, their yellow faces haggard with the strain. At the butchering tables yesterday's crew were still slitting, slashing, hacking at the pile of fish that never seemed to grow less. Some of them were giving up, staggering away to their bunks, while others with more vitality had stood so long in the slime and salt drip that their feet had swelled, and it had become necessary to cut off their shoes.

Boyd was standing in the door of the office. In a few words he told her of Mr. Wayland's threat.

"Do you think he can injure the company?" she inquired anxiously.

"I haven't a doubt of it. He can work very serious harm at least."

"Tell me, why did he turn against you so suddenly? What made Miss Wayland angry with you?"

"I—I would rather not."

"Why? I'm your partner, and I ought to be told. You and George and I will have to work together closer than ever now. Don't let's begin by concealing anything."

"Well, perhaps you had better know the whole thing," said Boyd slowly. "Mildred does not like you. Her father's mind has been poisoned by Marsh. It seems they resent our friendship. They believe all sorts of things."

"So I am the cause of your trouble after all."

"They blame me equally—more than you. It seems that Marsh made an inquiry into your—well, your life history—and he babbled all the gossip he heard to them. Of course they believed it, not knowing you as I do, and they misunderstood our friendship. But I can explain, and I shall, to Mildred. Then I shall prove Marsh a liar. Perhaps I can show Mr. Wayland that he was in the wrong. It's our only hope."

"What did Marsh say about me?" asked the girl.

She was pale to the lips.

"He said a lot of things that at any other time I would have made him swallow on the spot. But it's only a pleasure deferred. With your help I'll do it in their presence. I don't like to tell you this, but the truth is vital to us all, and I want to arm myself."

Cherry was silent.

"You may leave it to me," he said gently. "I will see that Marsh sets you right."

Winston Churchill Assailed.

London, Jan. 21.—The Cabinet held its first meeting yesterday for the purpose of drafting the King's speech from the throne, and a program of legislation for what promises to be an historic session of Parliament.

The militant suffragettes thickly dotted Downing street, determined to remind the Ministers that their demands were as urgent as ever. One banner suggested that Home Secretary Winston Churchill should be imprisoned. The active young bearer of this conviction managed to elude the police, rush the Home Secretary when he appeared on the street, and, using the banner as a lance, attempted to knock off Mr. Churchill's hat. The police quickly cleared away the demonstrators.

Reciprocity Is Assured.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Within two weeks from the date that the Canadian reciprocity commissioners began their conferences in Washington an agreement had been reached, so far as the executive branches of the United States and Canada are concerned, that will result in the substantial reduction of customs duties on a number of products, natural and manufactured, of the two countries.

The commissioners met at the State Department yesterday for the purpose of making a careful comparison of the various schedules involved in the arrangement, to make sure no error had crept in, and that nothing remained likely to be subject to conflicting construction in the future.

In accordance with the announcement contained in the statement given to the press when the commissioners began their work, even to-day individual commissioners felt bound to refrain from giving the least intimation as to the products affected by their negotiations. That information will be withheld until the sessions of the commissioners have reached an end, when formal announcement will be made.

Important Change In Rates.

New York, Jan. 21.—Officers of Canadian and American express companies, in conference here yesterday, announced last night a reduction in through rates soon to take effect between all offices in the United States and many in Canada. It is explained that several of the Canadian companies have held back up to the present, because the customs regulations at the Canadian border necessitates so much extra work that a reduction in existing rates would in many cases work a hardship.

All the important companies were represented, including the Adams, Canadian, American, National, Northern, Southern, Western, Pacific and United States Express Companies, Wells-Fargo & Co. and the New York and Boston Despatch. The announcement made follows in part:

"Instead of two companies which may handle an express package making a separate charge on each line, the charge will be the same as if one company had carried the package from shipping point to destination."

There are 167 officers, clerks, etc., in Canada's naval service at present.

Voted For Union.

Cornwall, Jan. 20.—The presbytery of Glengarry met in St. John's Church, Cornwall, on Wednesday evening for the purpose of considering the basis of union sent down from the general assembly to the presbyteries. After considerable discussion a vote was taken, which resulted in fifteen members voting for the basis and five against it. Afterwards the presbytery decided to overture the assembly to send the basis of union down to the sessions and congregations for their consideration.

Breget Breaks Record.

Douai, France, Jan. 20.—Louis Breget, the French aviator, yesterday broke the world's speed record for a monoplane with passenger. He made a flight of 50 kilometers (31 miles) in 34 minutes and 54 seconds, and one hundred kilometers in one hour, nine minutes and 23 seconds.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual meeting of the teachers and officers of St. Paul's Sunday school was held Thursday evening at the home of the superintendent, Mr. Madill. There was a large attendance of the teachers and officers, and the reports for the year were of a most encouraging character. These would indicate that the work done in the Sabbath school of St Paul's is of a high order. There is a total enrolment of 469, and the average attendance for the year was 336. The Adult Bible Class has an enrolment of 150; Young Men's Class, 20; Intermediate Department, 153; Kindergarten, 52; Primary, 60; Cradle Roll, 50. There are 29 teachers and 5 officers; 38 members of the school united with the church by profession of faith during the year. The sum of $535 was contributed for this object throughout the year.

The officers elected for the present year were;—

At the close of the business meeting, the pastor spoke in apreciation of the very valuable service which has been rendered to the Kingdom of God by the superintendent and his staff of efficient teachers. He stated that never in his experience has it been his privilege to have associated with him so fine a body of teachers and so well qualified for their task, as is to be found in St Paul' church. He thanked them for their faithfulness to the work, and the sacrifices that they are making, and expressed the hope that the coming year may be one of great fruitfulness.

HAND CUT BY AXE

Accident in Swamp Near Best's Station—Victim Brought to the City

Charles Colon, a young man, employed by Richard Heard, near Bests Station for cutting wood in a swamp had his right hand severely cut while at work, about five o'clock last evening.

Colon slipped and his hand fell on a tree which another man was chopping, and the axe descended, inflicting a deep and painful wound on the back of the hand.

Dr. Scott was called to attend to the injury and on arriving, bandaged the wound.

The injured man was brought to the city on the nine o'clock train and taken by the Dan Spence Ambulance to the hospital.

SOCIETY TAKING TO THE STAGE

English Nobility Responding to the Lure of the Footlights

London, Jan. 16.—Never was there a time when the stage exercised so great a fascination upon society as at present. Princes and princesses, earls, countesses and marquises take to the boards on the slightest excuse, and many well known society people are amateurs only in name. The doings in the amateur theatrical world are duly chronicled in the daily papers; and it is an open secret that hosts of society women apply for a "walk on" every time a new piece is produced at any of the more fashionable London theatres.

Lady Angela Forbes, Lord Rosslyn, Countess Russell and the earl of Yarmouth are a few aristocratic names that have figured on the playbills. Lady Angela Forbes is a sister of Lord Rosslyn, whose stage name is James Erskine. The earl of Yarmouth has acted both in this country and America.

Miss Aimee Lowther, daughter of the late Captain Francis Lowther, is a clever amateur actress and the author of several plays. The duchess of Sutherland, the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Luttelton, Lady Troubridge, Claude Lowther, and Cosmo Gordon-Lennox have also contributed plays to the London stage. The latter, of course, is the husband of the charming and talented Miss Marie Tempest.

Several members of the royal family have taken part in amateur theatricals, and Princess Louise, duchess of Argyll, is an amateur actress of considerable ability. Princess Henry of Battenburg also possesses no mean histronic talent. Naturally, with the court in mourning, no theatricals are indulged in at Windsor or Sandingham; but for some years after King Edward came to the throne a week used to be set apart every January for these entertainments. They were quite free from ceremony, and were always a time of fun and brightness. Lady Ponsonby usually acted as stage manager.

James Forbes has been appointed chief of police at Sarnia.

TRENTON BY 12-4

Cobourg Held Down Score to 5-2 in First Half

Trenton, Jan. 20.—One of the largest crowds seen at the local rink for some time witnessed a fast and exciting intermediate O.H.A. game played here this evening with Cobourg, resulting in a victory for Trenton by 12 to 4. At half-time the score was 5 to 2 in favor of the home team. Line-up:

Trenton — McGiffin, goal; Croft, point; McGaw, cover; Fletcher, centre; J. Cumming, rover; Powers, right wing; A. Armstrong, left wing.

Cobourg — Hand, goal; Guy, point; Lavis, cover; Glidden, centre; Freeman, rover; Doheny, right wing; Crowther, left wing.

Referee—Sproule, Toronto.

BROCK STREET RINK CHANGES OWNERSHIP

A local syndicate with which J. Meharry, the present manager of the rink, is prominently identified, has bought the Brock street rink and will conduct it as an ice and roller skating rink.

It was rumored that the rink was to have been purchased by Hon. J. R. Stratton and converted into a stable.

NEW FORD MODEL IS A FINE CAR

Silent Runner That Should be Popular With Motorists This Year

Mr Jos. J. Duffus, the local agent for Ford and Russell automobiles, has received from the Ford Manufacturing Co. of Walkerville, Canada, a new 1911 five-passenger touring car.

It is a beautiful machine, painted black and presents a very pleasing appearance, being very compact, and at the same time it is roomy being nine inches longer than previous models. This enables it to seat five people very comfortably.

A very noticeable feature is its silent running which is a popular feature in any motor car. Like all other Ford cars it possesses the feature of economic running and maintenance, owing to its light weight, which is accomplished by the high-class material used throughout its construction.

The price of this popular car is $975 complete. It can be seen any time at the new show rooms, 309 George street.

SPECIAL S. A. BAND SERVICES

The services in the Salvation Army Temple this evening, and to-morrow will be under the direction of the band boys, and will be a very interesting character. Each serice will be in charge of special leaders, and there will be plenty of music and singing throughout. The theme for Sunday night will be "Heaven" and the service will in all its details be relative thereto.

A special invitation is extended to all to attend. You will be heartily welcome.

ANOTHER FAIRLY GOOD MARKET

Considering the season of the year to-day's market was very creditable the attendance being fair and also the offering of produce. No change in prices of articles, save eggs was noticed, these having dropped to thirty-five cents. The reason was that the supply exceeded the demand. Just six turkeys were up to-day, but the prices for them were not forthcoming. Four of these turkeys were remarkably large and fat, and could be had for four dollars a piece.

The outer market was well stocked with meat. A few farmer had vegetables. Apples were scarce and no hay was on to-day.

The prices asked were,
Eggs — 35c.
Butter — 25c.
Chickens — 55c. a piece and $1.25 a pair.
Turkeys — $4.00
Potatoes — 75c. a bag.
Lamb — 12 and 31c.
Beef — 12 and 13c.
Pork — 8 to 11c.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in hair goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Good styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel on Thursday, Jan. 26.

THE HARDWARE CONVENTION PROMISES TO BREAK RECORDS

Manufacturers' Exhibit Will be the Best of Its Kind Ever Held in Canada—Will be a Liberal Hardware Education—Preparations For the Event.

Hardware and Metal.

"Going to the Peterborough Convention?"

This is the leading question which is being fired across the counter by nearly every hardware traveller who goes down the line these days. And, in the majority of cases, it awakens immediate interest.

Never before have such elaborate preparations been made for a hardware convention in Canada, and never before has the trade in general, evinced so much enthusiasm over such a gathering. That the 1911 convention will be a success is assured beyond doubt, and every dealer who misses it will be sorry.

PETERBORO' IS WORTH SEEING.

The city of Peterborough is noted as one of the most prosperous centres east of Toronto. To the visitor, it gives the impression of being very busy and very home-like. Its retail stores compare favorably with those of much larger places, and while there are many flourishing factories, a few of them are really immense—notable the Canadian General Electric Co., and the Quaker Oats Co.

The churches and public buildings are large in size and thoroughly modern in character. The residential streets are lined with splendid trees, and flanked with comfortable and, in many cases, elaborate homes. There are several spacious parks, and, around one of them are grouped the armories, Collegiate Institute and public library. The Oriental Hotel is not far away, and this district will be the centre of activities from February 21st to 24th.

A Reception Committee, appointed by the City Council, will see that Peterborough makes a good impression on the visitors. It is headed by Ald. Graham.

HOW ABOUT THE ACCOMMODATION.

A good many dealers are anxious about the hotel accommodation, and Hardware and Metal has been enquiring particularly about this.

Conventions are not a new proposition for Peterborough. They have entertained many large gatherings before, one of the largest being the Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. There has never been any undue overcrowding in the past, and, no matter how largely the Hardware Convention may be attended the authorities do not anticipate any difficulties in accommodating them.

GREAT MANUFACTURERS' EXHIBITS.

Exhibition space in the armories has been oversold. That means there will be a most inspiring display of manufactured articles, for the ground covered by the armories is enormous.

The different exhibitors are sparing no pains in making ready their displays. The result will undoubtedly be the finest exhibit of hardware and kindred manufactured goods ever brought together in Canada. This feature alone will be worth going to see.

DEALERS SENDING THEIR CLERKS.

A number of hardwaremen have told Hardware and Metal that they were not only going to the convention themselves, but intended sending their clerks as well.

In no other way could clerks get such valuable information about the lines they sell, and how to sell them. This idea is a good one, and should be copied by every dealer who can possibly arrange it.

THE T.A.S. BOYS WILL SING, DANCE AND MAKE MERRY

The burnt cork artists of St. Peter's T.A.S. will make an inroad into Lew Dockstader's chosen field on January 27th, when two nights' minstrel show will be given in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum.

The boys have been rehearsing for several weeks, and the rehearsals, as the theatrical papers would say, show mid-season form.

The music of the first part is said to be particularly attractive and the jokes have just been taken out of the band box.

George Lynch is looking after the staging and general technique of the performance and this means that no detail will be overlooked.

THE PREACHERS OF BRITAIN OF YESTERDAY AND TO-DAY

Prof. Jackson, of Toronto, Gave Address at Ministerial Banquet—The Outstanding British Divines of the Last Hundred Years.

The Ministerial Association of Peterborough and vicinity enjoyed a rare treat last night in an address which was delivered before the ministers and their wives by Professor Jackson, of Toronto. At the last meeting of the Association it was decided to invite occasionally some distinguished man from the outside to come and address them. Professor Jackson was invited to speak on a subject which one of the ministers had heard him speak on in another city: "The Preachers of Britain of Yesterday and To-day." He preferred his address to be of an informal character, and more in the nature of a chat, on a few of the men to whom his own personal indebtedness is very great.

He said unquestionably the three greatest preachers of Britain in the last part of the nineteenth century were C. H. Spurgeon, Joseph Parker and Canon Lyddon. Spurgeon's printed sermons are a disappointment. One had to hear the man, to listen to the music of his incomparable voice, and come under the magic of his personality, to appreciate him. Parker was unquestionably a supreme genius, though his influence is now on the wane. The three preachers whom he singled out for special mention were: Dr. Alex. McLaren, of Manchester; Dr. Dale, of Birmingham, and Dean Church. The debt of the speaker to Dr. McLaren was very great. He had put a steady hand upon him and helped him to be certain of the great things. There is no better model for a young preacher than he. He was without a rival as an expository preacher. Dr. Dale was therefore the most nonconformist theologian of the nineteenth century. But his theology was that of a man in contact with daily life. He not only had regard to the thing to be said, but to the way of saying it. He evidently had taken Burke as the model of his style, though it was sometimes said of him that his style was too massive and stately. He was never afraid of tackling a great subject. Too much of the preaching of to-day is surburban in character. "God help the preachers who do not know how to preach on the great texts of the Bible."

Dr. Jackson spoke in glowing terms in his appreciation of Dean Church. He was an intimate friend of Newman, and the strongest man of the Tractarian movement, a saner and stronger man than Newman. He was the most influential minister of the last century. He was himself a hater of the superlative, yet no man so provokes it in others when they speak of him. A distinguished literary critic said of a volume of his sermons that it was the greatest in the English language. Hugh Price Hughes was spoken of as one of the great preachers of British Methodism. He was one of the most alert and quick-witted debaters the speaker ever heard, and one of the most effective preachers. He used to say of his preaching that his one business was to win a verdict for Jesus Christ. He was never seen to better advantage than under the cross-fire of debate. He always woke up when the bullets began to sing around him. It was in his evening service that he did most abiding work for Jesus Christ. He changed radically the pulpit style of Methodism. His style was clean-cut, terse, incisive. He gave us a new type of evangelism.

GREAT PREACHERS OF TO-DAY.

Speaking of the great preachers of to-day, he touched upon John O'Neill, whom he spoke of as "a man who gave promise of great things in his early day, but who is a great unfulfilled prophecy, a spent volcano. Of Alexander Whyte he said that he is one of the most living and vital of preachers. He is a prodigious reader. The speaker once heard him say that he had just finished reading Carlyle's "Cromwell" for the tenth time. He is unequalled in his power of revealing to men the corruption of their own hearts. A critic once said of him that he was a specialist in sin and punishment, and if he did not know the devil personally, he knew Boston and Edwards who did.

Among others whom the speaker touched upon was the present Bishop of Oxford. The most distinguished belonging to the Congregational Church are Campbell, Morgan, Dr. Horton and Jowett, of Birmingham. There is no greater preacher in the English language than Jowett. He is evangelical to the core. He had that peculiar thing, that witchery of heaven, which we call unction. Of R. J. Campbell, of New Theology fame, he said that his theology was like a bad negative, it was under-developed and over-exposed.

ADDRESS MUCH APPRECIATED.

At hte close of Dr. Jackson's address, which was enjoyed by all, a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Webb and seconded by Canon Davidson. All expressed themselves as delighted with the beautiful evangelical spirit of the speaker and his charming personality. It was a pity that a man who was so eminently used of God, and whose influence was so potent for the Kingdom of Christ, should be made the subject of a lot of ignorant criticism by men who knew nothing of his positive teaching. Here is an extract which is printed from one of his sermons, by which it can be judged whether or not he is a dangerous man. The extract is:

"And if the Gospel can only tell us of a perfect example to be copied, then for ninety-nine out of every hundred of us it can be no Gospel, no 'good news' at all. If it puts before us the life of the human Jesus and says, "Imitate that," and after that has no more tht it can do, then is our last case worse almost that the first; our ideal is heightened immeasurably, our power remains what it was. But, thank God, He who is our example is also our new life. Christ is not only there, without me, as pattern; He is also here, within me, as power. Name your heroes in literature and history; there is not one of them who can share his own powers with you. Christ can and does. We may live in Him and He in us, and all the forces that wrought in Him may work in our lives, too. Young men, there is but one source of abiding strength; it is here: 'Be strengthened in the Lord'; will you seek it?"

NORDHEIMER PIANOS

ONE should bear in mind that the purchase of a piano is in the nature of an investment. The right piano becomes not merely an ornamental article of furniture, but also a permanent source of entertainment, culture and refinement, repaying daily to its owners a far richer dividend of delight and satisfaction than any other investment of a like sum could afford them. How advisable then, that the selection of a piano be made with the greatest care.

WHILE we make beautiful the outside of our pianos we realize the greater importance of making perfect the inside. The prime purpose of a piano is the production of musical sounds. The sound or "tone" of the NORDHEIMER piano is so full of sweetness, power, brilliance and richness that it has been called

"The Quality Tone Piano"

WE don't regret the enormous expenditure of time and money, study and experiment necessary to bring the NORDHEIMER piano to its present state of perfection, for the success of our efforts is in itself a satisfying reward. We feel great pride and great confidence in our pianos and we recommend them to those who want a particularly high class, reliable and beautifully toned instrument.

SPORTING NEWS

RAILROADERS CAME IN BEHIND TIME AT 7-3

Another memorable fray was added to the already long list at Brockstreet rink, where last night the knights of the ticker and track were side-tracked at Yardville, the pellet seven taking the right of way, and leaving Light Mogul Jamieson to haul in his crew at 7—3.

The medicine boys started off like real winners, and before their opponents could get up steam had flashed three past "Wee" McGregor between the flags. Mogul Jamieson then handed over the throttle to Ticker Merrifield, and while "Yanker" Macafee was resuscitating the semaphore went up thre etimes. After the stop the blue mass struck a grade and there was nothing to it but pillsmashers.

Despite the dope given out to the contrary, Jamieson played a remarkable good game, and the fact remains that the three goals were scored after he was shunted back from centre ice. McGregor was in great form until he kicked one counter in himself, and his sand supply ran out.

For the winners Halpin and Ross were the strong points, and the forward line worked a nice combination. Cleopatra Brady almost scored at one stage of the game. The play was not rough.

WE REPAIR WEAK MEN

OUR SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the disease and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility.

We Guarantee Cures or No Pay. We Treat all Diseases of Men and Women.

PUCKLAND

The Trenton Courier (weekly) commenting on the Intermediate game on Jan. 13, hands the local team a bouquet. The Courier says:

The visitors speak highly of their treatment both on and off the ice, and while we shall always look back and speak with delight by way of comparison of the Lindsay match of last year, this one came very slightly short of it. Peterboro team like Lindsay, are gentlemen and it is a pleasure to watch a game conducted in such a gentlemanly and friendly spirit.

It is hoped that both wickets at the rink will be opened on Tuesday night, when Trenton comes here.

Referees have a hard lot. This week, after officiating at a Trent Valley League game, "Bill" Huycke of Tweed, broke his leg, and the cords were sprained so, that amputation may be necessary.

The G. C. hockey team has slipped its moorings and is out for spoil. The team fires a defi at the Prudential seven, the game to be played as soon as possible.

The Boy Scouts held a practice at the rink this morning.

Picton Juniors were defeated at home last night by Jimmie Sutherland's Frontenacs. The score was 18—7. What will it be in Kingston?

Can Cobourg beat Trenton in the return game next Friday? The score at half-time last night was 5—2 for Trenton. Those figures should be reversed at Cobourg, but it is a question if the lakeshore seven can stick.

NAIL IN THIS BOY'S LUNG

New York World.

Blissfully ignorant of the fact that the most skillful surgeons in New York are studying to find a way of operating on him safely to cure him of his "pneumonia," five-year-old Vincent Maginn, of 180 West Sixty-fourth street, plays one week in the streets and the next in an hospital, where he is watched by staff members.

Vincent is the son of Peter Maginn, a painter. Four years ago the child became ill, and at times it was difficult for him to breathe. A physician diagnosed the case as pneumonia. In due time Vincent was pronounced cured. Three months afterward he went through a similar illness. Thereafter he had like attacks about four times a year.

The illness recurred last August, and his mother took Vincent to Bellevue, where once before his trouble had been termed pneumonia. The second time it was decided he had typhoid. He was placed in Ward B5 in care of Dr. Hill. The doctor, hearing of the frequent recurrences of illness, studied Vincent closely more than two weeks and became convinced that "typhoid" and "pneumonia" did not explain the trouble. The constant cough puzzled him.

Judging there was bronchial obstruction, he had X ray photographs taken of Vincent's lungs and air passages.

The amazing discovery was made that the real cause of the frequent attacks of "pneumonia" was a two-inch wire nail lodged in a lung where the bronchial tube entered.

Where there is such an obstruction the patient rarely recovers. But prominent surgeons, on consultation, decided after many weeks that an operation might be risked in the child's case. But they found that special instruments were necessary for the operation. These were made in Germany at the expense of the men interested in the case. They were sent in due time, and the boy again was brought from his home to Bellevue for the operation, but just then he suffered another attack of his "pneumonia."

The special instruments are still unused, and Vincent still carries the nail in his lung. A wealthy friend of the family has taken an interest in the case, and as a result Presbyterian Hospital surgeons are trying to find a method by which Vincent may be relieved. Meanwhile, he plays around, ignorant of the fact that great doctors do not know what to do for him.

C.N.R.'s First Immigrants.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—T. Howell, chief immigration agent of the Canadian Northern Railway, has just returned from Halifax, where he received the first party of British immigrants for the season.

Mr. Howell states that they numbered about 200, and the personnel was so excellent that not one of them had to be delayed either on account of any doubt as to judicial or physical condition.

A majority of the party were single young men. A few families were in the party, and a number of young women for domestic servants. All the men were experienced in farm work. They will go to work already arranged for them in Western Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."—Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

A WORD OF WARNING

You've seen the imitation fire on the theatre stage, made of red paper and an electric light bulb! What good would they be to warm your house!

Take a lesson for the hour of sickness. Imitations of Zam-Buk and substitutes may give the dealer a little more profit but they won't cure your skin disease, or stop the pain of your burn, or ease the agony of piles, or cure the rash on your baby. Don't be misled by the plausible "This preparation is just as good as Zam-Buk and cheaper." It isn't "just as good." Get the real Zam-Buk. See the legally protected name on the packet.

FEATURE OF OPENING OF THE DENVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Was Ably Addressed by Ryerson Ritchie of Peterborough—Speaks of the Necessity of Building Up a City Industrially on a Solid Basis.

The principal feature of the opening of the new Chamber of Commerce at Denver, Colo., was an eloquent and timely address by Ryerson Ritchie, of this city, who was the chief speaker at the function.

The Denver Republican says in a recent issue:—

Invitations to the annual banquet of the chamber of commerce, which will be contemporaneous with the dedication of the new building, Jan. 17, were sent out by the chamber yesterday, and it is expected that there will be a big attendance. Representatives from commercial organisations in the east will be present, including a delegation of 15 members from Chicago.

The principal speaker will be Ryerson Ritchie, whose reputation as a founder and organizer of commercial bodies is well known throughout the country. Mr. Ritchie organized the Kansas City Commercial Club, the Cleveland Chamber of commerce, the Detroit Board of Commerce, and was largely instrumental in the reorganization of the Chicago Association of Commerce. His knowledge of the sub of commercial organization is said to be very thorough, and an interesting address is expected.

BOARD OF INDUSTRIAL BASIS.

Mr. Ritchie in his address, urged that the basis of industrial development should be sound and permanent.

He said in part:

"The get together spirit is an important element of your success as an organization and as influence upon the mind. The proper place for the harmonizing of differences is in your councils—your committees and directorate—not in your public meetings, where boomers, radicals and hot heads often hurt the good reputation of the Chamber.

You cannot build character on wind. In shaping the character of your Chamber of Commerce you may practice as liberal and as aggressive business methods as you choose, but you must temper your liberality and aggressiveness with conservatism. The attainment of concrete results makes a more substantial reputation than good resolutions and promises, however voluably expressed. A chamber of commerce needs a good supply of modernation and reserve. Who respects the individual or the association that talks or promises too much? The important thing is not what the chamber talks about, but what it does.

STAYING QUALITIES ESSENTIAL.

"The booming and boosting of schemes that are of doubtful merit often play fast and loose with sincerity. Every businessman knows that the chamber of commerce must rest upon the solid foundation of good faith and sincerity if it is to succeed. The chamber of commerce cannot afford to fail; it must make good. Now it cannot make good when its support is given to any enterprise that is not a distinct benefit to the people, or to one that sound business loige condemns.

"It is far from my mind to hint that what you may advocate or endorse should have popular approval for you may often stand against public clamor in the public's interest. But when you are absolutely right and businesslike — with staying qualities—you can win in the end; you can make good.

THE AVERAGE WOMAN NEEDS MORE BLOOD

Nerves Easily Irritated, She Worries Over Little Things

To the woman in the home—the woman closely confined in the house, either through household duties or the care of children or both—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a positive blessing. The average woman has too little blood. Her nerves are easily irritated; she worries over little things; has severe headaches and backaches and is sick most of the time. With the woman who uses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the condition is different. She is always well and the care of her children, or her household duties, is a real pleasure. This is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood supply and bring bounteous health and strength. Here is proof: Mrs. Fanny Shepherd, Girvin, Sask., says: "I am the mother of a large family and was worn out, weak and irritable. I kept going to my doctor about every six weeks, and he would give me something "to keep me going a little longer." But it was like winding up a clock. I soon got run down again, and although life seemed hardly worth living, I did not wish to die because of leaving my dear children. I continued like this for some years, but at last summoned up energy enough to strike out a new departure and got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I barely hoped they would help me, but to my surprise, before I had been taking them long I began to feel like a different woman. I still continued taking the Pills for some time, and they made me as well and strong as any woman need wish to be. Once more I would enjoy life thoroughly, and have done so ever since. I never need a doctor now, and everything seems bright and cheerful. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone who in my opinion needs a tonic of any kind."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FORTY KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Four Hundred Miners Entombed Alive.

Warsaw, Jan. 21.—Four hundred miners were entombed alive yesterday and forty instantly killed by an explosion in the Casimir coal mine at Sosnowice on the Russo-Prussian frontier. Fire broke out following the explosion, cutting off the escape by the main shaft, but 360 cut their way through a wall separating them from a cross tunnel and came out alive. Rescue parties that were able to enter the mine after the fire had raged for several hours found forty men dead, their bodies badly mutilated.

Negligence of the mine owners to apply proper safety devices was responsible for the disaster and the arrest of three of the owners was ordered by Government officials, who arrived on the scene and directed the work of rescue.

Rioting broke out among the rescued miners and the relatives of the men who were killed and soldiers were called to prevent an attack on the mine owners when they were taken into custody.

Reductions Are the Price We Pay for Greater Variety During the Selling Season

It is easy to see how that is—the more variety, the greater chance of having an overstock in some particular kinds—and therefore, reductions.

Every bit of a bargain which is offered at this sale is intrinsically worth all of the full price, but since we were too liberal in our buying, the opportunity comes to lop off a third and in some instances a half from the price.

Of course, we will have to take some losses, but our purpose is best served by selling quickly, and we are making concessions to do it.

You might as well save as your neighbor.

PERNICIOUS NOVEL-READING UNDERMINES THE CHARACTER

Says Dr. Burwash in a Lecture to Normal School Students—Good Books Mould the Character.

Rev. Dr. Burwash, Chancellor of the University of Toronto, lectured in the Normal School Assembly Hall last night on the subject of "Books, Their Uses and Abuses." The subject was well treated and the lecturer clearly showed how the reading of books could be educative or detrimental to us, according to our discrimination.

TWO CLASSES OF BOOKS.

The world of books was divided into two distinct classes, namely, books of knowledge, and books of power.

BOOKS OF POWER.

There were those books which, in the reading, revealed the man who wrote. They revealed his ideals, and they told you of his hates, loves and despair, of his joys and sorrows. Whatever he touches was touched with his whole energy.

BOOKS OF KNOWLEDGE.

The other class of books, those of knowledge, were books into which the writer had put all his knowledge. The two classes, then, were entirely different. When one took down Shakespeare, Carlyle or Ruskin, he wished to get in touch with the author himself; he desired to feel the touch of his emotional nature, his inner self. The greatness of a book did not lie in its size. Some of the greatest books ever written have been small.

HOW TO ENJOY BOOKS.

To enjoy books of the latter kind one had to enter into sympathy with the author. Unless this was done, the time spent with them was wasted. Taking in the words would not help. It was one's touch with the man that was of supreme importance in books of this nature.

The elevation of the human mind rested upon communion with such books, that lift up, that inspire and reveal great moral, helpful truths.

Tennyson in his writings, reflected all the varying of the age in which he lived, moral, spiritual and religious. "You will plainly see what a heritage of the whole life you have placed in your hands."

ABUSE OF BOOKS.

Such glorious works, however, could be easily abused by students and others, by being made mere examination text books. Shakespeare's power, for instance, was a humanizing power. In it was embodied every phase of human power and human passion. Of course if we were so inclined we could pick out all the bad things in books of this nature and allow the good to entirely escape us.

LOW-GRADE BOOKS.

Another source of abuse was the pernicious habit of selecting lower grade books for our reading matter. The novel reading habit was not in itself essentially evil. The fact that it was fiction was not an objection. Communion with books always implied the assertion of strengthening the mind and the entire individuality.

"Do not let the reading of fiction overcome you or obtain mastery. The habitual novel reader resigns himself soon to the sensationalism, to being excited and moved to passion."

Another passion to which it caters was curiosity, which was the same kind of curiosity that lent itself to gossip.

PERVERTED TASTE IN READING

If it was a man he would comfortably recline in an easy chair, probably with his pipe, and give himself over to the reading of the most sensational, fascinating stories, or should it be the girl, she will curl up amongst the cushions and weep, laugh and enter into the feelings of an imaginary heroine. They had to have their daily dose of excitement. It made no difference what the previous character of the reader was, it had the same result. Perverted reading often made moral and human wrecks.

Yesterday where there was a flood of human feeling and emotion, to-day there was but a barren waste of sand.

A HIGHER PURPOSE.

Books of knowledge, on the other hand, while they did not have the same general demand as did fiction, were written for an entirely different purpose.

Breaking the Ice.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 21.—Local fishing interests were gratified yesterday by the receipt of a private despatch from Newfoundland, saying that three Gloucester fishing boats, caught in the Bay of Islands, have been liberated by the Newfoundland cruiser Fiona. The vessels are the S. P. Willard, Ella M. Goodwin and the Dauntless.

As the cruiser was under no obligation to attempt to break the ice about the fishermen, the action is appreciated here as a bit of international courtesy.

Reject Mediation.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 21.—Jose Pearita, the Ecuadorean Secretary for Foreign Affairs, yesterday made reply to the joint note of the United States, Brazil and Argentine, rejecting their attempt at mediation and the suggestion that the dispute be submitted to The Hague tribunal.

RETROSPECT OF CHILDHOOD
MOUNTAIN RAMBLES

By Mrs. H. I. Morse-Farnum, Author of "Thoughts Tersely Told.

Betimes we turn to mystic urn
 Of fragrant memories;
Renew the zest of witching quest,
 'Mid Nature's mysteries.

And then the lesson, word and scene
 Glow vivid all the way.
Despite the shady lines between
 The blush of morn and day.

The hills were steep, their valleys deep,
The hills were steep their vallies deep,
 Long mountain crests aloft
Seemed bathed in blue; green forests grew,
 And glades of cedar-croft.

And sombre pine and draping vine,
 'Twixt hemlock, spruce and fir,
While now and then secluded glen
 Resounds the pheasant's whirr.

A roguish chipmunk sways and swings
 (From tree to tree he springs),
 Nor any need will feel,
Relentless though the drifting snow,
 When winter sets his seal.

Beyond the sumach's redd'ning cone,
 Hark to the rustling sounds!
Before the eyes a fleet surprise,
 A startled rabbit bounds.

Anon with changeful, purling sheen,
 A brook that winds about
To lave its rocks, with giddy men
 Showing its speckled trout

Perchance with leap and maudlin glee
 That narrow defile pass;
Then lo! so still and restful, see
 A mimic lake of glass!

Beside the way some graceful plants
 (Seeming immune from ill)
With game of hide-and-seek enchants,
 Charming the memory still.

Lo! 'tis the juniper where hide
 Bright, welcome berries red;
But every one in prudish pride
 Conceals its handsome head

The beech and butternut uprise
 Where "Sol" bright lances threw;
Those children tourists improvise
 A tasty interview!

They single out romantic spots,
 Seeking the flowers and gum;
Alas! with blue forget-me-nots
 Alone, those "bye gones" come!

There is a time, auspicious time,
 Hasting with raven wing,
When lasting joy and love divine
A happy host with peace enshrine
 And "hills and mountains sing!"

And there's a Gift, a peerless Gift,
 Immaculate it stands,
Where ever-greens, undying, lift
 The trees that "clap their hands!"

VERY SHORT AND RIGHT TO THE POINT

Frank Miller Tells Why He Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

He used them for Rheumatism, Heart Disease and Lumbago, and they went right to the root of His troubles.

Elkmouth, B.C., Jan. 20.—Special.—Frank Miller, section foreman on the railroad here, whose work exposes him to all kinds of weather, has discovered that Dodd's Kidney Pills are a sovereign remedy for those Kidney ills that almost invariably follow neglected colds.

"For four years I suffered form Lumbago, Heart Disease and Rheumatism, brought on from a cold," says Mr. Miller," And I got the very best results from using Dodd's Kidney Pills. I freely recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from these diseases."

Short and to the point, that statement, isn't it? But it is just like Dodd's Kidney Pills. They go right to the point. They cure the Kidneys. Healthy Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means good circulation and renewed life and energy all over the body.

Thus Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure disease. They tone up the whole body and make a man feel that he has been given a new lease of life. That's why people all over Canada are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Swallowed Oil of Cedar.

Hamilton, Jan. 21.—Edward Matthews, 98 Ashley street, took a dose of oil of cedar last night, evidently with suicidal intent. He keeps a blacksmith shop on John street, near King William, and it was there he took the poison. He lost a law suit recently over some property, and this is said to have preyed on his mind. He was taken to the City Hospital in an unconscious condition, where the stomach pump was used to good effect. He was reported to be in a serious condition, but it is thought he will recover. He is 25 years of age.

Found Dead In Room.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 21.—W. S. Smith, aged 35, was found dead Thursday night lying on the floor of a room in the Algoma Hotel, adjoining the bar.

He was an Englishman, letters in his pocket showing that he came from Huddersfield, Yorkshire. He had been employed by the Dominion Tar & Chemical Co., and had discontinued work through illness, with the option of returning when his condition warranted it. It is said that he had been lying on the floor four hours before it was discovered he was dead.

FRETTING IS ONLY A HABIT

And a Hurtful and Unnecessary One at That

(Baltimore American)

What suffers when one frets? Certainly one's good humor suffers, certainly one's peace of mind is destroyed, certainly one's balance of judgment is impaired, certainly one's ability to rise to occasions becomes dulled. Ambition is deadened. Buoyancy, there is none. Sleep fails, wrinkles come upon the features, the eye loses its geniality and the dead light of care obscures the soul's rays or else the flashlight of resentment is quick to rise. Home is made unhappy, friendship less valued, the world wrapped in gloom. Around the corner is a sanitarium that seems to draw the habitual fretter with irresistible cords. He may escape it, he may go there for a time, or it may become its fixed abode.

The reason fretting is so disorganizing is because it is a process of fraying the nerves. One takes wool or flax and to use the term of the laboratory, tears it out until the minutest strands are separated, the one from the other. There is no longer organization, simply organic matter that has lost its function. It is so with the nerves when one habitually frets. Worry wears and tears the tender nerves that do the tremendous work of carrying sensations to and from the brain and that surpass any registry ever devised in their registration of emotional values.

As fretting lacks harmony it is not fit for transmission along a system devised for accord as it lacks logic it has no place in a system whose purpose is primarily to bring the sensations that enter the brain in right forms of thought or impulse. So fretting is only a wearing and fraying process. It is the delicate nerve system that suffers in the process. One feels that he has a brain as heavy as lead, a mind that simply will not respond to the ordinary process of quickening because it has become sodden, leaden and lifeless.

Why do people fret? It is not pleasant to portray the evils of fretting. It is much more pleasant to portray the delights of peace and placidity. But at times it becomes necessary to awaken fretters to the peril they invite in order to make them desist from the most needless and the most cruel self-punishment that they can suffer.

Fretting is altogether a habit. It is often much more disastrous than any of the habits that society organizes to combat. Why then do people fret? When they feel the dull sense of fear without being able to ascribe it to any particular fact, why do they not resolutely turn the mind to other channels? It can be done. The habitual fretter should practice painstakingly day-by-day, the art of self control and secure the development of nerve force. It is not a work of a moment, but the moment one resolves not to fret and registers that resolution deeply in the brain cells, that moment has he marked his emancipation.

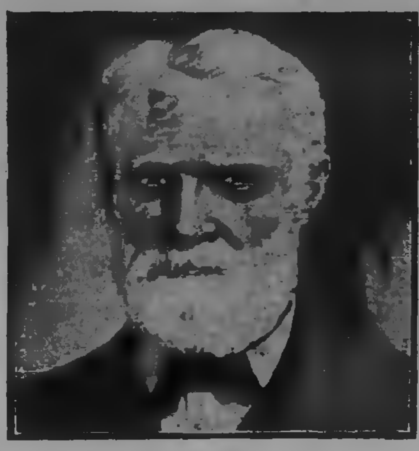
When one determines no longer to fret he seeks something as a foil to the inducement, and in so doing he finds some fad, he finds some companionship, he finds some consolatory books, he finds some legitimate and helpful cult. Every one may find anti-fretting helps that will enable him to overcome the debilitating habit of worry.

Mixed Farmers Satisfied.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—A new light on the tariff situation in the farming community was shed yesterday by a deputation of western Ontario farmers who waited upon the Premier. About a score of "mixed farmers" represented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that they were perfectly satisfied with the condition of things to-day, and dissociated themselves from the farmers who formed the recent huge deputation of grain growers.

David Jackson of Grimsby, the first speaker, said they had no particular grievance to relate. They thought that no radical change should be made in the tariff without a mandate from the people. They deprecated the language of the agitators who had recently been in Ottawa, and who were setting up one class against another. Implements had never been cheaper than at present. The grangers did not represent the farmers of Ontario or of the east.

D. H. Moyer of Campden, Lincoln County, endorsed the views of Mr. Jackson, and said that they represented men, many of whom held land to the value of from $600 to $1,000 an acre.



Seventy Nine Years Young

"Fruit-a-tives" Keeps Health Perfect

WILLIAM PARSONS, Esq.

OTTERVILLE, Ont.,
July 8th 1910.

"I am a seventy-nine year old man, and a great believer in, and user of "Fruit-a-tives". It is the only medicine I take, and I can truly say that "Fruit-a-tives" and exercise keep me in my present good health.

Stricture of the Bowels, was the complaint I suffered from and I found "Fruit-a-tives" to do me more good than any other remedy. My doctor advised me to stick to "Fruit-a-tives" and I have done so with the best results.

I have been in business here for a good many years and have been a resident of Otterville for over fifty years, so that if you think this little reference from me will serve to induce some others to try "Fruit-a-tives", I hereby authorize its publication.

WM. PARSON.

Obstinate Constipation, Paralysis of the Bowels and Stricture of the Bowels can never be cured by common purgatives, salts, senna, "liver pills" and oil have positively no action on the liver. They do not increase the secretion of Bile, which nature provides to move the bowels. They merely irritate the membranes lining the intestines. One may as well try to cure a headache by pounding one's head against a stone wall, as to try to cure Constipation with common purgatives. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only true liver stimulant. "Fruit-a-tives" is fruit juices and nerve tonics, and will always restore the liver to its proper condition and cure the most obstinate cases of Constipation.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TWO MEN KILLED

And One Man Had Arm Amputated in Freight Collision.

Special to the Review.

Kingston, Jan. 23.—William Douglas, and Thomas McDermott, both of Belleville, were killed, and William Cunningham, Gananoque, had his arm amputated in a rear end collision of two freights on the Grand Trunk near Collins' Bay early this morning.

MUST FORTIFY PANAMA CANAL

Taft Says U.S. Navy's Efficiency Demands it.

New York, Jan. 23.—President Taft began in earnest his campaign for the fortification of the Panama Canal. His entire speech at the annual dinner of the Penna Society in New York was devoted to this subject.

In the Senate the President has been told the sentiment in favor of the fortifications is almost two to one. The House seems pretty evenly divided, but not along partisan lines.

In his speech last night the President declared there was absolutely no treaty obligations in the way of fortifying the canal; that the United States had every right and reason to protect what was purely an American waterway.

The President said he yielded to no man in his love of peace and hatred of war. He said he hoped to submit soon to the Senate arbitration treaties of a broader nature than had ever come before that body or any other legislative body of the world. At the same time, Mr. Taft cautioned his hearers that universal peace was still a long way off, and he could not conceive of any patriotic American being willing to allow an attacking force free and equal use of a waterway which was built by Americans largely as an instrument for the defence of their country.

The President recalled that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1850 was made with Great Britain at a time when neither country contemplated building the canal. After the failure of the French company, he recalled, came the Spanish-American war, and the 12,000 mile cruise of the Oregon demonstrated the necessity for the canal to double the efficiency of the U. S. fleet. He quoted at length from the correspondence between John Hay and Lord Lansdowne in support of his proposition that nothing in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty precluded the right of the U. S. to fortify the canal.

"Suppose," said the President, "that England is at war with some other country that is not bound to us by treaty rights at all, isn't it essential that we should have fortifications here to protect the canal, not only for our own use and for the world's commerce, but for the use of England and her warships as a means of passage? In other words, we have to preserve that canal as a means of transit to belligerents in time of war as long as we are not ourselves engaged in the controversy."

It was interesting to watch the face of Andrew Carnegie as the President warmed to his argument and hammered home his points.

"Can we feel entirely safe from injury from some irresponsible belligerents?" demanded the President. There was a chorus of "Noes," but the ironmaster did not join in them. He followed the speech closely, but applauded seldom. It was not until the President spoke in favor of broader arbitration that he earned Mr. Carnegie's applause. Then the champion of peace stood up in his enthusiasm, and waved his napkin about his head. But he subsided again when the President admitted that it was still a possibility, and did not join in the cheers that marked the close of the address, although he applauded mildly with the others.

THE RATES ON PULLMAN CARS

Are Cut by Ruling of the Railway Commission.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—The Railway Commission will this week probably settle the rates in Pullman berths on the railways. The proposal to be laid before them by the companies will be for a 20 per cent. reduction on upper berths, and the lower will be charged on a mileage basis. As an example of the effect of the reductions, the dates out of Ottawa for upper berths will be: Toronto, now $8.50, will be $6.40; Vancouver, $17.50, down to $14; Montreal, $1.50, will be $1.20; New York has been $2.50, and will be $2. These rates will go into effect Feb. 1.

Perkins Medal Awarded.

New York, Jan. 23.—The Times says the American Society of Chemical Industry announces that the Perkins medal, which is awarded annually for important discoveries in applied chemistry, has been given this year to Charles M. Hall, who invented the process of producing aluminum at low cost.

The medal was first given to Sir William Henry Perkin, who discovered the first coal tar dyes, on the occasion of his visit to this country in 1906.

PREACHERS TIRED OF BEGGING

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—The preachers of Atlanta to-day adopted a resolution not to ask their congregations to give money this year. The resolution reads:

Whereas the preachers of Atlanta have been brought to be largely tax gatherers, spending their time running down people to get money out of them, and

Whereas this is getting to be such a burden as to be detrimental to the main work of the ministry, that of saving souls;

Resolved, That we, the preachers of Atlanta, pledge ourselves that for the year 1911 we will not take upon ourselves the collection of money from our congregations.

STAMPING OUT CONSUMPTION

Lloyd George Expresses Himself on the Project.

London, Jan. 23.—In a letter to Hall Caine, who has been advocating Government measures with the object of stamping out consumption, principally through the state taking charge of all consumptives, David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, makes the interesting announcement that he has already been considering the practicability of dealing with the problem in connection with his forthcoming scheme of invalidity insurance.

The Chancellor says that the chief difficulty is financial, and that it will be especially hard to estimate the maximum contribution which can be levied on workingmen. However, he expresses himself as hopeful of doing something to arrest the terrible scourge, "whose livid wheals are deeply marked on the face of Great Britain."

Good for Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 23.—The decision of the United States Treasury that duty must be collected on fish cargoes purchased abroad and taken to American ports in American fishing vessels, is regarded in the Government circles here as likely to operate to the advantage of Newfoundland fishermen, who will be able to compete on equal terms in American markets with American vessels. Heretofore American vessels have secured free entry for fish purchased by them.

One outcome of the decision is expected to be the employment of colonial vessels to carry herring cargoes from the southern bays. The colonial Cabinet will not grant American vessels permits to purchase cargoes there, and The Hague decision denies them access to these bays.

ELEVEN KILLED FORTY HURT

Bad Railway Wreck at Cardiff, Wales.

Special to the Review.

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 23.—Eleven were killed and forty were injured in the worst railway wreck of the new year in Wales. A rear end collision caused the smashup.

Moral Reform on Railroad.

New York, Jan. 23.—A despatch to The Tribune from Boston says: The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad has issued orders to its conductors to stop all card-playing on the trains of the system. Another order is that children shall not ride in the smoking-cars, either alone or accompanied by an older person. Conductors have been empowered to have arrested the parent or guardian of the child if accompanied by such, on failure to leave the car when so ordered. Hereafter no games of cards, games of chance, or the use of chips will be permitted. Complaints were made about the presence of card sharps on the trains and the fleecing of passengers.

Ottawa Faces Epidemic.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—As the result of the visit of a civic deputation to Montreal on Friday to investigate the hypochlorite treatment of water, City Engineer Kerr on Saturday took steps to begin purification of Ottawa's water at once. A special meeting of the council will be held to-day to sanction it. There were nearly 70 cases of typhoid reported in the city Saturday morning and the extent of the disease is rapidly assuming the proportions of an epidemic. Though the last samples of water sent to Toronto for analysis have not been reported upon, it is considered practically certain the typhoid is due to sewage contamination.

WERE ADRIFT ON ATLANTIC

Rescued Captain and Crew Had Terrible Experience.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 23.—Telling a tale of hardship almost unprecedented in the history of the North Atlantic, Captain Howard and crew of the Nova Scotia schooner H. J. Logan, which was abandoned off the Grand Banks on Dec. 19, arrived in Halifax on the Allan liner Hesperian from Liverpool. Captain Howard and his men were rescued from their waterlogged craft by the steamer Bardistan, bound from Norfolk for Bremen, after all hope of rescue had been abandoned.

The schooner, which was a four-master, and one of the last of her class now left in the province, sailed from Chatham, N.B., late in October for New York with a cargo of lathes. Off the Georges she ran into hurricane weather, which carried away her sails and rudder and also loosened her timbers, allowing the seats to sweep in. The pumps were kept working night and day, and the hardy seamen did all in their power to keep the big vessel on the American coast, but the gales carried her far off her course, and she drifted to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

Day after day, and night after night the aged captain and his men paced the deck expecting every moment that their ship would founder, as she pitched about in the trough of the sea. The provisions began to run out, and for days the crew were on short rations, which nearly added greatly to their sufferings. On the 19th of December Captain Howard decided to abandon his craft and signalled the Bardistan, which carried the men to Bremen.

The H. J. Logan was built in Parrsboro, and was owned by her captain. She was valued at $50,000.

WILL BEGIN THE CANAL

Money Said to be Provided For the Georgian Bay System.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—It is now regarded as a settled fact that this year will see a start on the Georgian Bay Canal. A special estimate of three million dollars, allowing for a beginning, has been prepared, and it is expected that it will shortly be brought down. Confirmation of the report is indicated in the remarks of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux at Montreal, and also in statements that have been made by some of the Ministers to members for constituencies particularly interested in the work.

The amount proposed as a starter will be quite sufficient for this year, as by the time it is spent the next session will have convened. Then the big expenditure will be made at the two ends—Montreal and the French River.

Whether the route at Montreal will be in front of the city or by the Back River is an open question. Each has its advocates, but the latter, it is said, is the cheaper by two million dollars.

It is understood that while the work will be done by contract it will be a Government undertaking, rather than that of a private company with a bond guarantee. The canal, like the others of the Canadian system, would in all probability be free.

ACTION FOR CONSPIRACY

David Russell Enters a Suit That Was Long Awaited

Montreal Man Claims $200,000 From Pinkerton Agency, and Their Representative in Montreal, Alleging That They Gave Him False Information and Then Tried to Have Him Thrown Into an Asylum.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—The long-promised action of David Russell against the alleged conspirators was begun Saturday by his action of $200,000 through Hickson & Campbell, against the Pinkertons of Chicago and New York, as well as John W. MacNamara, the head of the Montreal office.

Russell alleges in his plea now before the courts that he hired the Pinkertons to investigate a badger game and that he received false information. After declaring that an effort was made to give him a sleeping draught, the plea goes on to say, "More especially, and in furtherance of their said plot and conspiracy, the defendants, acting as aforesaid, plotted and conspired to have plaintiff declared insane and of unsound mind, and, as such, incarcerated in an asylum or resort for insane persons in the state of New York. In furtherance of their plot and conspiracy, as aforesaid, the defendants wilfully and maliciously spread the false and libelous rumor and report throughout the city of Montreal and elsewhere that, in fact, plaintiff was of unsound mind, and mentally deranged, and that he should be restrained in an asylum.

"In furtherance of their said plot and conspiracy, the defendants also maliciously made similar false and libelous statements, and reports to members of plaintiff's family, and to his employes and intimate friends and acquaintances, for the purpose of deceiving and misleading them; and they in fact did deceive and mislead them.

"That moreover, the defendants and others (whose names are presently unknown to plaintiff) unlawfully cooperating with them, did, in fact, send to plaintiff false and misleading telegrams, and the defendant, McNamara, did cause to be sent to plaintiff a decoy telegram signed by another, and did further personally write and send to plaintiff two other telegrams, which he forged in the name of another, the whole in order to detain plaintiff in the city of New York, until defendants' plot and conspiracy was sufficiently perfected, to enable defendant to commence "action," to wit, on the 21st day of October last, 1910, when the plan of action as prepared by defendants was to enter the plaintiff's room at the Manhattan Hotel in the city of New York and there to "overpower" him and procure plaintiff's incarceration in a lunatic asylum without opportunity for defence or remonstrance by plaintiff, through the investigations of the William J. Burns National Detective Agency of New York."

It is understood that Donald MacMaster has worked up the legal part of the case, but the detective work was done by the famous New York officer, W. J. Burns, who spent several weeks in this city, and who has succeeded in winding a net around several people, making the case one of the most interesting ever brought before the Montreal courts. A trial by jury is asked for, and the arrests will follow as the case proceeds.

TWO KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK

Bad Smash on Soo Line Near Macoun.

North Portal, Sask., Jan. 23.—Word was received here Saturday morning that a bad wreck had occurred on the Portal section of the Soo Line, near Macoun. A rotary plow, going from Estevan to Weyburn to work on the forward branch, had a rear-end collision with No. 205 passenger train. After being in a snowdrift for eighteen hours near Kenmore, the passenger train left North Portal at 3.30 Saturday morning, running with the mail car in the rear owing to broken draw-bar. This undoubtedly saved the lives of many passengers.

Two passengers in the sleeper were killed and one of the mail clerks seriously injured. Two coaches went into the ditch. Trainmaster Hakette left here immediately on a special for the scene of the wreck.

The names of the unfortunate passengers who were killed in the smash are: P. J. Hunt, commercial traveler, ticketed from Toronto to Seattle, and R. Chapman, traveler, Toronto to Calgary.

The names of the injured mail clerks are: Lewis Manahan and Greenhaugh. A porter named Coble was also injured. All the injured are expected to recover.

Macoun is situated on the Canadian Pacific branch line between Moose Jaw and Portal, where the Soo Line connects with the Canadian Pacific. It is the first station north of Estevan.

WITHDRAWAL OF BIG SUM

From Farmers' Bank Made When Mrs. Travers Went Abroad.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—There was not the slightest opposition this morning to Judge Riddell's order winding up the Farmers' Bank.

Curator Clarkson was appointed liquidator, and J. A. McAndrew official referee.

It is reported to-day that a hundred thousand dollar asset which Clarkson said would be a total loss, refers to the withdrawal of that amount about the time Mrs. Travers went abroad.

Killed Father In Defence of Husband.

Cravenette, Ark., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Nellie Allen, 21 years old, shot and killed her father, John B. Boyer, a wealthy planter, at their home near Maysville Saturday, after the two had exchanged half a dozen shots. Boyer and the woman's husband, John Allen, were in a quarrel. Boyer rushed on Allen with a drawn knife, when Mrs. Allen opened fire. Boyer returned the fire, but his bullets went wild, while one of them from the woman's revolver pierced his brain.

THIS FIGHT WAS FATAL

Montreal Italian Was Shot Through the Head.

After Words Over a Woman, John Olander Is Found Dead In Gateway Near St. Dominique — Unknown Man Who Walked Through Gateway Is Believed to Have Been the Slayer—One Man Arrested.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—John Olander, an Italian, 35 years of age, who resided at 231 St. Martin street, was shot through the head in a gateway in Vitre street, near St. Dominique, on Saturday evening. He died in a few minutes.

The shooting is supposed to have been done by a fellow countryman, who was seen to empty the cartridge shell from his revolver after Olander fell, place the weapon in his pocket, and walk from the yard.

An ambulance from the General Hospital was summoned, but when it arrived, the physician, who accompanied it, said that life was extinct, and the body was taken to the morgue.

Words over a woman led to the quarrel that ended with the killing of Olander.

From what could be learned from the police, the woman's name is White. Detective Cowan arrested one Italian, a man named Frank Dorolo, 24 years of age. He was taken into custody early on Saturday. While there is so far nothing to connect him with the murder, he answers the description of a man seen walking through the gateway after the shooting, and it is thought that he knows something about it.

NEW MINISTER OF JUSTICE?

Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., Mentioned as a Possibility.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—It is reported here that Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, is to be Minister of Justice in succession to Sir Alan Aylesworth, who is slated for early retirement. It had been thought that Mr. Nesbitt was a Conservative, but it is stated that he has been close to the Government during the last few years. The fact that he has been exceedingly busy of late in addressing Canadian clubs and the like is taken to mean that he is paving the way for entrance into public life.

It is understood that he will run in Sir Alan Aylesworth's constituency of North York, if the statement that he is to become Minister of Justice is true, which it is affirmed it is.

Eight Chinese Killed.

The Chinese suspected that the police had killed the coolie, and rioting began in several sections. British and German gunboats landed detachments, and fierce fighting followed, in which eight Chinese were killed. The viceroy is sending native troops to restore order.

THOSE SPIES

The rumors that spies belonging to Uncle Sam have been busy in the Quebec fortifications have been gravely discussed by the senators, and Sir Richard Cartwright has promised an investigation. Isn't the thought of Americans spying on Canada really dreadful, especially on Quebec. Most people thought that the Canadian tariff commissioners were after reciprocity—which would ultimately result in political union with the United States. Why then, should there be any objection to the Americans inspecting Canada before taking it over? Even Uncle Sam wouldn't like to take a lot of Frenchmen, such as they have in Quebec, without seeing their capital.

Of course they must be American spies, because with our great navy no foreign power would dream of invading Canada, and would have no use for plans of the Quebec fortifications. Having two warships, with twelve coming, Canada need fear no enemy from across the sea.

And of course, if the United States were really bent on capturing Canada it would attack Quebec first. Its troops wouldn't cross the border anywhere else along the three thousand miles of boundary. The senators should press the inquiry home, since the affair is one of great national consequence.

MR. McLEOD'S VINDICATION

In view of what is being said in the matter of bank inspection the lesson of the Farmers' Bank being driven home, it is interesting to note what H. C. McLeod, formerly general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, had to say on the question. When Mr. McLeod retired a year ago he said—"The public are strongly in favor of external supervision, but the general managers and directors of banks stand in the way. I have earnestly and consistently sought to do my duty in the interests of Canadian finances. Eventually the more important changes advocated will come. Secretive management must end. But I have not the patience to await these changes nor the disposition to quietly tolerate banking practice that has produced so much loss and which looms a dark cloud on an otherwise fair outlook. Therefore, I have asked the privilege of retirement."

Such a statement, coming from a man of Mr. McLeod's standing, with his reputation as one of the foremost bankers of Canada, has particular weight. It is almost the only banker's voice raised in favor of the public's contention that there should be external examination of the head office books of all banks. Naturally, the head office officials wish to be allowed to conduct their business of loaning money secretively.

Their business wisdom is the only thing that stands between the bank and heavy losses, and banks sometimes get very heavily involved. A bank is in many respects a public institution. It is not like a private company doing business with the public. It is an institution using the public money and resources very largely to finance business enterprise, and this being so, is responsible to the public for good management. The ordinary bank shareholder has not the means of getting detailed information as to the bank's financial standing and is in practice, if not in theory, about as much in the dark concerning the real operations of the institution as the ordinary public. In holding a charter from the people, using the deposits of the people for its own ends, in circulating notes, even against a cash deposit with the government, a bank is more or less a public institution, and as such should be subjected to a reasonable measure of oversight in the public interest.

PROPER TRAINING

The Kingston Standard says that Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., is an able lawyer, but "when he ventures into the realm of political economy he is going into a subject for which he has not had proper training." This remark comes as a result of the speeches Mr. Nesbitt has been delivering on the question of trade relations with the United States.

How does the Standard know Mr. Nesbitt has not had "proper training." What sort of diploma is necessary to show that he has? Cannot a man study political economy in his leisure time, become well versed in it, and knowing his subject, propound his own views?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Madam Melba is seriously ill. Let us hope she will recover to give us at least another farewell tour.

The Chinese have the anti-queue craze, and the pigtails are coming off with great celerity. Quite an antique affair.

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is now in for it. The Toronto newspapers have the idea that it has upheld the Street Railway Company. Woe is me! Now won't the commissioners find out what the newspaper writers think!

The McGill arts students will have no wine at their annual dinner. This is a good move, and one that does credit to the students. Wine is not a force for the elevation of man at any time.

Rather significant is the announcement by the American and Canadian express companies that they have arranged a through rate across the boundary at a cost equal to the charge of handling by one company. The announcement is made, it cannot be doubted very largely as a consequence of the recent formation of an international regulating commission. One of the first steps that this commission would have taken was the regulation of the express rates. Between most points of the United States and Canada, the rate has been the sum of the two local rates, two companies handling the parcel. Having secured this economy in the handling of express parcels, the appointment of the new international body will later have the effect of providing through rates over the freight lines.

ORGANIST WAS REMEMBERED

For Her Splendid Services—Presentation at Emily

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Pearl Franks, of Emily, on Thursday, January 10th, when about thirty of the members of St. James' church, presented her with two handsome pieces of jewellery, also an address. The address was read by Mr. Lloyd Boate and the presentation made by Mr. Ross Boate.

It was as follows:

Dear Miss Franks,—The members of St. James church desire to recognize in some small measure your kind service during the past few years and to say that they appreciate very much your assistance which was added to the interest of the service from Sunday to Sunday. As organist you have been painstaking and patient and have ever been at the call of the choir and and have cheerfully given most cordial help to carry on the details of the church service.

The congregation ventures to hope that you will continue to take charge of the organ, knowing that it would be very hard to supply your place and to find one who would so cheerfully and willingly assume the duties.

As a small token of the appreciation they desire to express, you are asked to accept this gold bracelet, locket and chain, and the hope is further expressed that you will long reside in the neighborhood. The example you set in all your church church work is one to be sincerely admired and emulated. Signed on behalf of the congregation.

R. and L. BOATE.

Miss Franks made a few brief remarks thanking those present for their great kindness shown towards her.

The remainder of the evening was a very social one being spent in songs, playing games and other attractive amusements. At an early hour the gathering dispersed.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materia's embracing their make-up The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

"There is nothing to set right," said the girl wearily. "Marsh told the truth, I dare say."

"The truth! My God! You don't know what you're saying!"

"Yes, I do." She returned his look of shocked horror with half hearted defiance. "You must have known who I am. Fraser knew, and he must have told you. You knew I had followed the mining camps. You knew I had lived by my wits. You must have known what people thought of me. I cast my lot in with the people of this country, and I had to match my wits with those of every man I met. Sometimes I won, sometimes I did not. You know the north."

"I didn't know," he said slowly. "I never thought—I wouldn't allow myself to think"—

CHAPTER XXI.

"WHY not?" the girl asked. "It is nothing to you. You have lived, and so have I. I made mistakes—what girl doesn't who has to fight her way alone? But my past is my own. It concerns nobody but me." She saw the change in his face, and her reckless spirit rose. "Oh, I've shocked you! You think all women should be like Miss Wayland. Have you ever stopped to think that even you are not the same man you were when you came fresh from college? You know the world now; you have tasted its wickedness. Would you change your knowledge for your earlier innocence? You know you would not, and you have no right to judge me by a separate code. What difference does it make who I am or what I have done? I didn't ask your record when I gave you the chance to win Miss Wayland, and neither you nor she have any right to challenge mine."

"I agree with you in that."

"I came away from the mining camps because of wagging tongues, because I was forever misjudged. Whatever I may have been, I have at least played fair with that girl. It hurts me now to be accused by her. I saw your love for her, and I never tried to rob her. Oh, don't look as if I couldn't have done differently if I had tried. I could have injured her very easily if I had been the sort she thinks me. But I helped you in every way I could. I made sacrifices. I did things she would never have done."

She stopped on the verge of tears.

"Why did you do all this?" he asked.

"Don't you know?" Cherry gazed at him with a faint smile.

Then, for the first time, the whole truth burst upon him. The surprise of it almost deprived him of speech, and he stammered:

"No. I—I"— Then he fell silent.

"What little I did I did because I love you," said the girl in a tired voice. "You may as well know, for it makes no difference now."

"I—I am sorry," he said, gripped by a strong emotion that made him go hot and cold. "I have been a fool."

"No; you were merely wrapped up in your own affairs. You see, I had been living my own life and was fairly contented till you came. Then everything changed. For a long time I hoped you might grow to love me as I loved you, but I found it was no use. When I saw you so honest and unselfish in your devotion to that other girl I thought it was my chance to do something unselfish in my turn. It was hard, but I did my best. I think I must love you in the same way you love her, Boyd, for there is nothing in all the world I would not do to make you happy."

The girl stood for a moment with her eyes turned toward the river. Then she said:

"I must think. I—I want to go away. Goodby."

"Goodby," he returned and stood watching her as she hurried away, half suspecting the tears that were trembling amid her lashes.

It was not until supper time that Boyd saw "Fingerless" Fraser and questioned him about his quest for an heiress.

"Nothing doing in the heiress business," replied the adventurer. "I couldn't stand the exposure."

"They were cold, eh?"

"Yep! They weathered me out."

"Did you really meet any of those people?"

"Sure! I met 'em all, but I didn't catch their names. I 'made' one before I'd gone a mile—tall, slim party with cracked ice in her voice."

Boyd looked up quickly. "Did you introduce yourself?"

"As Chancy De Benville, that's all. How is that for a drawing room monaker? She fell for the name all right, but there must have been something phony about the clothes. That's the trouble with this park harness. If I'd wore my 'soup and fish' and my two gallon evening hat I'd have passed for a gentleman sure. I'm strong for those evening togs. I see another one later—a little maduro colored skirt with a fat nose."

"Miss Berry."

"I'm glad to meet her. I officed her out of a rowboat and told her I was Mr. Younkers of New York. We was breezing along on the bit till Clyde broke it up. He called me Fraser, and it was cold in a minute. Fraser is a cheap name anyhow. I'm sorry I took it."

"Do you mean to say it isn't your real name?" asked his companion in genuine bewilderment.

"Naw! Switzer is what I was born with. Say it slow and it sounds like an air brake, don't it? I never won a bet as long as I packed it around, and Fraser hasn't got it beat by more than a lip."

"Well!" Boyd breathed deeply. "You are the limit."

"Speaking of clothes, I notice you are dressed up like a fruit salad. What is it—the yacht?"

"Yes."

"You'd better hurry. She sails at high tide."

"Sails!"

"Alton told me so and said that he was going along."

"Thank heaven for that, anyhow, but—I don't understand about the other."

Boyd voiced the question that was foremost in his mind.

"Did you know Cherry in the upper country?"

"Nope."

"She said you did."

"She said that?"

"Yes. She thought you had told me who she was."

"She might have known I'd never crack. It's her own business, and I've got troubles enough with this cannery on my hands."

"I wish you had told me," said Emerson.

Wayne Wayland was by no means sure that Boyd would not make good his threat to visit the yacht that evening, and in any case he wished to be prepared. A scene before the other passengers of the Grande Dame was not to be thought of. Besides, if the young man were roughly handled it would make him a martyr in Mildred's eyes. He talked over the matter with Marsh, who suggested that the sightseers should dine ashore and spend the evening with him at the plant. With only Mildred and her father left on the yacht there would be no possibility of scandal, even if Emerson were mad enough to force an interview.

"And what is more," declared Mr Wayland, "I shall give orders to clear on the high tide. That fellow is a menace, and the sooner Mildred is away from him the better. You shall go with us, my boy."

But when he went to Mildred to explain the nature of his arrangements he found her in a furious temper.

"Why did you announce my engagement to Mr. Marsh?" she demanded angrily. "The whole ship is talking about it. By what right did you do that?"

"I did it for your own sake," said the old man. "This whelp Emerson has made a fool of you and of me long enough. There must be an end to it."

"But I don't love Willis Marsh!" she cried. "You forget I am of age."

"Nonsense! Willis is a fine fellow. He loves you, and he is the best business man for his years I have ever known. If it were not for this foolish boy and girl affair you would return his love. He suits me, and—well, I have put my foot down, so there's an end of it."

"Do you intend to force me to marry him?"

Mr. Wayland recognized the danger signal.

"Absurd! Take all the time you wish. You'll come around all right. That reprobate you were engaged to defied me and defended that woman."

He told of his stormy interview with Boyd, concluding: "It is fortunate we found him out, Mildred. I have guarded you all my life. I have lavished everything money could buy upon you. I have built up the greatest fortune in all the west for you. I have kept you pure and sweet and good—and to think that such a fellow should dare"— Mr. Wayland choked with anger. "The one thing I cannot stand in a man or a woman is immorality. I have lived clean myself, and my son shall be as clean as I."

"Did you say that Boyd threatened to come aboard this evening?" questioned the girl.

"Yes. But I swore that he should not."

"Then he'll come," said Mildred.

It was twilight when Willis Marsh was rowed out to the yacht. He found Mr. Wayland and Mildred seated in deck chairs enjoying the golden sunset while the old man smoked. Marsh explained that he had excused himself from his guests to go whither his inclination led him and drew his seat close to Mildred, rejoicing in the fact that no one could gainsay him this privilege. Moreover, he had won the unfaltering loyalty of Wayne Wayland, the dominant figure of the west. Nothing could keep him now from the success his ambition demanded.

His complaisant enjoyment was interrupted at last by the approach of the second officer, who announced that a lady wished to see Mr. Wayland.

"A lady?" asked the old man in surprise.

"Yes, sir. She came alongside in a small boat just now with some natives. I stopped her at the landing, but she says she must see you at once."

"Ah, that woman again!" Mr. Wayland's jaws snapped. "Tell her to begone. I refuse to see her."

"Very well, sir." The mate turned, but Mildred said suddenly:

"Wait! Why don't you talk to her, father?"

"That creature? I have nothing to say to her."

Mildred leaned forward and called to the ship's officer: "Show her up. I will see her."

"Mildred, you mustn't talk to that woman!" her father cried.

"It is very unwise," Marsh chimed in apprehensively. "She isn't the sort of person"—

Miss Wayland chilled him with a look and waved the mate away, then sank back into her chair.

"I have talked with her already. I assure you she is not dangerous."

Willis Marsh squirmed uncomfortably in his seat. He fixed his eyes upon the knot of men at the starboard rail. Then, with a sharp indrawing of his breath, he leaped up and darted down the deck.

To Teach Girls Cooking.

Vienna, Jan. 23.—A remarkable will was left recently by Founts Bolor, a wealthy young bachelor and violent woman hater, who died in a Hungarian town.

During his lifetime the cause of his antipathy to women was never conjectured, but his curious will explains that he never married because modern women have little knowledge of the principles of cooking.

In order that young girls might be taught how to prepare food in a civilised manner he left his entire fortune to the municipality for the purpose of establishing a free cooking school. That he bestows on his relatives the privilege of daily free dinners at the school is an ironical observation made by the testator. The bequest has been accepted by the municipality.

Escaped From Flames.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 23.—About midnight the occupants of William Wylie's boarding-house at St. David's, which was formerly a hotel, were awakened by the light glare without. The fire quickly spread, the occupants escaping in night attire. Some leaped from the windows, but none were injured. The village has no waterworks system and assistance was summoned from here. The old hotel building and adjoining barn were totally destroyed. In the barn, which was afire, when the occupants of the house awoke, were four horses, and a cow burned to death. The rest of the live stock was rescued. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The Third Degree.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 23.—Yesterday State Deputy Thomas J. Lawlor and staff conferred the third degrees upon a class of one hundred Knights of Columbus at Niagara University on the American side. Nearly two thousand members of the order were present at the ceremony, including knights from Toronto and St. Catharines. The Toronto delegation left home Saturday morning, spending the day in Buffalo, as guests of the knights of that city.

New Endurance Record.

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—San Francisco's aviation meet produced a new American endurance record yesterday, when Phillip O. Parmalee, piloting a Wright biplane, remained aloft for three hours, 39 minutes and 49 1-5 seconds.

The best previous endurance in America was that of A. L. Welch of St. Louis, who established a record of 3 hours, 11 minutes and 55 seconds

Picked Out Landing Place.

Havana, Jan. 23.—J. A. McCurdy, who is to make a flight from Key West to Havana and who arrived here on Saturday on the U. S. torpedo boat destroyer Paulding, for the purpose of picking out a suitable landing place, inspected the parade ground and polo field at Camp Columbia. His present intention to start to polo field was an ideal spot for landing. He will leave here to-day on the Paulding for Key West, and it is his present intention to start tomorrow morning between eight and nine o'clock on the voyage to Cuba. He expects to make the run in two hours should the present favorable conditions continue. He will circle Morro Castle and then follow the line of the Malecon drive along the shore to the camp.

Workman Killed.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—On the Canadian Northern Railway at an early hour yesterday morning, at Maisonneuve a snowplow ran down and killed Joseph Dulhaime of Charlemagne, who was going to his work and was walking on the track. Two others who were also present, named Beauchamp and Goulet, 17 and 18 years of age respectively, were also run down and badly injured. In fact, they may or may not live. The inquest will take place to-day.

Died at Prayers.

Berlin, Ont., Jan. 23.—Leo Longo, 12-year-old son of Antony Longo, a well-known fruit dealer of this town, died while kneeling at his prayers in St. Mary's Church, about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The boy had been to confession during the afternoon, and was in the church repeating his prayers when he fell over while kneeling and died almost instantly. Death was the result of heart failure.

Whirled to Death.

Schenectady, N.Y., Jan. 23.—As J. Krygowski, an employe at the American Locomotive Works, was about to replace a chain on a sprocket wheel of a machine used to straighten scrap iron, his sleeves caught in the cogs and he was whirled about until his legs had been torn from his body, his head crushed and his clothes completely ripped off. He then fell 15 feet to the floor and was picked up dead.

Another blizzard has struck the west.

Cobwebs in the Morning.

Cobwebs in the head on rising in the morning is the result of a Lazy Liver, one or two mornings in succession and sick headache follows.

Father Morriscy's Liver Pills will clear the Brain.

These Pills are a purely vegetable compound prepared with great care, and are without doubt the very best pills for general use, on the market. The greatest care has been given to selecting the ingredients, and being entirely vegetable, they act upon the liver and bowels in such a manner as not to disturb the other functions of the body as many pills do.

As a Liver Invigorator, Blood Purifier and General System Renovator, they are unequalled. Sick headache is invariably brought on by a sluggish liver, constipation or irregular bowels; these pills are a cure for sick headache in any form.

Pimples, eruptions and yellow skin are often caused by a lazy liver; one pill three times a week, will soon clear the complexion. Price 25c. per box.

TWO BUILDERS OF MANITOBA

Robert Ironside and Thomas Duncan Were Two Who Helped.

Two men who died recently in the eastern part of this continent were intimately connected with the upbuilding of the Middle West of Canada. The first was Mr. Robert Ironside, of Montreal, and the second, Mr. Thomas Duncan, Canadian Immigration agent at Syracuse, New York.

Mr. Ironside has been called "Canada's Cattle King," and, as the Montreal end of the great cattle exporting firm of Gordon, Ironside, and Fares, the title was not inappropriate. Both Mr. Ironside and Mr. Duncan entered the Manitoba Legislature in 1892 on the Liberal side, when Greenway swept the province with his national school issue. Mr. Ironside was an implement, grain, and cattle dealer from Manitou, and Mr. Duncan was a blacksmith from Morden, both towns being in Southern Manitoba. Both were big, muscular men, active both in body and brain, but here the resemblance ended. Mr. Ironside was essentially a man of business, who apparently like to sit and dream dreams, and then plan in the quiet of his office for the carrying of them out. He was not fond of talking in public, and seemed to be rather doubtful of those who were. Parliamentary life was irksome to him, and after one Parliamentary term he retired to attend to his own great interests. One day he said to the writer: "I hate sitting in this stuffy chamber listening to talk. I'd rather be out punching steers." That Mr. Ironside dreamed dreams and punched steers to some purpose is shown by the fact that it was not very long after that before the business turnover of the firm with which he was connected was considerably larger than the amount handled by the Treasurer of the Province of Manitoba. Though he was undoubtedly a great business man and a successful one, yet he always seemed more ready to listen to what other people had to say than to give his own views. He had a curious way of asking apparently whimsical questions, but when you thought them over afterward, you would see that it was only just his curious way of looking at life. When the business of the firm got so large as to necessitate some one living in Montreal to look after the shipping, Mr. Ironside moved there, and Mr. Gordon remained in Winnipeg to deal with the ranching end.

Mrs. Ellen Fines, of Wellington is dead, aged 85. Her home was once occupied by Lord Simcoe, when Governor of Upper Canada.

A delegation of civil engineers, employed by the Dominion Government, have asked the Premier to raise their status in the civil service.

Your Children's Eyes

MANY PARENTS are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyances and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headaches; or if he leers, looks at objects askance or with partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent specialist, lest your negligence or indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before sending them to school.

Sang With Fine Effect

St. John's Choir gave a fine rendering of part of Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm last night at the offertory. The chorus "For the Lord is a Mighty God" is a grand example of singing in Canon, and the choir in perfect time and tune, quite upheld their reputation in this class of choral music.

The men's chorus was especially good, no less than seventeen being present. The whole work is to be given in Lent.

OBITUARY

MRS. ADAM THOMPSON

At the age of seventy-five, Mrs. Adam Thompson, of Otonabee passed away Sunday morning. Her maiden name was Anna Gillespie. She was one of the most highly esteemed residents of Otonabee. She came to Canada in 1849 from Scotland, with her parents. In 1864 she was married to the late Adam Thompson, who pre-deceased her eight years ago.

Deceased leaves to survive her, seven sons and one daughter, all residing here with the exception of one son in Sask.

The funeral will take place tomorrow from Little Lake Cemetery from Downers Corners.

MRS WILLIAM WESTCOTT

Mrs. William Westcott, the aged lady who suffered a paralytic shock while alone in her house at 315 Burnham street, died in Nicholls Hospital yesterday. Apparently the shock and the length of time she lay unconscious on the floor of her residence before being discovered was too much for her constitution. She has no family, and her husband died some years ago.

The funeral was held this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery, from her late residence, 315 Burnham street. Rev. H. R. Trumpour officiated.

CITY FREE FROM INFECTIOUS DISEASES

M.H.O. Presents His Report to the Board of Health

The local Board of Health met this morning in the city clerk's office. Dr. McNulty was re-elected chairman.

TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT.

A circular letter was read from Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Health Officer of Ontario, regarding a free tuberculosis exhibit proposed to be held here. The secretary was instructed to ascertain what accommodation would be required for the exhibit and what the Board would be required to do.

M. H. O. REPORT.

A lengthy report of the sanitary and health conditions of the city was submitted by Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer. He was pleased to be able to say that during his time the city had been comparatively free from infectious diseases. As might be expected from last years' record, scarlet fever heads the list with 34 infected houses and about sixty cases.

Peterborough has been remarkably free from typhoid. The minor infectious diseases have decreased since last year with the exception of the whooping cough.

It was with regret that he had to report the appearance of a small epidemic of infantile paralysis. There were either ten or twelve cases with at least three deaths. He also urged that some stringent sanitary rules be enforced and that citizens should co-operate in enforcing the same. He thought that a sanitary inspector should be appointed, instead of leaving it for the police force to attendto.

GARBAGE SYSTEM.

It was moved that Dr. McPherson obtain information and submit it to the Board in regard to a system of garbage collection and inspection of milk. It was carried.

Keep in mind the T. A. S. Minstrels in Separate School Hall, Thursday and Friday evening, January 26 and 27. A roaring good time is promised. Come one, come all. 2d

The meeting gladly approved of the holding of teachers' training class for ladies and gentlemen by Mr. Gilchrist.

BARBARA TENNANT'S "JULIET"

"Romeo, I come; this do I drink to thee." The line and accompanying action come at the end of a passage of rare beauty; they form a fitting climax to a scene of tense emotional strain. Juliet, in her frantic attempts to escape the marriage with Paris and "live an unstained wife" to Romeo, has appealed by turns with timid firmness to her father and with piteous desperation to her mother, but all in vain. Even from her nurse she receives nothing but time-serving treachery, and then it is that by threats of self-inflicted death Juliet wins from Friar Lawrence the terrible sleeping potion that so powerfully counterfeits death. Suppose the potion prove to be poison! Suppose she waken too soon in the vault and be suffocated! or, crazed by the terrors of her gruesome surroundings, go mad. At the same time she seems to see Tybalt's ghost seeking to do injury to Romeo; this decides her, and without hesitation—nay, rather, almost in a wild state to come to Romeo's aid—she drinks of the potion and falls in apparent death. This is the big scene of Romeo and Juliet, and the potion drinking stands as the great climax, and it is of this scene, as portrayed by Barbara Tennant, and which she will give at her recital, a great writer gave the following criticism: "As a climax to all the potion scene from Shakespeare's 'Romeo and Juliet' was given. Here was certainly an opportunity for rant, exaggeration and unmitigated terror by the inexperienced, but by Miss Tennant, the terror of the mind, the fears, suspense, the love, the artistic temperament and moral bravery of poor Juliet were moulded in a scene of unrivalled grandeur." Barbara Tennant appears at the Grand Opera House Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th.

All Saints' Woman's Guild will hold a New England supper and concert on Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, in the lecture hall. Program of local talent. Supper 5.30 to 8.00 o'clock. Admission 25c to all. 1d

EDWARD TERRY TICKLES MONTREAL

EDWARD TERRY IN REPERTOIRE
THE PRINCESS

Montreal Gazette.

The celebrated English comedian, Mr. Edward Terry, renewed his grip on the affections of Montreal playgoers, after an absence of half a dozen years, in Pinero's play of "Sweet Lavender" at the Princess Theatre last night. It was the first time that "Sweet Lavender" had been played by Mr. Terry in Montreal, though it was some years since it stood in the spotlight of popular favor in the English metropolis, where it ran for more than a year. Only one member of the original cast was on the stage last night, Mr. Terry himself, whose portrayal of the tippling and eccentric barrister, Richard Phenyl, gave the play its longevity. Not that the play itself was devoid of merit. On the contrary, it is the only play of Pinero's that has been thus able to defy the flight of time. It was written at a day ere Pinero had lost his heart to Ibsenesque conceptions. Its virtue lay in simplicity of diction and charm of an idyllic love story, with a good deal of humorous trimmings.

And what was the plot? Simply this. A young law student was sharing chambers with the eccentric Phenyl and had fallen in love with the daughter of the laundress, as a barrister's housekeeper is termed in London. Clement Hale was the name of the student and Lavender Rolt was the name of his sweetheart. How the lovers were nearly parted, how Clement Hale's foster father, after trying to deter his son from the match and threatening to disinherit him, found that the bank of which he was owner had come to grief, and how the various people in the play faced poverty and were the better for it; how Mr. Phenyl was enabled to save his friends from disaster, and finally what happened to pretty Minnie Gilfillian and her persistent American lover, Horace Bream, with further details as to the laundress's past, and what became of her lover and why she called herself a widow—all this must be learned by a visit to the play.

St. Paul's Church

Announcements for the week are as follows:—

The Young People's Guild will hold a social meeting on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. A good musical program has been prepared and all the young people of the congregation are invited to attend.

The annual tea in connection with the Sunday school will be held on Friday. Tea will be served at 5.30, after which a short program will be given, and prizes awarded for different departments of the work during the year.

PROMINENT FIGURES IN NEWLY CONSTRUCTED CONSERVATIVE PARTY

How Mr. Borden Has Re-organized It--It Now Presents a Strong Front in Parliament--Much Fine Cabinet Material to be Found--Mr. Borden is Ably Supported on All Sides.

By James Muir

Towards the end of last session of Parliament the announcement was made in the press that before the House met again the whole organization of the Conservative party would be remodelled. The promise was fulfilled. When Parliament met last November, Mr. R. L. Borden, the Opposition leader, submitted his reorganization plan to a caucus of his party, and it was enthusiastically endorsed.

ANGUS CLAUDE MACDONELL,

D.C.L., K.C., M.P., for South Toronto; one of the Conservative whips.

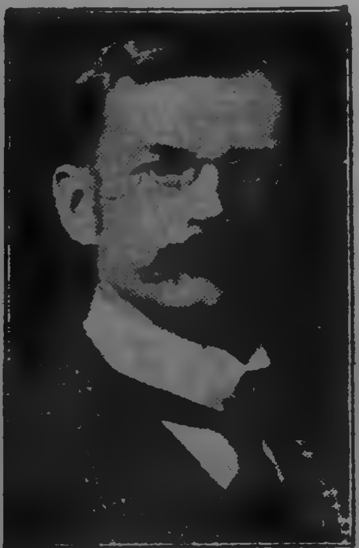
T. W. CROTHERS, B.A., K.C.

M.P. for West Elgin, chairman of the Committee of Conservative Chairmen.

The remodelling of the fighting forces of the Conservatives was absolutely necessary. The Opposition had been struggling along for the most part on the fabric that was left after they went out of power in 1896. They were badly off for fighting material. Their numbers were few, and though they kept their courage up, the work was tremendous. The bulk of it fell on Mr. Borden's shoulders after Sir Charles Tupper went out of politics, and the strain told on him. He had to undertake all the organization work and he had to plan and carry out almost every attack that was made upon the government in the House. He had to give up his law practice.

WM. PRICE, M.P., QUEBEC.

As the years rolled on, however, help began to arrive, until at the last general election the people of the English-speaking provinces sent to his aid a band of young men who had all made their mark in their respective callings. They are not mere politicians and nothing else. They are business men of high character and number amongst them some of those who have helped to make Canada what it is to-day. With the best of the older men they make an effective force.



H. B. AMES, B.A.,

M.P. for St. Antoine, Montreal, since 1904. He was chairman of the Conservative reorganization Committee. Before he came into Parliament he made a great reputation for himself on the Montreal City Council.

Mr Borden did not at first make any attempt to utilize all this material for the various purposes which he had in view. In this he showed great wisdom. There is no such place in Canada as Parliament where men are sifted. Sooner or later they find their level there; ultimately the leaders discover wherein they are best, what are their strongest points. The Opposition leader had plenty of time before the next election, and so he allowed two years to go by before naming the men who would be in the battle front in the forthcoming election campaign.

It is worthy of remark that Mr. Borden has chosen men like himself. All the new officers are men of irreproachable character, both in their public and private life. They are born fighters, most of them of the pioneer stock which never contemplates defeat. They and their folk have wrested success from the virgin land.

Their methods have been fruitful in Parliament thus far, and it is a fact that the few weeks of the present session have been the most vital since the Conservatives were last in power. In front of the government is ranged the most solid and powerful fighting body it has yet faced. Indeed some papers have remarked that the present Opposition as constituted by Mr Borden is the strongest body of men that an Opposition leader in Canada has ever had.

All the experts on the different questions that come before Parliament have been gathered into little committees, and these committees watch like watch dogs every move the Government makes. Their alertness has been the cause of the succession of victories accomplished by the Opposition before Christmas.

Turning to the men who form the great organization of public men, it must be remembered at the outset that Mr. Borden himself has been the motive force that has gathered them into Parliament. The people are now beginning to realize that the Opposition leader is one of the biggest men in public life to-day. He is of a different mould from some that have gone before him. He will not descend to petty miserable vote catching devices. He can repeat in British Columbia the same speeches that he delivers in Nova Scotia or Quebec. The public weal is what he is aiming at, and his adherents love him so well because they feel that with his return to power at the next election will dawn a new day for the Dominion. Clean public life will take the place of the system we have to-day. Mackenzie tried it and failed. Borden will accomplish it.

HAUGHTON LENNOX, K.C.,

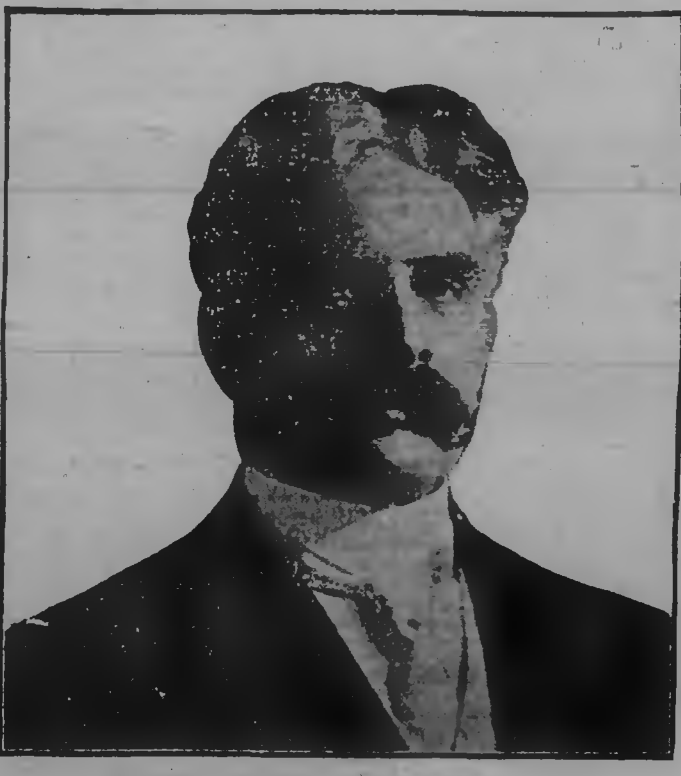
M.P., has done more than any other man in the last few years to bring to light unsavory deals in connection with railway affairs.

It was fitting, therefore, that he should make Mr. George H. Perley his chief whip. Mr. Perley is a rich man of exceptional ability, who has resolved to devote his attention to politics. His work in the House has been characterized by attempts to get Parliament to take a more active interest in such necessary questions as the health of communities and the elimination of disease. In this he has shown himself an authority. Lately he has become more earnest in the belief that if it is in the interest of the Dominion that there should be a change in the governmental control of the country. To this end he has set himself with all the business acumen at his command. He is probably the most valuable man at the disposal of the Opposition in this connection. He will be a Cabinet Minister.

GEORGE TAYLOR, M.P.

For Leeds since 1882. He was appointed chief whip by Sir John Macdonald 26 years ago. He has resigned and is now honorary chief whip.

It should be said that Mr Borden did away with the old territorial plan of appointing the whips. There are fewer of them than formerly, and they were chosen rather for their capacity to fill such a position than with regard to the district of the country from which they hail.



ROBERT LAIRD BORDEN, K.C., LL.D.,

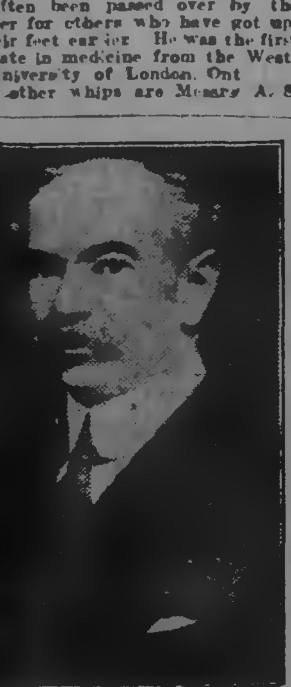
Leader of the Conservative party since 1901

Dr. Roche, of Marquette, Man., was appointed assistant chief whip. He is one of the best of the western men in the House, and in the enticing game of guessing Mr. Borden's Cabinet the name of Dr. Roche always finds a place. He does not speak often, and so it is sometimes forgotten that he is one of the most competent debaters we have. Moderate always in his statements he commands the respect of all the government, and is listened to with deference. He is somewhat diffident in his manner, which accounts for the fact that he has often been passed over by the Speaker for others who have got up on their feet earlier. He was the first graduate in medicine from the Western University of London, Ont.

The other whips are Messrs A. S. Goodeve, of Kootenay, B.C.; Angus Claude Macdonnell, of South Toronto; W. S. Middlebro, of North Grey; Major Samuel Sharpe, of North Ontario; and John Stanfield, of Colchester. Of course, Mr. George Taylor, of Leeds, still remains in harness as honorary chief whip. Mr. Taylor has been the chief whip of the Conservative party for 26 years, having been appointed to that position by Sir John A. Macdonald.

MAJOR S. S. SHARPE, B.A., LL.B.,

M.P. for North Ontario since 1908, and appointed Conservative whip at the beginning of this session. He has done valuable work in the Public Accounts Committee.



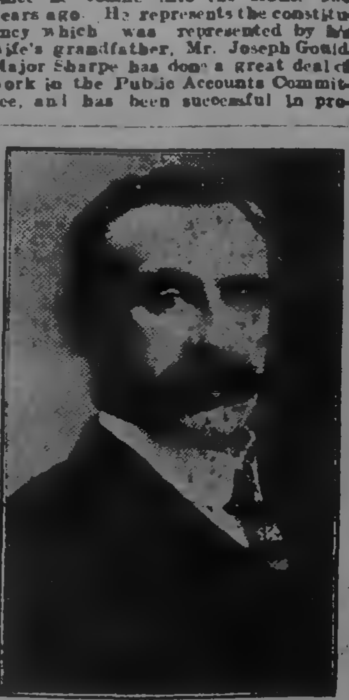
A. S. GOODEVE, M.P.

For Kootenay, B.C., since 1908. Was Provincial Secretary in the McBride Government. One of the best men from the West. Is one of the whips.

Mr. Goodeve is another bright westerner who was strongly recommended to Mr. Borden by Premier McBride, of British Columbia, in whose government he was Provincial Secretary. Like Dr. Roche, Mr. Goodeve is a native of Western Ontario.

Mr. Macdonnell is well known to the young men of Canada as a famous athlete. He was a great oarsman with the Argonauts, and took a general interest in sport. But his abilities do not end there. He is a D.C.L. and K.C. He belongs to a family that fought for the Stuarts in the Jacobite days in Scotland. If his ancestors were anything like him in physique they must have been terrible men with the claymore.

Major S. S. Sharpe is a young man who has made a name for himself since he came into the House two years ago. He represents the constituency which was represented by his wife's grandfather, Mr. Joseph Gould. Major Sharpe has done a great deal of work in the Public Accounts Committee, and has been successful in providing the Opposition with much ammunition to fire at the Hon. Wm. Pugsley.



RICHARD STUART LAKE, M.P.

For Qu'Appelle, Sask., since 1904. He is a well known western farmer and a hard working parliamentarian. He is one of the committee chairmen of the Conservatives.

JOHN STANFIELD, M.P.

For Colchester since 1907. Appointed whip on the reorganization of the Conservative party.

Mr. Stanfield has large business interests in Nova Scotia, and he has brought to bear on his parliamentary work a considerable knowledge of men and their ways. He won a spectacular bye-election in his constituency some years ago and may be regarded as one of the strongest representatives of that ancient province by the sea.

But it must not be concluded that the appointment of the whips was the most important part of Mr. Borden's reorganization. There are other offices much more arduous and responsible. For instance, Mr. C. J. Doherty, formerly the well known Montreal Judge, has been placed in charge of the criticism of the government legislation. No one is better qualified for such a duty. He is a recognized authority on constitutional questions, and during his two years in Parliament the Premier has repeatedly deferred to his opinion. He is a man of culture and refinement, and an hour in his society is an education and a privilege much sought after.

Mr. C. A. Magrath, of Medicine Hat, is rapidly becoming one of the biggest figures in the public life of to-day. Of immense physique, powerful intellect, and indomitable will he became an object of interest as soon as he entered the House after the last general election. The son of a brilliant Irish schoolmaster, he has also some of the best blood of the Macgregors in his veins, and he seems destined to occupy a high place in the councils of Canada. Decency in public life is one of the battles he is fighting. He is a native of Eastern Ontario. He is the permanent chairman of caucus.

Probably the member upon whom the Opposition is relying most for its fighting material is Mr Haughton Lennox, of South Simcoe. No one is more methodical and accurate than he. He is in charge of the committee which looks after the affairs of the National Transcontinental Railway and other railway matters of supreme importance. His devotion to his public duties has cost him great wealth, for he had a very extensive and remunerative legal practice, to which of late years he has been unable to give all the attention he might otherwise have given it. It is commonly remarked that Mr Lennox would be of infinite value to the people of Canada were he appointed to the highest of judicial positions.

Dr T. S. Sproule, of East Grey, finds a place as chairman of the committee which will look after private bill legislation. He is too well known in Canada to require an introduction. He has been a member of the House of Commons since 1878. He is strong on matters concerning the welfare of the agricultural industry, but perhaps he will be best known as head of the Orange Order. He was elected grand master on the death of Mr Clarke Wallace, whose son, Capt. Tom Wallace, is now a member of Parliament, representing Centre York.

Another giant returned to Parliament at the last election is Mr T. W. Crothers, of East Elgin. Not even Hon. George E. Foster has a more acid tongue than Mr Crothers when he is exposing wrong-doing. A man of integrity himself, he is merciless when he finds that the public purse has been robbed. He has been appointed to fill the important position of chairman of the committee of all the committees, where his judgment and legal experience will be invaluable to his party.

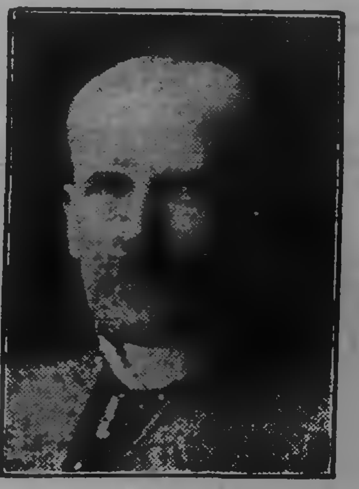
J. E. ARMSTRONG, M.P.

For East Lambton since 1904. Is chairman of the Post-office Committee of the Conservative party.

GEORGE H. PERLEY, M.P.

For Argenteuil, Que., chief Conservative whip. He represented that constituency since 1904.

When Mr H. B. Ames, of the St. Antoine Division of Montreal, arrived in Montreal at the beginning of the session there was general rejoicing amongst the Conservatives. He had been ill for the better part of a year, and, in fact, was not in the House last session at all. It will be remembered that on his way back from Australia, where he had gone to attend the conference of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, he contracted typhoid fever. It settled in his spine and for a long time it was feared that he would be crippled for life. However, he is now recovering, and ere long he will be completely cured. His value to the party is inestimable, and it is quite possible that he will be Minister of finance in Mr Borden's administration. He was responsible for a good deal of the fighting material of the Opposition at the last election. In Montreal he is regarded as a master of the art of organization. He is chairman of the Organization Committee which recommended the change.



C. A. MAGRATH, M.P.

For Medicine Hat, Alta., since 1908. He is permanent chairman of caucus, and one of strong hopes of the Conservative party in the West.

The chairman of the Publicity Committee is Mr. Oswald S. Crocket, of York, N.B., a young member who has done a good deal of valuable work in the Public Accounts Committee, particularly regarding marine matters. He had paid special attention to questions which have come under the administration of the Hon. Wm. Pugsley, and the Minister of Public Works has had much trouble accordingly. His desk mate, Dr J. W. Daniel, of St. John, is in a sense his wrecking partner, and the two of them have unearthed many of the scandals which the Opposition have turned into weapons against the Government.

OSWALD S. CROCKET, B.A.,

M.P. for York, N.B., since 1904. He is chairman of the Publicity Committee of the Conservative party, and is recognised as one of the coming young men of the party.

Dr Reid, of Grenville; Mr. J. E. Armstrong, of East Lambton; Mr E. N. E. Rhodes, of Cumberland, and others, are in charge of small committees, which are looking after special work. Dr. Reid came into Parliament

THE GAME OF THE SEASON WITH THE TRENTON LEADERS

The intermediates will have to be right up and at it to-morrow night, when Trenton comes here for the return game. The prospects for a win by the locals looks brighter right now than they did several days ago and if Cobourg could hold the leaders to a 5—2 score at half time on that big sheet of ice, the home septette should more than break even in the first period here.

The dazzle will likely come after the resting spell, and with Peterborough ahead, the visitors should go away tied for district honors.

Anyway the fans may be assured that the game will be a hummer. Trenton plays hockey every minute and it is worth the price of admission to see them in action.

TOOL MAKERS WON FROM MACHINISTS

No Score in First Half in Mercantile League Game—Final Count 5-1

In a Mercantile League fixture at Brock street rink Saturday night, Tool Room seven drew away from the Machinists in the second half and won out 5-1. Neither team could get the rubber in the nets during the initial period, Tate for the Machinists doing stellar work between the flags in this and the second round. The toolmakers had the better of the play, working Hall of the juniors at centre. Coughlin scored the lonely tally for his mates on a nice three-men combination play. Referee Moore kept the boys on the run all the time and they responded without any particular rough work.

ARTIE EDMUNDS GIVES ADVICE

Thinks Physical Culture Would Perform Wonders for Canadian People

(Toronto News.)

Artie Edmunds, the well known boxer and wrestler, is a firm believer in scientific physical culture, and contends that if every Canadian child were well-fed and well trained, in a few generations we would have the finest race of men and women on earth. A healthy development of the body also conduces to the healthy growth of the mind, but injudicious training often wrecks both mind and body. He believes in a proper development of man's whole being, mental and physical. As one looks through the list of Edmunds' exploits in the world of athletics, one gets proof not only of his versatility, but his wonderful endurance. What with his wrestling and boxing it is a wonder that he is alive to tell the tale. He has fought nearly a hundred fights with the gloves, in addition to his vaudeville turns, in which his wife often helps. The redoubtable Tommy Burns even has been conquered by this plucky little chap. He has not only splendid records for victories won, but a clean record as well. As footballer, runner, boxer and wrestler, Edmunds is game and gritty.

WALES WON FROM ENGLAND 15-11

London, Jan. 21. — (Canadian A. P.) At Swansea, before a crowd of 30,000 people, England, although making a gallant effort, were unable to beat Wales in the Rugby International.

England scored the first try by Roberts. Wales replied almost immediately, Gibbs scoring shortly after. English forwards began to tire.

Just before the interval Birt scored a splendid goal for Wales, who led at the interval by 6 to 3. Almost at the beginning of the second half, eight Welshmen took possession of the ball. Morgan Spiller and Schofield scored. Kewney scored for England who were defeated 15 points to 11.

Chased the Firemen.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—It is not often that the firemen are unwelcome when they come, but Saturday they were refused admission to 332 Parliament street. There had been a small fire at 11.28 in the morning, and somebody phoned for the firemen. Meanwhile the good lady of the house had fought it out with the infant blazes and whipped them to a frazzle. Therefore, she did not propose to have a herd of firemen tracking mud and snow on her spotless floors, and told them so, twice or more. Finally a bargain was made. The lady vowed that there was no more fire and the firemen departed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

(To The Editor of The Review.)

Dear Sir — Will you kindly permit me, through the columns of your paper, to draw the attention of the people of Peterboro, to the presence in our midst of the very talented Bible teacher, Miss Mary Blodgett, who has been giving a series of Bible addresses during the past week, and who is to speak on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. On account of pressure of ministerial work and other engagements it was not my privilege to hear Miss Blodgett, until yesterday afternoon, when she addressed a large audience in St. Paul's Church. I have heard a considerable number of women speakers in my day, and I do not think I am guilty of any exaggeration when I say that yesterday's address was the ablest thing I ever heard from the lips of a woman. And indeed, for that matter I count on the fingers of my hand the number of addresses that I have heard from men that have equalled it. Miss Blodgett is a woman of great culture of keen intellect, and of great fluency and power as a speaker. Then she is a thorough student of the Word of God, loyal to the grand old truths of revealed religion and Gospel of Christ. And better than all, she is a woman of consecration, Spirit-filled for service, who knows by personal experience the truths which she speaks. She has announced a special series of addresses for the last three days of this week. As she is anxious that this series should be heard in sequence I am writing this note not to urge upon the people of Peterboro, men and women, not to miss hearing her on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. If the audience room of the Murray Street Church proves insufficient, St. Paul's Church will be open for all who come.

ROBERT POGUE.
